Nancy Agen — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Agen Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Nancy Agen, retired, Utica NY. I am concerned because transparency should not be reduced. Six months reports were already tried and they were unsatisfactory. It is already proven that my savings will do better if the reports are produced every three months.

Nancy Bartley — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nancy Bartley Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My name is Nancy Bartley, owner of a small landscape design/build business. I am 76 years old and still working.

I have a retirement account, and I make decisions about that account based on the quarterly information I receive. The amount companies would save by reporting less often is not worth the impact on me and my investments.

Corporate insiders already have the advantage- you don’t have to look far to see how some information reaches insiders, politicians, and the like before the rest of us know about it, usually too late to take advantage. Why give them the opportunity for even more insider information? Not fair, not equal opportunity, just say no.

Thank you for your consideration of my comments.

Sincerely,
Nancy Bartley

Nancy Bustle — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Bustle Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My husband and I are retired, depend on our investments and couldn't survive a 46% drop because reporting has been changed. Keep the reporting to quarterly ~ we depend on it to stay independent and not a burden to our adult children. You too would be affected. Nancy & Chip Bustle, Gainesville, Georgia

---

Nancy Michon — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Michon Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 The markets need more transparency, not less. Historically, we've seen this movie before. Markets, and everyone's prosperity, went downhill when this was tried in the later 1950s to 1970. I know I'm among millions of Americans who don't want to lose any of what we've worked so hard to save toward a more secure future for ourselves and our families. Keep requiring reporting on the current quarterly schedule.

Nancy Michon
nmmichon@gmail.com

Nancy ML — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nancy ML Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Namcy Larson. I am retired and need to have my investments managed. Letting them set for 6 months does not benefit any investor.

Nancy
Nancy Musser Larson

Nancy Myster — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nancy Myster Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I am a teacher who works hard to invest her money. I invest in part because I trust the market and the rules that are placed to protect investors. Public companies have a duty to be transparent and share information with their investors. They need to report every quarter! Please help protect the hard-earned investments and retirements of Americans.

Thank you,
Nancy Myster

Sent from my iPhone

Nancy Schwartz — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nancy Schwartz Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Nancy Schwartz. Medicare broker.

I have been actively involved in the stock market throughout the last 44 years. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

Nancy Southerland — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nancy Southerland Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We do not want this! Stick to quarterly reporting! Stop protecting the big corporations.

Sent from my iPhone

Nancy Thompson — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Thompson Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Why would you go backward to something that failed from 1955-1970? How would we trust a company or the government if we are only getting data every six months! There has already been cuts to the government reporting agencies. Accountability and trust are what we, the people, want to have to move our country forward not backwards. Checks and balances keep companies and people ACCOUNTABLE which at this point seems to be on a downward trend. As a retired individual and stock holder this would be devastating to my portfolio with my years of hard work and paying my share of taxes!

Sent from my iPad

Nancy Wavra — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Wavra Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Nancy Wavra, retired. I live in s.w. Washington and worked hard for my money, I prefer to keep it as you do yours.

Naomi Tsujimura — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Naomi Tsujimura Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My name is Naomi Tsujimura and I am a registered nurse and I currently work as a medical care analyst for an insurance company. I have been a faithful contributor to my 401K for over 30 years. My husband and I feel we are very representative of the average everyday investor who is taking it upon ourselves to invest in our retirement and future as we age. The proposal to have us "fly blind," for six months without financial accountability from public companies is nothing short of ridiculous. We are asked to entrust our hard-earned money in the market but then the market can basically do what they want unchecked (and yes that means fraud) for months and are not held responsible. The financial industry has, by their own actions, eroded much public trust over the years. This will continue to destroy any trust and make people more suspicious of investing and perhaps rely on less valid forms of investment. Changing to reporting requirements is a bad idea for the investing public. It is nothing short of self-serving, absolutely suspicious, and smells of financial exploitation of the average investor, like me. The SEC must do better and must represent the American people, not just big institutions. Thank you Naomi Tsujimura

Naomi Tsujimura , BSN, RN SENIOR MEDICAL CARE ANALYST CURI INSURANCE |
m: 919-609-6627 |
f: 919-878-7592 |
w: curi.com/insurance
Report an incident or claim. Submit report. Demystify the litigation process with education and resources. Learn more. The information in this electronic mail may contain confidential, sensitive and/or protected health information intended only for the addressee(s). Any other person, including anyone who believes he/she might have received it due to an addressing error, is requested to notify this sender immediately by return e-mail, and shall delete it without further reading and retention. The information shall not be forwarded or shared unless in compliance with Curi policies on confidentiality, and/or the written permission of this sender.

Nas Mazuji — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nas Mazuji Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Do not keep investors in The dark! We already have a very uneven playing field.

Nasrin Mazuji, DDS

Sent from my iPhone

Nathan Putich — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nathan Putich Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I want quarterly reporting for more transparency on my stock holdings.

Neil Stahl — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Neil Stahl Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Why would you change what’s worked for decades? This idea is bad for the public you’re supposed to represent.

Nia Avalon — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Nia Avalon Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Nia Avalon, retired teacher. Republicans believe that a slide down to bi-annual reporting will allow the wealthy to control markets by less than legal means. Insider trading is still illegal, yet the wealthy and their puppets in Congress ignore the law and make private profit their goal. If we returned to bi-annual reporting, criminals in the Epstein Class have more opportunity to pillage our economy and lie about their earnings. The SEC MUST stand against these morally and ethically bankrupt people and hold them accountable, regardless of party affiliation! We are already headed for another great depression, dropping quarterly reporting will make that a reality. We are tetering on the brink. Don't allow the wealthy push us over the edge.

Nicholas Laiacona — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Nicholas Laiacona Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 To Whom It

May Concern:

Reject S7-2026015. Stop catering to the billionaires' dreams of no accountability. Keep the playing field level so investors can make informed decisions.

- Nick Laiacona
Rochester, NY

Nicholas Oldenburg — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: N. Oldenburg My name is Nicholas Oldenburg and I work in IT. The only thing this benefits is corruption. For you to allow this would be telling people that you no longer serve them but serve your corporate masters and corruption and greed

---

Nickie Perry — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nickie Perry Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 The 10-Q is the only regular check investors have on public companies. Please do not eliminate it.

William Perry.
Sent from my iPhone

Nickie Perry — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nickie Perry Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep Qtrly reporting requirements!

Sent from my iPhone

Nicolas Morgan, President, Investor Choice Advocates Network — Jun 8, 2026
INVESTOR CHOICE ADVOCATES NETWORK
453 S. Spring Street, Suite 400 • Los Angeles, CA 90013 • www.icanlaw.org
June 8, 2026
Vanessa Countryman
Secretary
Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street, NE
Washington, DC 20549
Via email: rule-comments@sec.gov
Re: Comment Letter in Support of Proposed Amendments to Allow Optional Semiannual Reporting Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; IC-36140 (May 5, 2026)
File No. S7-2026-15
Dear Commissioners and Staff:
The Investor Choice Advocates Network (“ICAN”) appreciates the opportunity to comment on the Securities and Exchange Commission’s proposed rule to allow public companies to file semiannual reports on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q ("Proposed Rule").1 ICAN is a nonprofit public interest law firm and advocacy organization dedicated to expanding access to capital markets and protecting the fundamental right of investors to make their own informed financial decisions.

ICAN supports the Proposed Rule and its expansion of investor choice. The ability of investors to freely choose where to invest their capital is a cornerstone of efficient markets, and the Proposed Rule advances that principle by giving investors and companies alike the ability to choose a reporting cadence that best reflects their needs. Critics argue that less frequent mandatory reporting harms retail investors by reducing available information. As discussed below, this concern, while sincere, gives investors too little credit and the government too much, for we share the critics' commitment to keeping retail investors informed and simply trust that investors, given the choice, will demand the information they need. The market, not regulators, is best positioned to determine the optimal level of reporting frequency.

1. The Proposed Rule Expands Investor Choice Without Reducing Anyone's Options

A threshold point frequently overlooked by critics is that the Proposed Rule takes nothing away from any investor. Any company that wishes to continue filing quarterly reports on Form 10-Q may continue to do so. Any investor who values frequent disclosure may simply choose to invest in quarterly-filing companies. The Proposed Rule is strictly additive: it creates a new option for companies and investors, not a mandate.

1Proposed Rule: Semiannual Reporting, Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; IC-36140, at 2 (May 5, 2026), available at https://www.sec.gov/files/rules/proposed/2026/33-11414.pdf.

This is the essence of investor choice. Markets function best when participants can sort themselves by preference. Not every investor wants the same thing: some want quarterly checkpoints, while others prefer companies freed from the pressure of quarterly targets. The Proposed Rule enables both groups to act on their preferences simultaneously. Denying companies the option to report semiannually forecloses choices for investors who might prefer companies freed from the expense and short-termism that quarterly earnings guidance can produce.

Critics who favor mandatory quarterly reporting implicitly assume that market discipline is insufficient to protect investors who prefer more frequent disclosure. That assumption is unwarranted. A company that elects semiannual reporting over the objections of its shareholder base will face swift market consequences: reduced trading volume, diminished analyst coverage, and a higher cost of capital. Institutional and retail investors alike can, and will, express their preference through their investment decisions, avoiding semiannual filers in favor of companies that report quarterly.

A less liquid stock means fewer analysts, costlier fundraising, and a weaker position in capital transactions and hiring. The market creates these pressures on its own, without any regulatory mandate. As one prominent financial commentator noted shortly after the Proposed Rule was released, large established companies are unlikely to shift to semiannual reporting precisely because their investors expect quarterly updates and the companies understand the market cost of disappointing that expectation.2 The Commission need not mandate what the market will effectively require. ICAN's mission is to expand market access and protect investor autonomy. A rule that gives investors more choices is precisely the kind of market-expanding reform we support.

The mandatory quarterly reporting requirement also implicates a deeper structural concern. Congress designed the Exchange Act's periodic reporting framework as a disclosure regime — one intended to ensure that investors receive the information they need to make their own investment decisions, not to restrict which investment options are available to them in the first place. A merits-based regulator substitutes the government's judgment for the investor's by prohibiting access to investments the regulator deems insufficiently attractive; a disclosure-based regulator ensures that investors receive full and accurate information and then trusts them to decide. The existing mandatory quarterly reporting rule, to the extent it bars investors from accessing public companies that would choose to report semiannually, functions as the former: it withholds market access not because any required disclosure has been omitted, but because a regulator has deemed quarterly reporting to be a precondition for participation. The Proposed Rule corrects this structural drift by returning the reporting-frequency decision to companies and investors, consistent with the 2Matt Levine, Sometimes Andrew Left Was Right, Bloomberg Opinion (May 18, 2026), available at https://www.bloomberg.com/opinion/newsletters/2026-05-18/sometimes-andrew-left-was-right.

Exchange Act's foundational commitment to informed investor choice over government-imposed merit judgments.3

2. The “Less Information” Criticism Does Not Withstand Scrutiny

The most common objection to the Proposed Rule is that quarterly reports provide investors with more information, and therefore their elimination would harm retail investors. This concern deserves a direct response.

First, switching to semiannual reporting does not give companies a pass on disclosing material news. Under Form 8-K, companies are already required to report significant developments promptly as they occur, such as earnings surprises, executive changes, mergers, regulatory actions, and dozens of other triggering events, and the Proposed Rule leaves those obligations entirely intact. Semiannual filers will continue to report material developments as they arise. The Proposed Rule reduces the frequency of scheduled interim reports; it does not create a disclosure blackout.

Second, the “more information is always better” argument confuses quantity with quality. As Harvard Law Professor Hal Scott, Director of the Committee on Capital Markets Regulation, has observed, the quarterly reporting regime is closely intertwined with the practice of issuing quarterly earnings guidance, a practice widely cited as a driver of “short-termism,” pushing management to optimize for meeting three-month earnings estimates rather than long-term value creation.4 Academic research reinforces this concern: empirical studies have documented that increased reporting frequency is associated with a meaningful decline in corporate investment and an increase in real earnings management—findings consistent with the short-termism hypothesis.5 A leading comment letter submitted to this proceeding by Professor Stephen Bainbridge of UCLA

3 See Ronald J. Colombo, Merit Regulation via the Suitability Rules, 12 J. Int'l Bus. & L. 1 (2013), available at https://scholarlycommons.law.hofstra.edu/jibl/vol12/iss1/2 (describing the distinction between disclosure-based and merits-based securities regulation and noting that Congress, in establishing the federal securities regulatory framework, deliberately rejected merit regulation in favor of a disclosure-based approach that leaves investment decisions to investors).

4See ThinkAdvisor, Harvard Law Prof on Ending Quarterly Reports, Mandatory Arb: SEC Roundup (Oct.
28, 2025), available at https://www.thinkadvisor.com/2025/10/28/harvard-law-prof-on-ending-quarterly-reports-mandatory-arb-sec-roundup/ (quoting Harvard Law Professor Hal Scott, Director of the Committee on Capital Markets Regulation).

5See, e.g., Ernstberger, J., Link, B., Stich, M., & Vogler, O. (2017). The real effects of mandatory quarterly reporting. The Accounting Review, 92(5), 33–60, https://doi.org/10.2308/accr-51705 (finding that EU firms mandated to switch from semiannual to quarterly reporting showed increased real earnings management, consistent with higher short-termism); Kraft, A.G., Vashishtha, R., & Venkatachalam, M.
(2018). Frequent financial reporting and managerial myopia. The Accounting Review, 93(2), 249–

275,
https://doi.org/10.2308/accr-51838 (documenting a large, persistent decline in corporate investment following increased reporting frequency, consistent with managerial myopia); Gigler, F., Kanodia, C., Sapra, H., & Venugopalan, R. (2014). How frequent financial reporting can cause managerial short-termism: An analysis of the costs and benefits of increasing reporting frequency. Journal of Accounting Research, 52(2), 357–387, https://doi.org/10.1111/1475-679X.12043 (developing a theoretical model showing that more frequent reporting can increase the probability of inducing managerial short-termism).

School of Law similarly concludes that mandatory quarterly reporting rests on weak theoretical foundations, because market forces, anti-fraud liability, and event-driven disclosure requirements can deliver adequate investor information without a rigid reporting mandate.6 Quarterly reports that principally confirm or miss guidance targets may generate less genuinely useful information for long-term investors than less frequent but more substantive disclosures focused on business strategy and multi-year performance.

Third, and most importantly, the international evidence refutes the prediction that eliminating mandatory quarterly reporting will leave investors in the dark. The United Kingdom repealed its quarterly reporting mandate in 2014. The European Union did the same in 2013, having introduced a quarterly requirement only in 2004.7 In both jurisdictions, many public companies continue to report quarterly on a voluntary basis, exactly what market forces would predict.8 Investors who want quarterly reports from UK and EU companies can get them, because companies understand that voluntarily providing information investors value serves their own interests. The same dynamic will operate in U.S. markets under the Proposed Rule.

3. Reducing Compliance Costs Strengthens U.S. Public Markets

Beyond investor choice, the Proposed Rule serves a compelling public-interest goal: reducing the regulatory burden that has contributed to the declining number of publicly traded companies in the United States and the lengthening of private holding periods. The Commission's own economic analysis estimates that filing three quarterly reports per year imposes approximately $330,0009 in annual direct compliance costs per issuer before accounting for the cost of the Form 10-K, costs the SEC expects will be meaningfully reduced under the Proposed Rule, with the savings reinvested in business operations, growth, and long-term strategy.10

For large, established companies, this cost is manageable. For newly public companies, smaller issuers, and companies in capital-intensive industries, it is a significant diversion of resources from research and development, hiring, and capital investment. The burden of quarterly

6See Bainbridge, S.M. (2026). Letter of comment re proposed amendments to Exchange Act Rules 13a-13 and 15d-13—optional semi-annual reporting in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q. UCLA School of Law, Law-Econ Research Paper No. 26-04, available at https://ssrn.com/abstract=6750300 (arguing that mandatory quarterly reporting rests on weak theoretical foundations because market forces, anti-fraud rules, and event-based disclosures can often produce adequate information without a rigid mandate).

7Matthew Kaplan, Paul Rodel, and Steven Slutzky, The End of Quarterly Reporting in the United States?, Harvard Law School Forum on Corporate Governance (Oct. 5, 2025), available at https://corpgov.law.harvard.edu/2025/10/05/the-end-of-quarterly-reporting-in-the-united-states/.

8Id.; see also Bornemann, T., Moosmann, A.L., & Novotny-Farkas, Z. (2025). The consequences of abandoning the quarterly reporting mandate in the prime market segment. European Accounting

Review,
34(1), 89–122, https://doi.org/10.1080/09638180.2023.2239298 (finding that after Austria's Vienna Stock Exchange deregulated quarterly reporting, most firms continued to report quarterly voluntarily, driven by the information needs of their institutional investors and analyst communities).
9Proposed Rule, Release No. 33-11414, at 105.
10Hogan Lovells, SEC Proposes to Permit Semiannual Instead of Quarterly Reporting, SEC Update (May 26, 2026).

compliance is frequently cited as a factor in the decision of growth-stage companies to remain private longer, a concern the Proposed Rule directly addresses, as reduced compliance costs are expected to encourage more private companies to enter and remain in the public markets.11 The Proposed Rule addresses this dynamic directly, making U.S. public markets more accessible and competitive.

New companies often have little of substance to report on a quarterly basis beyond continued investment of capital in early-stage development activities.12 Requiring these companies to produce costly quarterly reports primarily to confirm that their business plan has not materially changed is an inefficient use of both company resources and Commission staff time. The Proposed Rule appropriately gives these companies the option to report semiannually, preserving capital for productive use while maintaining annual and event-driven disclosures.

The Proposed Rule also complements the Commission's concurrent registered offering reform proposal (Release No. 33-11418), which would dramatically expand Form S-3 eligibility to early-stage issuers regardless of public float or exchange-listing status—precisely the companies that benefit most from semiannual reporting.13 For these companies, investor valuations are driven primarily by milestone achievement, not incremental revenues or earnings, and those milestones are already captured in Form 8-K filings. Quarterly profit and loss reports and balance sheet changes provide little additional analytical value, and while cash flow remains a legitimate concern, semiannual disclosure supplemented by event-driven Form 8-K reporting adequately addresses it. Together, semiannual reporting and expanded Form S-3 access create a coherent, lower-friction pathway for early-stage issuers to raise capital while maintaining disclosure standards appropriate to their lifecycle.

Critics may counter that pairing expanded capital-raising access with reduced reporting frequency creates an information gap precisely when investors are most vulnerable, particularly for early-stage companies spending large amounts of cash between semiannual filings. Existing law already addresses this concern: material impairments (Item 2.06), covenant defaults and debt acceleration (Item 2.04), and the creation of material financial obligations (Item 2.03) all trigger Form 8-K disclosure within four business days.14 Moreover, each Form S-3 shelf offering incorporates the company's most recent Exchange Act filings by reference, supplementing rather

11David Hooper and Mikaela Heck, SEC Proposes Semiannual Reporting: Is It Right for Your Company?, Barnes & Thornburg LLP (May 22, 2026), available at https://btlaw.com/en/insights/alerts/2026/sec-proposes-semiannual-reporting.
12See Baker McKenzie, United States: SEC Proposes Optional Semiannual Reporting, Insight (May 2026), available at https://www.bakermckenzie.com/en/insight/publications/2026/05/united-states-sec-proposes-optional-semiannual-reporting; see also Jackson Walker LLP, Goodbye 10-Q? SEC Proposes Semiannual Reporting Option for Public Companies with New Form 10-S (May 20, 2026), available at https://www.jw.com/news/insights-sec-semiannual-reporting-change/.

13Press Release, U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Registered Offering Reform, Release Nos.
33-11418; 34-105513; IC-36160, File No. S7-2026-17 (May 19, 2026), available at https://www.sec.gov/rules-regulations/2026/05/s7-2026-17.
14Cooley LLP, Triggering Events for Form 8-K (rev. Dec. 2023), available at https://www.cooley.com/resource/triggering-events-for-form-8-k.

than undermining the semiannual disclosure calendar.15 The federal securities laws provide a further layer of protection that quarterly reporting cannot replicate.16 Investors who acquire securities in a registered offering have private rights of action under Securities Act Sections 11 and 12(a)(2) for material misstatements or omissions, and underwriters, accountants, directors, and other signatories face strict liability for such misstatements. This incentivizes all parties to ensure the accuracy and completeness of disclosures at the time of each offering regardless of when interim reports are due.17

4. The Proposed Rule Preserves Meaningful Disclosure Standards

ICAN also wishes to highlight that the Proposed Rule is carefully designed to preserve the quality of disclosure for companies that elect semiannual reporting. New Form 10-S would require the same narrative disclosures and financial information currently required by Form 10-Q, covering a six-month fiscal period rather than a quarter.18 Auditor review of semiannual financial statements would remain required. The filing deadlines for Form 10-S align with those for Form 10-Q (40 or 45 days depending on filer status).19 The Proposed Rule offers a genuine middle path: a structured, auditor-reviewed semiannual report, not a regulatory free-for-all.

15Sichenzia Ross Ference Carmel LLP, Utilizing a Shelf Registration Statement for a Follow-on Public Offering, available at https://srfc.law/wp-content/uploads/2025/09/Utilizing-a-Shelf-Registration-Statement-for-a-Follow-on-Public-Offering.pdf.
16Proposed Rule, Release No. 33-11414, at n.66 (noting that investors in public companies are protected by liability provisions of the federal securities laws applicable to public company disclosures, including Securities Act Section 11 and Exchange Act Section 18).
17Registered Offering Reform, Release No. 33-11418, 91 Fed. Reg. 31037 (May 26, 2026), available at https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/FR-2026-05-26/pdf/2026-10373.pdf.
18See Proposed Rule at 4–5; Fact Sheet at 2.
19Press Release, U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, SEC Proposes Amendments to Permit Optional Semiannual Reporting by Public Companies (May 5, 2026), available at https://www.sec.gov/newsroom/press-releases/2026-42-sec-proposes-amendments-permit-optional-semiannual-reporting-public-companies.

Conclusion

The Proposed Rule represents a thoughtful, market-respecting reform that expands investor choice, reduces unnecessary compliance burdens, and aligns U.S. reporting practices with international standards. The concerns raised by critics, while sincere, give investors too little credit and the government too much. ICAN trusts that investors can and will make those judgments for themselves. ICAN supports the Commission in finalizing the Proposed Rule for the reasons set forth above.

Thank you.

Respectfully submitted,
Nicolas Morgan, President
Investor Choice Advocates Network

Nicole Gronnert — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nicole Gronnert Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I am Nicole Gronnert, an Employment Specialist.
I cannot afford the kind of risk that semi-annual disclosure presents. Our current administration is hellbent on extracting everything they can from the least of us. I have already ceased contributing to my 401K for the remaining duration of this crazy administration. I fear I will have to pull my 401K early, in order to preserve what I can. Removing another investor guardrail will seal that decision for me. Stand up for the little people. Without us, there is no you.

Nina Mancuso — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Nina Mancuso Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Longer reporting gaps will help insiders, but not the common investor. 6 months is too long to keep us in the dark.

Norm Burke — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Norm Burke Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Dear Congress. "We The People" EXPECT our so-called "Representatives" to actually REPRESENT their Constituents!! NOT their own, and Big Corporate Interests. You work FOR THE PEOPLE!!!

Norman Gremore — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Norman Gremore Affiliation: Jun. 8, 2026 I believe it’s all about trust. How can we trust a company, an administration, or a person when they pursue and endorse any legal route that enables them to hide from public/legal scrutiny? More importantly, history tells us this change to reporting impacts stockholders negatively.

Sent from my iPad Pro

Olan Knight — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Olan Knight Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We have enough issues with illegal activity in the corporate world. Keeping the reporting window small helps prevent that. The window should remain small, though I can see requiring reporting every 4 months instead of every 3.

P A Fitzgerald — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: P A Fitzgerald Having known main street investors who have been direct victims of the similar system in the British Stock Market, where only semi-annual reporting was available, it is my judgment that in today's markets, Semi-Annual Earnings Reporting is simply not adequate to capture the true state of fast-moving companies that may be governed poorly. Adoption of the proposed rule will disadvantage main street investors to the benefit of large institutional investors that have resources that individual investors don't. I urge the SEC to reject the proposed rule.

P.M.W — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: P.M.W Please do not change this quartly reporting requirement. There is enough criminal activity happening with insider trading from share holders. This change will only allow for more criminal activity and retail investors holding the bag on investments creating more of a K shaped economy.

Page Galloway — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Page Galloway Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 The plan to limit our access to information about our money and investments is dangerous to us and the economy as a whole. It allows bad actors the ability to harm us and leaves us in the position that we cannot act to protect ourselves nor can the plan trustees make appropriate decisons because there is no information to act on. 2008 re taught the lessons learned from 1929 forward. Leaving those of us whose life savings are invested through 401k plans in the dark places a huge swathe of us in harm's way to benefit a few people for whom the kind of damage we will suffer would consider a rounding error.

---

pam leach — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: pam leach Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Please continue with quarterly reporting! Thank you

---

Pam Sturgeon — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Pam Sturgeon Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 PAMELA STURGEON. RETIRED. DISABLED. ...ABSOLUTELY NOT!!! HAVEN'T YOU STOLEN ENOUGH OF THE TAXPAYERS MONIES FIR ALL YOU SCBAG THIEVES?? STOP IT!!! THIS ADMINISTRATION IS A THOUSAND TIMES WORSE THAN MARIE ANTOINETTE. YOU WORK FOR US. NOT THE OTHER WAY AROUND!! NO! NO! NO A THOUSAND TIMES NO!!!! I AND ALL OF TGE COUNTRY AND TGE WORLD IS S8CK OF THIS CRAP!! WE SEE RIGHT THROUGH WHAT YOU ARE DOING!! WE WILL NOT ALLOW THIS TO OCCUR. IT IS NOT 1950!! LIKE IT OR NOT!! MOVE ON OR YOU WILL BE REMOVED FROM YOUR POSITIONS AS WE ARE ABKE TO DO IT!!! STOP THIS INSANITY!!!!

Pamela Haley — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Pamela Haley Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep the quarterly statements. This is the ONLY way to manage our investments. Being a senior citizen it’s imperative to see our quarterly report in order for us to stay on top of our investments! We don’t have another 20 years to grow our investments and need to be aware of our earnings/losses!

Sent from my iPhone

Pamela Urioste — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Pamela Urioste Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep quartilye NO to 6 month

---

passive consumer — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: passive consumer Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Jerry Pogue Retired
Our investments are a good part of our retirement income. Because YOU PEOPLE scolded us for decades about not depending on Social Security. Remember? Well we didn't, so investments are what we have, not really by choice but because the government, YOU people, kinda forced us, didn't you. That's why this matter is vitally important to my family.
And now you want to make it even more rigged, more difficult, and more of a shell game than it already is.
You had BETTER NOT.

Pat Bartels — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Pat Bartels Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep the reporting quarterly.

Pat Blackman — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Pat Blackman I like seeing the quarterly reports! They let me see how my investments are doing, and what direction they're going. Please keep them quarterly; it would be counterproductive to drop the visibility down to semiannually.

---

pat dinneen — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: pat dinneen Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep the quartly reporting this is std to even think it

---

Pat Golden — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Pat Golden Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Do not stop quarterly reporting requirements. I use this information. The companies would be holding all the cards using my money. The savings will be for them - another advantage. It won't be optional really. No reason to do this. Pat Golden

Get Outlook for Android

Patricia Knittel — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Patricia Knittel Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As retirees on a more fixed income drawing from our 401k's, etc., we must submit quarterly estimated tax payments. Why shouldn't these companies have to give us quarterly reports of our own investments? They wouldn't be in business without us investors.

Patricia Knittel
[REDACTED]
Redmond, OR

Patricia McMillen — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Patricia McMillen Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 There is no good reason to decrease the frequency of corporate reporting to investors. Your job, SEC, is to protect investors, not corporations.

Patricia McMillen
She/her

Sent from my iPhone

Patricia Mepham — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Mepham Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I like getting the quarterly reports. It's beneficial for everyone.

We've already seen what happens when we have only two yearly reports. Why would we want a repeat of the same failure of the SEC history?

Patrick Crisler — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Patrick Crisler Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As a CPA I very much am in favor of keeping quarterly earnings reports for all publicly traded companies.

This information is crucial to the investing public, as well as anyone relying on current financial and operating information of those companies.

Regards,

Patrick Crisler

Sent via the Samsung Galaxy S25+, an AT&T 5G smartphone
Get Outlook for Android

Patrick Hagan — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Patrick Hagan Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Pat Hagan, Teacher
East Glacier, MT 59434

Honesty and transparency are important values to me in the government. Reporting twice a year seems dishonest; almost like "we're not telling the whole truth, we're obfuscating."

Patrick Seibert — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Patrick Seibert Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I'm Patrick Seibert a cybersecurity compliance consultant and legal student. This change to the SEC rules would allow for more issues similar to Enron Venture Capitalism, would hurt shareholders and the general public, and would further deteriorate trust in the American markets which is already at an all time low. Due to the reasons stated above, for the sake of my 401k, amd for the sake of accountability please do not make this rule change.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Patty Mitchell — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Patty Mitchell Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Thus is a ridiculous notion!!! No no no! Quarterly statements

Sent from my iPhone

Patty Mitchell — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Patty Mitchell Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Thus is a ridiculous notion!!! No no no! Quarterly statements

Sent from my iPhone

Patty Satalia — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Patty Satalia Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This would be industrial scale THEFT! Every retail investor in the country would be robbed blind—and would get out of the Stock Market! Retired Investor.

Sent from my iPhone

Paul Buelow — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Paul Buelow Affiliation: Jun. 8, 2026 Financial reporting to stockholders and to the public is very important because it allows for examination and correction. If reporting is allowed to slide for a long period of time, the temptation to manipulate figures is greater than if reporting is required on a monthly basis. Do not foresake the shorter-period requirement.

Sent from my iPad

Paul Cothern — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Paul Cothern Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Paul Cothern, retired, STOP this plan to prevent up to date financial information on retiree's 401 K plans!

Sent from Paul's iPhone 4S

Paul Johnson — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Paul Johnson Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 The current system is working well for the people who invest in these companies, and protects their investments from greed and corruption.

Paul Moyland — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Paul Moyland Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Paul Moyland, Principal Engineer
Do not reduce the frequency of reporting financial information. Financial results are to be provided quarterly, if not even more frequently.

Paula Rice — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Paula Rice Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Paula Rice, retired community relations. "Ordinary people" who do not have access to 401K plans must fund their own retirements. Being able to invest knowledgeable in the stock market is a very important way to do this. Let's keep the playing field level by maintaining quarterly reports.

Paula Rice

Paula Stanley — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Paula Stanley Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 There is no reason to allow corporations to report profits only twice a year. Investors need timely information. The quarterly information is available and must be reported. I am retired, and much of my net worth is in the stock market. Paula Stanley

Sent from my iPhone

Pauline Hunneman — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Pauline Hunneman Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 With computers, AI, automated systems, quarterly reporting is a matter of pushing buttons these days. I worked in finance in the ‘70’s, when hand-stamped passbooks, credit charge approval by code spoken over the telephone, and Selectric typewriters were cutting edge. Mortgages were made and serviced by the same institution—investments—and those passbooks paid 5%, often with a gift for opening an account.
Now, with banks and financial advisers on every street corner, what income isn’t eaten up in fees is likely stolen by scams. Our federal government has a responsibility to protect investors, and a quarterly report is not a big ask. If the profits from buying and selling stocks can be made or lost dependent on hundredths of seconds, surely reporting every 3 months is not too much to ask.
Pauline S. Hunneman, (Retired)

Peggy — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Peggy Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I am writing to urge the Securities and Exchange Commission to maintain the current requirement that publicly traded companies provide quarterly financial disclosures. As an individual investor, I rely on timely, transparent financial information to make informed decisions about my savings and retirement security.

I am not a large institutional investor. I am a 75-year-old professional musician who continues to work because I need the income. Due to advancing osteoarthritis in my hands, the day is approaching when I will no longer be able to earn a living through my profession. My financial future depends in part on the modest investment portfolio I have built through decades of careful saving and disciplined living.

For investors like me, transparency is not a luxury—it is a necessity!

Historically, less frequent disclosure has been associated with reduced transparency, greater uncertainty, and lower market valuations. Moving from quarterly to semi-annual reporting would deprive investors of timely information and could undermine confidence in the markets. Any resulting decline in valuations or investment returns would have serious consequences for those who depend on their savings to meet basic living expenses.
For someone in my position, a substantial reduction in the value of my retirement assets would be devastating. I am certain that many other ordinary investors, retirees, and working Americans would face similar hardships.

I respectfully urge the Commission to preserve the current quarterly reporting requirements and continue to prioritize transparency, accountability, and investor protection.
Thank you for your consideration.

-P. Friedland
Professional musician, Gloucester, MA

Peggy Graves — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Peggy Graves Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My name is Margaret Graves and I am a US citizen with investments in the stock market to help me with my retirement income. It is imperative for people to be able to moniter their investments on a quarterly basis so that they do not lose money by not having up to date information on how it is performing. Infrequent transparency also sets the scene for an increase in fraud potential from allowing it to fester without anyone outside the company seeing it. And once larger companies file only 2x a year smaller companies will do the same and "optional" will just become the norm. There is a reason the change from the 1950s standards were made more frequent and those reasons are even more prevalent today.

Peggy McBeath — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Peggy McBeath Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quarterly reports are important. Many small investors would be at risk and would probably get out of the market it they invested with this disadvantage. A LOT can go wrong in 6 months. Only insiders (ceos, congressmen, lawyers, the presidents kids) would have the advantage of knowing what's happening…until it's too late!

Sent from my iPhone

Peggy O'Grady — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Peggy O'Grady Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep the checks on Wall Street as is.

Penny Moskowitz — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Penny Moskowitz Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This is a bad idea. The sooner the information the better. Moving the reporting requirements to every 6 mths, makes it possible to hide bad news, longer. We need greater transparency, not less.

Penny Moskowitz. Operations, IBM

Penny Pawl — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Penny Pawl Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This is not helping the general public, the very people who will need this money when they retire. Sounds like another of Trump's Terrific Ideas. Do not change this. Penelope A Pawl, citizen

---

peter gonzalez — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: peter gonzalez Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep it Quarterly !!

Sent from my iPhone

Peter Lake — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Peter Lake Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep it Quarterly !!

---

peter morin — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: peter morin Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Dear sirs :

As a trial lawyer who's done his fair share of securities litigation (on both sides), I can think of no good reason at all to end quarterly reporting. The expense to the public company is NOT a good reason.

Especially at this time, when global markets are volatile and the paths of the world and US economies are uncertain and facing some dire energy-related headwinds, quarterly disclosures provide the public the opportunity to examine how that volatility is affecting the companies they're invested in. Eliminating the quarterlies means the shareholder may not learn of internal financial instability until it is too late. These documents contain vital financial health metrics that cause rapid, and sometimes massive, price volatility as investors digest the details. They are also a significant factor in the security's market price.

This is a decidedly anti-shareholder initiative that hurts the little guy.

Respectfully,

Peter B. Morin, Esq.

Peter Savagian — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Peter Savagian Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Don’t foolishly loosen relax the reporting period. Good faith in fair play is in the public interest and the liquidity of public assets.

Sent from my iPhone

Phil Preston — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Phil Preston Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 this is bull cp.

PhilandPam Cartwright — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: PhilandPam Cartwright Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Pleas do not change the quarterly reporting requirement. It has worked well for over 70 years. There is no good reason to change it. Changing it will make US stocks more volatile.
Phil Cartwright

Retiree

---

philip wesel — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: philip wesel Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We seem to be living in a world where financial information is less trusted than ever before. I was not alive in 1929 but my grandfather was. He had a cut flower business just north of the GW bridge. Long story short, he ended up losing just about everything except his honor.

I hope that people will understand that latency of market news is no friend of investors. Quarterly results will always be better than semi annual results. We should continue to provide timely relevant information for investors and for folks like my grandfather to make informed decisions. Thank you for your time.

Phyllis Castro — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Phyllis Castro Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep it Quarterly. Reporting should be NO less than quarterly. Stop trying to destroy our systems of checks and balances.

Phyllis Castro

Potria Burch — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Potria Burch Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep my information current, quarterly matters!

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

---

qaweb.net — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: qaweb.net Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 timely regular information is important in law-enforcement, emergency services, medicine, consumer finance, high technologies even in public education : NO GOOD purpose derives from delayed, hidden or withheld financial information

Best regards,

Allan Whitworth
San Diego, California

R Acosta — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: R Acosta Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Robert Acosta , warehouseman, California. I cannot see any reason for this , other than stealing more money! Is it ever enough?

Rachel Reagan — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rachel Reagan Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 To whom it may concern, I am a mother, at home, trying to learn business through watching how businesses handle their finances and changing the SEC from quarterly to twice-annually makes it harder for me to see the changes they're making and the effects it has. How can we respond as consumers and citizens to the changes companies are making and who to buy from and how to navigate the economy if they have 6 entire months to hide results when the economy moves so fast that the results could be within days of their decisions? We need MORE transparency, not less. Corporations need MORE accountability, not more privacy. My family needs to make responsible decisions, and that goes for the SEC not letting business off the hook. Thank you,
Rachel Reagan

Rachel Schneider — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rachel Schneider Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We have been investing for 40 years now. I am a estate planning lawyer and have worked in banking. If this goes through, we're going to be cashing out with an eye to investing smaller and internationally. Corporations need more accountability, not less. Reject this change.
Rachel Schneider
Naperville, IL

Ramesh Raman — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ramesh Raman Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quarterly is essential for investors. Look back as the rationale for going to quarterly. Now we can get rid of guidance as that is too much but quarterly allows more accurate YoY analysis

Best Regards,

Ramesh

Randall Frayer — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Randall Frayer Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Next, companies who pay quarterly dividends will go to semi annual?! That’s lost revenue for shareholders, less cost and more profit for businesses. Quarterly reports give knowledge of company performance and financial health that investors use to determine whether they want to risk investing. 180 days increases investor risk exponentially.

Randy - Investor

Sent from my iPhone

RANDALL OTTO — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: RANDALL OTTO Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Randall Otto, retired, Hingham, MA, now living off retirement accounts and SS, and I advocate for more, not less, reporting and accountability for corporations, especially as people in the middle class are getting hammered into rebellion. Thank you.

Sent from my iPhone

Randy — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Randy Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 NO. Quarterly reporting is standard practice
Randal Pruitt. CEO RACREDO LLC

Sent from my iPhone

Randy A. Harrison — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Randy A. Harrison Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We demand you stop letting corporations run wild with our money. Stop bi annual reporting. We demand it stays as it is.

---

randy thompson — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: randy thompson Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 No fg way!

Sent from my iPhone

Raphael Morales — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Raphael Morales Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I'm thinking that company managers should be thinking about what is good for their companies long-term and strategically, not always chasing after tactics that will make the quarterly report look better to investors, like delaying maintenance so it appears that earnings are higher.

Raul Alegria — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Raul Alegria Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quarterly Reports must continue. If needed require companies to report monthly.

Raúl B. Alegría

Sent from my iPhone

Ray Hersey — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Ray Hersey Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It has been proven that transparency is critical for investors. We can't fly blind for 6 months, without critical information on stocks we own. This is a benefit to companies, not investors. WHY would you even consider this, other than to hurt investors and help companies hide their pitfalls? Do what is right for investors, not companies. Full stop.
Teresa Hersey

Ray Hersey — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ray Hersey Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Public companies are public, so the public can see how they're doing, 6 months isn't acceptable for public companies' records to be held from the investors. If they don't want to put their quarterly reports out, they should no longer be public, it's that simple. Take your company private and off the stock exchange.
Teresa Hersey

Ray Swiatkowski — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ray Swiatkowski Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I'm a retail investor and I rely on quarterly reports to make decisions about my retirement savings; why is this now being considered? Other countries have tried it, and it has shown to be reckless.

Raymond Swiatkowski
Recently retired from JPMorgan.

Raye Harper — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Raye Harper Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Stop backing the Republiklan fascists!

Raye Manuele Robinson — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Raye Manuele Robinson Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We need to know what's happening with our investments. Keep the the quarterly reporting. Or, better yet, monthly reporting.
Raye Manuele Robinson

Retired

Raymond Holder — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Raymond Holder Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 In these days of uncertainty, the Providence of truthful and timely data is paramount!!

---

rbprod — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: rbprod Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Decreasing the frequency of financial earnings by a publicly owned organization is an injustice to everyday Americans. Stand up for fair investment practices for ALL shareholders. I am a 70+ year old retiree, and I have IRAs. During my career, retirement planning moved from pensions to investment plans. Don’t deny timely access of financial reporting from companies in which our money is invested.

Rebecca Hutchinson — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Rebecca Hutchinson Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Rebecca Hutchinson , Sr. Contract Lead, Phoenix. As someone who is looking towards retirement in the next 20 years, I have put money into my company 401k and Roth appropriately. Reporting rules were changed for a reason in 1955. I’m not interested in going backwards and suffering a loss in investments because of lack of transparency. Investors in the market deserve to know how their investments are doing so they can continue to plan for the future. A 6 month gap in information is too long and allows for a company to not just waiver but possibly fail before investors are made aware. Current examples include some banks, Spirit Airlines, Rite Aid, Joann Fabrics, Sacks global and others. In the current tumultuous market, investors deserve more information, not less, to make informed decisions.

Rebecca Hutchinson

Rebecca Mitchell — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rebecca Mitchell Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quit hiding things

---

Rebecca Smith — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rebecca Smith Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Given what has happened with those in the Capitol and the WH, I don't want those insiders to influence 401K's. Must be at transparency at all times.

Regina Finney — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Regina Finney Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Stop it, you low life sm bags! You're already getting more than you deserve. Living off others who don't have it to give.

Regina Finney — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Regina Finney Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 David, Retired.... .reading what maybe the possibility of this happing would place a lie to the public who have the money to invest. My kids 401k would be affected and once the truth comes out they would loose money.

Renee Bruen — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Renee Bruen Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quarterly reports are important and should not be stretched to every 6 months. Please keep the quarterly report so investors can have a clear snapshot of their accounts.

Get Outlook for iOS

Rex Lowther — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Rex Lowther Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 One must wonder about the motivation behind this.
This would affect me somewhat, though I've recently diversified away from stocks.

Rex Lowther, Retired Engineer
Palm Bay, FL

Richard Appel — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Richard Appel Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Richard Shane Appel, Sales Account Manager, regular reporting is essential for mainting transparency on companies that are increasingly exerting more control over our lives. We need to be able to see where companies money is going and to establish as much oversight of their financials as possible.

Richard Swift — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Richard Swift Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Richard Swift, concerned citizen,this ruling is totally unacceptable,unfair and unjust.It must be overturned

Sent from my iPhone

Richard Wilhelm — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Richard Wilhelm Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It seems a no-brainer! It's been tried before and failed miserably, so what's the issue?

Mr. Richard Wilhelm (retired)

Rick Hesslein — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rick Hesslein Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 The public has a right to know, and there is no good reason to diminish public access more! This is Richard Hesslein, proprietor Beaver Bros. Eco-Humane Systems and I have investments I need to keep on top of!

Sent from my iPhone

Rick Watts — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rick Watts Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep it it is

---

Rissi Cherie — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rissi Cherie Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This propsed 6 month reporting rule matters to me because businesses could hide their fiscal condition from both government and the public. It would open up opportunities too rig the market, hide profits and losses, and unsettle the economy. There is far too much cheating and other twisting of the rules already. Even I, an elder citizen can see the ugly downsidde of this proposed ruling. Do not open doors for more.

Ms Morrisa Cherie

Rita O'Dwyer — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rita O'Dwyer Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It's important to keep this quarterly so that we can actually see what is going on in and so that the CITIZENS benefit, not corporations and the extremely wealthy do. It needs to remain transparent, which it won't truly be if it only comes out twice a year; keep things honest and available so no corruption is possible.

River Rogers — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: River Rogers Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It should not be necessary to tell the SEC how important quarterly reports are to investors who rely on evidence from them to guide their portfolio options. As a stockholder of many different types of businesses, I know how quarterly reports are used by an investor. If I had to wait for a 6 month report, I'd divest all retail and related stocks. Seems like another hole in the dyke that would destabilize the market.

Mrs. River Rogers

Educational Technologist, Orchid Farmer

Rob Hamby — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rob Hamby Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I think it's insane that you would even consider that semi-annual reports would be adequate. You're basically giving the heads of companies (boards of directors and CEO's/CFO's) six months to rob from investors. Those people have already proven to be less than honorable. It's a horrible idea.

Sent from my iPhone

ROBBEE FIAN — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: ROBBEE FIAN Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We have already done this, we KNOW what will happen! KEEP IT QUARTERLY.

Robbie Paul — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robbie Paul Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As a CPA I am appalled that you are considering this. STOP THE MADNESS. SAY NO

Robert Bethune — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robert Bethune Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Markets rely on open access to information. By extending the period by 100% you allow potential malfeasance to remain hidden, and thus increase the potential losses that investors may incurred. Leave the reporting period as is.

Robert Bethune
Science Educator

Robert Boseant — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robert Boseant Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I recognize that there are suggested responces for people to make. I agree with a couple of these, but not the others as significant issues for me.

My concerns are: 1) the people "in the know" already have their ears to the ground in the businesses they are privy to. This provides them greater insight into operational knowledge of the business. If I were to lose the ability to view the quarterly financial information, then I would lose the ability to make an informed investment decision. As a business owner of my own CPA practice for over 40 years, if I did not stay current in the financial information of my operations, my investment in time and resources would have been for naught. Likewise, today's investment in time and the finamcial understanding of a business, are rewarded in a direct correlation to the understanding I gain, based in a large part on the financial information I receive.

2) In my experience as a CPA, I discovered financial fraud in 3 clients. In each one, the discovery happened a few months after the first occurrence. If Companies are not required to provide assurances of proper financial reporting on a quarterly basis, but only on a semi-annual basis, the ability to circumvent internal controls could provide a longer timeframe to go unnoticed, and fraud could go longer unnoticed.

These are my concrens. Thank you for your time.

Robert Boseant, CA CPA

Robert C. Urey — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robert C. Urey Please do not change the quarterly reporting requirements. It's the only way I have of knowing if a stock is a good risk for my Roth IRA

Robert Cheetham — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robert Cheetham Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It is important to know what is going on. The data is generated every day regardless. The software runs the reports are made. Quarterly is the bare minimum, monthly would be better.

Robert Fitzgerald — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robert Fitzgerald Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As it stands today with quarterly reporting, corporations do not provide enough visibility. Reducing the amount of times they are required to report will reduce the already eroding trust in the American economy. If anything the SEC should be demanding more frequent, or at least more detailed, reporting.

Robert Fitzgerald

Robert Hartzheim — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robert Hartzheim Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This would be bad policy

Sent from my iPhone Bob

Robert Henjum — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robert Henjum Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quietly reporting should be maintained to reduce chances of fraud, insider trading and other abuses.

Robert Henjum

Robert Lawrence — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Robert Lawrence Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Why break what's not broken. Just another cash grab by this petulant administration.

Rob Lawrence
Associate Broker

---

robert rockwell — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: robert rockwell Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I want to continue getting quarterly reports. Do not cut the reports to every six months.

---

robert stewart — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: robert stewart Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 robert stewart investor, it is my investment and if i do not get the information i need then there is no trust and the market will fall

---

Robin Gross — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robin Gross Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep quarterly statements. Investors are entitled this info for decision making.

Sent from my iPhone
Please excuse typos and autocorrect creativity

Robin Hall — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robin Hall Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As a former regulator and CPA I am APPALLED that even the arbitrators of markets renowned worldwide would consider caving to political and corporate pressure. God help the investing public.

Robin Whitson Hall
Salem, VA

Sent from my iPhone

Robin Townsend — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robin Townsend Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Robin Townsend Retired
Our investments are a good part of our retirement income. Because YOU PEOPLE scolded us for decades about not depending on Social Security. Remember? Well we didn't, so investments are what we have, not really by choice but because the government, YOU people, kinda forced us, didn't you. That's why this matter is vitally important to my family.
And now you want to make it even more rigged, more difficult, and more of a shell game than it already is.
You had BETTER NOT.
Robin Townsend
An informed voter

Get Outlook for Android

Robinette Lebda — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Robinette Lebda Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We should not change reporting. It allows the rich to get richer and the everyday person to be kept in the dark. This change to longer periods between reporting should not happen.
Robinette

Robinette Lebda
Real People Realty

Roc Diver — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Roc Diver Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 If it quacks, it must be a duck. Considering what happened Friday out of trust issue and the bounce today, the market want transparency which is what makes the U.S. market robust.

---

rockranch — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: rockranch Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As far as I have been able to gather from my reading, the only people that will benefit from reducing the number of financial reports per year will be the super rich. People who own enough stock to be able to manipulate the market.

That was shown between 1955 and 1970 when the reporting was only twice a year.

When there's too much money and power at the top, our economy becomes very unstable. And that's bad for everyone.When there's too much money and power at the top, our economy becomes very unstable. And that's bad for everyone.

Sincerely,
FA Hogan, MD

---

rodgek — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: rodgek Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Dear Secretary,

I am an individual investor. I strongly object to letting public companies opt out of quarterly reporting. A six-month gap severely damages market transparency. It creates an unfair information advantage for institutional insiders over retail investors. Voluntary updates or Form 8-Ks lack the standardized metrics investors need. The SEC must protect public markets by keeping mandatory quarterly Form 10-Q filings.

Respectfully submitted,

Roger A. Crabb — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Please don’t weaken SEC reporting From: Roger A. Crabb Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quarterly reporting is critical to investors for informed decision making on companies. Reducing reporting reintroduces higher risks of financial fraud. I’ve worked 42 years in corporate America. Quarterly reporting is neither onerous nor a burden on companies. Quarterly reporting keeps companies honest and give investors the information they need to make good decisions.

Roger Crabb
Retired VP - Marketing
Homebuilding and Energy

---

roger lachney — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: roger lachney Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 they need to continue the way it currently is. its hard enough as a retail buyer to buy decent stocks with as little info they currently put out.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Roger McNeece — Jun 8, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Roger McNeece Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Leave it as it is

Sent from my iPad

Ron Brink — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Ron Brink Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Absolutely no reason to make this change, unless you intend to do something you don't want found out. B. Snyder. Environmental tech. NJ

Ron Slabe — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ron Slabe Affiliation: Jun. 8, 2026 Greetings,
I am writing to demand that you keep the quarterly reporting requirements in place instead of the proposed 6 month interval. There is no reason to make this change other than to make insider trading easier for the people already engaging in it while people like me, a retiree, get stuck holding the bag. The fact that this is being proposed when everyone is becoming aware of the speculative bubble of A.I. that is propping up the economy is highly suspect.

Regards,
Ronald Slabe

Ron Vechinski — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ron Vechinski Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 KEEP IT QUARTERLY!!

Ronald Berry — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ronald Berry Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Ronald Berry, retired. Keep the quarterly reports. Six months is too long to be able to make good adjustments.

Sent from my iPhone
Typos excepted

Ronda Davis — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ronda Davis Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 More time in reporting allows fraud more time to grow, This is just another tactic to keep the ordinary citizen in the dark and only those on the inside informed. There is not justification for extending the reporting time,

---

Roscoe J — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: SEC Change Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Roscoe J Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 J. Hickman, retired investor, SF Bay Area:
The U.S. reported quarterly while winning wars, landing on the moon, and building the most valuable stock market on Earth. The corporate myopia blamed on quarterly reporting is, in the words of one finance scholar, simply not supported by the evidence. If it isn't broken, don't break it! We tried semi-annual reporting from 1955-1970 and that resulted in sluggish markets that poorly served US citizens. Those of us relying on investments in our retirements cannot afford this unwarranted change, that would only serve those trying to hide from reasonable financial scrutiny. Transparent markets perform better!

-- JH

Rose B. — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Rose B. Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for companies that are a part of the U.S. Stock exchange.

Rose Brown

---

rosemary hegarty — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: rosemary hegarty Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 keep company reporting quartly!!!!

Ross Vandegrift — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ross Vandegrift I am writing in opposition to S7-2026-15 – I believe that the quarterly reporting requirement is important to ensure transparency. Extending the reporting period simplifies fraudulent accounting for only a minor savings.

Ruben de Semprun — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Ruben de Semprun Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Dear Sir/Madam,
This seems to be another way for the Trump administration to manipulate data. This hurts consumers and investors. This should not be allowed.
Ruben de Semprun, retired, Brooklyn.

Ruth Kemmerer — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ruth Kemmerer Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We want quarter reporting. That's the least you can do for us!

Ruth Marion — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ruth Marion Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I have worked for public companies, and I know that quarterly reporting is crucial for ensuring that all SEC rules and regulations are being followed. I am now retired, and I am aware of probable non-compliance by a variety of public corporations that will take advantage of any apparent lessening of the requirements that are necessary to keep them honest. Keep quarterly report rules in place!

Ruth Marion — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ruth Marion Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I have worked for public companies, and I know that quarterly reporting is crucial for ensuring that all SEC rules and regulations are being followed. I am now retired, and I am aware of probable non-compliance by a variety of public corporations that will take advantage of any apparent lessening of the requirements that are necessary to keep them honest. Keep quarterly report rules in place!

Ryan Borcherdt — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Ryan Borcherdt Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Please do not change the reporting requirements for public companies from quarterly to semi annually. As a retail investor, I rely on a company's guidance every three months as I don't have access to all the resources and alternative data sets that the big hedge funds do. There would be no way for me to compete. Plus if you look at historical precedent like the 1950s and 1960s or you look at other countries where they only report twice a year, the market suffers greatly. It will cause a material mark down to asset values and will crush everyone's retirement savings that are already hard enough to generate and grow. It would cause extreme wealth deterioration for so many Americans. The American economy and its public markets are built around transparency and a move to reduce that will only further drive global capital rotation out of the US. Please, please, please do not change the reporting requirements that so many Americans rely on both as investors and for a storage of wealth. Please do not do this as it would be a huge catastrophe!!! Thank you.

Ryan Borcherdt Partner
Pheasant Tail Partners
Age 44
Vancouver, Washington

Ryan Green — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ryan Green Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This is a cause of concern for me as, at my age of 68, who is hoping to retire in two or three years, this will affect my retirement benefits. As in, it has the excellent potential to reduce my benefits, while those in the know, behind the scenes, such as industry insiders and members of congress and other branches of government, will profit off the backs of the working public. I, and others in my similar situation, will be forced to either work longer, if AI does not replace our jobs, or take on substandard pay work, minimum wage, to subsidize our retirement income to stay afloat.Even my wife, who has been able to be a "stay at home mom" will be forced to work. Worst case, the US government will have to provide support for the elderly, at an ever increasing negative cost to taxpayers, to avoid embarrassing the members of the US government to the world..

Reports should be maintained at least quarterly. In my opinion, the reports should be monthly to greatly reduce the chances of fraud. the six month period is nothing more than a cover for fraud.

ryan green

Senior Infrastructure Engineer for a top 10 major US bank.

Ryan Sherrill — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ryan Sherrill Ryan Sherrill, Im a regular blue collar guy who doesn't want or need more power to the companies and the rich folks whom own them. We the people who own these stocks care about information and adding a safety net to rich people while taking ours away seems simply immoral. I am an employee of gkn Automotive. I'm sick of hearing how these "savings" will trickle down to us when all that happens is companies pocket the savings and we are left without and in this case, in the dark. Thanks for reading this and God Bless America.

Ryan Sherrill — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ryan Sherrill Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Ryan Sherrill, Im a regular blue collar guy who doesn't want or need more power to the companies and the rich folks whom own them. We the people who own these stocks care about information and adding a safety net to rich people while taking ours away seems simply immoral. I am an employee of gkn Automotive. I'm sick of hearing how these "savings" will trickle down to us when all that happens is companies pocket the savings and we are left without and in this case, in the dark. Thanks for reading this and God Bless America

---

Ryan Sherrill — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ryan Sherrill Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Hello, my name is Ryan Sherrill. Im a regular blue collar guy who doesn't want or need more power to the companies and the rich folks whom own them. We the people who own these stocks care about information and adding a safety net to rich people while taking ours away seems simply immoral. I am an employee of gkn Automotive. I'm sick of hearing how these "savings" will trickle down to us when all that happens is companies pocket the savings and we are left without and in this case, in the dark. Thanks for reading this and God Bless America

---

S Hill — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: S Hill Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 David Thorpe, retired. You have no right to keep the information from investors, big or small. I need to know on a quarterly basis so I can make adjustments, not six months. This is wrong, plain and simple

---

S Kerr — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: S Kerr Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This proposal takes us backwards, not forward. It feels wrong. The SEC is supposed to protect CITIZEN’S rights, not fascism, and not the 1 percent of the wealthy. Ordinary citizens deserve to know what is happening monthly,. Only finding out after 6 months that something bad happened to their personal accounts doesn't leave room to try to make intelligent decisions. Our money is OURS. Please DO NOT allow this proposed change to happen!!!!!

Sheree Kerr

Utah citizen

S Kerr — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: S Kerr Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This proposal takes us backwards, not forward. It feels wrong. The SEC is supposed to protect CITIZEN'S rights, not fascism, and not the 1 percent of the wealthy. Ordinary citizens deserve to know what is happening quarterly
. Only finding out after 6 months that something bad happened to their personal accounts doesn't leave room to try to make intelligent decisions. Our money is OURS. Please DO NOT allow this proposed change to happen!!!!!

Sheree Kerr

Investor/retired
Utah citizen

---

s petro — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: s petro Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Hi, my name is Steve and I work as a DB Administrator in the public school sector. This matters to me cause I'm nearly 53, worked at and was laid off from a job after nearly 21 years at the age of 41 (and lost nearly 17K in salary to start over in my 40s), have clawed and scraped to have a retirement portfolio of 100K in it, which means I'll either be working into my 70s or until I'm dead. My portfolio has always been 96% conservative, which means it hasn't grown as much as it could have, but I don't like gambling. I cannot afford to have the government revert back to old, historically unsuccessful, methodologies that will cause me to potentially lose 38K of my 100K portfolio. That's completely unacceptable and quite frankly, non-sensical.

Sabrina Silver — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sabrina Silver Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Please continue to hold companies accountable. Oversight is necessary to prevent abuse. Sabrina Silver

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

SALLY CHANDLER — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: SALLY CHANDLER Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quarterly reports are required for a reason: to make sure these companies are behaving themselves. Non-profits have to file their paperwork quarterly for the same reason. Please continue the quarterly filing.

Sent from my iPhone

Sally Sheldon — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sally Sheldon Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It's my money and I want to track it closely. DON'T TAKE THAT AWAY FROM ME!
Please continue with quarterly reporting 🙏

Samuel Close 2591selwonk — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Samuel Close 2591selwonk Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This is a no brainer. Put itself in effect without delay!

Sandi Scarlett — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sandi Scarlett Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We're not stupid or blind. We're watching.

Sandra Place — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sandra Place Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This is just one more way to hold down the middle class. We no longer get pensions and rely on the stock market for saving for retirement. This change is designed to allow fraud and block reliable information flow. Don't allow this.
Sandy Morris

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Sandra Wood — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sandra Wood Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep the reporting as it is- quarterly. The public needs quaterly information- transparency rather than opacity! What is the reason for changing the reporting period. I saw no reason given. Without a strong reason no action should be taken.

Sandra J Wood Emeritus Faculty Indiana University

Sandy Solomon — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Sandy Solomon Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 More frequent reporting means better investment decisions. Those decisions fuel economic prosperity. Don’t take it away from us!

Sandy Solomon

Get Outlook for iOS

Santiago Leon — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Santiago Leon Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Eliminate 10 q? Bad idea.

Sarah Hall — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sarah Hall Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Checks and balances are needed to protect tax dollars

Sent from my Galaxy

Sarah McUmber-House — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sarah McUmber-House I am a seventy-three year old, retired US Citizen, living in rural Missouri, with what little spare money there is, invested. I need, and deserve to be able to monitor those investments, not get blindsided so someone can profit more in secret. Keep those quarterly reports!

Sarah Miller — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Sarah Miller Affiliation: Jun. 8, 2026 To the SEC:
My mother's retirement, and therefore her ability to care for herself, and by extension, our family's financial well-being - depends on her and our ability to make sound financial decisions and investments. These financial decisions are dependent on truthful and dependable, and timely, financial reporting. There is no reason to backtrack and reduce financial reporting in a world where accounting has become easy - the internet and software record nearly all transactions within hours - if not minutes. There is simply no reason to change this regulation, and it would be a massive failing of the SEC to proceed with this proposal to reduce financial reporting. Please do the right thing.

Best regards,
Sarah Miller
Houston, TX

Scott Edgington — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Scott Edgington Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Reducing the amount of oversight into our investments will only lead to poorer and corrupt decisions on the parts of these companies. It is not that much more onerous for these companies to report 3 times a year versus 2 times.

-S

Sent from my iPhone

Scott Klingle — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Scott Klingle Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My name is scott klingle - I live in Kerrville Texas and I am a teacher. I do not want you to make this change as I think it undermines the transparency that we have in showing what's going on every quarter with a stock/ company. Please do not do this as it would not be good for myself, you or the economy as a whole.

Scott Milne — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Scott Milne Do not allow this hiding of financials. Quarterly reporting is a must.

Scott Shuster — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Scott Shuster Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 The Asymmetry of information between the have-a-lot's and the rest of us, isn't wide enough? We need more Monopolies and monospony employment? Maybe we can lower the Federal minimum wage too.

"Std is as std does. "
Forest Gump

Get Outlook for Android

Seth Zorn — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Seth Zorn Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 You should be audited every month

---

Shannon Martinez — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Shannon Martinez As a small investor and a city employee, my retirement investments depend on quarterly information to make decisions. A twice a year report allows not only an unfair advantage for corporate insiders, it allows fraud and corruption a better chance to go unnoticed for months, potentially leaving smaller investors like me more vulnerable to losses. Quarterly being "optional" isn't the truth in reality because companies aren't going to generally do more than required and more than competitors. doesn't fix the problem because it becomes companies that opt in are often the ones whose investors most need frequent updates,

Additionally, the small savings to companies isn't worth the potential cost of hidden or fraudulent practices that end up costing the general public in their investments or losses.

Shari Embry — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Shari Embry Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep it Quartly.

Sharon E — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sharon E I have been actively involved in the stock market throughout the last 44 years. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

Sharon Eblen — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sharon Eblen Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 If you want people to invest in your companies, you shouldn't try to screw us over by hiding your actions from your investors. This proposal is sleazy, IMO.
Sharon Eblen, retired attorney

Sharon Fox — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sharon Fox Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Complete Transparency
Maybe quarterly is to much time
Reduction of time would be a better standard

Sent from my iPhone

Shauna Weatherly — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Shauna Weatherly Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Why would we let this happen? Of yeah, screw us and let the billionaires do whatever to us. This is ridiculous. I have to report my income and pay estimated quarterly taxes. Why shouldn't they have to do their disclosures quarterly?

This shouldn't change. There is no good reason and dozens of bad reasons. Yet we always choose the "screw the little guy" position.

Shawn Abdullah — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Shawn Abdullah Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I’m writing today to express my strong opposition to the proposed change in corporate reporting requirements. The proposed change widens information asymmetry between everyday Americans investing in their retirement and corporate insiders with their finger on the pulse. The American people deserve more transparency - not less.

sincerely,
Shawn Abdullah

---

shawn walker — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: shawn walker Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 No way! Investors have the right to understand the risks they are undertaking. Risk/return is at the foundation of our financial marketplace. 6 months is a ridiculously long period to not know how investments are truly performing. The extended reporting period will create increased market volatility (which is great for our current administration and their cronies) and leave both individuals and institutions at much greater risk for unexpected loss. All investors will have their perspective, but as a retiree, who is carefully managing my assets, the lack of transparency would be particularly unnerving

Shawn Walker

Sent from my iPad

Shazza Maddog — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Shazza Maddog Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This seems like fraud waiting to happen. Without quarterly reviews, information can be "lost" or hidden. We need better oversight, not less yearly.

S J Smith, Administrative Assistant

Sheila Wapner — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sheila Wapner Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Sheila Wapner, there’s no reason to change to six months from quarterly. Quarterly works. We need to keep as much information available and make every effort to stop misinformation, disinformation and the ability to hide information

Sent from my iPad

Shelley Mccormick — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Shelley Mccormick Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I need quarterly statements to plan my next moves, waiting 6 months to see trends and analyze is an unfair disadvantage to retail customers like myself. The playing field must be kept level for all investors.
S.B. McCormick
Trustee McCormick Family Trust

---

shelley park — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: shelley park Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 On behalf of all ordinary (ie not billionaire) retirees, please keep mandating quarterly reports. We rely on the information to budget wisely.

Thank you for thinking about the citizens and not simply corporations. We really on corporate transparency.

Shelley, a soon to be retired teacher.

Dr. Shelley Park

Professor of Philosophy & Cultural Studies
University of Central Florida
Orlando, FL 32816

When we expose a problem we pose a problem
--Sara Ahmed, Living a Feminist Life

Sheri Hudak — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sheri Hudak Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quarterly reports are important for investor communication and research. Please continue to require them for public companies

Sent from my iPhone
Sheri Hudak
Retiree

---

sheripj — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: sheripj Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I want to keep my quarterly reports! They help keep me on track. Thank you, Sheri Johnson

Sent from AT&T Yahoo Mail on Android

---

sherri — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: sherri Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 There is a reason the rules were changed from 1955 standards. SEC is responsible for making investments safe. To relax safeguards AND reduce access to relevant information is to Encourage fraud and cheating. Do Not Change the Rules.
AND insider trading rules need to be applied to Everyone, including Congress and executive branch.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Sherri Berglund — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sherri Berglund Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I have been investing in equities for over 45 years as part of my retirement plans. I use the quarterly reports of the companies that are either held in my portfolio or ones I'm considering adding. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

Sherri Berglund

Sherry Beach — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sherry Beach Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This is a ridiculous idea! Companies need to be closely monitored and held accountable.

Sent from my iPhone

Sheryl M — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sheryl M Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Why would you pass a law that increases the potential for fraud? Allows companies more leeway in their filings opening the door for another Enron or Madoff ?? There's already too much fraud & embezzlement in banks & big companies why increase the chances?

Sheryl Murphy

---

slscheetz — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: slscheetz Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Just another for things to slide under the radar.
Stay honest and transparent Quarterly reports are a must. DO NOT CAVE TO EXTERNAL PRESSURE.

Sent from my Galaxy

---

smc369 — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: smc369 Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep quarterly corporate report requirements in place.
Susan McCann
Concerned Voter

Sent from my Galaxy

---

smc369 — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: smc369 Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep quarterly report requirements in place.
Susan McCann
Concerned Voter

Sent from my Galaxy

Sohail Mirza Amjad Baig, Accounting Manager — Jun 8, 2026
PUBLIC COMMENT ON SEC PROPOSED RULE
File No. S7-2026-15 — Semiannual Reporting

Pre-Drafted Asset 01 — Submitted by Sohail Mirza Amjad Baig

SUBSTANTIVE COMMENT

Identification of the Commenter

Sohail Mirza Amjad Baig, Master of Commerce (Finance), University of the Punjab; Bachelor of Commerce, University of the Punjab; recognized Accounts Supervisor under the Saudi Organization for Chartered and Professional Accountants (SOCPA); Supervisor of Accounts Receivable, Cash, Bank and Loans at a major beverage manufacturer in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, in continuous service since December 2009. Lead author of "Effect of Accounts Receivable Efficiency, Cash Flow Control, Lean Practices, and Quality Standardization on Sustainable Performance: Evidence from KSA," Migration Letters, Vol. 21, No. S11 (2024), pp. 1760–1770. The commenter writes in individual professional capacity and not on behalf of any current or former employer.

Summary of Comment

The undersigned supports the Commission's effort to give domestic registrants the option to file on Form 10-S in lieu of Form 10-Q under the proposed Semiannual Reporting framework, subject to the qualifications set out below. The substantive point of the comment is that the success or failure of any change in reporting cadence is determined, at the operating-company level, by the integrity of the underlying receivables, cash, bank, reconciliation, and internal-controls discipline that produces the reported numbers. Adjusting the cadence without strengthening the operating-layer financial-controls infrastructure that feeds it would shift the timing of disclosure without improving its quality. The Commission should pair the cadence option with explicit guidance that supports operating-layer financial-controls modernization at mid-market and smaller registrants.

1. The Operating-Layer Financial-Controls Foundation Is the Binding Constraint

At the operating-company level, period-end reporting quality is a function of three connected systems: (a) the accounts-receivable sub-ledger and its reconciliation to the general ledger; (b) the cash-management module within the enterprise resource planning (ERP) platform, including bank-statement automation, multi-bank and multi-currency reconciliation, and treasury workstation integration; and (c) the internal-controls and audit-liaison work that produces audit-grade trace evidence at month-end and quarter-end. These three systems are the binding constraint on the quality of any interim disclosure. Adjusting the disclosure cadence to semiannual does not change the systems; it changes only the frequency at which their output reaches investors.

The commenter's twenty-plus years of experience in this layer, including three completed ERP migrations (Oracle E-Business Suite R11 in 2010, Oracle R12 in 2012, and SAP S/4HANA in 2022) at a high-volume beverage manufacturer, indicates that the costs of period-end close are concentrated at month-end six and month-end twelve of the fiscal year regardless of whether the registrant files a Form 10-Q at quarter-end three and quarter-end nine. The peer-reviewed empirical work the commenter co-authored in Migration Letters (2024, Vol. 21, No. S11) corroborates this, with accounts-receivable efficiency and quality standardization producing the highest empirical loadings on sustainable enterprise performance among the four drivers tested.

2. Semiannual Cadence Will Benefit Some Registrants and Disadvantage Others

For smaller domestic registrants with stable revenue, low receivables volatility, and predictable workingcapital cycles, semiannual interim reporting on Form 10-S will reduce direct compliance cost and management distraction without materially reducing the quality of the information reaching investors. For registrants with seasonally volatile receivables, lumpy revenue recognition, or active working-capital programs financed against the receivables base, semiannual cadence will leave significant performance variance undisclosed for longer periods, which the credit and lending markets will price in through tighter covenants, higher pricing, or reduced facility size.

The Commission's framework should accordingly: (a) confirm that election of semiannual reporting is reversible without prejudice, so registrants can return to quarterly reporting if the operating profile changes; (b) clarify the audit-readiness and internal-controls testing expectations for registrants that elect semiannual reporting; and (c) preserve the existing Section 404 internal-controls attestation regime in unchanged form, with no inference that semiannual cadence reduces the substantive Section 404 obligation.
3. Recommended Companion Guidance on Operating-Layer Modernization
The undersigned respectfully recommends that the Commission accompany any final rule with companion staff guidance addressing the following operating-layer questions, which are the questions that determine whether semiannual reporting works in practice:
First, expectations regarding mid-period reconciliation discipline. Registrants electing semiannual reporting should be expected to maintain monthly bank and receivables reconciliations internally even where quarterly external disclosure is not required, because the audit-readiness and internal-controls infrastructure depends on month-end discipline at every month, not only at the months reported externally.
Second, guidance on the Form 10-S MD&A discussion of mid-period variances. The Form should require discussion of any material variance that occurred mid-period but resolved before the semiannual reporting date, so that investors can understand the underlying volatility profile even when the period-end snapshot is stable.
Third, clarification of the receivables and cash-flow disclosure expectations on Form 10-S. The proposed amendments to Regulation S-X should be paired with explicit guidance that the receivables aging analysis, the days-sales-outstanding trend, and the cash-conversion-cycle trend should be presented on a comparable basis to the prior-period Form 10-Q disclosure, so that investors can construct continuous time series across the cadence change.
4. The Cadence Change Should Not Reduce Investment in Operating-Layer Modernization
A risk in any move toward less frequent disclosure is that operating companies treat the reduced cadence as license to underinvest in the operating-layer infrastructure. The Commission should make explicit that the Form 10-S option does not change the substantive obligation to maintain receivables, cash, bank, reconciliation, and internal-controls discipline at the same standard previously required to support Form 10-Q. Mid-market registrants in particular face documented constraints in the cross-platform ERP-financial-controls expertise needed to maintain that standard, as documented in the U.S.

Bureau of Labor Statistics Occupational Outlook Handbook entry for Accountants and Auditors at bls.gov/ooh/business-and-financial/accountants-and-auditors.htm and in the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants pipeline reports at aicpa-cima.com. Strengthening that operating-layer capacity is, in the commenter's view, the larger policy question of which the cadence question is one part.
5. Closing
The undersigned supports the Commission's exercise of optionality on interim reporting cadence and respectfully recommends that the final rule pair the Form 10-S option with the companion operating-layer guidance described above. The Commission's attention to the integrity of operating-layer financial-controls infrastructure, on which both quarterly and semiannual reporting ultimately rests, is the foundation of investor confidence and capital-formation efficiency in the U.S. mid-market segment that the proposed rule most directly affects.
Respectfully submitted,
Sohail Mirza Amjad Baig
Master of Commerce (Finance), University of the Punjab
Supervisor — Accounts Receivable, Cash, Bank and Loans

Sonja Canacari — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Sonja Canacari Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Please STOP this change!!

Sent from my iPhone

Srivatsava Daruru — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Srivatsava Daruru Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quartely disclosures promote speed in execution as well as speed in investment. This will in turn lead to more investments and overall growth in the stock market.

Stan Wong — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Stan Wong Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I'm a retiree with investments as my primary source of income.
Allowing companies 6 months to file financials would be a serious step backwards and reduce transparency for investors.

Stan Wong

Stef Coleman — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Stef Coleman I am against this proposal. It is written disingenuously and the language is misleading. There is no need to change the current requirements. This would hurt normal investors. If something like this is passed, I will be changing my investments to other markets.

---

steinkecse — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: steinkecse Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It seems everything that this governmet is doing supports the biggest of the big. Perhaps maybe do something that actualy supports the little guy. I am not in approval of allowing corporations to onky file twice. Keep things the way they are.

Sent from my Galaxy

---

stella brown — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: stella brown Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Please keep counting quarterly!! I need the savings!

Stephanie Crowley — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Stephanie Crowley Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 If anything the reports should be MONTHLY but quarterly will do. In this era of unprecedented corruption key figures could be long gone with investors' money before they even are made aware that there is a problem.

Sent from my iPad

Stephen Stouch — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Stephen Stouch I'm surprised the SEC would entertain this proposal. What would be the benefit to the public by withholding data 6 months at a time? Will institutional investors willingly go along without data for 6 months? I think not. I believe there is historical data indicating there's a need for quarterly reports, indeed monthly reporting would be great in our fast moving economy in especially volatile industries. That's a big no for me.

Stephen Cappelli — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Stephen Cappelli Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I already dont trust companies to do their own due diligence..everyone is out for themselves..if you allow companies to go 6 months at a time to post their Financials you are hurting everyone that invests in the SEC..They want to be a public company let's make sure they make the public aware of how they are running their company.

Stephen Cappelli
Pharmacist
This matters to me for the future of my family and my retirement
Don't let the rich get richer on the backs of the middle class

---

Steve Barber — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Steve Barber Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Do not make it easy for companies to hide their data for six months. That will only increase insider trading at the expense of most 401k people like me. John, S Barber, retired and relying on my 401k not to be decimated by insider traders.

Sent from my iPhone

Steve Brown — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Steve Brown Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Do not make this change! I am too close to retirement!

Sent from my iPhone

Steve Webster — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Steve Webster Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Increase reporting to monthly. insider trading happens in days, even hours. the faster the reporting, the faster we can catch the Oligarchs padding their pockets.

Steve Webster — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Steve Webster Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Increase reporting to monthly. insider trading happens in days, even hours. the faster the reporting, the faster we can catch the Oligarchs padding their pockets.

Steven Sloan — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Steven Sloan Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep with quarterly reporting!

Sent from my iPhone

Stew Benedict — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Stew Benedict Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Stew Benedict, retired. Quarterly reporting is a must. Publicly traded companies need to be transparent.

Stew Benedict
Mohawk Lake/Lake Okeechobee

Stewart Feerick — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Stewart Feerick Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My name is Stewart Feerick, an engineer and project manager. As an engineer I understand the importance of regular, accurate, and up to date data for critical decision making. I have several 401k and other index funds that I am relying on to be able to retire some day. I can't think of any benefit to me and the security of my hard earned savings from reducing the frequency (and therefore accuracy) of this reporting. Please do not change the reporting requirements, as we've seen countless times over the last several decades, things can change quickly, a lot can happen in 6 months. Why should investors and, most importantly to me, those who manage my life savings be forced to make decisions with less accurate data. Please, keep the reporting quarterly!

Sincerely,
Stewart

Sue Rivir — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sue Rivir Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I am a 78 year old retired grocery associate. Worked hard since I was 13 years old. I am at that point in my life that I need to know where I stand financially. Big bills come frequently and can be life and death. IWe need this information quarterly or more often. Susan Rivir

Sent from my iPhone

Sue Tavarozzi — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sue Tavarozzi Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Keep the reporting as it is, no secrets in business!! Sue Tavarozzi

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Sun Camulos — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: SUN Camulos Affiliation: Jun. 8, 2026 Hi Guys,
I'm hoping you keep the every 90 day / 3 month notification. I'd like to be able to retire one day, and having the company held to the standards is the best practice. Thank you for your time!

Susan Antrican — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susan Antrican Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 They use our money to make them money! If they could steal it all they would. The SEC should be protecting the public not the corporate greedy. They should have to report weekly help prevent crime. Susan Antrican

---

Susan Berry — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Susan Berry Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Like everything else in this world, history will repeat itself if we don't learn from our lessons. We learned that only reporting twice a year is not good for our markets. I am a retired teacher who saved as much as I could on a very measly salary. I need that money for retirement and for my care as I age, not as play money! I can't afford to lose any of my investments. Our administration is making money off the backs of ordinary citizens, and our President is NOT a proven good and ethical businessman. Do NOT change from quarterly reporting. That will only lead to our demise. Susan Berry

---

Susan Cooke — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susan Cooke Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It is hard to be an investor. Mandatory reporting done on a regular basis allows us to make informed decisions. It also sheds a light on actions related to fraud and potential market manipulation reducing these incidents. Without a serious review and discussion on the proposed policy change, investors see this as an attempt to hide information that should be made public.

Susan Cooke

Susan Dettloff — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Susan Dettloff Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It seems transparency is the best policy. Keeps things more visible and honest. Question is who benefits by changing the system to semi-annual? Not the investor! Leave the reporting as it IS!!!

Sent from my iPhone

Susan Friedmann — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susan Friedmann Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Definitely keep reporting quartly. We, the public , deserve to know what's going on there. Enough hiding going in trump's gov't as it is! Susan Friedmann, retired school bus driver, sick of being lied to.

Sent from my iPad

Susan Kranker — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susan Kranker Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Kim Kranker. Retired paralegal. Too tired to explain why it matters to me
. IT JUST DOES!

A BIG, FAT "NO." KEEP IT QUARTERLY! DON'T LET THEM CONTINUE THEIR KING MIDAS BEHAVIOR!

Susan Lynn — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susan Lynn Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Why wouldn't you want people to be able to see their accounts every three months? It makes no sense to make this change and certainly seems like you are trying to hide something. Do NOT do this!

S. McKinney
Retired, former Esthetician, HR representative and Executive Assistant

---

Susan Poag — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susan Poag Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Hi. Over the past 45 years I have had a 401K, which I eventually transitioned into an IRA. The quarterly reports have been invaluable to help me keep up with the market and make timely decisions concerning my money. I highly encourage you to not change the reporting requirements. We need all of the tools available to make sure our money is safe in the current economy and that our investments will be there when we need them.Thank you.
Susan Poag
Small business owner

Sent from my iPad

Susan Rankert — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susan Rankert Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Rule S7-2026-15 will not serve the interests of the general investing population. It will favor the elite few who do have access to the information, allowing them to make financially advantageous stock trades-while leaving the rest of us to make investment decisions based on old, out of date information. It would essentially legalize insider trading.
Do not enact this new rule.

The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing.

Susan Rice — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Susan Rice Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Are you out of your Fn minds?????????

Good health, Sue Rice
Sent from my iPhone

Susan Seel — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susan Seel Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It is imperative that company quarterly reporting stay in place. It helps maintain accountability, transparency, and integrity.

S Seel
Investor

Sent from my iPadAir

Susan Welch — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Quarterly reporting From: Susan Welch Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Reporting should be quarterly. I am retired in Maryland. A portion of my income comes from retirement savings and the company that handles that money needs quarterly reports in order to respond to changes efficiently. ___ Susan Welch

--
Susan Welch

Susan Wimer — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susan Wimer Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 The checks on corporations have been weakened enough through the use of inferior parts, shoddy manufacturing of goods and poor customer service. It's sad to watch the degradation of our businesses so the rich can get richer.

Sent from my iPhone

Susann Graham — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susann Graham Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As a licensed CPA with public accounting audit experience of public companies, quarterly reporting is crucial for investors. It is also important to hold public companies accountable on at least a quarterly basis.

Susann M. Graham, CPA

Susie Tibbs — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Susie Tibbs Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 No / this is corrupt and unfair to those with investments and leaves us unable to make good financial decisions and changes - stop the corruption

Sent from my iPhone

Suzanne Montalalou — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Suzanne Montalalou Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My name is Suzanne Montalalou and I am a Realtor in Austin, Texas. I previously worked as a freelance writer, writing about personal finance for the middle-class investor. The middle-class investor is someone who will almost certainly never obtain "inside information" which is why frequent public reporting is essential to helping them make sound decisions about their investment portfolio. For this reason, I respectfully submit my request that quarterly reporting be preserved.

Sybil E Schlesinger — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Sybil E Schlesinger Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Clearly, the buyer should not have to beware. Shame on you.

Sybil Schlesinger
Moretown, Vermont

T Funn — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: T Funn Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Full open reporting all year long is needed by every publicallly traded company.

Get Outlook for Android

T Funn — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: T Funn Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Full open reporting all year long is needed by every publicallly traded company. I am employed at the Northern Trust, a publicly traded company in Chicago, Illinois.

Ted Funn

Tara Johansson — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tara Johansson Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I have a modest 401k account and am very concerned with my investments. I want and expect quarterly reports. I am a single mother of 4 children and currently work in real estate and this account and it’s continued growth is my best hope for my life as a senior citizen.
Tara Johansson

Sent from my iPhone

Ted Barrett — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ted Barrett Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Ted Barrett
Gainfully RETIRED
NO NO NO NO six month black out for publicly traded companies

---

Ted Schultz — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ted Schultz Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quarterly reports are necessary more than ever. The pace of information and reporting has sped up exponentially and requires almost real time monitoring. With computers and monthly accounting this should be increasingly less of a problem then of years past. Keep quarterly reports.

Sent from my iPhone

Teresa Ann Frankfurth — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Teresa Ann Frankfurth Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 No! Do not implement this!

Sent from my iPhone

Terrence Carter — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Terrence Carter Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This country is in need of more transparency, not less. As a future fund manager and venture capitalist, the need for oversight is increasing, as it is proven that those in positions of power cannot govern themselves in a way that benefits everyone. "Power corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

If this country is expected to exist for another 250 years, then actions need to be taken immediately to bring and maintain accountability. There is no room for more corruption, and this proposal would empower less liberty and justice for all. This cannot happen. We are on the cusp of revolution, and this would just be an accelerant to that end. Stop the insanity.

Sincerely,

Terrence Carter
Finance and Financial Services Professional

Terri — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Terri Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Facts are friendly. I want the current quarterly reports mandate to continue.
Information powers decisions. I want that data to manage my financial life.
Dr Terri Risolo

Theodore Surdy — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Theodore Surdy Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Stop the corruption of everything now 🇺🇸

Sent from my iPhone

Theresa Ballaron Titone — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Theresa Ballaron Titone Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Don't do this! You know it is wrong! Thousands of people will lose money from savings they have worked for their entire lives. Please don't let this happen.

Theresa Titone
Cortez, Colorado

---

theresa wellman — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: theresa wellman Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Quarterly.

The evidence shows It works.

Thank you,
Theresa Wellman

Thomas Cusack — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Cusack Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Thomas Cusack Professor New York. Transparency is essential for free and fair markets. Quarterly reporting provides more accurate, timely and nuanced information. It has proven not to be unduly burdensome. It should be maintained.

Thomas Cusack

Thomas Jones — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Jones Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Thomas Jones, analyst, this proposal further stacks the deck for the corporate greed and lack of accountability that is the underlying reason why the SEC was established. The numerous market failures that this will create are preventative by merely maintaining the status quo.

Thomas Kaczur, Author — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Kaczur There is enough skulldugery on going the system does not need more .

Thomas Meacham — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Thomas Meacham Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I am retired, and my savings are in securities. Every six month is not due diligence or proper stewardship of my investments. I am totally in favor of keeping the quarterly reporting, especially during this administration, which is so profligate and careless with other peoples' money.

Sent from my iPhone

Thomas Meagher — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Meagher Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 keep the quaterly reporting.

Thomas Pinkert — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Pinkert Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I like getting quarterly returns and keeping companies accountable.

Sincerely,

Thomas Pinkert
Waikoloa, Hawaii 96738

Thomas Sullivan — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Thomas Sullivan Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This is reprehensible and probably illega

---

Thomas W. Henderson — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Thomas W. Henderson Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Companies should be required to show their if they are open to public investment. Investors have a right to know everything about their company.

Thomas W. Henderson
Sent from my iPad

Thomas White — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Thomas White Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Thomas White; Owner-VTD Rail Consulting
The financial system is entirely broken. The very last thing that anyone except the few who stand to make yet more money from their business practices, is relieving regulation.

Tiarrah Marker — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tiarrah Marker Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Tiarrah Marker, Employee and Investor. Giving 6 months with absolutely no transparency for investors is not wise, it's hiding; especially for any SEC company filing that holds government contracts. The American people have had enough fraud and corruption hidden, time for transparency. Thank you.

Tim Colborn — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tim Colborn Affiliation: Jun. 8, 2026 To representatives in the Securities and Exchange Commission: Reducing required reporting to twice a year is a bad idea. As a retiree, making timely investment decisions is critical to my ability to effectively manage my savings, particularly my retirement investments. With any increase in volatility, that need is magnified. In addition, knowing that persons acting with inside information are rarely punished by the current administration means that those insiders able to access that information may benefit at the expense of outsiders. Keep quarterly reporting as is!

G Timothy Colborn
Retiree

Get Outlook for Android

Tim Doyle — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Tim Doyle Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Retired investor. DO NOT CHANGE QUARTERLY REPORTING FOR PUBLICLY TRADED COMPANIES! Horrible idea!
TR Doyle

Tim Meier — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tim Meier Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It's our money in their accounts! Why would anyone even think this is a good idea. This is reducing transparency! There are already too many fees on these accounts!

Get Outlook for Android This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed.

Tim Renaud — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tim Renaud Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Don't touch this rule if you want to keep you jobs.

Tim Renaud
Barnhart, MO

Timothy Nowak — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Timothy Nowak Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Reporting should be maintained as quarterly. I think it should be even more frequently than every quarter, such as monthly or bi-monthly.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Tina — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tina Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My name is Christina McDougall, age 56, management consultant.
This proposed rule makes it impossible to invest without knowing a company's performance every single quarter. I'm reaching retirement age and if I make a wrong move with my IRA funds - I could lose out on tens of thousands and even hundreds of thousands of dollars if a company is able to keep bad news from the investing public for 6 months. If these public companies want stock and bond holder money they MUST continue to report their full financials every 3 months - because we cannot just trust and ASSume the companies are performing fine during black out periods. Do not allow companies to go dark with important financial information for 3-6 months at a time.
Thank you.

Sent from my iPhone

Tina Simcich — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tina Simcich Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This is an insanely dangerous and stupid idea. Investors have every right to stay current with corporate prrformance!

---

tinkerb333 — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: tinkerb333 Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 You want to destroy the economy, this is exactly how you do it. The American public will not benefit from reverting to 1955 rules. In fact, it will drive the rest if us who are barely holding on against rampant inflation into poverty .

And if we're all impoverished, there will be no one to buy goods and services, and everyone loses, even the mega corporations.

Transparency drives growth. Secrecy and lack of reporting drives corruption.

I'm 62. Near retirement. Do not gamble with my livelihood or financial security.

Sincerely,
Maria Turner
Indianapolis

Sent from my Galaxy

TJ Bell — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: TJ Bell Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As a new investor this action would cripple my ability to gain new insights on companies it would make already lagging data even more so not that Wallstreet has ever been concerned with fairness but this just seems draconian it would put the insider so far ahead of retail in every sense that it makes owning share in anything even mildly speculative a blind gamble and companies held up by retail would loose support because of risk that isn't capitalism earnings are where the brightest stars start to shine gaining support for results and vice versa in the name of capitalism i besiege you dont do this

---

TOBIE LURIE — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: TOBIE LURIE Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We need to continue to receive our quarterly reports in a timely fashion

Please do
Not change this reporting.

Sent from my iPhone

Todd Killinger — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Todd Killinger Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I am OUTRAGED by the constant criminal activity corporations are allowed to commit against the very people who fund them. YOU MUST MAINTAIN QUARTERLY REPORTING OF PUBLICLY HELD COMPANIES. Anything less allows all manner of financial chicanery to be committed without investors being aware until they see it impact their own bottom line. I am an advertising professional in Virginia and I did not work and invest for over 35 years of my life to have my money go up in smoke thanks to some CFA's mismanagement. The American people are FED UP! Stop allowing corporations to do as they will with our money. MAINTAIN QUARTERLY REPORTING!

Todd Lampiris — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Todd Lampiris Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Todd Lampiris, PM. Totally ridiculous, this will allow insiders an extra 3 mos. to dump stock and let the bagholder take the loss when the company is failing!

Tom Lynch — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tom Lynch Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I believe the quarterly 10Qs are necessary to keep retail investors informed of a company's performance, retail investors are already at a disadvantage to institutional investors and insiders. Quarterly 10Qs at least keep the playing field a little more level.

Toni Jones — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Toni Jones Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Four reasons this is bad for every investor.

01
You'd be flying blind for six months.
A lot can go wrong in half a year. Failed product launches, ballooning debt, lawsuits, vanishing customers. Today the law forces companies to surface that information every quarter. Under the new rule, they can sit on it for six months at a stretch. Plenty of time for insiders to quietly sell their shares to you (or your ETF) before the bad news tanks the stock.
02
More time for fraud to grow.
Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year?
03

"Optional" is a trick.
The framing is voluntary, but the dynamics aren't. Once large companies start filing twice a year, smaller competitors face pressure to follow. They can't justify "more compliance than the bigger guy." Investor expectations adjust downward. What started as a choice quietly becomes the new normal. Almost no rule like this stays optional for long.
04
The supposed savings are tiny, and they don't go to you.
Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on you, the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad trade for ordinary investors. THANK YOU FOR YOUR TIME Toni Jones

Sent from my iPhone

Tony Chung — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Tony Chung Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Hello, my name is Anthony Chung, I am a physician who only recently started my financial career due to medical training. Without adequate reporting it would be difficult to make educated financial choices to protect myself and my family. You would expect those taking care of you to have the most up to date information, why would finances be any different?

Best,

Anthony Chung

Tony Zimmerman — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Tony Zimmerman Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 There is no reason to go back. This is just the next step in the fleecing of america.

Tracey Crook — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tracey Crook Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 The SEC must keep its practice of quarterly reporting of Wall Street. The US public let know the workings of these companies in order to make informed . twice a year is too long to go and invites corruption. We must have transparent reporting.

Sent from my iPhone

Tracie Kennedy — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tracie Kennedy Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 If companies can hide their financials then what are we even trading on? How cool their names are?
-Tracie Kennedy, business owner

Sent from my iPhone

Tracy Lippel — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tracy Lippel Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Company's earnings should be reported quarterly! It's too easy for them to hide changes if it's not quarterly!

Tyrone Drawdy — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Tyrone Drawdy Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Tyrone Drawdy, Facilities Manager,
In a country where everything is tied to the stock exchange. How can it possibly make sense to give the humans, who run the companies that make it up. More of a chance to screw it up?

Tywann White — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Tywann White Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Abousley not we aren't going back

---

Usha Abramovitz — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Usha Abramovitz This is a TERRIBLE idea and will further undermine the public’s trust in the market, with good reason. What is needed is more transparency, not less transparency, unless of course companies have something big to hide!

Valerie Ernest — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Valerie Ernest Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I want quarterly reports to avoid insider trading!!!

Valerie Johnston — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Valerie Johnston Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My name is Valerie Johnston. I live in Las vegas & I'd love to be retiring soon. I've been dumping as much money into stocks as possible, trying to catch up. I already lost everything in a nasty divorce, I can't afford to watch my investments fall. However, if you change the rules & allow companies to only report earnings twice a year, all the sacrifices I'm making now will be for nothing! I've already been watching my 401k & other investments fall lately due to this conflict with Iran. I don't have a lot of years left before I'm not able to work anymore, so I need my stocks to rebound. Not fall more. It appears you've already tried this when I was a kid & it was a disaster for investors. If you look at the numbers from 1955-1970, you'll see that it clearly didn't work well for investors. Please don't make us go through it again! Don't repeat the mistakes of the past.
Thank you,

Valerie Johnston

Valorie Bratcher — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Valorie Bratcher Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Whatever will they be able to hide in 6 months? Why do they need this if their operations are up front and straight forward? Say no !

Vera Buk-bjerre — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Vera Buk-bjerre Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I am retired. I need to know how investments are doing. Quarterly is hardly too often

Sent from my iPhone

Verena Scherer — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Verena Scherer Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Verena Pensioner
When we don't have a right to know, why should we invest, pay brokers or advisors? You expect us to invest blindly? We can invest in other areas that don't have such restrictions.
' Investing.com highlighted how the move to semi-annual reports “would work against investors by increasing information gaps, raising the risk of surprises, and creating more room for insider advantage.”'
Elon Musk will love this!

Verna Pilling — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Verna Pilling Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Leave your hands off the reporting of my 401K.

Sent from my iPad

Veronica — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Veronica Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 My name Veronica and I am an analyst at a pharmaceutical company. I depend on federal agencies such as the SEC to protect not only myself but also my colleagues, family and friends from negative impacts when corporations defraud the public. A relaxation in reporting regulations is an enormous step in the wrong direction. Already individuals suffer when corporations lie about their finances and make questionable and illegal decisions. Strong regulations and oversight are the ONLY things keeping many companies from doing more to line their own pockets at the expense of the American citizens. I ask that you continue to require quarterly reports from all public corporations and I ask that you DO NOT roll this back to a mere 6-month requirement. The American people will be the ones to feel the worst of the consequences if these regulations are relaxed. Thank you for taking the time to read my comment.

Vicki — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Vicki Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I am not privy to upcoming decisions in Congress. Let's level the playing field a tiny bit and continue with quarterly reports. Citizens deserve this.

Sent from my iPad

Vicki White — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Vicki White Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Vicki White- retired. As a retired person I live on investments of my life savings. I need to be aware of the status of the companies I have invested in. Even quarterly statements aren't enough keep it as it is or make it shorter.

Sent from my iPad

Vickie Shepherd — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Vickie Shepherd Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As a retired teacher living in Pennsylvania, I ask that the quarterly reporting cycle be continued. More frequent information benefits the millions whose retirement funds are invested through various vehicles in the market. Diminishing transparency serves no apparent broad-investor purpose. Thank you.

Sent from my iPhone

Victor Kappeler — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Victor Kappeler Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Hell no!

Victor E. Kappeler, Ph.D.
Dean & Foundation Professor, Emeritus
Eastern Kentucky University College of Justice & Safety

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This electronic mail transmission is intended solely for the named individual or entity to which it is addressed and may contain information that is confidential, proprietary and/or legally privileged. Any unauthorized review, use, disclosure, distribution, or copying of this communication is strictly prohibited, 18 U.S.C. Secs. 2510-2521, the Electronic Communications Privacy Act. If you are not the intended recipient, please contact the sender by reply e-mail and destroy all copies of the original message.

Victoria Miller — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Victoria Miller Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Stop trying to double the grift and insider trading. This only benefits you and Wall Street. It leaves out 90% of Americans. This would widen the divide between the upper class and all others. I wouldn’t even have a chance to compete. Keep it to quarterly reports. Do not change it to 6 months.

Thank you
Vicky Miller
Substitute teacher

Sent from my iPhone

Victoria W. — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Victoria W. Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 DO NOT GO TO SEMI-ANNUAL REPORTING. I will lose my retirement. Jake James, retired, NYC. Don't force INDEX funds t buy Space X either.

Virginia Brown — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Virginia Brown Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We are almost completely dependent on our investments and we are of very advanced age. With the evidence presented here, a change in reporting times could be very detrimental to ourselves and family. Why would the SEC want to change this when quarterly reporting has been working well? With what is going on in government today, the only reason that makes any sense is to HIDE what is really happening from the American public. V. Brown, Silverton, Oregon

---

virginia weaver — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: virginia weaver Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I need my quarterly statements that keep me informed.
This move they are trying to make works great for corporations but not so great for we investors.

Walter Bishop — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Walter Bishop Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Walter Bishop, retired. As my stock portfolio is a significant portion of my retirement income, I like to know if my stocks are performing in a timely manner.

Wasim Merchant — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Wasim Merchant Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Wasim Merchant, Syndication Portfolio Manager at Banner Bank

Quarterly reporting is important for disclosure and maintaing portfolio credit quality. Please maintain as-is.

Regards
Sent from my iPhone

Wayne Debban — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Wayne Debban Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This proposed change to reporting requirements seems only to benefit insiders, while the average investor is kept in the dark for a quarter.
Please keep reporting requirements as they are.

Alan W. Debban

Wayne Eastham — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Wayne Eastham Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Six months is too long to find out my stocks are not performing as they should, especially when there is so much insider trading going on from public officials. I'm a retired Air Force pilot and a senior citizen who watches closely as individual stocks and the stock market rise and fall seemingly in correlation with or just prior to public announcements made, or actions taken by administration officials. Transparency must be increased, not decreased. We are registered Republicans who are losing faith in this party.

Wayne and Linda Eastham

Wayne Evancoe — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Wayne Evancoe Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Outrageous conduct in a time of 'transparency' and need for trust! Do this and the next decade will be liberal and destructive.
This behavior starts a revolution in the wrong direction- NO reason to do it besides greed and criminal intent.

Wendy Pascale — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Wendy Pascale Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 I definitely like seeing my quarterly reports. No reason would justify keeping them to themselves. Its our investments.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Wes Tapp — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Wes Tapp Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Please consider the harm this would do to investors, and insider trading. It will be rampant, and shareholders will be duped into buying without understanding the risk.

I am a small middle class worker. My family relies on our ability to see and manage risk. Making me wait 6 months, or more, just piles the risk on my head and in turn benefits the company selling the stock.

Honestly, it is laughable that this is even a subject.

Wes Tapp

Will Corriveau — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Will Corriveau Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 America sets the precedent for the global financial system. If we aren't transparent with investors, what does the say about the value of a shareholder? Who will lend money to a blackbox with no accountability?

This is a mistake, and will not encourage further investment, nor benefit the majority of shareholders. Secrecy is antithesis of what capitalism is about.

Sent from my iPhone

Will Mills — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Will Mills Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 William Mills, Senior Systems Administrator.
Investing for my children's future is already difficult. Removal of quarterly reports makes it that much harder. Only theives hide in the shadows. Keep the transparency.

William Brown — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: William Brown Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 It's not fair to me the little guy who likes to invest. I might be buying a bankrupt company and not even know it. This goes for the brokers as well

---

William Hamilton — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: William Hamilton Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This change is absurd and actually encourages criminality. Not good for share holders or business ethics.

Sent from my iPad

William Henke — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: William Henke Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Bill Henke, Birmingham Al. Recently retired Sr. Exec. of a large ($2B+) Private Company. When I started with them at 22 yrs. old, they were in such bad shape, we literally took our receivables to the bank every Friday afternoon to get more loans for next week's business. Not hard to figure that we were broke, but a damn good education in why the real number more often was imperative . In the metals market, inventory is paramount, turns are everything. Having the real numbers more often is the only way to manage your sales function, guide your decisions and insure your success. If you care about your people and their families, you do what is necessary, not what's convenient. Your jobs are the same, just more globally responsible. What do you want people to say when you're gone? Sadly, I don't hear recent generations use phrases like that. No pressure huh? It's just a simple decision of what's right is it not? It's only our children and grandchildren's future…

William Koeth — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: William Koeth Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 STOP CHEATING, LYING, STEALING IN JESUS CHRIST NAME!

---

william morgan — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: william morgan Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 this was tried and failed why institute a failed policy

---

xy47402 — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: xy47402 Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 Paul Hargrove, Transportation Supervisor, Bloomington, Indiana. I want as much information about my retirement accounts, as soon as it is available, so that I can make better decisions about my retirement. Please mandate that financial institutions report QUARTERLY; not semi-annually, in order to better protect our retirement investments.

YHTI — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: YHTI Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 The SEC needs to continue requiring quarterly reports from companies. As an investor I feel I have the right to know as much as ossicle about the companies I am investing in. Companies need to be as transparent as possible and if not required to do so, who knows what might happen.
Mary Lovern
Personal Investor

Yudiesly Herrera — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Yudiesly Herrera Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 This would potential allow companies to hide illegal activity until is too late for the shareholders to do anything about it.

Yury Peskin — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Yury Peskin Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 As an investor, I need to see the quarterly reports. Sox month reports just don't come often enough.

Yury Peskin

—From My iPhone

Zoan Kulinski — Jun 8, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Zoan Kulinski Affiliation: Jun. 08, 2026 We the people need the quarterly reports. We don't get to see what the government sees and we need that info to make proper decisions,

Sent from my iPhone

Aaron Braumann — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Aaron Braumann Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Aaron. Inventory Manager, transportation industry.

It isn't just the market and people's investments that'll be slowed, the country will follow. There is no reason to return to less transparency, especially having seen the results having been tried before. Why would anyone think this is a good idea, except the crooks and crooked people looking to screw everyone else.

Sent from my iPhone

Abel Rivera — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Abel Rivera Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep reporting quarterly, even at that rate in our volatile economy it's not enough. Investing for us will become more risky.

Abel Rivera

Abera Mengistu Abebe, Prgram Manager — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Abera Mengistu Abebe This rule expose ordinary Americand and their retrirement plans to undue risk. If companies are allowed to hide the risk involved, ordinary Americans will be exposed to this hidden risk, in fact a rule should be created to force any publicly traded company to declare any risk on the business to the public. STOP THIS POISON PILL.

Abigail Rider — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Abigail Rider Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am Abigail Rider, a recently retired CFO of a flagship state university. The plurality of the US stock market, about $49 trillion, is owned by retirement funds (such as 401(k)s, IRAs, and defined-benefit pension plans) managing retail investors' assets. Retirement funds need to be able to evaluate their holdings on a timely basis in order to maintain the confidence of the millions of investors they represent. The loss of quarterly information would make the entire system more vulnerable to panics since the funds couldn't evaluate their holdings frequently and relate their performance to the way the market is performing. Especially today when insider dealing has risen to a shocking degree, people need to know that their retirement assets are being continuously and rigorously evaluated and kept safe. Quarterly reporting ensures that this is the case. The argument that quarterly reporting makes companies avoid long term capital investment because it drags quarterly earnings down is specious - capital spending does not run through the P&L except as a provision after operating profit, and therefore does not depress operating earnings. It only reduces only the amount available for dividends to the shareholders and presumably the shareholders who hold the stock are on board with management's growth plans. It's the corporate officers who don't want to have to worry about quarterly operating earnings, but that's their job and they are paid huge salaries to do so. It is critical to maintain retail investor confidence in the market. Do not remove the quarterly reporting requirement. Thank you.

Adam B — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Adam B Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is insane. Our economy constantly feels like it's on the brink of collapse and we're discussing making it easier to hide that a company may be collapsing? So when 10 companies show failure across 4 quartly reports, now all of those failure will be presented at once to the public? How's that going to affect consumer sentiment?

Adam Kuns — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Adam Kuns Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is my feeling that we SHOULD RETAIN quarterly reporting. It will help avoid panics, and illegal activity, in addition to ensuring investors have reasonable access to public companies.

Thank you.

Adam Kuns

AJ Nester — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: AJ Nester Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Austin J Nester, self-employed musician.
With the speed of business increasing every day, the only rational choice would be MORE frequent reporting of this type. Monthly reporting would be a start. Being able to operate essentially in secret for 6 months at a stretch is a perfectly transparent attempt by big business to steal even more of Americans' money then they already are.

Albert Rocco — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Albert Rocco Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 More information beats less information. Small investors need a level playing field. Albert Rocco, Retired.

Sent from my iPad

Alberto Navarro — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Alberto Navarro Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission

100 F Street, NE
Washington, DC 20549

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to express my opposition to the proposed change to the current reporting framework.

My central question is: why change something that works? The existing system serves investors well, and I would rather have more information than less. Reducing reporting frequency or scope gives companies a longer window to obscure their problems, their mistakes, and even their successes. Transparency is not a burden to be minimized; it is the foundation of an informed market.

Greater transparency produces a better-functioning system. When investors can see more, more often, they can make better decisions and hold companies accountable in a timely way. Less frequent disclosure does the opposite, allowing material developments to accumulate out of public view.

Rather than scaling reporting back, I would encourage the Commission to consider expanding it. If anything, more frequent disclosure would strengthen the integrity of our markets and the confidence investors place in them.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Respectfully,

Alberto Navarro
Software Architect, Apple
alnavarro@pm.me
@navio

Alberto

Sent from Proton Mail for iOS.

Alec McIntyre — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alec McIntyre Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 You really think this is going to foster trust and business strength with overseas and domestic investors?

My name is Alec McIntyre and I am a super overqualified deli clerk. I got a 1465 on the new format SAT (the first year it was offered as the new format too) without even cracking a book. I could have been everything. But I'm not….

Despite my qualifications, it doesn't take an idiot to see that this is 1000% a bad move. What do we gain as individuals from this? Nothing!!!

What do the corporations get? Everything!!!!

This pattern needs to stop. Government needs to be on the side of the people… ALWAYS. That is what any government official has SWORN to do. You work for us. Not them. Make the right choice.

You have enterprise AI now so you can still lay off half your workforce, and that AI could handle daily filings without blinking. It's sick you're trying to make the rich richer while people like my wife can't even get disability.

Have you ever heard of Adrenoleukodystrophy? Probably not!!

Maybe do some good in the world for once…

-Alec M.

Sent from my iPhone

Alex Games — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alex Games Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Sunlight is the best disinfectant. Stop pandering to the corrupt and conmen. Keep reporting quarterly.

Alexandra Borden — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alexandra Borden Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need to keep reports from Wall Street companies at each quarter. My name is Alexandra Borden, I'm a recently laid off teacher and I expect financial institutions borrowing my hard earned money (IRAs, money market accounts, 403bs) to treat it carefully. I want as much information from and oversight of these companies as possible. Thank you.

Alijah Maldonado — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Alijah Maldonado Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Alijah Maldonado, a business analyst, and I am writing to strongly support maintaining mandatory quarterly reporting requirements for public companies.

As a retail investor, quarterly reports are one of my primary tools for evaluating the companies I own. Moving to semi-annual reporting would leave me with a six-month information blackout. This is more than enough time for a company's financial position to deteriorate significantly without any obligation to disclose it. That's not a reduction in burden, it's a reduction in accountability.

The SEC's own history is instructive here. The U.S. adopted quarterly reporting precisely because less frequent disclosure left investors exposed. The argument that companies need relief from “short-termism” should not come at the expense of the transparency that makes U.S. markets the most trusted in the world.

I urge the Commission to reject any rule that weakens mandatory quarterly disclosure. Investors should be the priority here, not executives or congressmen.

Alijah Maldonado
Business Analyst

Alison Gase — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alison Gase Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Reporting should be monthly at least to stop the crooks from stealing our money and bankrupting ordinary citizens while insiders from the 1% make bank from the deceptions! Your JOB , SEC, is to protect us by shining bright lights on the inner workings of all of the marketplace NOT to draw the blinds and hide crooks like Maddow and Enron!!! DO YOUR JOB! We are paying you! You are accountable to us, NOT the fraudsters!!!

Sent from my iPhone

Amanda Highsaw — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amanda Highsaw Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep the quarterly reports. Have them mailed to all those stock holders and mutual funds members. Do not go to a six month reporting policy.

Amanda Long — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amanda Long Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 To whom it concerns, Transparency is critical when it comes to asset management. People should be able to be aware of the health of the stocks and investments in their retirement portfolios. Please retain the quarterly reporting standards. — Amanda Long, Director of Website Development in Colorado

---

Amy Umpleby — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amy Umpleby Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 As an investor who relies on my savings for retirement, I deserve to know how my stocks are performing. To be cut out of the loop, while institutions are kept in, just feeds this insider trading cycle that is being perpetuated in the US. Keep company performance transparent!

Amy Umpleby
California

"The tax which will be paid for the purpose of education is not more than the thousandth part of what will be paid to kings, priests, and nobles who will rise up among us if we leave the people in ignorance."
-- Thomas Jefferson

Amy C Guerra — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amy C Guerra Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Daylight is the best disinfectant. There's no reason why reports should be less frequent than quarterly.

Sent from AT&T Yahoo Mail on Android

Amy Christopher — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amy Christopher Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Personally, this feels like a move destined to create another "Black Tuesday" and send the US further into financial collapse than we already are. Large corporations and Billionaires do not need MORE protection and lack of oversight in a period of time where most Americans are struggling to survive. It has bad news written all over it and the SEC should know better. If we want to eliminate "short-termism" maybe we need to look at different ways of holding corporations accountable instead of stripping away oversight, which historically has hurt the population at large in many industries.

Amy Christopher
Implementation Consultant in SAAS

Amy Clancy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Amy Clancy Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Oh Hell no! We need more info not less. Government is threatening social security and your trying this. Don't you dare! We will fight in mass. Help us don't hurt us!

Amy Clancy
St Petersburg , FL

Amy C.

Amy D'Arcey — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Amy D'Arcey Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Hello, I'm in my 40s slowly building my retirement a bit late, and this new reporting rule could wreck havoc on that. Please don't do this.

Amy Kennedy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amy Kennedy Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 If quarterly reports are cut, then relevant and applicable updated data disappear. If data disappears, then transparency rapidly deteriorates. Without transparency, the vast majority will be left “in the dark”, and in the dark is where corruption forms deep roots. Without transparency and adequate pertinent information to all, then lack of oversight to maintain accountability will grow. With only a select few that have access to key quarterly data, while corruption grows under the lack of oversight and poor accountability, who will benefit besides those select few in the know. This is insider trading and it is illegal. Information is power, therefore cuts to quarterly reports will cut the vast majority's knowledge and power. This is corruption. Cutting back on quarterly reports is the ultimate recipe for high levels of corruption, which would allow illegal insider trading to flourish even further, leaving the vast majority at an ever-growing disadvantage. It's time to end insider trading, not nurture it, it is corrupt, illegal, and has zero place in our society. For a party that claims to define its self on "full transparency", then withholding data does not follow suit. The SEC must maintain quarterly reports to maintain data transparency, oversight, accountability, integrity, as well as just and equal opportunities for all not just the few.

Amy Richardson-McBride — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amy Richardson-McBride Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We must stop the dissolving of business norms that protect citizens and employees and continue to enforce the current standards for financial disclosure for businesses. The loss of visibility externally gives a whole lot of room for hiding how a company is doing and visibility in business is the only thing that keeps them in line. Do your job and protect Americans not businesses.

Amy Richardson-McBride
Accounts Receivable Clerk

Amy Wehnke — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amy Wehnke (VP Grants) Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Hello,
My name is Amy Wehnke. I was a sales analyst. Please keep my 401(k) reports quarterly. The stock market can be very volatile. I need quarterly reports to manage my investments. I will need to live off that money very soon so I am not a drain on society.
Thank you!

Analydia Addie — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Analydia Addie Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We have enough fraud in this country. We don't need to have an open window for more to occur. Congress is suppose to be watching our backs and not allowing more corruption to begin. When does Congress say enough is enough?

Sent from my iPhone

Andrew Foertsch — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Andrew Foertsch Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 retired investor leave things the way they are

---

Andrew Phillips-Gartner — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Andrew Phillips-Gartner Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Andrew Phillips-Gartner, I'm a general liability litigation specialist at Zurich North America.

The current proposal to reduce reporting is abhorrent, will harm regular Americans , retail investors and should be rejected. there is no objectionable reason the SEC would approve this proposal except to give illegal insider traders an upper hand.

Sincerely,

Andrew Phillips-Gartner

Andy Gelmers — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Andy Gelmers Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Lack of information leads to laziness and ignorance. Keep the reports.

Sent from my iPhone

Andyf — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Andyf Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 retired investor leave things the way they are

---

Ange Wessel — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ange Wessel Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I need this information to stay informed about my investments.

Sent from my iPad

Angela Anderson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Angela Anderson Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I'm self employed and depend on savings in the market for my long term future. I'm a citizen of the United States and we deserve information transparency from public corporations- it's literally in the name: "public." Don't roll back the rules. Do better.

Angela

Angela Martin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Angela Martin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Angela, IT engineer, and this is a horrible idea designed to hurt the little guy. Retail traders will bear the worst of this, and the move as a whole seems designed to help if not encourage fraud and shady business practices.

Angela Matusik — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Angela Matusik Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Hello - We don't have huge savings but my 401k will help with retirement. To manage it, I need information. Giving companies the option to provide their financial results every 6 months means most will do so. That is too long! The current 3 months should remain the standard with no option to go longer. They have to keep their books anyway so not much is being saved. Giving the possibility of 6 months makes fraud more likely.

Thank you,
Angela
Matusik
Project Manager

Angelita Ritz — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Angelita Ritz Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This is so unfair to everyone except those who don't need any help. Of course the costs will filter down to those less fortunate while the gains reaped will go to the former group.
Angelita Ritz

Ann Dixon — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ann Dixon Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I have been actively involved in the stock market for several decades. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 401k portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.
Ann Dixon

Ann Holtz-Morris — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ann Holtz-Morris Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Hi,
I have an IRA and have been actively trading to ensure my family's future. I need the quarterly numbers to know whether an investment is preforming the way I need it to. A case in point: Í invested in Sarepta Therapeutics. As the quarterly meeting was taking place on May 6-2025 the stock dropped from the previous day's high of $64.80 to $46.48 in after hours trading and hit a low of $34.90 on May 13-2025 due to financial data not previously open to the public. I made decisions based on the financial data disclosed.

Insiders and large investors easily could have sold without disclosure leaving small investors like me holding the bag.

Sincerely,

Ann Holtz-Morris
Oakland, CA

Ann Plourde — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ann Plourde Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 To whom it may concern,
It is important that I be able to track my money and to make informed choices. Quarterly reports are very important part of that.
Thank you for your attention,
Ann Plourde Jennings

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Ann Wenger — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ann Wenger Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The proposal to change quarterly reporting to every six months is an invitation to increased corruption.

Anne Crossway — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anne Crossway Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As an investor, I want more disclosure, not less. Transparency cannot be eliminated!

Sent from my iPad

Anne McIntyre — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anne McIntyre Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly is needed to limit fraud. And ensure transparency.

Sent from my iPhone

Anne Robinson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anne Robinson Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Anne Robinson, food service, I have a 401k and know some people do their own investing I do not think that financial information should withheld from anyone If all is good Be open If there are risks be Honest.

Anne Scharff — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anne Scharff I am deeply disturbed by this proposal and I hope you are too. Open and timely reporting is the very foundation of a vibrant and strong market. I hope I can depend on you to protect America’s economy and citizens. Having worked in hospitals in Boston and Cincinnati for almost 40 years, I fully understand the responsibility of guarding those who depend on you. I hope you cherish this responsibility too.

Anne Sullivan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anne Sullivan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Anne Sullivan and I am a retired teacher. Pleases don’t change investing information rules to prevent me from being informed of my own investments. Keep the quarterly reports coming.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 NO! KEEP IT ATSIX MONTHS !!!!!

Sent from my iPad

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Continue quarterly reports. Do not allow them a Six Month window to manipulate things to suit themselves.

This email is intended only for the person or entity to which it is addressed. It may contain proprietary, confidential and/or privileged material. Please do not distribute, forward, copy, or retransmit this email without express permission from the sender.

Anonymity is the spiritual foundation of all our traditions, ever reminding us to place principles before personalities. -- A.A.'s Twelfth Tradition

---

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is wrong and should be against the law!

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 The SEC neglects to do any monitoring of Roman Catholic Church re-allocated bankruptcy assets, hence has investments+ investors / profiteers of Global , National pedophile organized crime + sex trafficking.

Make tea, drink love.

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Rachel Banks, and I am writing with immediacy and a sense of moral responsibility. As an administrative assistant, I see the value of transparency and moral stewardship firsthand. The SEC's mandate for quarterly reporting is not purely a bureaucratic requirement. It is an important tool for public accountability and investor protection. The public has an undeniable right to know how and where companies' money is being spent, especially when those investments may be complicit in injustice or human rights abuses. The SEC should enforce this mandate without delay.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep SEC reporting current, quarterly, so WE THE PEOPLE are informed. Our decisions are based on BEING INFORMED. Truth not gaslighting. Thx.

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Semi-Annually . Monthly if you change anything. Exempt < 1,000 shareholders or <$25M in revenue to quarterly.

Retail investors are already at a disadvantage. AI and technology reduce the cost associated with monthly reporting to very realistic and low cost for the benefit of retail investors.

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Stop the fraud. Keep the reporting.
Carolyn Kay
Chicago, IL

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I'm done no more corruption. We were promised transparency, and you need to follow through.

Thank you

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 To Whom it May Concern,

S7-2026-15 is incredibly inappropriate. Transparency is key in all business dealings especially those that public lives and livelihoods depend upon; including retirees who have considerable stock investments.

Quarterly reporting is essential to keep investors informed about stock performance and corporate risk. Do not allow companies to keep their books secret for up to six months. Keep quarterly reporting.

S7-2026-15 makes misappropriation of funds, theft and corruption easier to hide and more difficult to detect. Why would the SEC even consider such a proposal?!

Lisa Wright

Sent from AOL on Android

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 A six month gap in public reporting leaves a huge window of opportunity for fraud to happen with no oversight. Investors must be able to track how their investments are doing and make adjustments accordingly.

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please do not do this

---

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Monthly would be even better once a company goes off the rails with the quarterly scheme.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Public companies have reported their financial results every three months for over half a century. A new SEC proposal would let them go dark for six months at a time. DON'T make this change, more fraud will happen.

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Mad cringe ngl. I sincerely cannot imagine a reason for this except fraud and investor manipulation.

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is a risk to the public investors and of no value to SEC true purpose to serve. Businesses have the staff, software and capabilities in place. Do not make this change.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reports are the only way for investors to track the progress of their funds. Anything less is an attempt to hide financial trends for the benefit of the FELON47 and his cronies.

Sent from my Galaxy

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This would be a move in the wrong direction and at the wrong time!

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 NO! This gives companies more opportunity to use a person‘s earnings wrongfully. NO, NO, NO, NO, NO, NO,!

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Stop this Democratic nonsense and leave things as they are or require monthly reports. Their financial departments compile them monthly anyway. Won’t cost them anything to zip a copy of the report to the SEC.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Due to the corruption in this Administration every kind of oversight is very much needed quarterly.

Sent from my Galaxy

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We all know this rule will make it easier for them to commit fraud and get away with it. Moves like this keep investors in the dark. All for big corporations and screw small businesses and investors. The country deserves better. NO on this rule.

Sent from my iPad

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Why should the elite class be allowed to profit even more? This is a totally dishonest scheme. Hell, Martha White and others have gone to jail for insider trading.

Get Outlook for Android

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is dumb. If you want to make a change, lets go with monthly reports

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The world operates on fiscal quarterly reporting. That has shown to be adequate when people obey the law. You are fixing something that isn't broken, that can only be to benefit those that think they are above the law. Do your job!

Sent from my Galaxy

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous This goes against my principles in every way. That fact you can hide some of your earnings without being held accountability is not the American way. This country has some accountability problems. It’s going to be done, but inch by inch it’s not going to be good.

Anonymous — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous With current technological capabilities the report should be released IMMEDIATELY. NO waiting period. Let the market receive TIMELY information on which to make investment decisions.

Arnold Radloff — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Arnie Rad Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dear SEC; My name is Arnold Radloff and I am retired. I need to know how well companies are doing financially every three months. To change the rules now would make my financial investments in these companies even more speculative. Do not change the current rules. Thank you.
Arnold Radloff
Lincoln, Nebraska

Arthur Harris — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Arthur Harris Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Arthur Harris an average everyday citizen which currently makes a living as a process assistant which happens to pay more than my bachelor's level educational choice can provide. As inflation continually rises I decided to invest not only for my retirement but for the future of my children. Therefore, it is important as a retail investor to gain access to quarterly reporting which guides investing strategies and prevents unnecessary losses, which, like most, cannot afford especially due to lack of quarterly data.

Get Outlook for Android

Arthur Park — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Arthur Park Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This looks a lot like it is a part of a criminal syndicate. How long do you expect to get away with this?

Arthur Park — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Arthur Park Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This looks a lot like it is a part of a criminal syndicate. How long do you expect to get away with this?

Ash Nassabi — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ash Nassabi Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am a federal employee whose retirement plan depends on an accurate understanding of the market. This proposal risks destroying the economic stability of millions of households the American economy depends on. Please do not make this change.
A. Nassabi

Asif Quyyum — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Asif Quyyum Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I do no want twice yearly earnings report. Earnings help me understand more about how the company that I own is performing. Yes, that is correct. When I buy a share of the company, I own part of the company. As an owner, this is not what I want. Keep the earnings quarterly.

Astrid de Parry — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Astrid de Parry Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is just plain wrong and you know it.

Astrid de Parry — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Astrid de Parry Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is just plain wrong and you know it.

Ava Anderton — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Ava Anderton Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Ava, freelance consultant. As a retail trader, more information is better. As a small player, all the big firms with full time search staff have an advantage. More open access info helps keep the playing field fair.

Sent from my iPhone

B. Ola — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: B. Ola Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 If it's not broken, it doesn't need fixing. Keep corporations transparent, keep markets informed of latest status

---

Babita Masand — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Babita Masand Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Every Quarter! Total Transparency nothing else.

Babita Masand

"We are driven by self-interest, it’s necessary to survive. But we need wise self-interest that is generous and co-operative, taking others’ interests into account. Co-operation comes from friendship, friendship comes from trust, and trust comes from kind-heartedness. Once you have a genuine sense of concern for others, there’s no room for cheating, bullying or exploitation." Dalai Lama

---

Barb Kostanick — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Barb Kostanick Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is important to me as an investor. Corporations are doing monthly reporting for their internal purposes and quarterly reporting is data shareholders deserve.

Barb Kostanick
Investor
Colorado

Sent from my iPhone

Barbara Benton — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Barbara Benton Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Ridiculous. Stop being crooked.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Barbara MacVean — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Barbara MacVean Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I support transparency and accountability. Keep SEC reporting quarterly. Thank you

Sent from my iPhone

Barbara Widger — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Barbara Widger Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This change is dangerous to large and small investors and must not be allowed.

Barbara Widger & Ed Bailey, 83A Pine Circle, Gilmanton IW, NH 03837

Barry Kaplan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Barry Kaplan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 To the SEC; I object to changing the corporate reporting requirements from 3 to 6 months. This will make companies’ financial transparency more difficult to follow and not help retail investors make better informed investing decisions. If your goal is to reduce or eliminate what little trust is left in public disclosure, go ahead, this is not what taxpayer citizens expect from their government. Barry Kaplan Photographer/ President The Finer Image Tfiphoto.com

---

Barry Webberley — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Barry Webberley MBA Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Six months is too long a period to wait for financial information on a public company.

As a retired bank officer I recognize the importance of financial data.

Sincerely,
Barry Webberley MBA

BC Earthlink — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: BC Earthlink Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a long-time investor, I depend on this information to make informed, timely decisions. This only makes it easier for companies to hide bad news and distort the results.

Becky Adams — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Becky Adams Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Becky Adams
Retired Director
Transparency in publicly traded companies is critical. As Americans manage their assets through private and institutional investment firms they take many risks and it is critical to understand company performance to preserve, grow and protect these assets. This opens the door for fraud and corruption similar to why Sarbanes Oxley was put into place. There is no justification for this change.

Get Outlook for iOS

Becky Julian — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Becky Julian Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 R. Julian, retired. I need to see my Financials on a monthly basis, for any changes that may need to be made.

Becky Partridge — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Becky Partridge Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Our retirement savings are already being plundered and diminished by corporate greed and government corruption with quarterly reporting. Reducing oversight measures would be tantamount to giving them the green light to just rob us blind.

Ben Doup — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ben Doup Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The system works and has worked do not change it

Ben

Ben Siegel — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ben Siegel Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is important that earnings remains quarterly so shareholders receive transparency

Ben Siegel

Please excuse any abrupt tone

Ben Stendahl — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Ben Stendahl Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly transparency reports are the backbone of investor confidence. As a "retail" investor I cannot afford other reporting signals like credit card reporting. I really on these reports to understand how my investments are performing and build confidence that balance sheets match corporate headlines.

Benjamin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Benjamin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dear SEC,

I am Benjamin, a student at a community college who is mostly unable to afford college by myself.
I currently have most of what little money I have in an account at Robinhood so that I can make up for any fees my financial aid doesn’t cover through retail investments.
This new change from quarterly to biyearly filings will significantly delay and reduce the information I have to make my investments.
While optional, this change greatly benefits large and small companies whose owners and shareholders benefit from insider trading, as they get information monthly through shareholder meetings while I only get information every 6 months.
This gives more time for the company to cook the books to appear better than they are or for major shareholders to safely divest from a failing company before retail investors can.
This will also drive retail investors to make choices based more and more on hearsay, making the market much more bolder than it already is.
While these problems exist without this change, this change will only exacerbate these problems by lengthening the time between public information releases.
Instead I propose reducing the amount of time between public financial statements down to as little as once every month to reduce market volatility and the risk of major insider trading.

Sincerely,
Benjamin

Berta Kuns — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Berta Kuns Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is my feeling that we SHOULD RETAIN quarterly reporting. It will help avoid panics, and illegal activity, in addition to ensuring investors have reasonable access to public companies.

Beth Anne McGrogan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Beth Anne McGrogan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The American people are tired of corrupt, rich, and powerful people and companies serving themselves at the expense of the people. The time for self-dealing has come to an end. We will not tolerate it any longer. Remember what happened during the French Revolution. Remember the guillotine.

Beth Donahue — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Beth Donahue I am an investor. I count on quartly reports to make my investment decisions. To lose 3 months of information as I waited 6 months for a report would definitely have an effect on my investment decisions. I might change my entire investment outlook. It would allow businesses to hide changes for longer periods of time making investing much more challenging and I would begin to look at more stable ways to investsuch as CDs through banks and Credit Unions. Sincerely, Investor Beth Donahue

---

Beth Miller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Beth Miller Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Don’t do this!

Sent from my iPhone

Beth Shibata — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Beth Shibata Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 The SEC needs to keep a vigilant eye on our financial holdings and keep to quarterly reporting to minimize the opportunities for fraud to damage the investments of all US citizens.

"The clearest way into the universe is through a forest wilderness." John Muir

---

Beverly Wallrauch — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Beverly Wallrauch Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The corruption is becoming overwhelming. This needs to end. The people are waking up.

---

bob miller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: bob miller Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Why does the government keep trying to screw the American people? You know this is a cover up tactic to hide vital information. Why is it so hard to give a report every quarter with the CPA's and automation these companies have, its not. Another way for insiders to get rich. Corruption goes on all the time in big companies and the more your relax regulations the more likely its going to happen. It matters to me because as a tax payer and when the government finds corruption its already to late and it's us that suffer the cost. I owned a small company and did everything the government required. If you didn't they came down on you hard. So why is it important to lax the requirements of big corporations, it can't be good. Bob Miller

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Bonnie Chavez — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bonnie Chavez Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Bonnie Chavez , retired absolutely not they are forever trying to hide their corruption . This whole administration is totally corrupt. Under this administration the more corrupt you can be the more you are in the inner circle . Another big issue is trying to get away with Having taxpayers money $1.8M payed to him for his tax being revealed. He put his corrupt criminal lawyer in charge which made Trump Judge jury over his own trial and to give immunity to his entire family to never have his taxes audited, or his families ! This whole administration is taken from the American people to give to the Rich, billionaires into enrich themselves ! This whole administration is taken from the American people to give to the Rich, billionaires to enrich themselves with abuse of power! All for the wealthy and nothing for the average working class that pays taxes and the poor, veterans, disabled and children! This has been the most corrupt administration in American history!

Sent from my iPhone

Bradley Wohlenberg — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Bradley Wohlenberg My employer doesn't offer a retirement plan, so my only real options are self-directed IRAs and standard brokerage accounts. Eliminating the quarterly reporting requirement will deeply and materially affect my ability to successfully invest enough money to support my wife and me in retirement. Please don't do this, you will be harming millions of Americans.

Brandon M. — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brandon M. As an avid individual retail investor, I ask that this proposed rule not be implemented. Six months in the business world is an eternity. Please KEEP reporting of financial results on a QUARTERLY basis. Thank you.

Brenda Ruckreigle — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brenda Ruckreigle Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This sounds like a really bad idea. A lot can go wrong in 6 months. Small investors can be greatly harmed by this proposal. Also the potential of fraud to go undetected.
Brenda Ruckreigle, retired Radiological Technologist, I'm a small investor

Sent from my iPad

Brennan McAdams — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brennan McAdams Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Transparency is needed and reducing the quarterly report is the opposite of what we need. This is not some cumbersome burden, but requirement for informed investors. Keep the quarterly requirements in place.

Brennan McAdams

Brew Meister — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brew Meister Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Hi, I'm a retired pilot. I've heard you're thinking of changing that SEC Rule S7-2026-15 would let public companies hide bad numbers for six months at a time instead of the current 3 month time period. As a retail investor I'd like to mention that that rule change definitely works against transparency for me when I'm interested in stock investments. That just kind of ruins the end of the stick I'm holding. Please reconsider and kill that proposed rule.

Sincerely,
Neil Gotschall
[REDACTED]

Brian Burrington — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: My view on Rule S7-2026-15 From: Brian Burrington Affiliation: Jun. 10, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission:
Reducing reporting requirements, and any reduction in transparency for investors is a terrible idea. For two modern examples of corporate fraud, one doesn't need to look further than FTX and Enron. In light of catastrophic consequences of these and a myriad other examples, we should be increasing checks and balances, transparency, and most importantly... consequences for corporate fraud.
Who are the victims of corporate fraud? Pension holders, retirees, and the younger generations who are investing in their future. These are your own family, friends, and coworkers who will suffer.

A reduction in reporting requirements will quickly lead to a reduction in confidence in our markets. That is the last thing we want.

Sincerely,
Brian Burrington

Brian Fairlie — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Brian Fairlie Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We tried this once before and it was devastating to the average American. I don't understand why you could possibly think that it would go any differently this time around. Things work just fine the way they are! Quarterly earnings must be maintained!

Sent from my iPhone

Brian Higgins — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brian Higgins Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Changing the reporting frequency from quarterly to semiannually is bad for retail investors, and increases the possibility of corporate executives hiding events that investors need to know to assess theur investments.
Brian Higgins
32210

Brian McMahon — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Brian McMahon Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is a terrible idea. We tried this once already. I for one do not want to lose a third of my savings, nor do I trust the publicly traded companies of the market to only report 2x a year.

Brigette Bishop — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brigette Bishop Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting protects consumers!!!

Sent from my iPhone

Brittany Stewart — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brittany Stewart Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 The last thing those of us who invest in our future need or want is for billionaires to have another way to steal our hard earned money!

Bruce Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bruce Smith Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This is Bruce Smith, a veteran and Social Security recipient in Oregon.

Nefarious hidden stock transactions are a serious threat to the economy.

Ethical trading should be transparent, not hidden.

Hidden transactions means companies and individuals can perform shady deals to their heart's content.

Bruce Vaughn — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bruce Vaughn Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I have been actively involved in the stock market throughout the last 44 years. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

Bruce

Bryan Foster — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Bryan Foster Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly reporting is essential for the big and small investor. Moving to semi-annual would increase big sell-offs, promote insider trading and increase market volatility.

Bud Morrison — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bud Morrison Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 KEEP THE 10-Q REPORTING FORMAT OPEN AND AVAILABLE TO ALL REQUIRING THE INFORMATION PROVIDED.

C J Beegle-Krause — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: C J Beegle-Krause Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I want to know QUARTERLY how my investments are doing. BE SURE to send me a document twice a year, but I should be able to ask for information any time I want and get an answer within 3-5 days.

Sent from CJ’s iPhone

C R — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: C R Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 What do you have to hide? I want quarterly reporting. I want to read as many reports as possible.

Carolyn McDonald LPN

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

C Thompson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: C Thompson I am a Senior Citizen and I am demanding that you keep the quartly books. You are just turning a blind eye to what will happen and of course, none of YOU will loose anything. Stop the deceit and try real hard to remember what HONESTY is!!!

C. Tyle — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: C. Tyle Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The only people who will benefit are the people on the inside, including our government, which should not be buying stocks. It isn't fair at all to the general public. They may even decide not to buy any at all from you anymore. How would that work out? Please rethink, thank you.

C. Tyle
3311 Thatcher Ave
Marina Del Rey, CA 90292

Caitlin Collier — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Caitlin Collier Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is essential to the financial awareness of all Americans with investments that the financial reporting of corporations be transparent and frequent. Quarterly reporting must remain mandatory.

Sent from my iPhone

Calvan North — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Calvan North Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 With fewer reports, grifters and scams like EnRon will be able to rake off Twice as many billions before anyone finds out--what could possibly be wrong about that?
Calvan North
[REDACTED]

Calvin B. Clark — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: My view on Rule S7-2026-15 From: CALVIN B CLARK Affiliation: Jun. 10, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission:
This is the worst. Thing to happen to.the small invester insiders congress presidents will have even more information then they have .when they pass laws and rules one won't know if its self richment

---

Carey Lamb — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carey Lamb Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There are a ton of things that I would like noticed but right now it's too hard to set everything down and ask. Well. Did this get talked about? Did that get talked about but 2019 was a very special year

---

Cari Lombardi — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cari Lombardi Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 What happened to transparency this Administration touts? Extending this to six months clearly means cover-ups, something we don't need more of these days.

Please do the right thing or know there will be consequences for this down the road when this regime topples. Count on it.

Signed,
We the People

Sent from my iPhone

Carla Bamer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carla Bamer Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I have always managed my own retirement portfolio and rely heavily on the quarterly reports.
Also, the SEC has a responsibility to monitor for insider trading, which protects all of us.

Carla Bamer

Sent from my iPhone

Carol Kalil — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carol Kalil Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a retired person, most of my income comes from my investments. I need current data to make accurate decisions, especially in the current market conditions and volatility of life in America!

Carol Leake — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carol Leake Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 The kleptocracy needs all the monitoring available.

Sent from my iPhone

Carol Romie — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carol Romie Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Creating a 6 month blackout is an invitation to criminal activity and serves NO positive purpose. DON'T allow this grift to happen!

Sent from my iPhone

Carole Littlefield — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carole Littlefield Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Carole Littlefield here. Retired.

Quarterly reporting works well! Why change it?

Carole Zacek — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carole Zacek Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep what little transparency there is.

Sent from my iPhone

Caroline Gergel — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Caroline Gergel Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 DO NOT shorten the reporting period. We need MORE disclosure , not less.

Caroline Gergel
tax payer and concerned citizen

Caroline Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Caroline Smith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Why would you even think of making it easier for the cheaters?
Caroline Smith

Sent from my iPad

Catherine Breen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Catherine Breen Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Investors need to know what is happening with their money and why. 6 month blackout on information defeats that purpose. It will chill investing in our stock market . Do not let this bill pass!

Sent from my iPhone

Cathy Black — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cathy Black Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I'm a senior with most of my dollars in the market. I need to know what is happening with these companies!! Do NOT change this rule!
Catherine Black

Cathy Ransom — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cathy Ransom Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a very small investor, quarterly reports give me a glimpse of where corporations think the economy is going. Closing that window of insight leaves me a little more in the dark. This policy change only benefits the wealthiest.
Cat Ransom
single mom of a new college graduate

Sent from my Galaxy

CatolyLivingston — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: CatolyLivingston As someone you once worked on a forensic accounting project on stock fraud, I view quarterly reports as an important safeguard for all investors.

Cecilia Logan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cecilia Logan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We must have more transparency not less. The American people are fed up. Do the right thing. Report every 6 months must continue.

--
Sent with mail.com Mail app

Celeste Sanders — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Celeste Sanders Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 If companies are allowed to conceal their financial records for six months at a time, there is a significant opportunity for fraud to be perpetrated. Consumers will suffer by paying higher prices, or face unavailability of goods and services if businesses do not cooperate. We cannot allow the possibility of corruption to enter our decision-making process. We are counting on the SEC to make the correct choice.

Sent from my iPhone

Celia Ann Stogner — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Celia Ann Stogner Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a business owner and investor, I firmly support the continuation of quarterly reporting. Decreasing the frequency of reporting would not be beneficial for our operations. Removing this obligation would impede our ability to develop strategic plans and make essential adjustments.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Cerelda de Heus — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cerelda de Heus Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is no reason to change the current time period.

Cerelda de Heus

Chaney Hardman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chaney Hardman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please keep our companies reporting to us, the public, every three months. Average share holders should have the same availability of knowledge to make informed decisions as institutional entities. As a spouse, parent, blue collar worker and share holder myself who depends on these investments for my retirement and the financial health of my family, I want our corporations and companies to truly be accountable to every share holder. Thank You for your consideration.

Respectfully,
Chaney Hardman

Charlene Lojewski — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Charlene Lojewski Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a Retiree, I want to have the most frequent reporting of the money coming in and going out. Less frequent reporting allows for less transparency and more opportunity for fraud

---

Charles de Krafft — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Charles de Krafft Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Write in your own words. That matters more than any specific argument. A few angles that work: (1) you rely on quarterly information to make decisions, (2) longer gaps create an unfair advantage for corporate insiders, (3) "optional" doesn't fix the problem because companies that opt in are often the ones whose investors most need frequent updates, (4) the savings to companies aren't worth the cost to you.

Sent from my iPad

Charlotte Glover — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Charlotte Glover Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Financial accountability is important and should remain as is.
Charlotte Lewis Glover

Sent from my iPhone

CheChe Luckini — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: CheChe Luckini Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep it QUARTERLY!!!

Chelsea Yigan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chelsea Yigan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 You need to continue to provide reporting. People want transparency and accountability within government agencies.

Envoyé de mon iPhone

Cherish Buel — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cherish Buel Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Cherish Buel, Public School Teacher. I would like the reports to remain quarterly because I like to see how my investments are doing more frequently rather than waiting. I believe accountability works in the investors' favor and keeps the incidents of fraud lower.

Thanks,
Cherish Buel

Cherish Buel
6th grade Science and Robotics
Horizon Intermediate Room E6
Mustang Public Schools
Relationships. Student Success. Communication. Culture.

The information contained in this e-mail message, and any files transmitted with it, is confidential and may be legally privileged. It is intended only for the use of the individuals or entities named above. If the reader of this message is not the intended recipient, or the employee or agent responsible to deliver it to the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any dissemination, distribution or forwarding of this e-mail message is strictly prohibited. If you have received this e-mail message in error, please notify the sender from Mustang Public Schools and delete the material from any computer. Thank you for your cooperation.

Cherry Nichols — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cherry Nichols Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the reporting real. Do not hide corporate revenues. They are trying to hide fraud from the public

---

Cheryl Fitzgerald — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cheryl Fitzgerald Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I do not want to change the public companies to change their reporting to every 6 months.

Sent from my iPhone

Cheryl Johnson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cheryl Johnson Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I want to be able to see quarterly reports. I am just an individual investor.

Cheryl Johnson

Cheryl Klemp — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: cheryl klemp Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 They hide everything ! Time to make them liable to the public !

Chris Gillham — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris Gillham Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 For those of us individual investors who have just enough in our 401K to have a secure and dignified retirement without undue anxiety and stress, please retain the quarterly reporting requirements.

Thank you,
Chris Gillham, computer programmer retired from MetLife

Chris Lanane — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris Lanane Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 To Whom It May Concern:

Continue providing the public with useful quarterly reporting. Reducing reporting to semi-annual only will hamstring small investors who depend on that data.

Sincerely,

Chris Lanane
Bishop, CA

Chris Leadley & Ellen Hing — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris Leadley & Ellen Hing Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I have been actively involved in the stock market throughout the last 44 years. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

Chris Leadley

Chris Marsh — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris Marsh Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is important to me to see what is going on for investing purposes…has this regime not done enough harm already? Worked our whole life to retire, unfair to make it more difficult on us, especially with the likelihood that social security will be reduced…

Chris Marsh

Chris O'Farrell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris O'Farrell Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Christopher O'Farrell, I work full-time in healthcare as a CNA and I am a single parent. I put what little I have to spare into the stock market in hopes of a brighter future. Though my pennies are probably insignificant to publicly traded companies, they matter to me and my family. Quartly reporting allows me to see what companies are doing with my investments and make informed decisions accordingly. Changing the reporting schedule to biannually forces me to trade and invest with less information which increases risk and potential losses. The last thing I need right now is less faith in the market.

Chris Rockwell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Chris Rockwell Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Chris Rockwell and I am an application developer that manages my small portfolio and invests in my 401k. Bi-annual earnings would impair my ability to make timely, informed decisions for my portfolio.

Quarterly earnings should be required for publicly traded companies.

Chris Rockwell

https://www.linkedin.com/in/chris-rockwell/

Chrissy Rossow — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chrissy Rossow Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Christine Rossow, Project Management Office Leader. As an investor, I feel that any company offering shares to the public should have full transparency into financial positions. This change would create an unfair advantage against investors.

Christa Warda — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christa Warda Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am retired. My retirement account is invested in the stock market, as are the retirement accounts of millions of Americans. We earned that money, worked all of our lives for it. We need the SEC to keep reporting as frequent as it has been. It also needs to be stringent, transparent and honest. There are too many bad actors who are itching to get their hands on our money. No changes to SEC rules to make it easier to cheat and steal!

Christa Warda
Retired U.S. Citizen

Christie Shanafelt — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christie Shanafelt Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a family physician, my time to accumulate retirement savings has been compressed into a shorter period than those of my peers who started full-time work right out of vocational training or a bachelor's degree. As such, it's very important to me that I have frequent transparency into my savings and investments. I need these quarterly earnings reports to ensure future financial security for myself and my family.

Sincerely,
Christie Shanafelt

Christine Frizzell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christine Frizzell Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please do NOT lengthen the reporting period for companies. It will put the average individual investor at a disadvantage and give insiders, the wealthy and well-connected investors an unfair advantage. It would set the stage for an increase in insider trading, pump-and-dump operations and corruptions. It will increase income disparity, which is already killing our democracy. I am a semi-retired psychologist, a concerned citizen, and a voter. D. Christine Frizzell Bristol, RI

Christine Oconnell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christine Oconnell Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 MY 401k. My money being invested. My business. Leave it quarterly.

Christopher D'Amico — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christopher D'Amico Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This change would be good ONLY for criminal actions, insider dealing, fraudsters and billionaires. Who are you working for? The US Citizen OR The Orange Fraud in The WH...?!
Christopher D'Amico
Brewer, Maine
INVESTOR

Christopher Manns — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Manns Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm a "near" retiree, the financial decisions I'm making right now based on public reviews mandatorily shared information will have a long lasting impact. Removing the the statutory requirement to share that information may save the company money, but what about me, the citizen? I'd like to think all publicly traded companies are above board and not hiding things... It people run those companies and people are flawed.
So please keep the qtrly reporting requirement and help me to help myself in making informed decisions.

Regards,
C. Manns

Christopher Warren — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Warren Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I guess the REGIME WANTS TO MAKE EMBEZZELMENT A FEDERALLY SANCTIONED OPERATION so they can cook the Books more easily if they don't report on a Quarterly basis!

Chrystal Moore — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chrystal Moore Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Chrystal Moore
Retail Investor | Caregiver | Community Advocate

My name is Chrystal Moore. I care for my elderly mother and my disabled brother.
I am a retail investor building financial stability for my family's future.
Every financial decision I make directly affects my ability to care for the people depending on me.

That is why I am writing today.
Quarterly reporting is not a preference. It is a protection.

I do not have analysts. I do not have insider access. I have my hard-earned money, my responsibilities, and the right to timely information.

If this proposal passes and companies can go dark for six months, here is what happens to me:

By the time I get updated information, it may be too late to protect my investments or change my plan. That is not a fair market. That is a trap for people like me.

This proposal harms retail investors in four clear ways:

I rely on quarterly updates to make decisions about my retirement savings. Without them, I cannot protect what I have worked for.

Insiders and institutions will still know what is happening. I will not. That gap is already unfair. This makes it worse.

Making reduced reporting "optional" does not fix anything. The companies most likely to opt out are exactly the companies whose investors need updates the most.

Corporate cost savings do not outweigh the harm to people investing slowly, carefully, and without institutional backing.

I am not a Wall Street investor. I am a caregiver and a retail investor doing my best with what I have. I deserve the same timely access to information that keeps markets honest.

I urge the SEC to maintain quarterly reporting requirements and uphold its legal duty to protect the investing public — including individuals like me.

Respectfully submitted,
Chrystal Moore
Caregiver | Retail Investor | Community Advocate

Chuck Glascock — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chuck Glascock Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The 'six month' rule will allow companies that are on the brink of failure to hide their challenges, and provide a negative impact on stock prices, allowing insiders to avoid risk, which will then be forwarded to consumers.

Chuck Plymire — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chuck Plymire Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need and deserve to KNOW Quarterly

---

Cindy Grainger — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cindy Grainger Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Cindy Grainger, citizen
This matters to me because I am 71 yo and am watching this person steal our country bit by bit. So sick of project 2025. Make reports mandatory that cover what objectives have been secured by the oligarchs and creators of project 2025 including Peter Thiel. That used to be covered by media including newspapers but he has sued them all into submission. The man needs to be removed with the 25th amendment and a coalition of people either elected/appointed/requested need to save this country from project 2025.

Cindy Grainger
1070 W Radcliff Ave
Englewood CO 80110
720-373-5958
cindyshortridge@comcast.net cindygrainger2017@outlook.com

Cindy Pittman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cindy Pittman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As social security runs out and AI replaces more jobs, a significant number of Americans will rely on their investments to sustain their families, healthcare, homes and communities. That is not an overstatement.

Companies already see most of the SEC fines as a minimal tax on their profitable fraudulent behavior.
Don't give them another 6 months to hide their self dealings and false accounting from their investors and oversight.

Sent from mobile; please excuse any brevity or typos.

Cindy Zimmerman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cindy Zimmerman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We have the right to know the truth. Insider trading is unfair.

Sent from my iPad

Claire DGaia — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Claire DGaia Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Public utilities shady enough in sw Mo. They need to be Watched, Audited too!

Claire DGaia
Springfield,Mo

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Cliff Provence — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Cliff Provence Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Clifton Provence. Retiree. I believe that continuing the requirements of quarterly reporting is a requirement that should be maintained.It is foolhardy to believe that companies will always tell the truth and not try to hide shady business practices from their clients.

Sent from my iPad

Clyde Hughey — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Clyde Hughey Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 PLEASE DO NOT become a PUPPET for this "Administration", that wants to HIDE behind your organization, while demanding that you SHOULD just exist as yet another sycophantic displayer of dutiful obedience.

Colin Povey — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Colin Povey Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Not only no, but Hell No. Don't you dare make biased changes.

Sent from my iPad

Connie Vaughn — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Connie Vaughn Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is already so much distrust of Wall Street and the SEC, why would you want to do this? Because Trump is promoting it? Because millionaires and billionaires will profit?

Sent from my iPhone

Coral Bohne — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Coral Bohne Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Even as a minor investor, I am part of a multitude that deserve the right to Quarterly reporting to be able to take action if something is going wrong at a company or mutual Fund to fight for correction or pull out. This is critical to the health of our economy and our individual finances.

Sent from my iPhone

Craig — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Craig Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The American people and investors in general deserve corporate transparency on the usual quarterly basis!

~Craig

Craig and Kathy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Craig and Kathy Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Transparency builds trust, not hiding the facts

Sent from my iPad

Craig Lee Burket — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Craig Lee Burket Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 If it ain't broke, don't "fix" it.

Craig Miller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Craig Miller Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I want quarterly reports.

Get Outlook for iOS

Craig Oswald — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Craig Oswald Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This will further reduce transparency of corporations. Do not do it.

Criage Lynnette Althage, Library Technical Assistant at Northeastern Illinois University — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Criage Lynnette Althage I am Criage Althage I work as a Library Technical Assistant I invest and as a consumer stakeholder, I see this is bad for the market overall as well as affecting my ability to make decisions financially.

Cydney Wells — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cydney Wells Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am a pensioner with most of my savings invested in 401K funds. I am against this attempt to scale back reporting requirements from quarterly to biannually because investors need as much timely information as possible. Corporations will still have to maintain this information so this is just a question of transparency.

Sent from my iPad

Cynthia Endicott — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cynthia Endicott Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly Reports protect Investors. As a retiree I depend on my investment income and need these regular updates.

Cynthia Endicott

Cynthia Qualia — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cynthia Qualia Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 As a citizen of the US and an independent investor, do no change the existing reporting process. Keep the quarterly reports. During this economic environment much can happen quickly and information is needed in a timely manner to understand the current health of a business.

Cynthia Qualia, CKBD Past President
Texas Gulf Coast Chapter
National Kitchen and Bath Association

C&L Contracting and Design
Friendswood, Texas

Office 281-648-2643

Cynthia Ricard — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cynthia Ricard Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Cynthia Ricard. Retired Scientist. Reporting and auditing are more important than ever before. In fact, in this administration it would make better sense to increase it to monthly.

Cynthia Treffer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cynthia Treffer Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Cynthia, bookkeeper, and this matters to me because what happens on Wall Street and with the SEC affects EVERYBODY. Not just people that invest.

Dale Parsons — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dale Parsons Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dale Parsons. Modern data systems make reporting easier and cheaper than ever. Regular reporting is important to identify fraud, mismanagement and insider trading to protect investors and the economy.

Sent from my iPad

Dan Dobson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Dan Dobson Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I like getting the figures quarterly, and I hope that stays. - if SEC brings this back, tar-n-feathering should come back too.

Sent from my iPhone

Dan Or Robin Nance — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dan Or Robin Nance Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 100% against.

Sent from my Verizon, Samsung Galaxy smartphone

Dan Pahlow — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dan Pahlow Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep the Quarterly reports. Monthly reports would be better.

Sent from my iPad

Daniel Mays — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Mays Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Daniel Mays retired auto mechanic
Who does it benefit by not reporting quarterly
Definitely not the individual stock investor

Sent from my iPhone

Daniel Powers — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Powers Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 The cost of worse information falls on me, an ordinary investor. I inherited a modest IRA from my father & I'm literally holding onto it for dear life. I'm 56 & disabled; formerly a Licensed Professional Counselor who worked with low-income kids & families. I was only able to work as one for 5 years before becoming disabled, so I was not able to fund an IRA of my own. The money inherited in my father's IRA will likely be used on long-term care for me in the not so distant future. I already lost too much of that money when Covid hit. I can't afford to lose more; I want my investments as transparent as possible. - Cindy M. Powers, LPC, Oklahoma

Cindy M. Powers

Daniel Wells — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Wells Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 At least QUARTERLY!! Think about monthly!

Danny Bermudez — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Danny Bermudez Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Investors need transparency and must be updated about the actual status of the company thereby eliminating fraud and making investors make their best decisions.
Dave Merch
Oimd@cox.net

Sent from my iPhone

Darlene Stubbs — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Darlene Stubbs Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

Sent from my iPhone

Darrell Dean — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Darrell Dean Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Hello,

I'd like to express my opposition to changing the reporting requirements to semi annually as this will decrease transparency. As a retail investor I believe this is a bad idea and I am OPPOSED to the change.

Best regards,
Darrell Dean
Flower mound, TX 75028

Darrell Magby — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Darrell Magby Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Darrell Magby, 42 YO, Generator Technician, Greenbrier Arkansas - Keep the quarterly reports. As an investor, I deserve to know what is happening in the companies I invest in, in a timely manner.

David Bernier — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: David Bernier Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 The only reason to make this vial short sighted change is to further propagate corprate greed and to dismantle the lower financial classes. RETAIN TRANSPARENCY! KEEP IT QUARTERLY!

David Bourquin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Bourquin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 David Jay Bourquin, Automation Integrator, Investor. Please protect quarterly reporting to keep investors informed and prevent fraud.

David Collins — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Collins Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The six month reporting rule should not be approved, or enacted🤬🤬🤬🤬🤬

Get Outlook for iOS

David Di Gioia — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: David Di Gioia Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Do not do this. It helps no one but the very rich and corrupt. We see what you are doing.

David Henry — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Henry Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a long-term investor and a trader, I find it absurd and probably corrupt at the SEC is advancing. The idea of requiring profits to be reported only every six months.

I can only imagine that this will reduce the public confidence in the trading system and the stock exchanges. There will be sharp discoveries that caused stocks to drop unexpectedly only because you’re not releasing good information.

Where the hell did this idea come from? Certainly not from anyone who wants the Market to have the high confidence of it users end of the world at large.

My name is David Henry, a resident of Arizona.
I have owned two businesses, but I’m consulting now.

David Henry
609-436-9753
609-947-1319 +52 415-188-9573

“The simple step of a courageous individual is not to take part in the lie.
One word of truth outweighs the world.”
Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn

“If you tell a lie big enough and keep repeating it, people will eventually come to believe it,” Joseph Goebbels
Reich Minister of Propaganda
(for Adolph Hitler, 1933 - 1945)

"The election was stolen. Everybody knows it."
Donald Trump
(These claims by Trump's legal team.were thrown out by every court in every state because Trump's legal team was unable to provide any evidence at all.)

Curiosity has its own reason for existence. One cannot help but be in awe when he contemplates the mysteries of eternity, of life, of the marvelous structure of reality... Never lose a holy curiosity.

Albert Einstein

David Mcgee — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 not that hard From: David Mcgee Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is not a crazy ask. Like come on guys. Quarterly reporting or you don't belong to be publicly traded company.

David Phelps — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Phelps Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need transparency of Wall Street.

Sent from my iPhone

David Scally Jr. — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: SEC Letter RE: proposed reporting Change S7-2026-15 From: David Scally Jr. Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The more the more frequently required reporting the more accurate the information. Quarterly is already not substantial enough. I am against going from quarterly to bi-annual reporting

Regards,
David Scally Jr

David Simpson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Simpson Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Sounds like insider trading, hiding behind paper work, keeping the public in the dark is going to be business as usual

Sent from my iPhone

David Straka — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Straka Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Grifty business!

Sent from my iPad

David Whittington — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Whittington Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 All corporations already produce monthly financial statements. It is simply not that hard to consolidate three months of financial statements into a quarterly report four times per year. Investors deserve to know as much as they can about a companies success or lack of success as often as possible. It will be a HUGE disaster to do away with quarterly reporting. A bad CEO could avoid being fired for an extra six months if quarterly reporting is abandoned. David Whittington - Hotel Controller

---

Dean Cho — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Dean Cho Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I urge the SEC to maintain quarterly reporting to maintain necessary transparency and to protect smaller investors.

Deb Berthiaume — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Deb Berthiaume Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 No. Reporting should stay the way it is. Why do you need to hide your records?

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Deb Loers — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Deb Loers Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We invest regularly and very much want continued quarterly reports
Dr Deborah Loers
Dr David Prentice

Sent from my iPhone

Debbie DiPietropolo — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Debbie DiPietropolo Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Changing companies reporting from quarterly to biannual will limit my ability to properly manage my IRA. It will allow insiders to gain a foot up and allow failing companies to hide from the public. It will not do anything good. It will only allow for fraud and destroy retirees' life savings.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Debi D — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Debi D Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reports are essential to allow interested parties to be informed on how things are going. Eliminating that level of reporting will make it more difficult to maintain a full picture of progresses or failings. It will also make it more difficult to know in a timely manner when issues arise.

Deborah Bowen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Deborah Bowen Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We have a right to know.. Protect the people’s rights to know all facts about their investments in real time

Sent from my iPhone

Deborah Kriske — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Deborah Kriske Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep the rules as they are. With quarterly or even monthly report you can find the mistakes more easily and rectifiable. Too much time would make it too easy for fraud.

Sent from my iPhone

Deborah Thomas — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Deborah Thomas Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep reporting the economic numbers quarterly. Citizens need more transparency, not less.

Sent from my iPad

Debra Laclair — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Debra Laclair Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Stop letting them hide.

Sent from my iPhone

Debra Miller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Debra Miller Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need transparency, do not place a block on those of us who invest our hard earned money to protect businesses who may be taking those funds and hiding how they are using those investment income from those whose futures depend on those investments to live. You would not be able to do that with board members, who receive money from those businesses.
Debra Miller

Get Outlook for Android

Debra Sullivan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Debra Sullivan Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Stop letting the Classless "elite" steal from the American people

---

Declan Cannon — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Declan Cannon Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Declan cannon Retired
Investor
This is the opposite of transparency and promotes unethical behavior.

Dee Bonelli — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dee Bonelli Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please keep the transparency provided by quarterly reports

---

Dee Gibney — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dee Gibney Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a recently retired person living on Social Security, and a widow's pension, I rely on my IRA and Roth to fill in gaps. My financial advisor and I talk quarterly and depend heavily on timely financial reports to keep ahead of spiraling inflation, in this time of the incompetent, self-serving, crupt administration.
Keep it QUARTERLY!

Delores Gibney, LMSW

Sent from Samsung Galaxy smartphone.
Get Outlook for Android

Dennis Owen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dennis Owen Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This will hurt the average investor and allow extremely wealthy investors and companies to game the system.

Sent from my iPhone

Dennis Rein — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: DENNIS REIN Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Big Business is already screwing over the country enough. There’s no need at all to give them extra time to do more damage.

Sent from my iPad

Devan van Eyck — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Devan van Eyck Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Absolutely do not enact this. Tilts the field irretrievably towards the corporation and away from the citizen. This is blatant thievery & malfeasance. Shameful.

Devan van Eyck
Beverage Director|FESTIVÁL
Partner|Bespoke Solutions

Dian Altemier — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dian Altemier Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dian Altemier (Retired). I am a retail investor and retiree. I rely on quarterly reports to make decisions about my retirement savings. I don’t believe this is a cost saving measure to the company. Other countries that have tried this have not been satisfied. Learn from those countries. I do not support giving up Quarterly reviews. Dian Altemier retired. Okahumpka, Florida

---

Diana Dobos — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diana Dobos Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 The SEC should unequivocally preserve strong, quartly reporting requirements.

This is something I want as a citizen, investor, and business owner. Quarterly reporting is a basic transparency safeguard for non-insiders. It's necessary for trust in commerce to function normally.

I urge the SEC decision makers to consider what kind of legacy THEY as individuals want to leave. To consider how the history books will explore such a cut within the larger framework of the current political situation.

Diana Dobos
Attorney, Florida

Diana Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diana Smith Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 It must be kept quarterly. Our financial system must NOT CHANGE! Too much cheatimg can happen.

Diana Stewart — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diana Stewart Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Transparency and accountability only protect who or what they are meant to protect when the timeframe meaningfully allows for that. Stay with the quarterly timeframe.

Sent from my iPhone

Diane Barksdale — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diane Barksdale Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The pattern of decreasing the people's involvement in our government is evident here. We depend on these disclosures to monitor our investments. We need more frequent reports, not fewer.

Get Outlook for Android

Diane Gaw — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diane Gaw Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Our markets have shown time and again that they need oversight.

Diane Rechner — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diane Rechner Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is essential in determining one's portfolio.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Diane Wert — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diane Wert Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Why would you need to HIDE the activity, it’s not their money it’s ours.
All the normalizing of deception, delay, deceit is totally wrong in Every way, No no and hell no……

Sent from my iPad

Dipankar Chatterjee — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dipankar Chatterjee Please continue quarterly reporting. It's important we get to evaluate financial situation and company management performance on a quarterly basis to make thoughtful and careful financial decisions to invest or not invest in a company. There are millions of individuals both in and outside of US who rely on this ongoing flow of data and accompanying management commentary to invest. It's relevant even more so now, given geopolitical tensions and also significant investments continuing in AI infrastructure and innovation, such that we know huge sums of money which are being spent will come to fruition.

Do Overman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Do Overman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Robin Kelly-lifelong investor--retired and at investment goal. If my investments become subject to another class of investors being privy to information allowing them to pull out or purchase securities on information I don't have then, why be a part of that? Is it so important to covet information to allow for more fraudulent cheating?

Doering Meyer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Doering Meyer Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting helps the average law-abiding citizen have access to where our monies are invested and upholds the transparency required to prevent further insider trading. There is no reason to reduce the reporting, except to make it easier for criminal activity.

Don Poggemoeller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Don Poggemoeller Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Don't put blinders on all of us, so that trump can hide his and the republican failures from our view!

Don Tegnelia — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Don Tegnelia Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 You can’t let this happen!! It is just another way where the common family gets screwed over by corruption in corporate America. 401ks needs to be protected at all costs!

Don Wittig — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Don Wittig Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Leave it as is. Transparency is the name

Sent from my iPhone

Donna Clark — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Donna Clark Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Transparency is a must. Keep the reports quarterly.

Donna Riley — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Donna Riley Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 It is unfair for public stock companies to allow insider trading. Stick with quarterly reporting.

Doug Harvey — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Doug Harvey Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need more transparency, not less. We're supposed to be preventing criminal behavior, bot enabling it.

Dr. Barbara-Ann Kaidy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dr. Barbara-Ann Kaidy Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly isn't even enough in these volatile times!! My money should be available to me and my data on my money even more so!! SEC, DO YOUR JOB FOR THE PEOPLE!!!

Dr. Barbara-Ann Kaidy, PhD, and corporate accountant 50 years!!

Sent from my T-Mobile 5G Device
Get Outlook for Android

Drew Kovacs — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Drew Kovacs Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the same rules Quaterly reporting!

Sent from my iPhone

Dyllan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dyllan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Don't draw the blinds over my windows, looking into publicly traded companies. People like retail investors deserve more clarity and transparency not less. This is the step in the wrong direction.

E Harris — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: E Harris Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is absolutely no excuse for changing the quarterly reporting requirements. Unless they've changed to monthly, which would be a good change. ET Harris, independent business person.

Sent from my iPad

Ed Beasley — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ed Beasley Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Small investors and retired folks are already at the mercy of insiders. This change will make things worse for us, but the tech insiders and their Congressional accomplices will wi big time.
Keep It Quarterly!
Ed Beasley
Retired

Eddie Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Eddie Smith Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Edward smith, data analytics engineer, this is totally unfair and unjust. Im tired of the sec covering up for the billionaires and rigging the market against the middle class.

Eden — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Eden Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Eden Tropp Small business owner THIS matters because my small portfolio is ALL I HAVE for my future. I'm 62 and time to invest is short and these reports allow my financial planner to make smart decisions for my meager investments. You are catering to the wealthy insiders by eliminating these reports.

Edgar Vallarta — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Edgar Vallarta Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting has never been an onerous burden on business. It provides investors and analysts with important information for business decisions for capital allocation. It is the smart thing to leave it alone. Semi-annual reporting won't be timely or useful to interested parties.

Edward Krausnick — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Edward Krausnick We, the general public, need AT LEAST the current, minimal amount of transparency that the current rules provide, NOTHING LESS! Why is the SEC trying to provide LESS transparency? What is the SEC trying to hide? A clear, unambiguous reason for proposing this rule change is REQUIRED! Then, we the public, can begin to see the intent. That is NOT negotiable.

Eli Burgos — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Eli Burgos Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Please don't. It wont effect you immediately but over time will erode all public confidence in the USA economy.

Sent from my iPhone

Elizabeth Flum — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Flum Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am writing in support of keeping the quarterly reporting rule for public corporations. As a private citizen who has been investing in the US stock market with my 401K for decades I need timely information about the performance of my holdings. Corporations need to be held accountable for their business decisions, and investors deserve timely information about their hard-earned savings. The SEC proposal allowing business "to go dark" for six months at a time is just a shady idea that endangers the interests of all investors - Don't fall for it!

Elizabeth Flum, Ph.D
Outpatient Therapist
Integrated Services for Behavioral Health
Athens, Ohio

Elizabeth Gay Lannon — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gay Lannon Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I have very little investment in the stock market, managed by a financial company, but I think this change in reporting requirements changes the playing field unfairly and diminishes trust in the system, for no good reason. If companies can't be completely transparent, what are they trying to hide? Think this through from the point of view of average people. Thank you.

Elizabeth Gay Lannon
North Hills, CA 91343
Retired, Healthcare Marketing
Grandmother who cares about the future

Voter
(My titles)

Sent from my iPhone

Elizabeth Hope — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Hope Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I, for one, don't trust the fixes to guard the hen house! Y'all took away our pensions to push us into 401's to get our retirement money into the stock market, now show us what we have. You are not a trustworthy bunch. The current badministration is trying to bleed the people dry, and this is just the next tool they'll use to do it.

Elizabeth Lindorff — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Lindorff Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on you, the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad for normal investors.

Elizabeth Oseid — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Oseid Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Elizabeth Oseid/Health Physicist

The Trump regime is doing everything to keep American Citizens in the dark. This must stop. It is foolish to think the people will invest in the markets if they cannot trust the information they get and get the information in a timely manner. I am sure that plenty of insider trading goes on already. This will just make it easier. I wish more people who could stop this craziness had the guts to stand up for America, not MAGA, which has nothing to do with the America I used to believe in.

Elizabeth Oseid
Senior Health Physicist
Office of Radiation Safety
University of Wisconsin-Madison
608-219-2495
https://ehs.wisc.edu/labs-research/radiation-safety/

Looking ahead: I will be out of the office on June 22-26 and July 27-28

Please complete this brief survey to help us improve our service to campus. Thank you for your time and feedback.

Ellen Irwin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ellen Irwin Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Ellen Irwin. Retired accountant. Less reporting gives people more opportunities to cheat\game the system. Quarterly reports give a better window into what is going on. Do not go to every six months. That is a disaster in the making.

Ellen

I became insane with long intervals of horrible sanity. - E.A. Poe

---

Ellen Klemm — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ellen Klemm Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Ellen K. I am a retiree. I rely on quarterly reports to make decisions about my retirement savings. I do not have years to make up for investments gone bad. I need quarterly information to make decisions about my investments.

Sent from my iPhone

Ellen Lawrence — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ellen Lawrence Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Ellen Lawrence
Retired from information technology

It is imperative as a retired person to have current information on our investments. This policy would damage our trust of the financial numbers reported by corporations we invest in. It also confines corporations from understanding their financials and may negatively impact their ability to make good decisions. A lose lose for everyone. Decisions like this question my support of this administration's dedication to America First and the American people.

Sent from my iPhone

Ellen Lee — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ellen Lee Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Grifters just want one more way to screw everyday Americans

Sent from my iPhone

Eric J. Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: EJ Smith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keeping quarterly reporting is necessary to maintain oversight on performance and fraud prevention. In fact, in an age where data is digitized and easier than ever to sort and assess, the SEC should be looking to increase reporting to semi-monthly, or 6 times per year. The SEC was established to protect stockholders, not business, so why would this even be considered?

Thanks,

Eric J Smith

Retired IT Security Administrator
Slingerlands NY

Erin Windsor — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Erin Windsor Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Don’t allow the change! Transparency is best.

Eva Merrick — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Eva Merrick Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This essential for the wellbeing and stability of Americans. Transparency and honesty have to lead here.

I'm a retired secretary whose 401k is keeping me housed. Don't take this away from working Americans!

Eva Merrick

Fanny Whitman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Fanny Whitman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We are accountable for all our decisions in our personal daily life. Every financial decision must be held to the same accountability.

Sent from my iPhone

Felicia Viscome — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Felicia Viscome Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Maintain transparency for all investors. As a retired teacher on a pension accurate information in a timely manner is essential for me to continue investments. Stop rigging Wall Street for the wealthy.
Felicia Viscome

Fergus Vullers — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: My view on Rule S7-2026-15 From: Fergus Vullers Affiliation: Jun. 10, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission:
I am an avid reyail investor who relies on quarterly reports for investing in stocks.
Reducing the amount of reporting will severly impact my investments as tracking companies which are growing will be extremely difficult given the proposed reporting periods and I for one will not agree that is somewhat beneficial for investors in the market place.
If this was put to a vote, I would vote against the proposed changes.
Thank you.

Fran Miller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: From: Fran Miller Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Since not everyone is honest it would be best practice to remain on quarterly reporting. Of course, not mentioning any names but a rather famous and disgusting comes to mind.

"He who passively accepts evil is as much involved in it as he who helps to perpetrate it" - Martin Luther King

---

Fran Randolph — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Fran Randolph Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is none of your business, but I am certain you can obtain it if you wish.
My job title is "retired after decades of public service at low pay"
My concern is trying to maintain democracy.
My comments are: obstructing justice is the kakistocric oligarchic way to achieve transfer of wealth from those who need funds to pay for everyday expenses (including taxes that WE THE PEOPLE pay) to those who have enough wealth already on which they ALREADY do not pay "equal" taxes. Tax those who can afford to pay and stop expecting those of us who can barely afford to pay our fair share (but pay and pay and pay) to support lifestyles of the rich and famous.

Frank Christensen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Frank Christensen Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly is a good time period... Please keep it!

Frank (cell 920-559-7844; Facebook, frankchr)

Frank Lovis — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Frank Lovis Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the Quarterly Reports for the sake of investors!

Frank Pastizzo — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Frank Pastizzo Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Compliance with strict reporting timelines is our only safety valve against another economic rip-off of the world. Bush paid off Wall Street 's illegal bets 26 years ago with stolen money. They're continuing to find ways around The People. Pitchforks are marching.

Fred Fuller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Fred Fuller Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Don’t do this. Sunlight is the best sanitizer against corruption and quarterly reports are just that. My investments are crucial to my retirement.

Signed Fred Fuller, retired Project Manager UNC School of Nursing

Sent from my iPhone

Fred Halperin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Fred Halperin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The SEC is supposed to be serving investors. Eliminating quarterly reporting does not serve us. It takes away vital information we need to make smart investing decisions. Please keep the requirement for quarterly reporting

Thank you

Sent from my iPhone

Gabriel Dorsch — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gabriel Dorsch Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm a software engineer and fairly frequent investor and rely on quarterly filings to make investment decisions. If this change passes my already low confidence will be even lower and I will likely divest from all US markets for the near future.

Gabrielle Allen, retired — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Gabrielle Allen Quarterly reporting is more accurate, timely and safer for companies and individuals who rely on the information to make decisions on investments and disbursements. There is no need for companies to withhold information from investors or the public, unless they have something to hide.

Gabrielle Bennett — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gabrielle Bennett Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep it. Stop being sneaky. U.S. Americans deserve transparency.

Thank you.
Gabrielle Bennett

Gail Anthony — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gail Anthony Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This us an unfair advantage for corporate insiders and is a slight against the novice investor and a method of stealing opportunity and security from the general population.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

---

gail ashcovepottery.com — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: gail ashcovepottery.com Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly reports are critical!

Sent from my iPad

Gail Nagy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gail Nagy Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keeping up with corporate hijinks is hard enough - don't let them hide for 6 months!

Gail

Gailmarie Goldrick — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gailmarie Goldrick Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Small investors need to be given a fair shake. We need to know the numbers so we can make good decisions.
Gailmarie Goldrick
Citizen

Garrett Compton — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Garrett Compton This will negatively effect retail traders

---

Gary Cartzdafner — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: gary cartzdafner Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 DO NOT CHANGE CRITICAL REPORTING. IF ANYTHING MAKE IT MORE OFTEN FOR DECISION MAKING

Sent from my iPad

Gary Coryer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gary Coryer Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Gary Coryer - retired electronics design engineer, retirement job working in Information Technology for the last ten years of my retirement. I had to spend down most of my 401k to survive being forced to retire three years early. I had three young children (late life adoptions) that I needed to keep a stable home life for. I continue to work at age 74 with my youngest graduating high school next week. My 401k is gone now but if I still had that, it would be nice to have visibility into the funds more than once every six months. To tell you the truth it should be monthly to be truly responsible to the investors.

Gary Coryer
Sent from Gmail Mobile via iPad M1 Pro

Gary Greenfield — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gary Greenfield Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 KEEP IT QUARTERLY - You are supposed to be working for the AMERICAN PEOPLE.....NOT "Epstein Class"!!

Gary McClarran — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gary McClarran Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the required quarterly report it really helps with my investment tracking and decision making.

Gary McClarran, Retired.

Gavin Chau — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Gavin Chau Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Accurate data helps investors make smart decisions and have faith in the conpany's they choose to invest.

Gavin Chau
Retail Trader

Sent from my iPhone

Gaye Quin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gaye Quin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My retirement funds, along with millions of public service workers, are invested in organizations monitored by the SEC. Please protect the Quarterly reporting routines that keep transactions transparent and safe.

Sent from my iPad

Gayle Hunt Maxfield — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: gayle hunt maxfield Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is in everyone's best interest to retain quarterly reporting.
I'm a senior dependent on my investments and insist on the opportunity to supervise my earnings !
Gayle Maxfield, retired

Geneine Payne — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Geneine Payne Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Don't fix what isn't broken. This system has functioned for a long time without issue. Changing it seems to imply that there is a deeper, and probably nefarious, purpose for doing so. Due to the current political administration control and censorship of media, the public already struggles to ascertain vital, accurate information to manage their investments and monetary security. Do not change the quarterly reporting requirement.

Geneine Payne, RN, retired

Sent from my iPad

George Animal — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: George Animal Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Betty Benge. I am retired & live off my dividends & need to know how my companies are doing every 3 months

---

George E. Despotes — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: George E. Despotes Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is reversing the whole philosophy of American investment based on fact and transparency. No to further reduction in information and truth!

George Despotes

[REDACTED]

George Weiler — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: George Weiler Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is already enough corruption at the top in the White House. This proposed change would hurt many Americans that are already dealing with an unstable market!

George Weiler

Georgianna Lillis — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Georgianna Lillis Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 do not change!

Sent from my iPhone

Gladys Gomperts — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gladys Gomperts Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the quarterly reports. Retired. Don't make it easier for Trump to hide things. If you move this to every 6 months, next they will mive it to once a year and eventually not at all. These things are done gradually. If I can be audited at any time it's nit too much they should be held accountable every 4 months

Gpaulin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gpaulin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Investors need to be informed in a timly wayy. Twice a year is not enough. Keep the quarterly reports

Peace to All

Grace Richardson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Grace Richardson Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 What is the problem with Quarterly reports? What is SEC trying to hide by wanting to change the Quarterly report. If it's to hard then maybe they should consider another job.

Sent from my iPhone

Grace Walker — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Grace Walker Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 You should be protecting the individual investors, the investors without huge portfolios.

Sent from my iPhone

Greg Miller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Greg Miller Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I urge you to continue to require quarterly reporting to maintain the transparency that has made the American stock markets the benchmark for the world. This transparency attracts funds and IPOs, and ensures fairness for all investors. I too wish boards took a longer-term view, but giving them a longer period to operate without public scrutiny won't achieve that. It will only allow unscrupulous actors a longer period to hide their actions, and troubled companies a longer time to hide their issues from the public. Please do not undermine a system that has been undeniably a success in making U.S. capital markets the world leader.

Sincerely yours,
Gregory Miller
Former Executive Director at one of the top 20 largest global financial institutions

Get Outlook for iOS

Gregg McCollum — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gregg McCollum Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I depend upon my investments to fund my retirement. I planned my whole life for it and continue to monitor and adjust. Do not take our access to this information away for six months at a time
Gregg McCollum

Gwen Grever — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gwen Grever Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 We need quartly reports for the average Joe, not just insiders. Also, requiring/allowing the index funds to invest in SpaceX's new IPO should be illegal. It looks like you just want all of us that have saved our entire life to have a comfortable retirement 401k are being pushed out of this strategy. Randy Logsdon, retired and trying to just live and enjoy life.

Sent from my iPad

Hal Newnan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Hal Newnan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Investors need to know how their investments are doing in order to invest. Don't make us sell off.

Hannah Rees — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Hannah Rees Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is unfair to have this information hidden for 6 or even 1 month. We should all be aware of these situations.

Harry Logue — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Harry Logue Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Can you please learn from history. I know that you have to bow and scrape and kiss the President's ass to keep your jobs but please scrape together what little bravery remains and stop kissing billionaires asses long enough to do the right thing!!!!!

Harvey Summers — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Harvey Summers Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I was an auditor. Corporations do not need more time to hide things in their books. They have built processes that deliver quarterly reports. Time itself is a key control that keeps the company fiscal discipline. Changing is unnecessarily disruptive, and has a cascade effect that will destabilize the company and the economy. What kind of fools would support that?

More time means less control, more risks, and more corruption. And while the this administration is pro-corruption, pro-pedophile, and pro-criminal, the people are not. Only criminals support lax reporting and child molestation. Only fools would support this.

Harvey Summers
Data Engineer

Hector R. Alicea Jr, Mr — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Hector R. Alicea Jr Y'all wanna hide all the job losses but nobody is stupid. Keep it at 3 months and get real and i don't mean satanic!

Heidi Huseman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Heidi Huseman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The Corporate corruption today is horrendous. They need to be forthcoming in their actions, and should remain in a quarterly reporting process. After all their shareholders are the reason for their every move so shouldn't they be knowledgeable as to where there money is going?

Heidi Reinker — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Heidi Reinker Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Stopping quarterly reporting is a terrible idea. Investors need more information not less! Any rule or law that lessens transparency is a step in the wrong direction. Confidence in our financial institutions is already being undermined.

Helen Burns — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: HELEN BURNS Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is no excuse for companies to want to provide their investors a financial report only ever six months, unless there is some under the table dealings. We the investors demand financial reports quarterly.

Sent from my iPhone

Helen Keaney — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Helen Keaney Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Stop making it easy for companies to hide from the public….release quarterly statements….

Sent from my iPad

Herk — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Herk Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Most employees are checked daily for Progress, mistakes, and theft. Americans must be able to check on Investments Regularly.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

HITZ SQUAD — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: HITZ SQUAD Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly reporting is necessary to keep investors informed and make timely decisions. In six months without trend info, only insider traders will be able to see these trends; they will more easily be able to control the market at the expense of everyone else. This is a CORRUPT SCHEME!!!!

Sent from my iPhone

Hope Cook — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: Stop SEC Proposal S7-2026-15 From: Hope Cook Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Hope Cook. I am a retired nurse in Houston, Texas.
As an investor in the stock market I think that quarterly reporting to the SEC is a significant safeguard tor investors. There seems to be a trend towards less open reporting from many quarters. I don't think that is a good thing.
I believe decreased reporting increases the chances for the market to be controlled/manipulated by those with large amounts of money and private information sources to their benefit and to the detriment of the rest of us. The world moves quickly these days. Six month reporting leaves a significant gap where many things can happen before the public is aware.
Many people who have investments in the stock market are putting away money for their retirement. And with talk of "privatizing" Social Security that would surely increase. This makes this issue important to us all.
It is rarely a good thing to have less information. Cutting costs should not be at the expense of the public.

I sincerely plead for you to stop SEC Proposal S7-2026-15 and continue with quarterly reporting.

Howel — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Howel Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This is Very concerning that our government would even consider this as a fiscally sound method of reporting. I am a midlevel manager of regulatory affairs my name is Andy Howell and this is an absolute bad idea.

Sent from Gmail Mobile

Ian Gillespie — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Ian Gillespie Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Ian G. I'm the founder and CEO of a small company (under 20 employees).

I've been an investor for over 25 years and I want to know frequently how companies are doing before I invest. Do not switch to biannual reporting!

-Ian

Sent from my iPhone

Irene Chang — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Irene Chang Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Irene Chang, retiree: Individual investors and investing institutions rely heavily on information to make wise choices and respond to market forces. Blinding our eyes with only twice-yearly reports leads to poor investment decisions, corruption, hiding mistakes, and general lack of transparency. Anyone with a business degree will tell you that this is a disastrous idea for a healthy economy.

Iris Morrison — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Iris Morrison Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Hello to the members of the SEC,

My name is Iris Morrison. I am a retired communications technician. Part of my retirement income is invested in the stock market, so the idea that companies will be able to conceal their books for six months is frightening.

How can this even be considered? It's an open invitation to fraud. Business need to be held accountable or they will not be trusted. If they aren't trusted, their stock will not sell. Who wins? A few dishonest business insiders, for a short while. Then smart money will look for countries with better regulations.

In short, if the SEC can't be depended to have the investors best interests at heart, investors will go elsewhere.

Thank you for your time.

Isaiah Brownstein — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Isaiah Brownstein Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I fail to see any benefit for the average investor of getting rid of quarterly reports. I am a well educated 30 year old with several years of investing experience and it has been consistently disheartening to see rules bent and manipulated for the benefit only of the ultra rich and the market makers. Americans should be able to invest in their future, and the playing field should not constantly be modified to burn retail investors. It is short sighted, greedy thinking; both from a moral standpoint and an economic standpoint

Sent from my iPhone

J.G. Ungar — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: J.G. Ungar Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The facts don’t support the SEC’s premises, and this does nothing to help investors. It’s an absolutely unacceptable proposal. Small investors like me absolutely rely on quarterly reports to make properly informed investment decisions. Halving those reports is clearly foolish and will not accomplish the false promises being made about its alleged (and historically, clearly unfounded elsewhere) supposed “benefits.” Please DO NOT DO THIS.

J.G. Ungar
Alameda, CA

J.P. Kneen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: J.P. Kneen Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is JP Kneen, I am a small buisness owner in Colorado. Don't let them hide their problems or their successes. It just gives more power to wealthy companyies who don't need it.

Jack Walters — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jack Walters Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The government owes retail investors frequent performance information about companies in which they might be invested. I taught Business strategy in universities for 35 years. Investors deserve information that informs their decisions about where to invest. Four times a year is the right number. — Jack Walters

Get Outlook for iOS

Jackie Langlois — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jackie Langlois Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I want more surveillance not less! I need to know there are credentialed licensed US staff are working for individuals not just corporations. Reporting and auditing are the backbone of SEC.
Jclanglois RN, MSN. Professional nurse 40 yrs

Jackie

---

jacquehickman53 — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: jacquehickman53 Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I believe we still need quarterly reporting and that it should stay that way! Six months reporting is NOT a good idea at all!

Sent from my Galaxy

Jacquelyn Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jacquelyn Smith Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 We need quarterly reporting to keep up and be current in our lives and expectations. twice a year is NOT enough .
JLBS

Sent from my iPhone

Jacqui Delari — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jacqui Delari Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The new SEC proposal allowing companies go dark for six months at a time is a terrible idea. While the executives, lawyers, and big institutional investors still know exactly how the business is doing, stockholders would be the last to find out. How easy is fraud under these circumstances? How much do you want to invest in a company that can hide for months? Savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees; furthermore, those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad trade for ordinary investors.
This is just another attempt to scam the working class American.
Sincerely,
Jacqui Delario

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

James Royse — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James Royse Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 You already allow companies to hide underperforming parts of their companies. We need quarterly reports or we have no idea which company is failing before it’s too late

James Royse

James Van Lauwe — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James Van Lauwe Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I see another move coming through this administration to make it more difficult for those in 401s and the small investor to analyze their positions in stocks.
Businesses need to be more accessible to those who are putting their savings/retirement monies into them

Jim

Prayer Changes Things

Jamie Birchall — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jamie Birchall Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is no good reason that quarterly financial reports should not continue other than someone is having a tough time hiding corruption.
Jamie Birchall, Utilization Review Manager

Sent from my iPhone

Jan Charvat — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Jan Charvat Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 For once, I urge you to protect investors, not large corporations and billionaires!! Leave the quarterly report rule alive!

Jane Estocin-Klaiber — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jane Estocin-Klaiber Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Jane Estocin, and I am a retired Administrative Manager. This matters to me because it is important to know what is happening with my investments in a timely manner. I want my reports quarterly to keep up to date with my investments. Please do not make this change it could be disastrous for investors.

Jane Estocin-Klaiber

Jane Knuth — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jane Knuth Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep reporting quarterly. Insiders are making unfair gains. A true marketplace has the same rules for all
J Knuth, Business owner

Jane Knuth
International Rights Sales & Editing
Fort Collins, Colorado, USA

Jane Riccardi — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jane Riccardi Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I have been actively involved in the stock market for 40 years. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

Jane Vieira — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jane Vieira Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 We require transparency in our government. The fact that privatization of that governance via corporate, private entities, funded with our tax dollars allows for theft and looting-- stock market manipulation to occur that citizens have no knowledge of until it's too late. This rule will put pension plans in jeopardy, as well as small investors, and lacks any transparency. In short, this points to potential and I dare say, intended corruption. This is a danger to all US citizens. It's a bad rule. We the people say NO!!!

Sincerely,

Jane Vieira

Janet Bliven — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Janet Bliven Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 SEC:
What are you doing? Taking lessons from Trump? Want to keep everyone in the dark as long as possible? I am against it.
Janet Bliven
Retired Civil Service KAFB, MS
Computer Administrator

Janice Hammerstrom — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Janice Hammerstrom Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Janice Hammerstrom, Quality Inspector, for Boeing Co. Keep quartery reporting rules to keep Companies honest and harder to hide their miss doings.

Janice Hammerstrom

Janice Miller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Janice Miller Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Openly stealing, is the new norm.

Jared Sapp — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Jared Sapp Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Jared Sapp, I am an engineer but also an investor. Companies should remain required to provide quarterly earnings reports and guidance. This is not a burden as they already need to keep their financial accounting up to date. I regularly read the quarterly reports of the companies that I invest in and examine if they are keeping consistent guidance or rapidly changing guidance. This frequent check-in lets me determine their ability to develop and stick to long term strategies. I have had several times where a company has made drastic decisions in a short period of time and only by the quarterly report was I able to glean if I should remain invested or divest. I can think of many rapidly developing situations, such as tariff announcements, pandemics, and wartime scenarios where it is paramount to see as quickly as possible if a company can make the right adjustments to their business to thrive. By going to 6 month update windows, our public market will no longer be served by public information, opening the door for mismanagement at best and grift and scandal at the worst. In a period of rapidly accelerating change, a 6 month reporting period is a foolish idea that will only hurt investors and the American economy.

Jazelyn Cerda — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jazelyn Cerda Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Jazelyn C administrative Assistant

We need to keep accountability. By making the time frame greater in between, you're just making it easier for corruption & fraud to roam free. Don't we have enough of that already?

Jean — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jean Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The American public requires the Reserve to maintain the current public reporting schedule. No reform is needed.

Jean Deschene

Jean Barnes — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jean Barnes Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Carolyn Barnes, project manager. Regular reports are vital for accurate decision making at my job, and home life. Accurate financial reports determine our purchases and successful projects .
Budgeting at work and home drive all purchasing and WHO to support.

Jeanette Mardinly — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeanette Mardinly Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Corporate reporting should give investors more clarity, more accountability, not less. 6 months is far too long between statement. Do NOT allow this change.

Sincerely,
Jeanette Mardinly

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Jeannette Cluck — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeannette Cluck Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I say NO!! We the people have every right to know this info. Our info is out there for everyone to see. We have th right to know theirs as well

Sent from my iPhone

Jeff Cooper — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Cooper Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I am middle age and have worked my entire adult life, starting in high school. Like most people, when young and foolish I didn't save enough, but parenthood, home-ownership, and a bit of minor success in my field have put me in a position to help support myself and my wife during our retirement which starts in just a decade.

Please do not sabotage this. We have raised a daughter, saved, and built a tiny nest egg.. Doing anything for the benefits of those in positions of economic and political power, to the detriment of the rest of us, is effectively pointless and cruel for its own sake. It's an 11th hour kick in the teeth to all of us who embraced the offerings of America, and worked our asses off to get there.

Please be the leaders you wish your children to be when they grow up, and do all you can to ensure the carrot of "American Dream" long lauded by leaders, remains shorter and more in reach than the stick of mediocrity and poverty.

Thank you,

Jeff Cooper
Syracuse, NY

Jeff McManus — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Jeff McManus Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The secondary market functions most effectively under the bright honest lights of transparency and quarterly reporting delivers. Delayed reporting hides corporate blunders from individual investors and informs insiders instead. Is the SEC protecting investors from corporate nonsense by delaying reporting ? Explain how less, and less timely information would benefit average investors, please. I defy you to assert a single scenario that is improved by delayed reporting. As the gap widens between the upper and middle class, and the ability to move forward is increasingly stymied by inflation, please do not empower the insiders any more than they already are. Please leave quarterly reporting as it is. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey S McManus
Wealth Management
Methuen, Massachusetts

Jeffrey Levering — Jun 7, 2026
Commissioners:
I strongly oppose this rule for the following reasons:
1. Owners of a company deserve regular, accurate, and unfiltered financial information from the companies in which they invest. Management has access to this information as part of operating the business; if it is important for management to know, it is equally important for investors to know.

2. Any cost savings from eliminating quarterly reporting requirements would be insignificant. Companies already collect financial information at least monthly, and management routinely has access to that information. The costs of gathering and maintaining these data are already reflected in company operations and financial reporting processes. Any potential savings are outweighed by the reduction in transparency that this rule would permit.
3. Eliminating quarterly reporting will reduce market liquidity and slow the flow of capital to investors and companies alike. Investors will be less willing to commit capital to more speculative investments—such as smaller companies, emerging technologies, and companies with limited operating histories—if updated financial information may not be available for as long as six months. Reduced transparency increases uncertainty, which in turn increases the cost of capital and discourages investment.
My perspective is informed by managing my own investments since the 1980s and by decades of involvement with the investment processes and technologies that support professional investment management. Timely, accurate financial information is essential to sound security valuation and informed investment decisions.
In summary, this proposal provides no meaningful benefit to investors, reduces transparency, meaningfully increases investment risk, and should be rejected summarily by the Commission.
JeNrey Levering
Worcester, Mass.

Jeffrey Turner — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeffrey Turner Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please don't eliminate the requirement for quarterly reporting.

Jen R — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jen R Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Why is semi-annual reporting better other than to hide information? For the sake of keeping the general public's trust, those people who ok the purchases of stocks, keep the quarterly reports.

And yes, I read mine. Yes, I have insisted on changes to my portfolio that made my institutional broker unhappy. And there are millions of others like me.

Jen R — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jen R Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Why is semi-annual reporting better other than to hide information? For the sake of keeping the general public's trust, those people who ok the purchases of stocks, keep the quarterly reports.

And yes, I read my quarterly reports . Yes, I have insisted on changes to my portfolio that made my institutional broker unhappy. And there are millions of others like me. Keep the quarterly reports.

Jennifer Hale — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jennifer Hale Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm Jennifer Lohmann Hale- a retired RN and retail investor and I rely on quarterly reports to make decisions about my retirement savings. I don't want to "fly blind" for six months while those with insider info quietly sell their shares before the bad news tanks the stock. Why give more time for potential fraud to grow? Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings shorten the window in which fraud can fester before someone outside the company can see it. The supposed savings from less frequent filings provide savings only to the company and its executives. All around, this proposed new reporting rule would be bad for individual investors. Please continue to require quarterly reporting to help keep markets fair, transparent, and honest.

Concerned citizen,

Jennifer Lohmann Hale

Jennifer LeComte — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jennifer LeComte Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

Keep stock holders informed.

Sent from my iPhone

Jennifer McConnell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Jennifer McConnell Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Jennifer M, I work in technology and am 15 yrs from retirement. I have dutifully followed advice to invest for my retirement, trust in the market. The rules proposed take us back to a time where there was less visibility and more risk. I can't afford to let corporations that I am trusting with my future less oversight. Quarterly reporting and its cadence is built into our market fabric. Don't tear a hole in it.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Jennifer Sumner — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jennifer Sumner Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is no good reason to change from quarterly reports.
Stop fleecing America and Americans!

Jennifer Sumner

Sent from my iPhone

Jeremy Lehrman — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Jeremy Lehrman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The "financial burden" imposed by quarterly reporting is vastly overstated, as so much of corporate reporting is now automated. Do NOT go back to semi-annual reporting. The last thing any investor wants is LESS transparency into the finances of publicly traded companies. Please stick with a system that has, by-and-large, worked for more than 50 years.

Jerry Kracher — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jerry Kracher Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Jerry Kracher, Retired federal agent. IRA invested in stocks and ETF's. This is a bad idea. Hides poor performance longer. Potential to hide fraud and allow it to grow for longer period of time. Savings to companies is miniscule

Sent from my iPad

Jesse Jones — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jesse Jones Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Jesse Jones, and I have contributed to 401K Plans both in retail and food service, hard work for well-earned miney. Put plainly, that is MY money contributed to my retirement investment and I deserve to know what is going on with it.

Jessica Yazbek — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Jessica Yazbek Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 American corporations have plenty of resources to be able to continue reporting at their current frequency, just 4 times per year. This is not a real burden.

The cost in transparency for investors (the american public) is far greater. This is even more important now than it was in the past, due to the proliferation of 401ks.

There is zero good reason to decrease transparency for investors, and will serve only to increase the likelihood of investors making uninformed purchases.

Do not reduce the reporting requirements!

Jill Huddleston — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jill Huddleston Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This is important for accountability to investors!!

This cannot be legal!

Thanks- Jh

Sent from my iPhone

Jill Taylor — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jill Taylor Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is crucial to maintaining viability and fiscal sustainability. Doing away with that is nothing short of piracy and allowing the theft of hardworking individuals' money.

Any typos or misspellings are courtesy of Siri.

Jilly B. — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jilly B. Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This rule change spells disaster for the stock market. No wonder the bond market is crumbling.

Jim Fieser — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jim Fieser Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 James Fieser, Retired Federal employee. Why on earth would anyone wants less information in this age of massive data acquisition, unless there is a concerted effort to deceive the stock holders. Don't try to fix something that's not broken. The market is already rife with shady deals, and this only makes it easier. Don't do it.

Sent from my Excellent iPad2🇺🇸

Jim Harty — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jim Harty Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 We have little insight into stocks we own. If we had any voting power, we would tell these companies to get out of Israel.

Sent from my iPhone

Jim Stone — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jim Stone Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Dear SEC,

At this point in American History, with faith in The Integrity of Institutions at an all-time low, we can't afford to encourage any increase in the Shadiness of business practices. We're already scraping the bottom.

James Stone,
Principal Mechanical Engineer, Voss Laboratories
Semi-Retired Investor
$3+ million

Principal Mechanical Engineer
Voss Laboratories
4740 East Second Street #33
Benicia, CA 94510

Jim Wooley — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jim Wooley Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My wife and I have been actively investing in the stock market throughout the last 52 years. We are "regular folks", not deep-pocket investors, who have done well in the market under the regulatory rules you propose to change.

We have relied through that half century on your oversight of companies. We appreciate and value the information that quarterly reporting by companies provides to our portfolio managers for the varied financial instruments that now comprise our retirement portfolio. We believe it is critical that this oversight continue.

We respectfully request that quarterly reports continue to be required for companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges. Thank you.

James & Amy Wooley, Retired Biologist and Teacher.

Jo Turpin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jo Turpin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am not emolyed on Wall Street and cannot keep up on the stock market on a daily basis, but I deserve to know what is going on and the quarterly reports help me to see how things are trending or moving and lets me make at least quarterly adjustments to my holdings if I need or want to. Why are you trying to make my life harder and less secure with this plan? I am about to retire and this information, in a timely manner, is important to my ability to retire with enough funds to keep me from being dependent on others or my undependable government. Don 't do this.

Joan Brimstein — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joan Brimstein Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Joan Brimstein Georgia residency
I firmly believe this is so wrong I am tired of sham manipulation
Definitely NO No

Sent from my iPhone

Joan Packard — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joan Packard Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep the reporting quarterly please. As an investor, I want to make sure that the companies I invest in are ethical and honest.

Joan Packard, retired

Joan Scroggins — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joan Scroggins Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Anything that allows them to create more ways to hide things from investors and any remaining watch dogs isn't good. Don't create obfuscation dressed as effiency.

Sent from my iPad

Joanne Bernard — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joanne Bernard Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We check our investments daily. Please keep them available 24/7!

Sent from my iPhone

Joanne Day — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joanne Day Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Miss J. Day retired scientist. I have been investing for 30 years. Quarterly reports have helped me keep track of those investments and helped me make my decisions on what stocks and funds that I buy and sell.

Joanne Maypole — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joanne Maypole Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 People need access to their investment information quarterly. This is an era of extraordinary corruption, let's not make corruption easier by increasing the time for reporting from three to six months. Maintain the current reporting structure.

Joanne Oros — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joanne Oros Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As an investor I resent the idea that companies can hide their information from investors for six months. In today's technological world information is readily available and financials move quickly. Investors need to be able to make changes if a company has made moves that the investor would disagree with.

Joanne Oros

Sent from my iPhone

Joanne Smallwood — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joanne Smallwood Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I do not believe that our country needs more cloaked corruption now. You will be wise to not follow the path that this leads to.

Joanne Smallwood

Joe A — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joe A Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 No Not a good new Rule!!!

Sent from my iPhone

Joe Tirado — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Joe Tirado Leave the reports quarterly changing them to semi-annually is a punishment toward the investors, without whom you have nothing!! this is not all about the corporations this is about the people that have their money in there, supporting the corporations!!! Just like Reaganomics, semi quarterly does not work, leave it as it is!!

Joe Varga — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joe Varga Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is unconstitutional and unpatriotic! You are trying to hide public knowledge for the purpose of FRAUD! Existing reporting should actually be MONTHLY but it definitely should NOT be semi-annual!!!

---------- - Joseph R. Varga
jrvarga@gmail.com
Mobile: 585-678-1031

John A. Stark — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John A. Stark Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dear SEC members,

I am a retired management veteran with experience working in several publicly traded technology companies. My wife is a retired medical doctor. Our retirement income is based in large part on the stock holdings in our IRA accounts.

In my opinion, based on career and investment experience, changing to semi-annual corporate reporting is not a good idea. The rise and fall of large companies now happens at the fastest pace ever. As an investor, I want the public information I am depending on to manage my investments to be as current as possible. This was also true when I was stock, options, and 401K holding employee.

While quarterly reports involve considerable resources to prepare, the ongoing improvements in financial management software have made the process increasingly efficient. It is highly likely that AI-assisted tools will expedite processes further. To me, moving to require less frequent reporting at this time seems counterintuitive.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
John A. Stark

John Albertini — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Albertini Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 You'd be flying blind for six months. A lot can go wrong in half a year. Failed product launches, ballooning debt, lawsuits, vanishing customers. Today the law forces companies to surface that information every quarter. Under the new rule, they can sit on it for six months at a stretch. Plenty of time for insiders to quietly sell their shares to you (or your ETF) before the bad news tanks the stock.

02
More time for fraud to grow.
Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year?

03
"Optional" is a trick.
The framing is voluntary, but the dynamics aren't. Once large companies start filing twice a year, smaller competitors face pressure to follow. They can't justify "more compliance than the bigger guy." Investor expectations adjust downward. What started as a choice quietly becomes the new normal. Almost no rule like this stays optional for long.

04
The supposed savings are tiny, and they don't go to you.
Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on you, the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad trade for ordinary investors.

John Filter — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Filter In these days of rapid change, even quarterly reports can be insufficient notice of change. Extending the report to six months is begging for trouble.

John Julian — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Julian Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This rule if passed removes checks and balances that helps protect investors. This proposed rule will foster violations and illegal acts . Vote no.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

John Peden — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Peden Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Please keep earnings reported on a quarterly basis.

John Peden
john.peden1869@gmail.com
256-394-6721

John Pope — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: john pope Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Of course project 2025 wants to clear the way for more insider trading. Duh! Trump loves corruption. He's the worst for it.

John Ventimiglia — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: John Ventimiglia Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I think quarterly posting is the best way to get true look at how well or not investments are doing. I'm retired and surviving off my investment earnings. Semiannually will do harm to valuations and the stock market in general. Keep reporting as it is.

Sent from my iPad

Jojo Vandiver — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jojo Vandiver Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I don't want this change. In fact, I think companies should have to report monthly. Corporations are actively buying our politicians and currying favor with the current administration. I want more transparency, not less accountability. When are entities like yours going to stand up against what you know is wrong? When are you going to respect the opinions of the people of this country? When are you going to stand up for the average citizens of these United States? Our children are starving. Our children don't have medical care. And the billion dollar companies don't need any more government deregulations or "favors.'

---

jon chapin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: jon chapin Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on you, the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad trade for ordinary investors like me - Jon Chapin, retired,

---

Joni Davis — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joni Davis Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Joni Davis, concerned citizen writing to encourage you to continue quarterly reporting for businesses. I see nothing good coming from this requirement ending.

Sent from my iPhone

Joseph Gagliardi — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joseph Gagliardi Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Connie Pizzuto. I am a senior, who worked all my life as a Registered Nurse with no pension. My only income is social security and my dividend of my stocks. I depend on my quarterly stock reports to manage my portfolio. Please keep the quarterly reports, don't change them to biannually. Thank you for your consideration.

Joseph Gilmartin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joseph Gilmartin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I want better information and timely information as I am an individual investor and responsible for my family's wealth. I worked in WallStreet for Goldman Sachs for 11 years so I have a background in the financial community. I want timely reliable information and realize that it was done this way in the past for a good reason and I do not want anything less! My name is Joseph Gilmartin and worked at Goldman Sachs from 1984-1985 on the commodity trading floor at 4 World Trade Center and then later at 85 Broad Street, clerical operations. Please don't change this procedure, it worked for years for a good reason.
Thank you for your consideration!

Joseph Monahan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joseph Monahan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 in a time when the market it under scrutiny for manipulation due to political events and is under pressure and speculation around AI and energy, relaxing company's public reporting requirements will reduce transparency further in the market and lead to more gross speculation trading. My retirement savings can't handle the current market volatility due to the current conditions and this proposal will make it tremendously worse.

Joseph Monahan
Civil Engineer
Mechanicsville, VA

Joshua E. Stone — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joshua E. Stone Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Actually they should report every month. This is exactly the kind of thing that makes people not businessmen in politics.

Joshua E. Stone Co-Owner
Liquid Light Pharm
PO Box 1804
Moriarty, NM 87035
(505)934-0628

Joyce Baskind — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joyce Baskind Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the statements quarterly. Important information can get lost in the process if you don’t account for the process on a regular basis. Frankly, monthly statements would be better.

Joyce Baskind

JR Chandler — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: JR Chandler Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dear SEC
Not a good idea. The investors will lose money head over heels. This is the worst experiment since orangbird (Trump) Respectfully, J.R. Chandler, Make Your Day a great day.

Judith MacLean — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judith MacLean Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Stop this grab for secrecy.

Sent from my iPhone
Judi MacLean

Judith Mikolai — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judith Mikolai Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep public reporting at every 3 months. 1 and others rely upon it for my financial planning. Oh my gosh, so much can happen in one month or two, especially in this current political climate, let alone waiting for three months! Six months would be way too long to get results each quarters results help determine decision decisions for the next quarter. The financial reports are like a weather report: even though you receive a prediction with the weather forecast, you don't know exactly what happened in the larger region with the weather until you hear the weather report. Again using a weather analogy, if there's some disaster like a forest fire or a tornado predicted, you don't want to wait for six months to hear the results. You want to hear if the disaster struck, how many are affected, what infrastructure is affected, what things look like moving forward.It's really important that the reporting be closer to real time. Private companies are held much more accountable by reporting the results to the public private companies. Don't always have the public best interest in mind, but they are held accountable by these quarterly reports. Keep them accountable. Keep us informed. Keep the reporting. For private companies at three months. Don't extend it to six.

Sent from my iPhone

Judy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judy Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is essential. It is imperative in order to hold companies accountable! I urge you to vote accordingly.

Sent from my iPhone

Judy Seltzer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judy Seltzer Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Judy Seltzer, retired RN. WE WANT AN EXPLANATION. Why do want to hide them? What will you benefit? Inside trading? So we don't know what is happens to our money when they are hidden. You needed to be accountable, and honest.

Judy Andersen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judy Andersen Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Transparency matters. Keep reporting quarterly.

Judy Andersen, retired

Judy Bean — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judy Bean Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Again and again, big business hides its actions in ways that hurt ordinary Americans and their families. Do not let corporate chicanery continue to undermine Americans' livelihoods.

Sent from my iPhone

Judy Becker — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judy Becker Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This change would be very bad for seniors who are dependent on investment accounts reliant on transparency in the market. I am very much against it.

Sincerely

Judith Becker

Sent from my iPad

Judy Nelson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judy Nelson Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 So you wanna just steal it, but steal it quietly?? well I want my country back. I want real capitalization not this boys club.

Sent from my iPhone

Judy Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judy Smith Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 There is absolutely no reason to stop publishing quarterly reports. Investors have the right to follow their investments! Do not change the reporting dates!

Sent from my iPhone

Judy Tallant — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judy Tallant Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Any time you cut transparency and reporting, you're not serving your customer. The finance world is volatile right now. Don't make it harder for investors to make decisions.

Judy Tallant, Tallant House
Please forgive typos and brevity
Sent from my iPhone

Julie D. Coe — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Julie D. Coe Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Julie D. Coe, Instructional Designer, Anytime the exec's have the ability to hide key information on finance it is an open door to selective release of important functional or financial information being hidden to enhance their pocketbooks and/or create another disruption to the bottom line that gives them a boost but not the general workforce.

Sent from my iPhone

Julie Hoffman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: hoffmanjules25 Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the SEC reports quarterly! We deserve/demand transparency into our government. As a retired couple, we want the reports quarterly so financial decisions are made with the most recent data.

Thank you, Julie Hoffman, retired RN

Sent from my Galaxy

Julie Kamyszek — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Julie Kamyszek Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Absolutely you need to keep the reporting quarterly. The investors have a right to have frequent and readily available reporting. And the public at large has a right to keep abreast of what is hapening in the economy. Discontinue the corporate secret-keeping and let the public see what is happening in ALL US companies.

Julie Kamyszek, Michigan resident, holder of retirement investments

[REDACTED]

Julie Tessler — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Julie Tessler Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The comparison between the markets of countries that require quarterly reporting and those that only report semi-annually seems very clear. It is very clear that quarterly reporting has massive benefits and there is no reason to change a system that is working.

Sent from my iPhone

June Cridland — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: June Cridland Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Intentional deception is unacceptable!

Signed,
Brooke Babineau
Sec. Treasurer
Cre8tve1Corporation

Sent from my Pad

June Picard — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: June Picard Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 just another "legal" way for the Republicans to support and benefit from corrupt practices

---

Justin Henry — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Justin Henry Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Now why would we want less transparency and an opening to more corruption? Oh yeah let's take a look at this current administration.

Justin Henry Designer

908-319-9212 justin.henry17@gmail.com www.justinhenrydesign.com Voluntown, CT

Kara Amundson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kara Amundson Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Elon Musk benefits. Jeff Bezos benefits. Billionaires aiming at trillionaire pissing contest rights off our two-thousand-dollar backs benefit. What next? Requirements? SEC, it's sickeningly obvious that you, too,will benefit. But we're coming for you. Not with pitchforks. Not with blood watering the Roots of the Tree of Liberty. We're coming with inevitability. You're making this, we're doing the only only thing poor people CAN do: we're living on. We're surviving no money. We're leaving you stranded with your dollar signs. What else can we do? You take it. We shrug and make it anyway. Any way we can. We do what we do. WE LIVE. IN THE MILLIONS. W E A R E T H E P E O P L E. You can't extinguish us and still rape and pillage us.

---

karen florian — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: karen florian Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 All Americans have a right to financial information that affects their daily lives. This is a typical move by the current administration to try to muddy the waters concerning their inept and corrupt policies which have, as in every Republican administration, tanked the economy.

Karen Isaacson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Karen Isaacson The existing state of quarterly reporting should be maintained; not only is it a way for the SEC to see that companies are in compliance, but it helps regulated businesses stay on track. It's easier for a company to plan on quarterly reporting; it's reminiscent of seasonal change, occurs at a regular interval, and it's a smaller amount of data to process. It's also a smaller amount of data for the SEC to process, making it easier to get through submitted paperwork in a timely fashion. Increasing the interval between reports means submitted reports will take more time to process, meaning there's the possibility that the agency will get backlogged. The current scheme should stay in place.

Karen Meredith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karen Meredith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is irresponsible to not have quarterly reports.
No reason to change the rules.

Sent from my iPhone.
With help from Siri typos are her fault.

Karen Pedowitz — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karen Pedowitz Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Karen Pedowitz.
I'm a manager for a top firm
I want clean air water for my business,my life and my family

Thanks
Karen Pedowitz

Karin Michaels — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: KARIN Michaels Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 this is not a good idea, most shady things happens in the dark and that is exactly what this is, it allows shady happenings without oversight

---

Karl T. Muth, Lecturer in Law, Pritzker School of Law, Northwestern University — Jun 7, 2026
Vanessa A. Countryman, Secretary (& Commissioners Several)
Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street NE
Washington, DC 20549-1090
Re: File No. S7-2026-15 (Proposed Form 10-S / Semiannual Reporting)
Dear Secretary Countryman and Members of the Commission:
I am writing to express my strong opposition to Proposal S7-2026-15, which would permit public companies to transition from quarterly to semiannual financial reporting.
I come to this issue as a legal scholar and researcher deeply invested in market fairness.
I was profoundly honored when the Commission cited my law review article, With Avarice Aforethought, in the final rulemaking on Insider Trading Arrangements and Related Disclosures (Release No. 33-11138). In that release, by establishing mandatory cooling-off periods and stricter disclosure requirements for 10b5-1 plans, the SEC took a decisive, historic step to curb information asymmetry and protect retail investors.
However, Proposal S7-2026-15 threatens to undo the very market integrity the Commission just worked so hard to establish. If the abuse of 10b5-1 plans was the last frontier of insider trading, semiannual reporting is the next.
Permitting companies to “go dark” for six months at a time is fundamentally incompatible with the principles of fairness and transparency that have defined the post-Dodd-Frank SEC.
Before I begin, let me make very clear I am not a (Sen.) Warrenesque fan of overregulation or burdensome extraneous reporting. I opposed the way Section 953(b) of Dodd-Frank was implemented (SEC Commissioner Aguilar cites my opposition in his August 5, 2015 statement on the matter) and the SEC has cited my weighing of reporting and taxonomical burdens in the past (see, e.g., Release No. 34-101446 citing Muth five times; Release Nos. 33-10649; 34-86129 citing Muth’s positions in concept release related to whether accredited investor definition creates unintended burdens and trade-offs).
But the engine of our free markets spins freely only when lubricated with information, and this proposal limits the engine’s oil pump to squirting twice a year.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal for the following reasons:
1. It Expands the Window for Problematic Insider Trading

The Commission rightfully instituted cooling-off periods for 10b5-1 plans to prevent executives from trading on near-term, unreleased financial data (or, as I have pointed out in past comments noticed by the Commission, timing news to maximize the value of pre-planned trades). But if the gap between public reports stretches from three months to six months, the practical definition of "near-term" potentially changes drastically.

Six months in the modern economy is an eternity. It is enough time for product lines to fail, supply chains to collapse, or major clients to vanish. Under a semiannual reporting regime, executives, board members, and their legal counsel will maintain real-time visibility into these crises while the investing public flies blind. This creates a massive, six-month runway for insiders to quietly reallocate assets, leverage sophisticated hedging strategies, or initiate structured sales well before the bad news hits the retail market.

2. The Illusion of "Voluntary" Adoption

While the proposal frames the shift to Form 10-S as optional, market dynamics ensure it will not stay voluntary for long. If major corporations adopt semiannual reporting to shield themselves from short-term volatility, smaller and mid-cap competitors will face immense pressure to follow suit simply to avoid bearing the comparative cost of transparency.

What begins as an option will inevitably trigger a race to the bottom, or at least a race to the six-month mark, resetting baseline investor expectations and permanently degrading the interim quality of public market data by halving its frequency and making it more difficult to compare firms with asynchronous reporting cadences.

Worst of all, this occurs during a period where insider trading from Congress to the prediction markets is front-page news and a time when the public is understandably skeptical of the fairness of markets and the scruples of market participants. Policy must be made to directionally salve rather than harm confidence in markets; this measure fails that test.

3. Extending the Gestation Period for Corporate Fraud

Transparency does not prevent fraud, but frequency isolates it.

From Enron and WorldCom to the systemic opacity leading up to the 2008 financial crisis, catastrophic market events are consistently enabled by prolonged periods of hidden data. Quarterly filings act as a critical tripwire, dramatically shortening the window in which accounting irregularities can fester. Doubling the time between required disclosures doubles the time bad actors have to manipulate the books before facing external scrutiny.

Already, the gravity of the K relative to the Q (and the former's audit requirement) allows firms to make interim corrections and tune financial reporting within reason relatively painlessly (including significant revisions). The recent revision of U.S. Global Investors (NASDAQ: GROW) quarterly numbers (due to an innocent spreadsheet error) is an example of the ease with which simple 10-Q/A revisions can be made.

"Sunshine is the best disinfectant" and its inverse are generally true in financial reporting. The proposed measure is the equivalent of a thumbs-up to a car cruising around with dark window tint in a bad neighborhood. Such cars are scrutinized by police for good reason.

4. An Asymmetrical Shift in Costs

The cost savings touted by this proposal, modest reductions in accounting and legal compliance fees, are meager and, to the extent they exist at all, accrue entirely to the corporation and its executives. Meanwhile, the cost of worse information, widened bid-ask spreads, and unexpected stock shocks falls entirely on investors, pension funds, and 401(k) holders.

This is a fundamentally regressive trade-off and harmful to the majority of investors (who operate on public information in arms-length transactions) while benefiting the tiny cadre of insiders and insider-adjacent individuals able to exploit their knowledge to create windfalls. The cost of that activity, too, is borne by mainstream market participants.

Conclusion

The SEC has shown immense courage and clarity recently in tightening the rules around how insiders trade on private information. Adopting S7-2026-15 would be a massive step backward, granting insiders a six-month shadow in which to operate without public accountability.

I urge the Commission to protect the retail investor, preserve the 10-Q, and abandon this proposal entirely. Thank you for your time, your service, and your continued commitment to fair markets; the world's investors depend upon your counsel and courage to protect public markets.
Sincerely,
Karl T. Muth, J.D., M.B.A., M.Phil., Ph.D.
Lecturer, Northwestern University Pritzker School of Law Lecturer by Separate Appointment, Northwestern University

Karolyn Schalk — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karolyn Schalk Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Karolyn Schalk, I'm a retired IT executive who contributed to 401k, Roth, and traditional IRA during my career, and manages my own retirement accounts today. Quarterly reports are a significant help to individual investors. Reducing reporting to every 6 months is unfair to me, other retirees, and every working person who is investing for their retirement. If reporting schedule is reduced it will reduce trust in the public markets.

Karolyn Schalk

Sent from my iPhone

Kary Goolsby — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kary Goolsby Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Rich getting richer approach - government over site at its finest

Sent from my iPhone

Karyn Cortez — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karyn Cortez Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 The vast majority of my retirement savings is in the stock market. Companies' quarterly reports make it vastly easier for me to understand the health and trajectory of those companies. Doing away with quarterly reporting will negatively affect me immensely.

Karyn Cortez

Katherine Elswick — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Katherine Elswick Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Transparency. Keep it clean. This nation is sick of rules that change to make corruption easier.

Kathleen Prater — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kathleen Prater Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Reporting should be MONTHLY so we know what's happening. Stop protecting the billionaires!

Katie Prater
Florida

Kathy Fiske — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kathy Fiske Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Do your job! Quarterly, as you should do.

Kathy Hay — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kathy Hay Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the quarterly reporting. Allowing companies to hide their financials in a blackout window only helps the companies and makes the investors bare all the risk. This will lead to destabilization of trading.

M. K. Hay

Kathy Mcdaniel — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: kathy mcdaniel Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I have been actively involved in the stock market throughout the last 40 years. I definitely appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges. A 6 month blackout is a bad idea. Economy's move too quickly in a world that grows more turbulent every day. We need accountability and accuracy to make better decisions.
Thank you.

Get Outlook for Android

Kathy Memoli — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kathy Memoli Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Our investments require transparency and accountability.

Kathy Nichols — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kathy Nichols Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Kathy Nichols, Accountant
Reporting is how the masses, without insider information, learn what is going on in an entity. We need more reporting, not less. A quarter is a long time to go without an update, doubling that will make it impossible for citizen investors to make informed decisions. Please don’t reduce the reporting requirements.

Sent from my iPad

Katie Collins — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: KATIE COLLINS Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Katie Collins, a resident in Ohio, and retired Michigan teacher. I hold multiple financial investment accounts from which I receive quarterly statements. I feel the frequency of these statements is important to keep me informed, as to how my investments are doing. Based on this information, I am able to move my funds around, as needed to make the most of my investments. As a retiree, this is important. My investments are an income source that I, like many, depend upon to supplement my income, as Social Security alone is not sufficient for meeting my income needs. I worked hard to prepare for a future that was financially secure for my aging years.

Please DO NOT reduce these reports to semiannual. Consumers like me have a right to see how financial institutions are using our funds, so that we can continue to make informed decisions about our investments.

Sincerely,
Katie Collins

Sent from my iPad

Katie Stansell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Katie Stansell Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Katie Stansell and I'm a Travel Advisor. This feels like just one more way for insiders to build wealth at the expense of ordinary investors. Making it optional only allows bad actors to be less transparent about the financial health of their companies.

Get Outlook for Android

Katya Higginbotham — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Katya Higginbotham Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Stop hiding the illegal crud being done in the name of big banks and multi trillion, multi-billion investors and big corporations!

Kay Flanery — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kay Flanery Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep them honest!

Sent from my iPad

Kay Flanery — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kay Flanery Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep them honest! Keep the current rules.

Sent from my iPad

Kay Germiat — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kay Germiat Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am invested in the stock market, and the thought that I will have NO IDEA what is going on with corporations for six months at a time, while insiders take advantage of their huge window of opportunity to deprive me and others like me, is extremely depressing. In fact, why aren't corporations required to provide monthly reports? Don't make a bad situation worse by allowing corporations and insiders to keep the rest of us in the dark!

Kay Germiat

Keith Griffith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Keith Griffith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is unfair to the average citizen and a literal gold mine for untrustworthy corporations. While I have no confidence that any consideration will be given to the people who will lose the most from this ruling, I feel fairly certain that the people who will gain the most AT THE EXPENSE OF THE CONSUMER will be heard and accommodated. My scepticism of the SEC doing the right thing for the people is real, but I feel obligated to at a minimum say what so many are thinking.
Do the right thing for the country, NOT the corporations.

Kelley Snider — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelley Snider Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Please don't stop quarterly reports for the benefit of billionaires and inside traders at the expense of the citizens who are paying your salaries.
Attorney

Kelley Snider
Attorney at Law

Kelli Conlow — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelli Conlow Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Kelli Conlow: Rather than support and enable further crimes against the citizens of this country, keep all of us on equal footing with unified quarterly reporting. Pretend that we all have equal rights again.

Kelly Uribe — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelly Uribe Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I'm just an average person who believes oversight is necessary to keep criminals and corporations (I know that's redundant) in check. If you allow a cut to systems meant to do this, you're just as criminal as they are.

Kelly D — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelly D Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 How can you be so blatantly corrupt? Seriously, what part of what you are doing will make anything better for our country, except for the Oligarchs? How have you NOT managed to comprehend than YOU excel when ALL of us do, not when you choke out the bottom 90% of humanity for your greed...that humanity that you depend on for your wealth, for your services? Find some morals and ethics, for crying out loud. You don't live in this country, on this planet, alone. Your actions make it easier for corruption, for manipulation, for dishonesty. If you continue with your narcissism and greed, your exploitation, you are contributing to the ruination of our society, and our country, and I hope it comes home to Karma-slap you all in the worst, most personal ways.

Kelly Haskell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelly Haskell Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I deserve quarterly reporting information to monitor my investments. As a retired teacher, stewarding my investments means less dependence on social services in the future. Kelly Haskell

Get Outlook for Android

Kelly Maenle — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelly Maenle Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 DO NOT allow companies to end quarterly reporting. This is how investors make decisions regarding their stock portfolios, and we have a right to know what is going on internally at the companies we invest in. I realize the Trump administration think they know what is best for us, but they have systematically dismantled this country since January 2025. This is just another action toward that end. As a retiree I do not need to lose everything I have invested to provide for my life. -Kelly M (Michigan)

Kenji Thompson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Kenji Thompson Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As an individual investor, this concerns me deeply. Quarterly earnings reports are not just paperwork—they are one of the few tools everyday investors have to evaluate whether a company is healthy, growing, or heading in the wrong direction. Transparency creates accountability.
If companies only report twice a year, investors could go six months without knowing about declining revenue, rising debt, layoffs, failed projects, or other material risks. That information gap benefits insiders and large institutions far more than ordinary shareholders trying to protect their retirement accounts, college funds, and life savings.
History has already shown us what happens when transparency is reduced: lower valuations, less market confidence, and poorer outcomes for investors. Trust is built through timely disclosure, not less disclosure.
The cost of quarterly reporting is small compared to the cost of investors making decisions in the dark. Markets function best when information is available, accurate, and timely.
Truth and transparency are not burdens—they are the foundation of fair markets. If we want to protect individual investors and maintain confidence in our financial system, we should be demanding more transparency, not less. The greater good depends on it.

Concerned American Investors

Kennedy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kennedy Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please keep companies reporting every three months.
These companies need to stay transparent.
I lost $300,000 in Enron stock.

Sent from Gmail Mobile

Kenneth Fink — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kenneth Fink Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Ken Fink, retired radio engineer. Keep quarterly financial reporting. I need to keep the ability to monitor my retirement savings.

Kenneth Lind — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kenneth Lind Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Kenneth Lind owner of a business in California. Do not change the reporting time this will only harm the economy

Sent from my iPhone

Kevin Allen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kevin Allen Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please consider that it's already an unbalanced playing field, there's literally no reason companies can't post in real time, other than they don't want to. The burden of creating these reports is mitigated with templates, anutomation, and AI. I know, I've helped craft this process. So the minimal burden to these companies absolutely does not outweigh the potential harm for investors. If you do this, you risk alienating non billionaire investors. We can't survive one more bs company's lies. Dont make it easier.

Kevin B Hudson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kevin B Hudson Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Democracy dies in the dark. You and other government agencies have NO RIGHT to keep any secrets from the people. We are getting a bit tired of it.

Respectfully,
Ms. Kevin Hudson

Kevin Mcnamara — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: kevin mcnamara Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on you, the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad trade for ordinary investors like myself.

Kevin Murphy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kevin Murphy Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This would encourage insider trading & hurt any investor's trust in Wall Street & the FTC.

Kevin Schwab — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kevin Schwab Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Kevin Schwab, retired since 2022. We have proven time and again that loosening regulations for the convenience of corporations invites fraud. There is no benefit for investors other than delaying the release of bad news that would make a person of normal intelligence want to do away with quarterly reporting.

Sent from my iPad

Kevin Till — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kevin Till Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is ridiculous, the stock market is already as opaque as can be for the everyday investor. It seems rigged for the big boys. This is just another example of more of that.

Kim — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kim Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Six months is too long for investors to wait to determine if an investment is going to be beneficial. We all know that in today’s high tech market, companies are able to see within a very short period of time that a business strategy is failing or successful. The investors, who allow the company to exist with their own money, deserve to know if it is being spent in a non profitable manner.

Sent from my iPhone

Kim Defranco — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: kim defranco Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 You should say no to this cuz it only benefits the mighty rich people. And then they can hide even more Monies While most Americans struggle. And don't forget all the jobs that will be lost because of this less reporting deal. Think about the workers

~ Kim DeFranco

Kim Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kim Smith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is NO GOOD reason to change this rule. We have enough grifting, stealing and lying already taking place in this country. PLEASE DO NOT make it any easier to cheat.

We deserve transparency.

Kim Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kim Smith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is NO GOOD reason to change this rule. We have enough grifting, stealing and lying already taking place in this country.

PLEASE DO NOT make it any easier to cheat.

We need more transparency not less.

Respectfully,
Kimberly Smith
Retiree
Michigan State University
Accountant I

Kimberly Boone — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Kimberly Boone Affiliation: Jun. 11, 2026 Hey I don’t agree with Form 10-S… these longer gaps between disclosure create an unfair advantage for corporate insiders. Please keep in mind there are millions of us that count on 401ks and our IRAs to live on. Our survival in our senior years depend on being able to make more informed decisions about our investments now. We need more transparency not less.

As a small business owner of my own architectural practice I Thank you for your attention and reading my concerns.

Kimberly Boone
Principal +Creative Director

Kimberly Boone Associates

Kimberly Roberts — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kimberly Roberts Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Don't you dare get rid of OUR quarterly reports.. it's OUR MONEY not yours. WE THE PEOPLE want to know where OUR money is going! [REDACTED], WAKE UP!

Kris Mesicek — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kris Mesicek Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I am a 72 year old retiree who has managed my own stock portfolio for all of my adult life. I know how to read a prospectus. I listen to quarterly investor calls. I read balance sheets.
Our economy is changing more rapidly in this era of a global economy which is why quarterly reports are vital for individual investors like me and our economy as a whole.
Maintain the requirement for quarterly reports for all publicly traded companies.
Thank you for your attention to this matter.
Kristine Anderson

Kristen Berner — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kristen Berner Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Kris, I am a health care professional and I value quarterly reports on my accounts to have a current understanding of how they are performing. Please do not reduce to 6 months reporting.

Sent from my iPhone

Kristen Mytinger — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kristen Mytinger Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 No

---

Kyle Coughenour — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kyle Coughenour Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 More time for fraud to grow. Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year? How are we supposed to keep the stock market companies honest if we don't have the annual quarterly reviews to do it ?
Sincerely,
Kyle Coughenour

L Kennedy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 L Kennedy global procurement manager.

Quarterly reporting isn’t bureaucracy, it’s transparency. Reducing disclosures to every six months gives insiders and large institutions more time operating with information advantages while retail investors are left in the dark. Less frequent reporting means less accountability, less transparency, and greater uncertainty in the market. If the goal is fair and efficient markets, investors need more timely information, not less.

L Sharp — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: L Sharp Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Lorin Peritz-Sharp, Administrative Assistant. Keep the 3 month reporting requirement! I have a right to keep tabs on my 401k.

Lorin Peritz-Sharp
Palo Alto, CA

L. C. — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: L. C. Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Stop the as it only benefits fraud, abuse and keeps investing blind to what is happening to their money!

Lance Collier — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lance Collier Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 If this policy that allows 6 months of hidden insider trading is instantiated, companies should lose all of their outside investors.

Lance Collier
Retired Aerospace Circuit Board Designer

LaQuita Wierima — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: LaQuita Wierima Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 If companies are keeping their books legitimately and correct there is no reason to hide them. I am sure the fees charged won't matter a all! DO THE RIGHT THING

Larry Lindenbaum — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Larry Lindenbaum Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly is the MINIMUM we, as investors, should expect to get earnings reports from businesses we choose to invest in.

It’s absurd to believe that I (or any other common investor) would continue investing in ANY corporation if it came with the stipulation that we cannot get any real information of what their finances look like except for twice a year. In that extra time, RADICAL changes can and do occur causing the investors to potentially lose a great deal of money, while the company, well knowing that its risk has increased can just continue to take advantage of the investment we've made in its future without any responsibility.

This is absolutely unacceptable. We need to help the individuals that keep our country running and advancing, not the corporations who only care about their own profits.

Please do NOT support this proposed change.

L Lindenbaum
Associate Professor of Anesthesiology and Critical Care Medicine

---

Laura Peck — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Laura Peck Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am a retired veteran. I depend on my investments for my retirement and need information to plan and carry out my program of investment. Lowering the reporting period from quarterly to biannually will mean that I am not reacting as quickly to market volatility and change. I could lose significant amounts of money, which will directly impact my standard of living, my medical care and long-term well-being. Please continue the quarterly reporting system. Dr. Laura C. Peck, USNR, Retired.

Laurel Long — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Laurel Long Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Monthly would be better than quarterly.

Lauren Hawkins — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lauren Hawkins Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I find the quarterly reports valuable. Please keep them.

Leah Brashear — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Leah Brashear Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Dear Mmes & Sirs:
Quarterly reports have been the standard in SEC filings since I began in legal 40+ yrs. ago and this schedule should continue as we need eyes on corporate America now more than ever.

Leah Brashear

Get Outlook for Android

Lecia May — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lecia May Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My nane is Lecia May I am a medical coder.

Regarding changing quarterly reporting to going 6 months between .
What are you hiding? Keep transparency going. Don't we pay you for that?

Thanks for hearing me
Lm

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Lee Ann — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lee Ann Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am one of millions of retirees with what little I have in savings invested in the stock markets. Careful consideration of quarterly reports and analysis has allowed me to better myself and my financial position. Removing the requirements for quarterly reporting will damage me and millions of others, and I ask: to who's benefit??? Please keep the rails on reporting. (Child of depression era parents, weathered the housing market crash of 2008 through prudence). Don't take me down.

Lesli Hogan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lesli Hogan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) utilizes a standard 30- to 60-day notice-and-comment process to evaluate its rules. While the SEC occasionally explores altering these timeframes for specific rulemakings, advocates, industry panels, and lawmakers consistently push back against proposals that cut or shorten this period for several key reasons:

Inadequate Time for Deep Analysis: Complex financial regulations require significant time for institutional investors, analysts, and public interest groups to model economic impacts, compliance burdens, and risks. Shortened periods hamstring the SEC from gathering the expert feedback needed to craft surgical, effective proposals.
Disenfranchisement of Retail Investors: Shorter comment windows disproportionately harm individual and retail investors who lack dedicated legal and regulatory teams. They require additional time to review proposals and draft their perspectives.
Skewed Holiday Timelines: Comment periods that are hastily scheduled or overlap with major holiday seasons (such as Thanksgiving or Christmas) make it difficult for working professionals, nonprofits, and smaller entities to participate meaningfully.
Increased Risk of Unintended Consequences: Rushed rulemaking—whether it involves rescinding disclosures or changing reporting frequencies—can lead to poor oversight, "information asymmetry," and increased susceptibility to corporate fraud.
Loss of Diverse Perspectives: When comment periods are cut, rulemaking often becomes dominated by heavily resourced corporate lobbyists, which can erode trust in the perceived fairness of the regulatory process. Sources, Wall Street Journal, Cato Institute

Lesli Hogan

Liam Artuso — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Liam Artuso Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is blatantly in favor of major corporations and against the interest of small time investors. I’m a butcher in small town in New Jersey and most of my financial future is tied up in a market you are looking to further deregulate in favor of the ultra wealthy. As a government organization how many taxpayers does this change actually benefit? Oh right … none … billionaires don't pay taxes.

-Liam

Lily Gaskin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lily Gaskin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Lily Gaskin, retired teacher, a lot can happen in 6 months! Why fix something that works unless you are trying to hide something! Our federal government doesn't care about the people of the United States! They will never be happy until they get money from the taxpayers!! Something that is happening now is a big problem and no one wants republicans to fix it for them and not all Americans citizens!

Linda DeGothseir — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda DeGothseir Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Linda DeGothseir RN.

I am writing to voice my concern that you want to decease quarterly reports to twice a year. This is not a honest practice for the SEC to hide companies outcomes from the public.

Withholding this information prevents account owners from accurate information. It's the owners money, not the corporation. Hiding this information from public does not allow those who want to manage and check their investments for re-evaluation make informed decision. This change can only lead to increase risk of mishandling by corporations behind closed doors.

Linda DeGothseir

Sent from my iPhone

Linda Avakian — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Avakian Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is important that I know what the companies I have invested in are doing!

Sent from my iPhone

Linda Baker — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Baker Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Are you serious??!! How many times are you barely concealed criminals going to be allowed to crash our economy? Most of us not one percenters think you should have more supervision—not less!!! Dear SEC, you are our safety net so these barely legal Wall Street types don't drag us into even more financial difficulties. Please do your jobs. Don't forget! You work for us and not those at the top of the financial heap. Thank you for this opportunity to express our thoughts.
Linda Baker
Venice, Florida

Sent from my iPhone

Linda Fulton — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Fulton Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Linda , retired this is a disgrace to allow them to do this

---

Linda Gilbert — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Gilbert Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Absolutely not! You need to report these findings just as you are today! What are you trying to hide by changing these reporting! I have a hard time believing anything that comes out of this administration, so don't give me more to distrust!
Linda Gilbert
Investor
I want to see how my money is performing, and certainly don't want to only see this twice a year! Do your job!

Sent from my iPad

Linda Hoza — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Hoza Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Why would you mess with a proven formula? Who is pushing this? It doesn't benefit investors, but it sure does big fat corporations.

I am sick of the corruption. If it ain't broken, don't fix it. Keep my investments protected with quarterly reports, not a sleazy plan to benefit the billionaires.

Linda Hoza retired

Linda

Linda Kilmer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Kilmer Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Stop inventing new ways to hide financial improprities.

Sent via the Samsung Galaxy S21+ 5G, an AT&T 5G smartphone
Get Outlook for Android

Linda Marler — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Marler Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Linda T. Marler, retired teacher and investor, and Martin J. Marler, retired farmer and investor request that quarterly reports be required of companies that are publicly traded. This reporting provides information that we need in order to make informed decisions about our investment portfolio.

Sent from my iPhone

Linda Nickerson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Nickerson Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Linda Nickerson. Retired RN. Please keep your reporting quarterly. Many of us are dependent on the invested savings of our lifetime and need to see what's happening with our money. It's all we have and need to invest it wisely.

Sent from my iPhone

Linda Peterson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Peterson Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Why/how the SEC ever thought this was a good idea is beyond me. I want & need my quarterly reports.

Can anyone explain the reasoning behind this 6-month reporting idea? Where did it begin?

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Linda Peterson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Peterson Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Why/how the SEC ever thought this was a good idea is beyond me. I want & need my quarterly reports.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Linda Stirling — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Stirling Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Do not change. It is needed so that you are transparent and we know what is going on!

Sent from my iPhone

Linda Vilmain — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Vilmain Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is the best way for all of us to know how our investments are performing!

Linda Weiss — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Weiss Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a financial advisor, stock holder and someone married to a CPA, we need to know and I imagine, though time consuming and expensive, so do corporations.

Linda C Weiss

Lisa Antell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lisa Antell Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I must continue to see quarterly reports to be updated on the holdings in my retirement investment account. We must all carefully follow how our stocks and bonds are reacting in this volatile environment.

Thank you,
Lisa Antell

Lisa Blount — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: ljtex2 Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges. We citizens should not be kept in the dark for 6 months regarding our investments.
Lisa Blount

Lisa Rufo — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lisa Rufo you use my money to invest and you think it is ok not to report to me for 6 months on how it is doing and to give time for insider trading and corrupt practices to take place ? Are you nuts or just looking for a way to screw us over and make money ! Absolutely not! I will take my money out and put it under my mattress before i let the likes of you do this to us!

Lisa Ryan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lisa Ryan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Do not stop quarterly reports. That is so important for investors to make decisions.

Thank You,
Lisa Macek

Lisa Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lisa Smith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I’ve been told my whole life to trust in investing to secure my future, my retirement. This new measure just makes it easier for my hard earned dollars to be stolen by corrupt companies. I know you know this and THAT is why this is even a question all of the sudden. Stop this nonsense and get on with business as usual! Just because the government is corrupt doesn’t mean you need to follow suit

Sent from my iPhone

Logan West — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Logan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Logan West, I work in the offshore oil industry.

Its already laughable how little power retail investment holds, this only makes more opportunity for major corporations to siphon money from bottom to top while their friend sget rich off the deals only they will know about.

I know hundreds of guys who are relying on their 401k's and investments to be able to survive after retirement.

This used to be a country where everyone wom. Stop making it worse.

Lois Fair — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lois Fair Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Don’t hide fraud from the people

Sent from my iPad

Lori Cameron — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Lori Cameron Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please do not further disadvantage the middle class by stopping quarterly reporting. The only people who benefit from stopping it are insiders and the oligarchs. Or is this your intent?!?

Sent from my iPhone

Lori Hannah — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lori Hannah Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need and deserve information about the companies we invest in.

Get Outlook for iOS

Lorie Lund — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lorie Lund Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Lorie Lund, Mortgage Loan Officer & Compliance. Do not delay proper documentation to hide corruption.

Lorie Lund

Lorrie Rainville — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lorrie Rainville Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Hi my name is Lorrie Rainville. I am a retired 401k holder, and do not want to foster insider trading and a dark period of reporting... Please keep honest reporting for the people as is. The gig is up we the people have had enough of the corruption.

Louis Walker — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Louis Walker Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am an attorney with a degree in Econ. If you do this you and I both know that it is a license to steal. Do what is right. Keep quarterly account statements. Hell, with modern bookkeeping systems, you should be requiring monthly reports.

Louis Walker

Louis Walker — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Louis Walker Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am an attorney with a degree in Econ. If you do this you and I both know that it is a license to steal. Do what is right. Keep quarterly account statements. Hell, with modern bookkeeping systems, you should be requiring monthly reports.

Louis Walker

Virus-free.www.avg.com

Louise M. Dorsey — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Louise M. Dorsey Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a former accountant at the SEC, I am greatly disappointed that the SEC proposes to cut quarterly financial reporting to bi-annual. All investors need current quarterly financial information reviewed by an independent PCAOB registered accounting firm. Please withdraw this proposal.

Thank you,

Louise M. Dorsey

Lucy Oliver — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lucy Oliver Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Door wide open for mischief

Progressive Urban Real Estate

4001 Detroit Avenue
Cleveland Ohio, 44113 www.progressiveurban.com

M Santiago — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: M Santiago Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 If you don't protect us from Big Business and private entities, who will?

M Spence — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: M Spence Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Transparency in regulatory is essential. Recent administration cut backs has hamper function

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

M Webber — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: M Webber Insider trading is illegal yet the sec turns a blind eye. Illegal trading does not need an extra 6 months hiding decreases in valuation from public investors. This rule is a blatant transfer of wealth from investors to corrupt insiders. M Webber MBA Finance; former stockbroker

---

M. A. — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: M. A. Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Michelle Romine
Citizen

To whom it may concern. Do NOT do this. U all r showing your colors so badly when u give cover for fraudulent accounting and business status. U will drive the retail investor out completely without data. I see what u r doing and am appalled at the level of corruption you are allowing and encouraging. I WILL TELL EVERYOEN NOT TO INVEST in any stock market period if u do this . U will drive many ppl out of the US physically, politically and economically. DO NOT ALLOW THIS NON REPORTING

Maddkatma — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Maddkatma Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Any publicly traded company should have public quarterly reports. People must have accurate historical and current information to make sound decisions. To allow companies to hide information is to cheat investors. Your job is to protect the investors.

Madeline Haggans — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Madeline Haggans Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I am concerned that the SEC will be co-opted into the corruption that is a cancer on our politics and business environment. We are looking for more transparency, not less. Holding crucial information about the business practices of those out to fleece America runs counter to the purpose set out for the SEC by the Congress. Don't do it. Madeline Haggans, Philadelphia, PA 19144

Manke MJ — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Manke MJ Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I can see you changing the rules. I see you stealing from me. The quarterly rule works. As investors we have the right to know a company is status. This change effectively blinds me.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Marcia Foster — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marcia Foster Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am concerned about reducing reporting to semi-annual. In a time when things are moving so quickly, I want more information, not less. Individuals are already at a disadvantage, not knowing laws and finance as the experts do. Making it optional to comply with quarterly reporting puts the burden on those with fewer resources and, eventually the “option” is likely to disappear.

Marcia Foster

Marcus Flores — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marcus Flores Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Marcus and I'm a pharmacist. It's important to keep these reports quarterly to me so I can understand the business ongoings and make informed decisions regarding my financial future. Cutting off this information from me and the rest of the public is bound to be harmful and lays the groundwork for deceit on behalf from the company.

Margaret Eighan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Margaret Eighan Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is just a bad idea. I want as much timely information as possible when making investment decisions.

Margaret Eighan, retired RN

Sent from my iPhone

Margaret Ford — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Margaret Ford Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Transparency is important. Quarterly earning should stay.
This is inviting trouble.

Margaret Ford
Estero, Fl

Sent from my iPhone

Margaret Walsh — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Margaret Walsh Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As one of millions who depend on quarterly reports to adjust and protect funds we use to live on, do NOT change.

Maria Amodei — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Maria Amodei Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I strongly object to reducing visibility into the accounting and financial health of public companies. These companies have a responsibility to all their investors, not just their executive and large institutional investors. Most companies will elect to file every 6 months, saving relatively modest filing costs and allowing them to conceal real problems while representing financial health to investors. Lack of visibility allows companies to artificially attract investment, hurting investors, particularly many small investors, which in turn hurts the economy overall while some few might benefit. Skip the BS that honor and altruism will prevail.

Maria Amodei, Senior Data Engineer

Maria Lechtreck — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Maria Lechtreck Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Do NOT reduce the SEC filing interval. Do NOT reduce transparency.

Mariann — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mariann Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is no reason, other than to hide fraud, to change the reporting criteria. With current computerized accounting the reporting timing could actually be shortened! As a former fund accountant on daily funds, I reported NAVs to the president of the bank 2 hours after the stock market closed on a regular basis. I actually had a 5 hour window but usually was able to complete earlier. And that was almost 30 years ago with paper tickets. With today's electronic transfers there is no excuse for longer reporting delays.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Marie Dimmick — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Marie Dimmick Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I would like quarterly updates on how our investments are doing.

Thank you

Sent from my iPad

Marina Vrouvlianis — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marina Vrouvlianis Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Transparency please.... no underhanded shenanigans ... Marina Vrouvlianis...

Mario P, Better Investment member — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mario P Less information is not the best for managing investments quarterly reports are great and should not face out twice a year reports will create confusion and improper data collection

---

Mark Banish — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 FOR SHAME From: Mark Banish Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 SEC I hope that you will thoughtfully consider the following comments in opposition to S7-2026-15.

Has it not been proven, time and time again, that American companies, public and private alike, are too greedy to possibly operate without the minimum of oversight that is currently in place?

I sure think this has been proven without a shred of doubt. 2008. Financial crisis that almost brought down the entire financial system caused by lack of oversight and greed.

2012. Superstorm sandy fraud. Caused by lack of oversight and greed.

2020-2021. COVID and the PPP loan debacle. It's like you people have the memory of goldfish or simply refuse to learn from your egregious mistakes!

TIME AND TIME AGAIN, decisions are made by a select few, behind closed doors and far removed from those harmed directly by their actions, at companies all over this country, COMPANIES THAT NO LONGER CARE FOR THEIR WORKERS. These companies only care about shareholder sentiment and share buybacks. Well, these callous, greedy decisions continue to hurt and disadvantage American families all over the country, while these same companies pull in record quarterly profits and while these very same companies lobby and cry to Congress and other lawmakers about how they are hindered by too much oversight, too much regulation.

TIME AND TIME AGAIN, these companies skirt environmental regulation through careful use of loopholes and back room payoffs, kickbacks and fancy meals and trips to sleazy senators who stand to profit from the perpetuation of this very system. They continue to build their data centers without doing actual legwork, due diligence of any kind, or engage in dialogue with their local communities. These companies have absolutely no regard for the downstream consequences of their actions, and it's reached a point where they no longer even feign an effort to appear that they do!

TIME AND TIME AGAIN, we have seen what happens when these companies are permitted to operate without the minimum of PUBLICLY VISIBLE oversight currently in place.

TIME AND TIME AGAIN, it's proven to us that there is not one single company in this nation, not one, publicly traded or not, operates in such a way that would indicate to a rational observer that even the slightest amount of honesty or transparency could reasonably be expected in the absence of such oversight.

Ending the quarterly reporting will only serve as impetus for these companies to reinvest in wrongdoing, tax evasion, wage theft, pollute without conscience or consequence, and engage in all manner of shady, sleazy tactics in their neverending quest for more and more money, and this will serve to further alienate and disenfranchise the population, if that were even possible. You can practically smell the guillotine blade oil we are so close to a flashpoint. It is sheer madness to even consider this, with the quality of American businessmen and businesswomen today.

For reference, how many American business owners have proven they will do the wrong thing EVERY TIME with less supervision and stole money already with the PPP loan program?

The very idea that the SEC could even consider rolling back reporting requirements serves as evidence that today's SEC turns a blind eye to insider trading and scheming, is no longer willing or able to carry out its mission and mandate and is not able, in its current state, to faithfully fulfill its duty to serve the American people. For SHAME.

WE, THE PEOPLE deserve better, and our children deserve better.

Mark Banish
Embarrassed citizen.
[REDACTED]

Mark Chrysler — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Chrysler Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is a very bad idea. Reduces transparency into financial performance.

Mark Chrysler.

Mark Colburn — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Colburn Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 What the hell. Keep the reporting as it is.

Mark Mitchell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Mitchell Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Stop abetting criminal behavior.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Mark Sands — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Sands Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly reporting by companies to the SEC is essential as it allows investors, like myself, to manage their portfolios effectively and anticipate changes in the market. Every 6 month reporting will deprive investors of necessary and relevant information to make investments with any degree of insight.

Mark Warme — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Warme Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Hello, Definitely do allow reporting twice a year. As it is quarterly reporting keeps management focused on short term goals. We need managers to focus long term to maximize shareholder value.
Mark Warme
Electrician

Sent from my iPad

MARK WINSLOW — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: MARK WINSLOW Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This is a ridiculous idea. Private investors should be entitled to quarterly reports!

Marlee Ostrow — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marlee Ostrow Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Marlee Ostrow, Instructional Aide for LAUSD. We give children updates on their learning achievements every six weeks. Things can stay static for months, and then the numbers jump, or fall. The public investor has the right to monitor the progress of their investment in real time. Six months is far too long and allows for catastrophic changes to be hidden from view until it is too late and those who could've traded out have lost the opportunity to do so without large losses.

Keep the quarterly reports!

Married2theMarkets — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Married2theMarkets Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Transparency is key to public trust.

#Married2theMarkets

Sent from ProtonMail, Swiss-based encrypted email.

Martha DeWane — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Martha DeWane Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I have been actively involved in the stock market throughout the last 44 years. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

Sent from my iPhone

Martha Maust — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Martha Maust Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm an individual investor and invest some through Edward Jones and also have a self-directed account with IRA, Roth, and regular account. I think that it's very important that companies report their earnings and forecast every quarter. Individual investors don't have the advantage that the big investment firms do.

I also am appalled that Elon Musk was able to fast-track getting SpaceX into the index funds very quickly after the IPO. So many of us small investors that have index and mutual funds will have increased risk with this action. I think it's very important that you protect the little investor.

Sincerely,
Martha Maust
219-878-3447
Hobiemom@gmail.com

Martha Merrill — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Martha Merrill Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This change of oversight is a NEW Step toward fraud! No sane person wants their account hidden from them for 6 months. This move is DISHONEST! We do not agree to this change!

Martin's j O'Donnell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Martin's j O'Donnell Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Martin O'Donnell, retired . Only thieves would reduce the reporting requirements.

Mary Lemanski — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Lemanski Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Hello,

What are you people even thinking?! We need monthly reports under this administration, not less accountability, unless your objective is really to tank the US economy. Keep quarterly SEC reporting.

Thank you!
Mary Lemanski

Sent from my iPhone

Mary Ann Porter — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Ann Porter Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Changing reporting times allows for greater grifting of the people’s money. Six months is to long to keep this sensitive information a secret from the people.

Mary Anne States — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Anne States Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 MaryAnne States, retired! Respectfully, keep the quarterly reports! There is no reason to move to a 6 month report, too much can happen before the rest of us have a chance to catch up! It is difficult enough with just a quarterly report!
Thank you

Get Outlook for iOS

Mary Blanco — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Blanco Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 ridiculous. they dont care about us. but if they did, they would never intertain such a transparently underhanded tactic.

Mary Brown — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Brown Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is no reason that the SEC should increase their reporting time from three months to six months. I strongly object to this change. The public does not benefit from this change.

Sent from my iPad

Mary Brown — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mary Brown As a retirees and very small time investor, my husband and I rely on quarterly reports to help make financial decisions. Please don't make investing less transparent and more complicated for us.

Mary C — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary C Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Mary Conway, and I am currently the Director of Quality Management and Compliance at a well-respected community mental health center. I have actively participated in my various healthcare employers' 403b and other savings programs, and therefore in the stock market, throughout the last 43 years.

I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges.

I also feel strongly that companies must actively incorporate transparency in their operations, and not act in a manner that would only benefit a minority of investors.

Thank you,

Mary

Mary Gonzales — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Gonzales Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I want quarterly reports, so keep your grubby hands off everyone's investments and the reporting standard and leaving as quarterly reports!

Mary Jane White — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Jane White Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Mary Jane White, Retired. Why would anyone not want to know? This is stupidity. Who is going to hold them accountable if you don't even know what is going on? Transparency, always.

Mary Jo Thor — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Mary Jo Thor Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is the gold standard. You will lose foreign investors. Americans will lose savings due to lack of transparency. Quarterly reporting is not burdensome. It is nearly automated in every way. Retooling to make semi annual reports will be initially costly and all econometrics will go out the window. If this is truly about burden reduction then reduce the quantity of forms required for filing and not the frequency.

--
Sent from Canary

Mary Kay Christophersen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Kay Christophersen Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm old enough to remember the Enron financial scandal. And how it brought down Arthur Andersen, one for the biggest financial audit and consulting firms of the time. We must not repeat this the mistakes of the past. There is ample evidence that given the opportunity too many will choose their own self-interest and take advantage of whatever they can get away with. Don't give them more time to find ways to do so.
Mary Kay Christophersen
IT Security & Compliance Manager

Mary Kay

Mary P — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary P Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Mary and I recently retired. I would like quarterly reporting so that I can better or more accurately track my investments, which is my income!
Thank you.

Mary Park — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Park Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I want to know where and what is going on with my money and quartile is the best to do that.

Sent from my iPhone

Mary Radwell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Radwell Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I want to have an open record of my holdings .

Mary Rosemeyer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Rosemeyer Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Americans under this administration need as much full disclosure as possible, and are entitled to know how their hard-earned money is faring. One year to know how your investments are doing is too long. DONT CHANGE IT

Sent from my iPad

Mary Stanistreet — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Stanistreet Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 How can you invest in a company if you don't know what their economic standing is

Sent from my iPhone

Mary Sydorczuk — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Sydorczuk Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This is my money being placed into a 401K account. I have every right to see quartely reports as any Billionaire or major Corporation. Equality for all.

Mary D Sydorczuk, RN, BSN

Sent from my Galaxy

Mary Yeck — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Yeck Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 No to this! Stop screwing the little people!

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Matt Huggins — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Matt Huggins Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 For many Americans, retirement is not a luxury. It is the reward for decades of hard work, sacrifice, and responsible saving. Millions of workers spend their entire careers contributing to 401(k)s, IRAs, and pension plans with the hope that they will someday be able to retire with dignity and independence.

Those Americans depend on transparent and trustworthy markets. When public companies are required to disclose less information less frequently, it becomes harder for ordinary people to understand the health of the businesses that ultimately support their retirement savings. At the same time, corporate insiders and large institutions will continue to have far greater visibility into company performance.

The average American already faces growing challenges in preparing for retirement. Policies that reduce transparency should be viewed with extreme caution because the consequences are borne not by wealthy insiders, but by workers and retirees whose financial security depends on fair and open markets. After a lifetime of work, Americans deserve stronger protections for their retirement savings, not fewer.

Thank you,
Matt Huggins
302-345-0716

Matthew Haycraft — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Haycraft Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I do not want less information to come out from the companies I own shares of. Reducing quarterly statements to semi-annual would do just that. My understanding is a change like this would only increase volatility and keep an average investor like my self in the dark longer. In the grand scheme of things I don't buy the argument that it will save these publicly traded companies meaningful amounts of money by loosening these requirements and instead just increase the risk of insider trading.

Signed: Matthew Haycraft

Maureen Hall — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Maureen Hall Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm submitting my WHOLEHEARTED & "PREEMPTIVE" one "pissed off" elderly white woman from the "burbs"if you publish only EVERY 6 MONTHS!!!!

Sent from my iPhone

Meg Massaro — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Meg Massaro Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm a retail investor and DO NOT want to be left in the dark for half the year. Keep the light shining!!!!

Mel Curran — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: mel curran Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need to keep the rules for companies reporting quarterly the same. Almost everyone I know has a large contribution tied up in the stock market. This would most definitely make it harder to want to continue to do that if you change the role to every six months. It would be very difficult to be more strategic and pivot when changes happen.

Sent from my iPhone

Melody Pavlica — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Melody Pavlica Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 NO! Absolutely No! Melody Pavlica, retired federal employee

Sent from my iPhone

MEV — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: MEV Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Will turn into a large cesspool of corruption. Stability will ge gone. Can trust be saved. NO

Michael Brainard — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Brainard Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Oh hell. No! Transparency is a must!

Mike Brainard
MikeBrainard@Gmail.com

Michael Cavaleri — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Cavaleri Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 If you want to change it, make it monthly. We demand full transparency.

Michael Davis — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Davis Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Mike Davis. I am currently semi-retired, and my My wife and are trying to live off savings and investments. This optional rule reduces our visibility into companies we currently invest in, makes future investment more challenging, and favors insiders and larger institutional investors. I think sticking with quarterly reporting is better.

In other parts of the world that have tried semi-annual reporting, it had not turned out well so far, and some are considering returning to quarterly reporting. It's not really a "global standard" so much as a failed "global experiment".

The money a company could save with semi-annual reporting is negligible, and likely would not make its way into the pockets of employees, and therefore consumers.

A far more helpful change for the country would be to return to a stakeholder capitalism approach, rather than shareholder capitalism which focuses on maximizing profits for shareholders. That would be far more beneficial for the individual consumer.

// Mike Davis

Michael Gillispie — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Gillispie Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm in the position of having to live off my investments at this point. Transparency is a requirement to being able to respond to changes. Corporations have already been given too many gifts by this administration. Keep the period at three months. We've seen this administration manipulate the market like a puppet with no accountability. Protect the 98%, not the 2%.

Get Outlook for iOS

Michael Higgins — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Higgins Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 If it's such a secret, why is the company traded publicly in the first place?

Michael Messner — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Messner Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Transparency

Sent from my iPhone

Michael Mojher — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Mojher Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Jude Goodier-Mojher, retired graphic designer and museum educator.
Allowing businesses or other organizations to avoid transparency in any of their operations invites cheating.

Sent from my iPhone

Michael Passe — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Passe Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm Michael Passe an IT director for a major health system. I've worked all my life stocking money for eventual retirement. A change this drastic to reporting could decimate retirement funds. There needs to be better oversight not less.

Michael R Passe

Michael Paver — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Michael Paver Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 To the deciding members at the SEC

As a married couple approaching retirement age, our investments will soon be our only source of income, and having as much information as possible to make informed investment choices is paramount. Loosening reporting regulations on publicly traded corporations and allowing for less transparency and accountability to shareholders is a horrible idea on principle. It’s also been tried before and led to market devaluation. Leave this terrible idea where it belongs, in the dustbin of history, and keep markets transparent and strong!

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael A. Paver
Dr. Amy C. Paver, PharmD, BCPS

Michael Thayne — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Thayne Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 The American people don't need laws that allow for more fraud by corporations. Our government is so full of fraud and waste that it's destroying everyone's ability to live the American dream . We don't need law changes that allow corporations to open a new fraud front against the working people who are already being abused by the system to near the point of breaking.

Michael Yakus — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael Yakus Why should the SEC adopt any rule that makes it even harder for retail customers like me to trade stocks? Information should be available to everyone as quickly as possible. If I am unable to get current information, I am only gambling. That is not the purpose of the SEC.

Michele Kriz — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michele Kriz Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Investors in public companies need and deserve quarterly reports. We have no access to insider information that protects the well connected. Please do not remove this safeguard that allows us to better track management decisions and results.

Michele Kriz, private investor and retiree
Tampa, Fl

Sent from my iPhone, pardon any tiny keyboard/big fingers typos

---

michele reynolds — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: michele reynolds Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Stop the fraud! What do these companies have to hide?

Michele Springsteen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michele Springsteen Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need quarterly reporting to understand companies' results. Don't take away a vital tool in our investment decisions.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Michelle Carmody — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michelle Carmody Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is not the time for more hidden information to the American Citizens. We need more oversight, not less. I want to know what my investment firm is doing, at least every quarter, if not more.
T M Carmody.

Michelle Chastain — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michelle Chastain Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is important to anyone with a 401K to see the quarterly reports so we can plan and possibly change our investments when deemed necessary. Do NOT change this to every 6 months. This is our money and we deserve to see what is happening to it.
Sincerely,
Michelle Chastain

Sent from my iPhone

Michelle L Hargrove — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michelle L Hargrove Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I have been actively involved in the stock market throughout the last 25 years. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain.
Michelle L Hargrove

Mike Budd — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mike Budd Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I'm Mike Budd, a retired professor from Florida. This matters to me because the SEC is supposed to regulate the trillions of dollars on which millions of retirees like me depend. Please make sure that the SEC continues to report publicly every three months.

Mike Moran — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mike Moran Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The greed, grift, and self-enrichment on the backs of those not born into access is reaching levels unheard of. The divide in wealth is orders of magnitude beyond any other crumbling empire in history. I hope with every bone in my body to find very single one of you and your families and strip you of every cent of wealth you have stolen from people and imprison all of you. Either way, this black out on information is a clear push to hide the continued acceleration of everything mentioned above; f#*% off and stop it

---

Mike Patino — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mike Patino Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Corporate manipulations and big money transactions are hidden enough already!!!
Mike Patino

Sent from Samsung Galaxy smartphone.
Get Outlook for Android

Millard Shires — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Millard Shires Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 As a retired couple with limited resources and investments, it is critical that we be aware and advised of market fluctuations or even issues withing corporations we have invested in. Hiding/6 months? Outrageous. The only reason this would be approved is if someone was dirty. Just Don't Do it.

---

missy lamme — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: missy lamme Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Malissa & I don't want the quarterly reporting to change to 6 months. Keep fraud out of my 401K!

Mitchell Andry — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mitchell Andry Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The reporting should be reduced to a monthly scorecard and not be extended to 6 months. This is a ridiculous rule change. There should be more transparency, not less.

Mitchell Andry
[REDACTED]

MK CFA — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: MK CFA The proposed change eliminating quarterly reporting requirements for public companies is inexcusable- I can not think of a single reason to relax reporting requirements which are crucial to public trust and market efficiency. If the argument is that quarterly reporting encourages short-term decision-making or that quarterly reporting is too onerous, that doesn't hold up. Executives are always supposed to act in the best interest of shareholders, and there's no reason why quarterly reporting would lead an ethical executive to act any differently- if the issue is ethics, that's not something that can or should be addressed with reporting frequency. As far as level of effort, staying with the status quo does not cause any increase in work. As far as market efficiency is concerned, there is a very real and significant risk for relaxing reporting requirements. Markets are most efficient when they incorporate a greater volume and greater accuracy of information. By eliminating quarterly reporting, the SEC is proposing restricting both the volume and accuracy of information available to the public. This means that investors of all categories are flying blind and cannot access the information they require to inform their investment decision-making. This hurts pensions, retirees, and nearly everyone who participates in US equity investing. In addition, requiring less accountability through less frequent reporting also creates a risk of unethical behavior because the public will have less visibility into the activities of publicly traded companies. Circling back to my point from earlier, this proposed change creates a larger, not smaller risk of unethical behavior. You can't control the number of unethical executives out there with this kind of change, but you can control how they are monitored. Sometimes I feel like the world is going insane and I cannot do anything to make an impact, but I had the write this comment anyway. MK CFA

Moira Ashleigh — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Moira Ashleigh Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Business change rapidly, and when they change they are not long term investments. Six months is too long for oversight.

Moira Ashleigh
Owego, NY

Mulligan Phillips — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: MULLIGAN PHILLIPS Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Maintain quarterly reporting! The American public needs to know what’s happening in the present, not as history. We can influence the present (Are you afraid of that?) but we can’t change history (You can lie about it but that’s another issue.) Keep your operations aboveboard.

Sent from my iPhone

N. Lynch — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: N. Lynch Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We, American citizens, invest our hard earned money, and deserve and rely on quarterly reporting by companies to ensure our investments are sound. Please don’t modify the reporting requirements. It will only serve to hurt hard working citizens, like myself.
Nicole Lynch
Attorney

Nancee Drone — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nancee Drone Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Nancee Drone R.N. Are you trying to steal money.This action isnt logical or lawful.Are you doing this to your own family?

Nancy Curtis — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Curtis Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 How come this government is all about petty grievances but fails totally to go after really large major fraud.?

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Nancy G — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nancy G Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This does not benefit any except insiders. The US economy already fails to give everyone a chance to do well. This would only the widen the gap. There is no just and rational reason to do that.

Nancy Haffner — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Haffner Affiliation: Jun. 18, 2026 The current amount of graft and sel-dealing under this administration should be an enormous red flag that assuming CEOs will be honest and forthright is disingenuous. Quarterly filing is not an enormous burden. Greater transparency means better compliance.

Nancy Haffner

Nancy Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Smith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is so important to protect and infom the consumer! I do not want less frequent reporting -- we need transparency and thus accountability.
Nancy Smith
Retired
Individual investor

Nancy Whitfield — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Whitfield Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Six months is too long & affords companies the opportunity to hide what they're up to... Our governed was established for the PEOPLE, not companies. People deserve to be protected.

Naomi Altman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Naomi Altman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is clear that the "insiders" ala trumpf and his minions would love this so that they can continue to rape and pillage America's coffers at the expense of everyday Americans.

Nas Mazuji — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nas Mazuji Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Stop corporate misdeeds. Any responsible company should have transparency.

Nasrin Mazuji
Sent from my iPhone

Neal Ryder — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: My view on Rule S7-2026-15 From: Neal Ryder Affiliation: Jun. 10, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission:
This proposal endangers all of us.

Quarterly disclosures protect everyone; from those investing to those who are being affected. They allow for futures planning and risk assessments for everyone.
We cannot legislate ethical choices but we can take steps to insulate ourselves from fraud; both intentional and otherwise.

Nelson Van Heck — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nelson Van Heck Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Ida Van Heck - retired - investor. Every quarter informs us of a company's financial health. As an investor we watch financial trends. Quarterly helps companies make financial corrections and helps an investor decide if a company is financially healthy. Why six months? What are you trying to hide would be my question. The savings would be minimal and who would benefit? Not the investor!

Sent from my iPad

Nicholas Eden — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nicholas E Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am Nicholas Eden, a software engineer. Every company was able to file quarterly before everything was automated. It's so easy to do now. There is no excuse for not making them do it.

Nick B — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nick B Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Nick and I'm a contractor. I use quarterly reports to help understand my IRA/401K investments. Without this information I would not be informed about my investments and miss out on key information that I need to use to manage how I will retire.

Sent from my iPhone

Nick Butts — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nick Butts Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Nicolas Butts, senior staff research engineer, I have a substantial amount of money invested in my 401k. I very frequently look at prospectus and company earnings. If you reduce the frequency that companies report, you're really causing retail investors to fly blind. And really encouraging insider trading and illegal activity. Please keep them accorderly.

--Nick Butts

Nick D. — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Nick D. Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is the right way. My wife is an auditor and we value the integrity of the system as well as timely information. Don't ruin that.

- Nicholas Defoe

Nicole Gray — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nicole Gray Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Transparency and free flowing info are best methods for fairly collaborating on how “our business together “ is doing. Do not become a spoke in the wheel of Trumpler’s corrupt authoritarian oligarchical kleptocracy and hide the data from your people - your investors! Dont bend over at the SEC for dear leaders’s visionless quest to run American enterprise fast and lose, or enable an exclusive hierarchy that largely (at least 50%) blocks investors from clarity on their investments. Don’t!

Sent from my iPhone

Nikki Pomeroy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nikki Pomeroy Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Nikki A/P- Absolutely not. It's my responsibility to stay informed and make sure my money is growing to make good choices. Stop scamming on the American people! Be ethical.

Nomadic Bastard — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Nomadic Bastard Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 CHRIS Abate, investor: Companies experiencing downtrends or malfeasance will have an extra 3 months to dump shares on public at inflated prices,this will damage the SEC reputation as insider trading will also be elevated as short positions prosper off extra emotional damage and fear as people get blindsided, less transparency in the market means less stability

---

norah sullivan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: norah sullivan Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 We need MORE scrutiny not less!!!!

Sent from my iPhone

Norm Burke — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Norm Burke Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 STOP the unfettered GREED!! We need our Government to be FOR The PEOPLE!! Not Big Corporate interests, or Trump's family and his Billionaire Buddies. We need FOR THE PEOPLE!!

P C — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Keep quarterly reporting From: P C Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep quarterly reporting. Too much can be irretrievable after six months. Quarterly reporting may give warning when something is amiss and definitely less costly to stop it before too much has been lost. Quarterly reporting has been the standard and that period should remain in place. If I could have a statement every 30 days, I'd be happier. Definitely against 6 months - you're hurting investors with that time period. Too much time and opportunity to steal!
Margaret Christen, retired

Pamela Haley — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pamela Haley Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the qtrly info. As a senior I need a current update on my earnings for budgeting my living expenses

Sent from my iPhone

Pamela Holt — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pamela Holt Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please don't let corporations get away with this! We need reporting!

Pamela J. Betz-Baron — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pamela J. Betz-Baron Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Investors need as much information as possible. Six months is too long and an invitation to hide issues.

Pamela J. Betz-Baron

704 Ridgeland St.
Fox River Grove, IL 60021-1213

Pamela Martin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pamela Martin Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I'm retired and this is a terrible idea. My 401K could be wiped out before I could do anything about it, especially in these volatile times. Don't drop quarterly reports. Pamela Martin

Sent from my IPhone - Goldie

Pati Hopkins — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pati Hopkins Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Patricia Hopkins, retired after a 38 year career as a social worker in mental health. I rely on quarterly reports to make decisions. Moving to a 6 month report provides more time for things to go awry. Based on reported evidence, other places in the world that moved to 6 month reports experienced more fraud, with longer time before investors were aware. Companies benefited, not individuals. Under the current administration, so much is being lost as decision after decision is being made for companies to benefit and the general public to not be considered. Please don't let this decision support an opportunity for additional greed, fraud, and abuse.

Sent from my iPhone

Patrice Kaufman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patrice Kaufman Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 You must be joking? The felon wants to hide from Americans how their retirement is going?

Get rid of dozen Don instead.

This is a travesty to us all. Except, of course, the Orange Man and his sycophantic supporters.

Patricia Jackson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Jackson Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly reporting equals accountability. Keep it.

Patricia Jackson

Patricia Williams — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Williams Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Patricia M Williams, Retired state of Idaho employee. I need to know where I stand on my financial situation. I need the quarterly report and would not be able to plan well if it was semi annual. It is only a few keys on a computer.

Do not change the rules

Patricia Harris — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Harris Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We rely on quarterly reports to make timely decisions on balancing our retirement accounts to promote better long term results. The minuscule savings to Vanguard, TIAA-CREF, et al. aren't worth our piece of mind.

Patricia Harris — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Harris Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 NO! This is another step to elevate the wealthy and stop transparency. My name is Patricia Harris and I am a retired math teacher. With each step towards oligarchy, our country betrays us.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Patricia Hippeli — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Hippeli Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Why in the world would you want to keep the general public in the dark regarding the financial health of public companies. What was good for the last century is STILL GOOD! KEEP TRANSPARENCY ALIVE!!! Patricia Hippeli, private landowner Florida

---

Patricia Maurer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Maurer Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is a valuable tool for the investor. Please protect the interest of those who are doing their best to protect their retirement and remain independent. Companies already have the advantage. They don't need more.

Sent from my iPhone

Patricia McLean — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia McLean Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As an investor in investment accounts across various sectors, I cannot and do not accept the idea of giving publicly traded companies a 6-month window between their reports. This does not benefit stockholders. I urge you to require quarterly reporting across the board. Patricia McLean, Retiree

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Patrisa Philips — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patrisa Philips Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is an important report for all. Quarterly reporting is necessary.

Patty Moriarty — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patty Moriarty Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need closer monitoring not less. Keep the 3 month reporting to keep us informed!

Sent from my iPhone

Paul Baeckel — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Paul Baeckel Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Concerning the dropping of quarterly reporting. So, who does this benefit? certainly not me, the public. Your priority should be on protecting the people and instilling confidence and clarity in the market. The optics of this alone are enough to reject it.
Paul Baeckel
The Boeing Company, Retired

Paul Durkin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Paul Durkin Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Considering that the board members are trump nominees, this smells bad.

Paul Franzmann — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Paul Franzmann Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Paul Franzmann, retired

If anything, reports should be monthly instead quarterly, as corruption has become the raison d'etre in our government. Making them semi-annual is just making cheating easier.

Paul Franzmann
Walla Walla, WA

Paul Kirsch — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: paul kirsch Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 A good corporation has a mission statement typically stating transparency, ethics, fiscal and environmental responsibility. This six month proposal is the opposite of transparency. It is a breeding ground for corruption.

Paula Rhodes — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Paula Rhodes Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Corporations already hide enough.

It is reprehensible to give them the ability to hide these things longer.
We already know the stock market isn't really for the average citizen. We are only allowed to purchase small percentages of ipo's when they become available making the vast wealth stay in the hands of the wealthy elite.

How does hiding their financials help anyone other than the people who already get the benefits if our labor, the benefits of our tax system, tax shelters, the benefits of wall street, the benefits of not paying taxes like they should because the laws have been made to favor them.

What could they possibly need to hide for 6 more months?

Peggy Talburt — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Peggy Talburt Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 HELL NO!!!!

Peggy Dreyfus — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Peggy Dreyfus Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I have invested my money with the expectation of receiving quarterly status reports. I find the desire to report less often to be highly suspicious.
Margaret Dreyfus
Olympia Washington

“The universe is a communion of subjects, not a collection of objects.”
— Thomas Berry

Perry Minyard — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Perry Minyard Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I think it would be irresponsible to allow publicly traded companies to only be required to share their financials only twice a year. Please keep it as is, and do not change the rules for this.

--
Perry Minyard
Director of Information Technology
College of Design
Georgia Institute of Technology
245 4th St. NW, Atlanta, GA 30332-0155

Email: perry.minyard@design.gatech.edu

Persephone Woods — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Persephone Woods Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Do not under any circumstances reduce the quarterly reporting for Enron to biannual. Tney are proven bad actors and have zero credibility and deserve no trust or benefit of the doubt. If you refuse oversight, ypu are giving them carte blanch to behave unethically and probably illegally.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Persephone Woods — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Persephone Woods Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Do your job abd don't let these companies hide what they are doing!

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Peter Leinau — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Peter Leinau Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 As a citizen & investor, I rely on the quarterly reports to make investment decisions. It is critical for investor confidence and free-market integrity that financial reports remain quarterly. Sincerely, Peter Leinau.

Peter Leinau

Phil Herrick — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Phil Herrick Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I depend on timely financial reports to monitor my investments. My name is Phillip Herrick and I have had money in the stock market since 1967. I am currently retired.

Sent from my iPad

Philip Barton — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Philip Barton Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This is a BAD IDEA for individual investors.

Philip Barton
Brentwood, TN
philipbar@gmail.com

Phoebe Crandall — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Phoebe Crandall Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I am a military widow, and the investments in my small IRA are very important to my financial health. There is no justification for removing two of the four currenty-required yearly reports. This will put honest, small investors at unnecessary and unacceptable risk.

Phoebe W. Crandall

Sent from my iPhone

---

pmrodrigue — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: pmrodrigue Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please don't change the reporting of corporate earnings from from it's current quarterly to semi-annual. Transparency is vital; and if it ain't broke, for God's sake, don't fix it.

Pablo Rodriguez, Spring Branch, Texas

Sent from my Galaxy

PR Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: PR Smith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Since our pension options are now a 401k, this shouldn’t happen with our investments and future. It places the investor (the employee) at a disadvantage.

Sent from my iPhone

Rajendra — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rajendra Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dear SEC, Keep the quarterly reports. Do not change. Companies can easily do what they have been doing. Public trust in American enterprises is helped by timely quarterly reports. On the other hand six months is too long a time for some bad actors to use that for their gains. Again, public trust is a must for a well functioning American business. Do not break this trust.

Rajesh Ranganathan, AICPA — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Rajesh Ranganathan I urge to continue Quarterly reporting to continue transparency of information to public

---

Ralph Fish — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ralph Fish Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a retired senior, I rely on invested retirement funds. I rely on timely accurate reports. Moving to reports every six months does not allow for timely adjustments to a portfolio of investments. Ralph Fish

Sent from my iPad

Randall — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Randall Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Cutting the reporting period by half is beyond comprehension. How many more bankrupt companies and crashedc401k's do we need to see to know that?

Sent from my iPhone

Randy Genthe — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: rgenthe Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 To Whomever Can Effect Change:

There is no need whatsoever to reduce transparency by elimination of quarterly reporting.

There is enough wrong with the financial system without exacerbating it by removing processes which provide safeguards to investors.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Regards,
Randy Genthe
Montgomery County, Texas

Randy Grein — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Randy Grein Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Randy Grein, Sr. Network Engineer for a local manufacturing company. The volatility and instability this change will create will destroy honest businesses a temporarily advantage dishonest ones before causing a crash. A reckoning is coming for the grift and lack of responsiveness by the current administration. This vote will mark you as either a patriot or Trump toady, a supporter of integrity and transparency or an enemy of investors and free markets. there is no middle ground.

Sent from my iPad

Raye Harper — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Raye Harper Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Stop supporting the Republiklan fascists

---

Regina Murphy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Regina Murphy Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Be glad we're not asking for monthly reports. A 3-month picture is a valid and useful tool in tracking the build or slide of any project.
Regina Murphy, retired.

Regina Satterfield — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 Comment From: Regina satterfield Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please stop this move to lie to investors and cover up unethical buying and selling

Regina Satterfield, citizen investor, retired

Sent from my iPad

Reginald Grant — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Reginald Grant Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I can understand companies not needing to focus on quarterly earnings as being beneficial but we, as investors, need information at least quarterly in this world.

Sent from my iPhone

Renate Barlow — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Renate Barlow Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Please keep your reports on a quarterly basis. It is important that we know what happens when.

Rev. Andy Dunning — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rev. Andy Dunning Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Andy Dunning. I'm a 62 year old Methodist Pastor, and my wife and I will soon be reliant on my pension and my investments for retirement income. The SEC should reject any rule that results in less transparency for small (in my case very small) investors. This proposed rule will result in greater volatility over time, reward insiders and further decrease faith in the integrity and transparency of corporate leadership. Please reject the proposed rule.

Andy Dunning (he/him/his)

Uparkdenver.com

Reza Morin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Reza Morin Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Aloha mai Kākou,

In an age of ever expanding corporate and financial graft we must maintain and improve transparency for consumer protection. The push to elimitate quarterly reporting feels like another corporate giveaway, allowing walstreet to fleece main street. When this illegitimate fascist regime implodes I pray that ALL the enablers are tried for treason. Power to the poeple! As a professional in science education witnessing the hostile fascist takeover of our government and the dismantling of the commons and erasing of histor while corporations are empowered to pollute and profit regardless of human consequences, I weep for our country.

Kindly stop this BS.

Mahalo,

Reza Morin

Rhonda Gagnon — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rhonda Gagnon Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Mrs. Rhonda Gagnon. Navy Veteran, semi-retired. Reports should be made quarterly. Having them less than opens to the door to more fraud or other nefarious activities. It's MY MONEY being invested and I have a right to know what is going on at all times and it is the responsibility of these investment firms to provide that information. If I had my way it would be monthly but quarterly suffices just fine. There is no logical nor reasonable excuse to hide reports other than planning to rip people off.

Rich — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rich Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly reporting is necessary in order for the investor to see what a company is doing and avoid getting caught in some fraud that won’t be out for months after they have invested in it

Sent from my iPhone

Richard Silver — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Richard Silver Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The argument for decreasing the frequency of reporting public company Financial records seems a lot weaker than the benefits of keeping quarterly reporting. Small investors are already at an information disadvantage.

Richard Silver DO

[REDACTED]

Richard Vanderpuije — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Richard Vanderpuije Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Don’t change

Sent from my iPhone

Rick — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rick Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Changing the quarterly reporting rule to every six months is an absolutely terrible idea and really hurts the retail investor!! Now the SEC is part of the current administrations efforts to help the billionaires, big companies and investment firms, and not care about the everyday citizen who is the backbone of the USA. It's shameful and immoral!! You are all slowly running the greatest country in the world!

Rigid Mango — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rigid Mango Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This is critical to appropriate oversight. Leave the period as quarterly. I worked in budget8ng for my company for 33 years and quarterly reviews are an industry minimum

Sent from my Verizon, Samsung Galaxy tablet
Get Outlook for Android

Rob Berra — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rob Berra Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keeping corporate reporting quarterly is the absolute minimum that should be required for publicly-traded companies. Even quarterly gives a lot of opportunity to hide bad information from investors; semi-annual reporting allows far too much opportunity for company leadership to take risks with investors' money for too long, or to take other actions of which investors and the public may not be aware as soon as they need to in order to take action. Reducing the accountability of people and institutions entrusted with others' resources is only a good thing when you have something to hide.

Rob Lee — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rob Lee Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Don't enable corruption please!

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

---

rob menti — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: rob menti Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep transparency for the American People you are supposed to serve - not the oligarchs!

Robert Owens — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Robert Owens Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 In a world of high technology and artificial intelligence, it is impossible to justify reducing the amount of information disclosed by companies to their current and potential investors. Keep quarterly reporting! I depend on quality information to make the decisions my retirement depends on. Robert Owens, RN

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Robert Bacher — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Robert Bacher Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Stop stealing with both hands for long enough to create real jobs please.

Robert Brockway — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Reports From: Robert Brockway Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dear [Recipient Name],

I am writing to request that you continue providing quarterly reports. As a small investor, these reports are essential for me to maintain visibility into the entity's current status and financial health.

Thank you for your consideration.

Best regards,

Robert Brockway

Robert Hunter — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Robert Hunter Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly SEC reporting keeps businesses honest!

Robert Hunter, retired Cash Analyst/Treasurer

Robert McGovern — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Robert McGovern Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is important to hold our public institutions and publicly traded companies accountable.
Everything out in the open.

Bob McGovern
Sent from my iPad

Robin Ryder — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Robin Ryder Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is R. Ryder and I would like to keep the rules for quarterly reporting mandatory instead of switching to semi-annual reporting (as it once was).

Quarterly reporting has helped improve the stability of the markets and helped the investors of Main Street. My portfolio had less issues after invoking the quarterly rule.

Rolling back regulations seems to have only hindered the stability of the market (see the last twenty years or so).

Please don’t switch to semi-annual reporting. My retirement is based mostly off my investments over the past several decades and I don’t want to have to weather another financial crisis that was easily preventable by regulations and more transparency.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
R.

Robin Weller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Robin Weller Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Do not allow companies to hold information for 6 months and hide issues. KEEP IT QUARTERLY

Rodolfo Crrz — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rodolfo Crrz Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Buenos días porque están descriminandome de esta manera soy persona que se preocupa por el pan de todos los días con humildad y honestidad no es justo por se ignorante quieran perjudicar o querer acusar asiendose pasar por m i con la tecnología avanzada que ellos manipulan intimidan descriminan culpando de cosas que yo nunca abia pensado o pasado por mi mente este tipo de caso yo pienso que podria yo tener problemas con las leyes por personas que solo buscan benifisiarse y culpar a gente inosente

---

Roger Dean Ramseyer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Roger Dean Ramseyer Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The quarterly reports should continue, absolutely. I don't even have to check them every time, but having them is VERY important!

Get Outlook for Android

Rose Massengill — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rose Massengill Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Maintain quarterly reporting. Anything less leads to less transparency and integrity.
Sincerely
Rose Massengill

Sent from my iPhone

Rosemary Mascherino — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rosemary Mascherino Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 KEEP IT QUARTERLY. Rampant fraud, insider trading, and unchecked speculation were the main reasons for the creation of the SEC after the crash... to regain confidence again. Revisit your ethics because 'WE THE PEOPLE' have seen and had enough of these games!

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Roy — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Roy Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the quartly reporting requirments, otherwise we cannot acurrectly trace our vestments. It is not just democracy that dies in darkness, our retirements as well.

Roy Appugliese

“A people that values its privileges above its principles soon loses both.”

“Never let yourself be persuaded that any one Great Man, any one leader, is necessary to the salvation of America. When America consists of one leader and 158 million followers, it will no longer be America.” —

Dwight D. Eisenhower

Roy Appugliese — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Roy Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the quartly reporting requirments, otherwise we cannot acurrectly trace our vestments. It is not just democracy that dies in darkness, our retirements as well.
Roy Appugliese Retired

“A people that values its privileges above its principles soon loses both.”

“Never let yourself be persuaded that any one Great Man, any one leader, is necessary to the salvation of America. When America consists of one leader and 158 million followers, it will no longer be America.” —

Dwight D. Eisenhower

S. E. — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: S. E. Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is much better for the public to adjust their expectations of a company and their desire to be an owner through their stock. Do not change to semi annual that will hurt the common person. Thanks

---

S. H. — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: S. H. Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Shirley Hardy Bookkeeper
Self Employed
This matters because the earlier we know the better we can respond to the data. Whether good or not so good.

S.J. Glovier — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: S.J. Glovier Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Don't change company reporting to anything less than quarterly. We tried it what and it was bad for the economy and individual investors alike.

Sadie McFarlane — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sadie McFarlane Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Clearly, "transparency" is profoundly desired by this administration. The US citizenry have a right to know what their corporate overlords are up to. This proposal is unacceptable in a democracy (or anywhere).

Samra Olofson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Samra Olofson Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Samra Olofson
Retired
This is not right. I believe we need access to information, not restriction. Thank you.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Sandra Handly — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sandra Handly Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is literally stealing money from small investors who work hard and just need to prepare for retirement, while elites and wealthy get wealthier with the "insider trading that they have access to." I am angry as hell and I could be cursing on here till midnight; you don't own us and the SENATE can stop this as we will vote them all out if they DO NOT!

Sandra Handly, Teacher

Sandra Hoffman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sandra Hoffman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need more information/ transparency, not less. In an age when the monies run rampant over the rest of us we need as much info as we can get.

Sent from my iPhone

Sandra Parks — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sandra Parks Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep the quarterly reports coming. We need to be able to know what our investments are doing in case we need to make changes.

Sandra Repp — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sandra Repp Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am a very small investor but I pay attention to my funds, and it is important to me to have information readily available so I can understand and respond to changes. Allowing companies to go a full 6 months before releasing their financials could have a greater negative impact on individuals like me. I urge the SEC to retain the quarterly reporting requirement.

Sandy Curry — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: SANDY CURRY Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep it as it is !!

Sent from my iPhone

Sara Wehr — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sara Wehr Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Why allow more time for graft and deceit. The U.S. is already drowning in both.

Sara Wehr (widow)

Sarah Courtman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sarah Courtman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As an average 401k investor, I'm already at a disadvantage and this rule would make it even worse. If history has taught us anything, it's taught us that less information and more incentive to hide information always leads to bad outcomes for the public. Keep filings quarterly

Sincerely,

Sarah Colleen Courtman

Attorney at Law

56 Ethelton Road

White Plains, NY 10603

direct tel: 646-573-7685

direct fax: 866-777-0497

email: scourtmanlaw@gmail.com

This e-mail message is intended to be received only by persons entitled to receive the confidential information it may contain. E-mail messages to clients presumptively contain information that is confidential and legally privileged; e-mail messages to non-clients are normally confidential and may also be legally privileged. If you have received this message in error, please forward it back without copying, storing or forwarding this message to any other party.

Savannah L Brooks — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: My view on Rule S7-2026-15 From: Savannah L Brooks Affiliation: Jun. 10, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission: do you want to speed run a total economic collapse because this is how you speed run a total economic collapse.

SBTranscripts — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: SBTranscripts Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Steve Bray. Evaluation Manager. We tried this once, between 1955 and 1970. Less transparency came with lower returns and lower valuations. This is creating less transparency and the ability to go off the rails for six months before being found out. Bad idea. The information has to be collected regardless and the burden of reporting quarterly is minimal. You're letting the wolf loose in the chicken pen. Don't do it.

Scott Schultz — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Scott Schultz Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This is a Horrible rule. Since Brokerage House & Banks have Analysis all over Wall St they get to sniff out the losing companies giving them time to unload their shares. Small guys & Retail traders will get crushed. Or is that what you have in mind?

Scott Snare — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Scott Snare Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Robert Scott Snare, courier. My retirement is invested in stock. If the six month change is made. My retirement could disappear, leaving me not enough time to rebuild.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Scott Ullman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Scott Ullman Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Earnings should continue to be quarterly. In fact, monthly might be better. Better data equates to better investments.

Sent from my iPhone

Scott Walter — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Scott Walter Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep the quarterly reports, tells me the health of a company four times a year not two times. Lots of bad things can happen in six months behind the scenes that won’t be reflected in the stock price.

Sent from my iPhone

Shanan Bourque — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shanan Bourque Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Shanan Bourque I just retired early at 59. Not by choice. My wife is disabled. Now I am managing my retirement funds carefully. The funds we have now need to last the rest of our lives. Cutting the reporting requirements directly affects the information I need to make informed investments decisions. Please do not reduce to reporting requirements to only twice a year.

Thanks,
Shanan Bourque
225-772-5501

Shannon Brinkman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: photo shannonbrinkman.net Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a small investor I need to keep up-to-date on where a company is at quarterly Please don’t send us back to 1955. This makes no sense. Only the insiders will know what is happening with companies. Shannon Brinkman, owner of a sports photography business.

All my best, Shannon

Shannon Johnson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Shannon Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Hello I'm Shannon Johnson I live in Ohio. I'm retired with a disability. I think we should keep SEC reports quarterly because that's the only information people at my level can get about the stocks in our retirement. People who know people can go out to lunch and get inside information. We can't do that and we shouldn't have to.

Shannon Leigh Broughton-Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shannon Leigh Broughton-Smith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am Shannon Leigh Broughton-Smith, a homemaker, and my husband is a physician, with a retirement date of July of 2028 at age 70 and 2 months, chosen because our youngest child, still in college due to learning disabilities, will turn 26 then and no longer be able to stay on employer provided health care. The quality of our retirement and our legacy to our four kids will very much depend on the performance of our 401k retirement fund, and anything that creates less transparency in that fund both for us and for professional fund management will make it much harder for us to insure that our funds not be depleted during what we expect to be a long retirement, since both of us are health conscious individuals from long-lived families. We are not young workers just starting out, with time to make up for poor market performance. After 2028 what we start with will be what we have. My husband put over four decades of his life, working long hours and doing his best to improve the health and well being of our community, while I worked to provide a supportive and values-based upbringing for our two biological children and our two children adopted from foster care. Please do not jeopardize the years of rewarding retirement that we have spent our lives earning by making our investments less transparent with this new rule. Secrecy builds uncertainty, and lowers accountability, and is not a public good.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Shannon Leigh Broughton-Smith

Sharon Daly — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sharon Daly Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 44 years of being able to see quarterly reports should not be wiped out to HIDE status of our investments. Stop this bull* attempt at criminal activity and make companies continue to do quarterly reports.

Sent from my iPhone

Sharon Quass — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sharon Quass Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My retirement savings are invested in the stock market. I am all ready worried about fraud and corruption. Where this has been tried in the other countries, many are rolling it back and rethinking . Sharon Quass,retired.

Sent from my iPad

Sharon Schultz — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sharon Schultz Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 We need these reports to stay as they are. There is already enough grift without making it easier to hide things.

Shaun Fitzgerald — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shaun Fitzgerald Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This only breeds corruption, ensures that fraud will multiply in numbers and it creates more opportunity to fleece others of their money through said fraud and corruption. Which are the only reasons for its proposal. How disgustingly low, can one attempt to go? This will prove to be the decider. Great example of "A COMPLETE LACK OF ETHICS". I will personally start printing the posters illuminating this zero ethics position, the desire and lust of unsatiated greed by any means, unmasked and exposed right here within the plan. Does not make you bat an eye right? Well, people can make others eyes pay attention to this, if you won't see the errors of this proposal.

Shauna Martinez — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shauna Martinez Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Every 6 months?!? Are you out of your mind!?!?! That's b.s. The standard for financial accounting is quarterly. You make me pay estimated taxes quarterly so you should make big businesses report quarterly....but then again, you don't even make them pay taxes so..... This is just another way the big boys get the benefit of hiding while the rest of us little guys have to go all in every month or quarter with our reporting. A lot can happen in 6 months.
This is a bonehead move and you know it. This will open the door to financial ruin at the hands of the large businesses and the Government. This needs to be a hard NO!

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Shawn Kelly Whipple — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: shawn Kelly Whipple Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Shawn whipple. Claim Advocate.
This is important to me, to be able to see my information on a quarterly basis. Especially as I near retirement.

Shawn O'Doherty — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shawn O'Doherty Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 this is a horrible idea

---

Shayna Stillman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shayna Stillman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting helps guide investing. I am retired with no income and rely on accurate timely information to ensure I have enough money to live.
Less reporting allows those with billions to play games with the market and hurt individual investors like me

---

Sheila Altman — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Keep the quarterly reports From: Sheila Altman Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Sheila Altman Dispatcher/GIS Technician
Alliant Energy

It seems like you don't want the companies to be accountable and transparent...I wonder what you want to hide? Corruption is rampant! Stop being the villains and show us what is going on. This is so ridiculous at this point.

Concerned investor,
Sheila Altman

Shelby Kuenning — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shelby Kuenning Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 What a ridiculous idea. Investors need that information as it has always been done. Virtually everything businesswoman, nonprofit or profit, reports quarterly. A lot can happen in three months.

Shelby J. Kuenning

Shelley Bryan — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shelley Bryan Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Shelley Bryan
Retired-small investor (whose small investment matters very much)
As a citizen and member of the public, I deserve the open opportunity available through the SEC to know what public companies are doing. Simple.

Shelli Mendoza — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shelli Mendoza Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Please do right by your constituents & the USA CONSTITUTION

Sherry Wexler — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sherry Wexler Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dear SEC:

Allowing businesses to switch to semi-annual reporting instead of quarterly is a bad idea. It is an unfair practice that would keep ordinary investors in the dark while big institutional investors and CEOs would have the advantage of knowing what's going on.

For me, I'm retirement age though still workung and I have some investments. Seeing a quarterly report is essential.

There is no real reason to do this except to pander to big business. We need a middle class, do you know? If you keep feeding these wealth divisions, you crush the health of our country. Please do the right thing!

Cheers!

Sherry Wexler, Artist

Sheryl Weersing — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sheryl Weersing Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I cannot even believe that you would let companies hide their finances for 6 months. To me this says the SEC is encouraging fraud and willing to look the other way. This is only a be efit to these companies and not small investors like myself and my husband.

Sent from my iPhone Sherry Weersing

Shirley Osborn — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shirley Osborn Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Stop the dismantling of legitimate safeguards. Our country is being destroyed. Shirley Osborn 43506.

Sent from my iPhone

Sierra — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sierra Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Sierra Ortega, I’m a homemaker and my husband and I have some investments because we know at times like now this is the only way to not be losing money by holding on to it. Every day money is worth less. We need to keep people having as much information on their financials as we can- people deserve to have this available to us. Going 6 months between accessing financials is insane- no one would do not look for half a year at a time, who is even pushing for this? Who does this help to implicate? Because it isn’t the Americans with money at stake.

Skip Davenport — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Skip Davenport Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am resisting being completely sarcastic here because this is such an important topic so I will stop at being only quarterly sarcastic: Are you kidding us ???
Thank You All for understanding we see TRUTH and it is good.

Skye Barkschat — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: My view on Rule S7-2026-15 From: Skye Barkschat Affiliation: Jun. 10, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission:
i do hope that you will be able to understand that the cash you cling to so tightly is wuite literally turning into thin air under your selfish oversight! Sharing in this situation is a definite life line tthat you will have wished you had done after yourchefs, maids, and wives leave you for a more Sustainable position!

---

slloug — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: slloug Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I need to see what the companies I trust to grow my wealth are really doing. I need to see NOW, not 6 months from now.
Oppose this new idea.
Susan Loughner
West Lafayette, Indiana

Sent from my Galaxy

Solomon Messmer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Solomon Messmer Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly reporting is essential to US financial dominance. Without transparent and accurate data for investors, nobody will invest in US financial offerings.

Solomon Messmer

Sona Rejebian — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sona Rejebian Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The SEC must continue with mandatory Quarterly Reporting for companies/stocks. Such reporting gives shareholders and other stakeholders, a view of the status of company. As a retiree, these reports are critical, because I cannot recoup any losses in the markets.

Sona Rejebian
Sent from my iPhone

Spike Schmidt — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Spike Schmidt Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This can't be real. There is no upside to this, except for insider.Trading, corporate money schemes and malfeasance. Absolutely no way should this become law.

Stacey H — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stacey H Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 That looks like stealing plain and simple. Why would people want to invest in a company and not see what's going on financially. It dose make since but you want us to trust you with our money🤦🟫♀

Sent from my iPhone

Stan Perry — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stan Perry Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am against this.

Stefan Frisch — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stefan Frisch Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Stefan Frisch and I am a professor with a 403b for my retirement. Insider trading is already a huge problem in investing. This rule change would introduce more opportunities for insiders to abuse the system and hurt those of us that depend on investing for retirement to eat and have a place to live.

Stephanie Martinik — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stephanie Martinik Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I get it. You want to go to bi-annual reports to lessen volatility, to decrease reactionary but/sell, to take pressure off corps to have constant unsustainable profit growth. But that's a mess you made. A culture you allowed. A corruption of the purpose of the market. End the dark underside, end the short sell, end the prediction market gambling platforms but DO NOT END QUARTERLIES. A company could declare bankruptcy in 6 months and an investor would never know it was coming. Quarterly is barely enough time to react. SEC is supposed to support the investor, NOT the corp.
Keep quarterly reports.

Sent from my T-Mobile 5G Device
Get Outlook for Android

Stephanie Zeiler — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Stephanie Zeiler Keep mandatory quarterly reporting. Expanded “dark periods” will enable insider trading. Companies will have more time to hide losses and obscure price discovery while insiders sell their holdings to protect themselves. Sell-offs will increase market volatility, negatively affecting the pension / 401k funds of middle and working class Americans.

Stephen Foss — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stephen Foss Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep Q-10 as a quarterly report. The more information investors have the better.

Steve Blake — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Steve Blake Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Why go back to a schedule from the mid last century now?... Just when we are on the cusp of ai making (forcing) a re-evaluation of so many facets of business operations, performance, and real-world everyday metrics.. . [8]Speaking as a 69 year old, lifelong small business owner, this makes absolutely no sense to me. It seems to be a tactic to obfuscate poor business performance and confuse investors (both current and potential). This policy, if enacted, will have a chilling effect on both retail and longer term institutional decisions due to lack of accurate, timely information. With technology accelerating the world around us, we need more frequent performance reporting, not less. Thank You for you attention to this opinion! Stephen Blake, Owner West Fork Cable Company INC. & Mountain Digital - Hometown TV. cable7@breezeline.net. (304) 216-3664

Steve Desilets — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steve Desilets Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 We need to maintain the current visibility to what is happening to our accounts. The SEC needs to maintain this level in order to surface any corruption

---

Steve Hauck — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steve Hauck Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 As the owner of a small 401k managed by an advisor, how do you expect us to make rational buy/sell decisions if we have to rely on older data? Stop protecting the rich and start looking out for the actual voters

Get Outlook for iOS

Steve Oder — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steve Oder Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Make your report MONTHLY.

Steve Simmer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steve Simmer Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Investors rely on quarterly earnings reports to make timely investment decisions. Only insiders benefit when the information available to investors is reduced by half. Steve Simmer, individual investor. Steve Simmer

---

Steve Spencer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: steve spencer Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 There is no reason to keep timely information from the public on publicly traded companies. Please do not change the filing requirements

Sent from Proton Mail for iOS.

Steven Rojas — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: My view on Rule S7-2026-15 From: Steven Rojas Affiliation: Jun. 10, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission:
It is not fair to the people is not fair to everyone who has money on the line and wants a better future.

Sue Griffiths — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sue Griffiths To Whom It May Concern, I ask that quarterly reporting remain. It's important that shareholders get to see what companies are doing with their money and hold them accountable in a timely and frequent manner. This is important for many people such as myself who are nearing retirement and need to know how their investments are performing. Thank you, Sue Griffiths, Public Health Office Assistant, Tennessee

---

Sue Hendricks — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sue Hendricks Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I have been actively involved in the stock market throughout the last 33 years. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges. Quarterly reporting is necessary for transparency, and for individuals like myself to make informed decisions.

Susan Hendricks, Granada Hills, HR Suoervisor

Sent from my iPhone

Sue Lowery — Jun 7, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sue Lowery Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Susan Lowery and I'm a retired primary care physician. I've raised 3 kids who are all doing better financially than I was at their ages. They believe in the US economy and in Capitalism.
I help to manage the financial holdings of two non-profits in my community.
We need to have information often in order to make the decisions that are best for our goals.
Reducing the frequency of reporting will erode confidence in our economy.
Thank you for your time.

Susan C Lowery, MD
Pioneer Valley Chronic Illness Navigator
[REDACTED]

Sue Schmidt — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sue Schmidt Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 This investor wants my reports QUARTERLY.

Sent from my Verizon, Samsung Galaxy smartphone
Get Outlook for Android

Sunny Payne — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sunny Payne Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 NO! Bi-annual reporting is not acceptable The potential for bad economic news in the next 6- 12 months is significant and the ability to track it is critical. If you want to change reporting then make it monthly.

It's Always Sunny In Philadelphia! 😎

Sunny L. Payne

Susan Carter — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Carter Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Susan Carter, Manager and small business owner, as an economics major and MBA / Risk Management professionnel I follow many companies quarterly earnings reports and invest based upon ROI compared to the S&P along with other reported fluctuations. Investment spending is a key factor in the components of the Gross Domestic Product aka GNP / GDP. Along with Consumer Confidence, Investment spending is also dependent upon the quarterly reporting of companies who are on both the Dow Jones as well as the S&P. These days, companies also are very influential in crypto if they have any trading or investment in crypto. Although crypto currency and all of the items related to crypto are quite new and my economics schooling was quite earlier than crypto was introduced (at least formally) it is very important overall for any of the reporting to be transparent so that consumers like myself have enough confidence in some sort of predictability to exist for us to put our hard earned money into their resulting profits. Thank you for your time and I encourage you to also support this petition.

Susan Churchill — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Churchill Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Susan Churchill, investor

Quarterly reporting is important to investors without inside knowledge! Please keep it because 2x a year is not an adequate picture of companies financials. Thank you.

Susan Dettloff — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Dettloff Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We have seen enough corruption and freeloading. Keep the reports as they are!!!

Sent from my iPhone

Susan Klein — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Klein Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 All our investments should be secured and reported to us, the investors, quarterly to prevent fraud as well as we would have no idea what's happening with our funds for too long when things change daily under this tyrannical regime.

Sent from my iPhone

Susan Kraber — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Kraber Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I have been actively involved in the stock market throughout the last 44 years. I very much appreciate and value the quarterly reports of the companies that comprise my 403.B stock portfolio. I respectfully request that quarterly reports remain for those companies that are a part of the various U.S. Stock Exchanges. Susan Kraber, OG and Realtor [REDACTED]

Susan Lindstrom — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Lindstrom Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Agree with the 4 points. Way too much time to cook the books. If it hurts smaller companies, look no further for a reason, they live for failures and takeovers.

Susan Mindler — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Mindler Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Dear Securities and Exchange Commission,

I am writing to formally state my objection to the proposal to discontinue quarterly reporting requirements. Moving to a semi-annual reporting schedule poses significant risks to ordinary investors and the integrity of the market.

Reducing the frequency of disclosures creates a six-month window during which investors would effectively be "flying blind." A great deal can go wrong in half a year—such as failed product launches, ballooning debt, or litigation—and current laws ensure this information is surfaced quarterly. Under the proposed rule, companies could withhold negative news for six months, providing ample time for insiders to sell shares before the public is made aware of the situation.

Furthermore, less frequent reporting provides more time for financial fraud to grow. Major accounting scandals are historically enabled by opacity in financial disclosures. While quarterly filings do not prevent fraud entirely, they significantly shorten the window in which it can fester.

The "optional" nature of this proposal is also misleading. Once large companies shift to semi-annual filings, smaller competitors will face pressure to follow suit to reduce compliance costs. What begins as a voluntary choice will quickly become the new industry standard, lowering investor expectations across the board.

Finally, the supposed cost savings of this change are modest and primarily benefit company executives and legal teams. Meanwhile, the burden of poorer information falls directly on ordinary investors whose retirement and education funds depend on market transparency.

While insiders and institutional investors will maintain a clear view of a business's health, this proposal leaves the average investor in the dark. I urge you to maintain the current quarterly reporting requirements.

Sincerely,

Susan Mindler
Average Investor

Susan Rayburn — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Rayburn Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As investors and individuals who rely on our investments in our retirement as well as to provide for our children, we object to a reduction in reporting. An informed investor is a person who can manage their money better than someone who does not have sufficient information to make good decisions. Please do not support reduced reporting, and retain quarterly reporting!

Edward and Susan Rayburn

Virus-free.www.avg.com

Susan Williams — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Williams Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Susan Williams I am retired. It matters to me since their should transparency with my money.

Susan Williams

Susan Wimer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Wimer Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Why chance the rules unless they want to hide information? Do not change the reporting rules.

Sent from my iPhone

Susan Zimmer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Zimmer Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Susan Zimmer, I'm a 72 to Registered Nurse who is still working. Continue with quarterly financial results so I am not blindsided and can make the best decisions about my future financial situation. I am working out of necessity, and would like to retire someday. Make our system work for all of us

---

Suzanne S Darley — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Suzanne S Darley Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Absolutely horrible idea. We need to have regular accounting in order to be better investors. This will hurt everybody but the companies and hedge funds. We have enough dishonesty at the moment don't add more.

Please excuse typographical errors - message has been sent by IPhone.

Suzanne Stute — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Suzanne Stute Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need more transparency, not less. Six months not to report is ridiculous. The books should be available for direct inspection at all times.

SUZANNE THOMAS — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: SUZANNE THOMAS Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 A lot can happen in six months! Please keep reporting requirements at the three month level. The public needs to know what happens in public companies.

Suzanne Thomas
Retired
Savannah, GA

Sent from my iPhone

Sylvia Bryant — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sylvia Bryant Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Sylvia Bryant, 40 F, Nurse,
It matters to me to keep information public about finances. When companies try to hide anything that's a red flag there are bigger issues. Keep it open, to keep it honest!

Sent from my iPhone

Sylvia Foltz — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sylvia Foltz Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reports should be preserved. A lot can happen in 6 months.

It ain't broke, don't fix it.

T K — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: T K Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It is critical to investors to maintain the current quarterly reporting requirements for public companies.

Once every six months, as proposed, is simply not enough. We tried this once before, between 1955 and 1970. Less transparency came with lower returns and lower valuations.

For an ordinary investor, a return to those days could mean losing a third, or even half, of our life savings.

Going backwards, especially in our current environment, would be a disservice to all.

Thank you for preventing harm to investors, and businesses, by staying with the current reporting requirements for public.

Tony Karian, BSEE, MBA, JD

Tamara Gantzler — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tamara Gantzler Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Enough with the greed and corruption. I'm a teacher. I can't often afford to invest money. When I am able, I value transparency.

Sent from my iPhone

Tammy Munson — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tammy Munson Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 MY name is, I'm gonna call myself interested in these big companies an corporations should only be able to get back in my life and get back in my own life and have a good time with my family and get back to me and have a great day tomorrow morning at all the right data minimization and get back in my own ways to get to carry on my own ways and have fun with my friends and get to know what time you are going to be able to pay me back so I can stop by an check out my life and I am not gonna be in the system to get to the point of you tomorrow morning an I will not be there

---

Teresa E. — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Teresa E. Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 maintain quarterly reporting, it helps keep everyone honest
T Estermann

Terry Mosteller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Terry Mosteller Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Terry Mosteller, retired senior technical trainer, Baker Hughes inc. As a private investor, quarterly reporting gives me more confidence in the fiscal health of a company I'm considering as an investment. A return to twice yearly updates on the financial health of a proposed buy would make me reconsider making the purchase of a stock and would probably curtail my investing in stocks to a lower volume due to uncertainty about the health of the company. The current trust in the US stock market would be degraded to some extent, with too many chances to hurt the small investor with a return to the biannual system of reporting.

Sent from my iPhone

Theodore Zammit — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Theodore Zammit Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I believe in quartly reports instead of semi-annual. You need to keep an eye on the value. I will need to see signifiant studies to understand any change.

Sent from my iPad

Theresa Allen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Theresa Allen Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep it honest. Keep the numbers available to the American people. Don't favor businesses or politicians for 30 pieces of silver. Transparency is essential.

Theresa Petosa — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Theresa Petosa Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I do not understand the logic of this proposed regulation change. Companies would still be required to keep their books, and would still be required to keep their boards apprised. It would only be the rest of us who would be in the dark.

But perhaps that's the point. Third class passage on the Titanic seemed like a good deal for the little guys, until they found they were locked in on a literally fast-sinking ship. If the object is to save money, the savings seem minimal compared to the potential damage done to investor confidence. The actual savings from two less public filings per year would not be commensorate with such potential damage, with small individual investors and funds bearing the brunt of any market fallout as the perverbial "last to know". Like the Titanic passengers, what little guys stand to lose is a disproportionally greater percentage of their life savings and overall net worth than the big investors at the top. The cost of a company's decreased transparency falls dispropionately hardest on these little guys whose 401(k), IRA, or colllege funds hold the stock. And like the Titanic there assuredly won't be a lifeboat for these funds and small investors, potentially costing them dearly. The market is grounded in its "open book" policy. It is foundational. Bedrock.

Such a short-sighted move would wreak havoc and eventually destroy the free trading system from which we enjoy and all prosper.

It is only a relative few select elites, corporate insiders (and, alas, members of congress) who would gain through this regulation.

It would become the purest definition of "insider trading" and would result in a skewed market, with flights of fund capital moving into companies that maintain a commitment to tranparency through quarterly reporting. Their fiduciary obligations would likely require them to do so.

Fiduciaries would give way to a rise of unscrupulous investment managers claiming to have inside sources and information, as little guys look for an edge -- any light in the market information blackout handed them by the SEC through this regulation. Ask yourself what the market would look like if 401(k)s, etc., chose to only invest in companies that maintained their quarterly reporting voluntarily? And if that meant higher percentages of capital invested in European and possibly other markets? Shame on the SEC for even pondering such a move, much less proposing it.

If you don't remember the history lessons from October 1929, we can only hope you still remember the ones from the Titanic.

Shame.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Therese Eby — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Therese Eby Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 As a retiree who relies on investments in my IRA to live, I appreciate quarterly SEC filings and urge you to continue to provide this reporting to the public so I can adjust to changes. A lot can happen in six months!

Therese Eby
Redington Beach, FL

(425) 802-2281

Theron P. Snell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Theron P. Snell I use the reports to keep track of how my investments are doing, especially given volitivity. Getting reports only twice a year will hide effects of major economic changes and how they affect me, personally. I fear this move will add to ignorance and to mask corporate and Wall Street actions. Please. Continue to require quarterly reporting.

Thomas — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The SEC wouldn't be changing reporting unless they want to hide theft from our 401ks. Americans demand the government protect our savings by allowing more frequent information about our accounts.

Sent from my iPad

Thomas — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 I need to start my business to get to work since I'm not getting no money from new people. I gotta hurry up. I need to borrow what I can and God bless and due to my best interest to me I pay everybody back at all means or respect to that I pay my loan I paid my credit card when I had it when I was in the hospital I screwed up sorry about that. I will try to fix everything as soon as I can. God bless us all and thank you again. If you can do it great can't do it can't do it. I understand. Understandable no hard feelings am

---

thomas dilustro — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: thomas dilustro Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 More info more often is better! Quarterly reporting sheds more light on company than semi-annual reporting. Less opportunity for corruption in the light of day.

Thomas Llanso — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Llanso Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This proposed rule works against the public interest. Quarterly reporting can bring better transparency than six month reporting.

Sincerely, Thomas Llanso

Thomas Thomas — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Thomas Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Tom, retired, Don't mess with my 401k!!!

Sent from my iPad

Tim Burton — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tim Burton Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Tim Burton. I lost a lot of money due to Tyler Milton and Donald Trump. I worked damn hard for my money for 33 years at my job. We can't afford to live anymore. This government keeps moving all the breaks and advantages to their cronies and contributors while we the tax payer get damaged more every day. This needs to remain at 3 months. We lost enough money this way. Wall Street needs to start giving us breaks. We are literally dying. And that's exactly what the Republicans want. One day they will pay. Please don't bow to this egotistical narcissistic administration.
Regards.
Fort Edward NY
12828-4407

Tim Kluszczynski — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tim Kluszczynski Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting is needed. DO NOT CHANGE THAT RULE.

Tim Kluszczynski, retired.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Tim Nauss — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tim Nauss Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly financials should be the minimum standard to ensure that public companies disclose material changes in the operations and their ability to continue as a going concern. Changing this to a semi annual event in today's fast paced world would be a mistake and constitute a dereliction of duty and fiduciary responsibility that falls to officers and boards of directors of public companies. I implore you not to change the system that has served us well for many years.

Respectfully yours,

Tim Nauss, Independent Board Member.

Sent from my iPad

Timothy Thomason — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Timothy Thomason Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It's hard enough to be able to read these quarterly reports and determine what's profit, and what's tax cuts disguised as profits with the system in place now.
Allowing a corporation to go six months without reporting makes it feel as if your buying blind, and will hurt the markets credibility.

Sent from my iPad

Toby Zabinski — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Toby Zabinski Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep the reports quartely - that makes it equal and fair for everyone!

Toby Z

Toffler N — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: My view on Rule S7-2026-15 From: Toffler N Affiliation: Jun. 10, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission:
If you allow companies to skip quarterly reporting, you're giving a handout to insiders and corporate interests. And, trust me, they don't need it.
This hurts retail investors because they wouldn't have the same transparency without the more frequent reporting. That provides more opportunity and time to commit and hide fraud. Do you remember Enron?
Let's not go there again.

Tom — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tom Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 A strong and honest economy depends on accurate information is corporate quarterly reports. Business environment and performance change quickly. Twice a year reporting is insufficient.

Tom Glenn — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tom Glenn Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Tom Glenn, retired teacher With the availability of electronic bookkeeping there is no.reason not to have quarterly reports. Too much time elapses with 6 month reports causing investors a disadvantage if problems occur in the marketplace.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Tom Rottmayer — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tom Rottmayer Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Please continue quarterly. 401K reporting!

Toni G Miller — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Toni G Miller As a former accountant, I have observed Quarterly reporting is the norm. See no rational reasoning to change it now. Those reports allow for better monitoring and control by those with a vested interest and also a tool for making the best decisions for the future.

Toni Hansen — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Toni Hansen Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 KEEP THE QUARTERLY REPORTS!

Toni Jones — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Toni Jones Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Toni Jones/retired
Transparency has been the most effective way to keep companies honest when it comes to the finances! WHY, after almost a half a century of reporting every 3 months WHY DO COMPANIES WANT TO CHANGE IT???

Sent from my iPhone

Toni Jones — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Toni Jones Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Toni Jones/retired Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year?

Sent from my iPhone

Tonio Seven — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tonio Seven Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 It's not right to have 50% of the awareness about our funds reduced. Please don't allow this to happen.

Antonio Holmes - enforcement tech.

Tony Giordano — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tony Giordano Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I say NO TO THE PROPOSAL TO DIM MY 401K. A few reasons: People rely on quarterly information to make decisions; longer gaps create an unfair advantage for corporate insiders; "optional" doesn't fix the problem because companies that opt in are often the ones whose investors most need frequent updates; the savings to companies aren't worth the cost to you.
Tony Giordano
Howell, NJ
Retired

Tracey Gotham — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tracey Gotham Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 We NEED those quarterly reports!

a h<ref="https://secure2.convio.net/cffh/site/Donation2?df_id=1395&FR_ID=5086&PROXY_ID=1253257&PROXY_TYPE=20&1395.donation=form1&s_src=CHORUS&s_subsrc=CHAADOEB"><img src="http://widgets.ch-or.us/badge/convio/cff/5086/1253257">

Tracey Vivar — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tracey Vivar Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Virus-free.www.avast.com

---

Tracy Ayers, CPA, Cerex Advisory — Jun 7, 2026
June 7, 2026
Vanessa A. Countryman, Secretary
Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street NE
Washington, DC 20549-1090
Re: File No. S7-2026-15 — Semiannual Reporting (Proposed Rule)
Dear Secretary Countryman:
I am a Certified Public Accountant with eleven years of practice specializing in partnership taxation, complex syndicated structures, and high-net-worth client advisory work. I submit these comments in my individual professional capacity, in response to the Commission's invitation for public comment on the proposed amendments to allow optional semiannual interim reporting on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reporting on Form 10-Q.
I oppose the adoption of the proposed rule as presented. My opposition is not to the concept of reducing unnecessary compliance burden on reporting companies. It is to the specific mechanism chosen and to the predictable pattern of who will elect it, and at whose expense.
I. The Framing of This Proposal as a Burden-Reduction Measure Obscures Its Investor Protection Costs
The proposing release frames optional semiannual reporting primarily as a compliance cost reduction for reporting companies. That framing is accurate as far as it goes. What it does not adequately address is the asymmetric distribution of who absorbs the cost of that reduction.
Quarterly reporting under Form 10-Q is not merely an accounting exercise. It is one of the few remaining structural mechanisms through which the investing public, not institutional analysts with direct management access, not sell-side desks with proprietary data feeds, obtains standardized, filed, legally accountable financial information about the companies whose securities they hold.
The Commission asks in its economic analysis whether semiannual reporting would meaningfully affect the information environment for different classes of investors. The answer, in my professional judgment, is yes, and not symmetrically. Institutional investors have the resources, access, and analytical capacity to construct a reasonable picture of a company's financial condition from earnings releases, management guidance, 8-K filings, and alternative data sources. Retail investors largely do not. For retail participants, the Form 10-Q is the disclosure, not a supplement to it.
Reducing the frequency of that disclosure from three times annually to once does not eliminate the information gap between institutional and retail investors. It widens it.

II. The "Optional" Structure Will Not Produce Neutral Outcomes

The Commission has characterized the proposal as optional, with each company electing the reporting frequency that best serves its circumstances and investors. In theory, this is neutral. In practice, it is not.

The Commission's own analysis identifies smaller, development-stage, and speculative-growth companies as the likely adopters of semiannual reporting, specifically because quarterly reporting imposes relatively higher fixed costs on these companies relative to their size, and because their investors are characterized as focused on non-financial milestones rather than interim financial results.

This characterization should concern the Commission. Smaller and development-stage companies are precisely the issuers in which retail investors are most concentrated and least protected by alternative information sources. These are not the companies with robust analyst coverage, active investor relations programs, or frequent management access for large shareholders. They are the companies whose retail shareholders are most dependent on filed financial disclosures as their primary source of material information.

An optional rule that predictably concentrates in the issuer segment where retail investors are most exposed is not a neutral flexibility measure. It is a structural reduction in the information rights of the investors least positioned to compensate.

III. Earnings Releases Are Not an Adequate Substitute for Filed Quarterly Reports

The Commission acknowledges in the proposing release that companies electing semiannual reporting may continue to issue quarterly earnings releases, and asks whether this practice would mitigate investor information concerns. I submit that it would not, and that this question reflects a conflation of furnished disclosure with filed disclosure that warrants direct address.

Quarterly earnings releases are furnished, not filed. They are not subject to the same liability framework as Form 10-Q. A company that furnishes an earnings release and later files a Form 10-S that tells a materially different story has not violated the same set of obligations as a company that files a deficient quarterly report. The accountant review requirement, which currently applies to interim financial statements included in Form 10-Q under PCAOB AS 4105, does not apply to furnished earnings releases.

Permitting a semiannual filer to satisfy its interim disclosure obligations through voluntary, unreviewed, furnished releases, while characterizing the total disclosure environment as substantially equivalent to quarterly reporting, overstates the investor protection value of that arrangement. The legal accountability structure is not equivalent. The quality assurance framework is not equivalent. Framing voluntary practice as a substitute for mandatory obligation is not a sound basis for rule adoption.

There is a further consequence of reduced disclosure frequency that the proposing release does not adequately address: the concentration of material nonpublic information exposure into longer and fewer windows. Under the current quarterly framework, the period during which insiders possess material information that has not yet been publicly filed is bounded by a 40 or 45-day reporting deadline. Semiannual reporting doubles that window by definition. For companies that also cease issuing quarterly earnings releases upon electing semiannual reporting, the extension of that window is not merely administrative, it creates a structurally longer period during which the gap between what insiders know and what the market can price is at its maximum.

The practical consequences include longer mandatory blackout periods, increased complexity in administering Rule 10b5-1 trading plans, and heightened Regulation FD exposure at investor conferences and analyst meetings occurring in the months between filed disclosures. These are not theoretical concerns for practitioners advising reporting companies. They are the operational reality of a reduced-cadence disclosure environment, and they fall asymmetrically on retail investors who have no alternative channel through which to access the information insiders hold.

IV. The Foreign Private Issuer Comparison Does Not Support Generalization

Proponents of this proposal have cited the experience of foreign private issuers, which are not subject to Form 10-Q requirements and operate on semiannual interim reporting, as evidence that reduced reporting frequency is compatible with functional capital markets.

This comparison has significant limitations. Foreign private issuers operate within home-country regulatory frameworks that in many cases provide structural investor protections not present in the U.S. system for the issuer categories most likely to elect semiannual reporting here. The applicable disclosure regimes, liability standards, shareholder rights structures, and alternative information environments differ materially. Drawing a direct equivalence between the FPI experience and the likely experience of U.S. domestic small-cap and development-stage issuers electing Form 10-S does not follow from the comparative evidence.

V. The Public Trust Dimension

I want to raise a concern that falls outside the Commission's standard cost-benefit framework but is, in my view, material to the policy judgment here.

Public markets function on the premise that participation is accessible to the public, not just to participants with the resources, access, and analytical infrastructure to construct their own information picture independent of mandatory disclosure. The Commission's periodic reporting requirements are part of the structural infrastructure that supports that premise. They are not merely compliance costs. They are part of what makes a public market public.

At a moment when retail investor participation in public markets is at historically high levels, and when public confidence in the fairness of those markets is not. The Commission should be cautious about rule changes that structurally reduce the information available to the investors least equipped to compensate through private means. The compliance cost savings to issuers are real. The cost to the information environment of retail investors is also real, and it falls on a different population than the one that captures the benefit.

This is not an argument that compliance costs do not matter. It is an argument that the Commission should weigh that trade-off explicitly, rather than treating investor protection concerns as adequately addressed by the voluntary continuation of practices that are structurally and legally inferior to the mandatory disclosures they would replace.

VI. Reduced Interim Controls Cadence in an Era of AI-Assisted Financial Reporting

The Commission's proposal arrives at a moment when AI-assisted tools are being deployed at scale across financial reporting functions: in reconciliations, variance analysis, disclosure drafting, and internal control monitoring. This context is material to the controls cadence question, and I submit that it weighs against reducing interim reporting frequency.

Section 302 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act requires CEO and CFO certification of financial statements and disclosure controls at each interim and annual filing. Under the current quarterly framework, that certification cycle occurs three times annually before the annual Form 10-K. It functions not only as a legal accountability mechanism but as a forcing function: it requires management to affirmatively evaluate the integrity of financial reporting processes on a regular, defined cadence. Reducing that cadence to once annually, with a single interim checkpoint, does not eliminate the statutory obligation. It materially reduces the frequency with which that obligation requires active management attention.

This matters more, not less, as AI-assisted tools take on larger roles in financial reporting workflows. The reliability of AI-assisted processes is not static. Model behavior can degrade between evaluation points through updates, configuration changes, or drift in the underlying data environment without generating the kind of visible failure signal that would prompt unscheduled management review. A quarterly certification cadence creates regular, mandatory human verification checkpoints in a process that is otherwise increasingly automated. Semiannual reporting removes two of those checkpoints per year.

This is not a theoretical concern. Documented failures in AI-assisted processes, including in high-stakes professional contexts, share a common feature: the failure accumulated between evaluation points, in the intervals where no mandatory human review was required. Reducing the number of those intervals in financial reporting does not reduce the risk of AI-assisted error. It extends the window in which such errors can propagate undetected before a required certification forces review.

The Commission's proposal does not address this dynamic. The proposing release does not analyze the interaction between reduced reporting frequency and the expanding role of automated tools in financial reporting processes. I urge the Commission to solicit comment specifically on this question before finalizing any rule, and to consider whether companies electing semiannual reporting should be required to disclose the extent to which AI-assisted tools are used in financial reporting functions, and what human verification controls are in place in the absence of the quarterly certification cadence.

VII. Disclosure Quality, the Transparency Premium, and Foreign Capital Allocation

The Commission frames this proposal as a competitiveness measure, reducing compliance burden to encourage more companies to go and remain public, thereby strengthening U.S. capital markets relative to international peers. I submit that this framing inverts the actual competitiveness dynamic and that the Commission has not adequately analyzed the risk that reduced disclosure quality could impair, rather than enhance, the ability of U.S. public markets to attract and retain foreign institutional capital.

U.S. public equity markets have historically commanded a valuation premium relative to comparable international markets. That premium is not solely a function of economic size or liquidity. It reflects, in part, a disclosure infrastructure: quarterly GAAP financials, accountant review, SOX certification, and EDGAR accessibility that provides foreign institutional allocators with a standardized, legally accountable information environment they cannot replicate through private channels. That infrastructure is part of what makes U.S. equities a default allocation for global capital, particularly at the institutional level.

The proposal does not eliminate that infrastructure for quarterly filers. But it introduces a class of domestic issuers for whom that infrastructure is materially reduced and it does so without any disclosure requirement that would allow a foreign institutional allocator to identify, at the portfolio level, which of their U.S. equity holdings operate under the reduced framework. An allocator running a U.S. small-cap sleeve would need to check the cover page of each issuer's most recent Form 10-K to determine whether that issuer is subject to quarterly or semiannual reporting obligations. That is not a workable disclosure environment for cross-border capital allocation at scale.

The Commission's proposing release does not analyze this dynamic. It does not estimate the share of foreign institutional capital currently allocated to domestic issuers in the size and stage categories most likely to elect semiannual reporting, nor does it model the reallocation risk if those issuers are perceived as operating under a structurally weaker disclosure standard than their international counterparts in comparable markets. Treasury desks at reporting companies have already identified this risk directly: the operative concern is whether investors will continue to purchase securities from issuers whose most recent filed financial statements are six months old at the time of a capital markets transaction. That concern is not hypothetical. It is the question debt and equity underwriters will have to answer for every semiannual filer that accesses the capital markets.

The Commission should not assume that reducing compliance burden on issuers translates automatically into stronger markets. If the disclosure reduction causes even a modest reallocation of foreign institutional capital away from the issuer categories most likely to elect semiannual reporting, the net effect on capital formation in those categories may be negative, not positive. That analysis is absent from the proposing release, and the Commission should conduct it before finalizing any rule.

VIII. Index Standard Fragmentation as a Leading Indicator

The Commission's proposal arrives against a backdrop of accelerating fragmentation in the standards applied by major index providers to listing eligibility and index inclusion: fragmentation that is itself producing the kind of retail investor comparability failure the Commission's disclosure rules exist to prevent. This fragmentation is directly relevant to the question of what semiannual reporting will mean in practice for investors trying to understand the composition of the index products they hold.

The recent SpaceX IPO process illustrates the dynamic. When SpaceX and its advisers sought expedited inclusion in major U.S. equity indexes, index providers responded differently. Nasdaq amended its Fast Entry rule to allow newly listed large-cap companies to join the Nasdaq-100 within fifteen trading days of listing; a change that did not exist before this transaction and was adopted specifically to accommodate the listing. S&P Global declined to make an equivalent change to its S&P 500 inclusion criteria. The result is that the same company will be present in some index products and absent from others for an extended period, not because of any difference in the company's underlying characteristics, but because the standards applied by competing index providers are no longer uniform.

The relevance to this rulemaking is structural, not company-specific. Index providers are already operating under divergent eligibility standards in response to commercial and political pressure. The Commission's proposal would layer a second dimension of divergence on top of that: some issuers in a given index will be quarterly filers and some will be semiannual filers, with no standardized disclosure to index-fund investors about which holdings operate under which framework. A retail investor holding an ETF that tracks an index containing both quarterly and semiannual filers has no reliable basis for assessing the currency of the financial information underlying their exposure to each constituent. They are not equipped to investigate the cover page of each holding's most recent Form 10-K to make that determination.

The Commission's disclosure regime is supposed to create a standardized information environment that allows retail investors to participate in public markets on terms that do not require the analytical infrastructure of institutional allocators. When index providers fragment their eligibility standards and the Commission simultaneously fragments its disclosure cadence requirements, the cumulative effect is a public market that is increasingly legible only to participants with the resources to navigate the divergence. That is not a stronger market. It is a less public one.

The Commission should consider whether the semiannual reporting proposal, in the current index market environment, requires affirmative standardization measures, including prominent, machine-readable disclosure of reporting frequency at the index constituent level, before any rule reducing disclosure uniformity is finalized.

IX. Conclusion

I urge the Commission not to adopt the proposed rule in its current form. If the Commission concludes that some form of reduced-frequency reporting is appropriate, I recommend the following modifications be considered:

First, eligibility for semiannual reporting should be conditioned on the absence of retail investor concentration: For example, limited to issuers with institutional ownership above a defined threshold, or to issuers with market capitalizations above a level consistent with robust analyst coverage.

Second, any earnings releases issued in lieu of Form 10-Q filings by semiannual filers should be required to be filed rather than merely furnished, and should be subject to the same accountant review requirements that currently apply to Form 10-Q interim financial statements.
Third, the Commission should require disclosure in both the election mechanism on Form 10-K and in any investor-facing communication that the company has elected semiannual reporting and that interim financial information will not be subject to mandatory quarterly filing requirements during the applicable fiscal year.
The Commission's mandate includes investor protection. That mandate is not satisfied by characterizing reduced disclosure as flexibility, or by treating voluntary furnished practice as equivalent to mandatory filed obligation. I respectfully ask the Commission to address these concerns before proceeding to a final rule.
Respectfully submitted,
Tracy Ayers, CPA
Cerex Advisory

Trana Rogne — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Trana Rogne Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 No longer time to file

Trana

"The middle of the road is for yellow lines and dead armadillos."
Jim Hightower

Travis Fisher — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Travis Fisher Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 You are literally taking the insight and power of knowledge away from the common person and benefiting the people who already make far more money than most of us ever see in a life time. This is isn’t for the benefit of anyone but the rich and powerful. Nothing like trying to keep the working class from breaking through the glass ceiling.

Sent from my iPhone

Trish Waddleton — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Trish Waddleton Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Patricia Waddleton (MA) private investor. I want to know what companies I invest in are up to. Companies are not good at doing the right thing. 2008 is the perfect example of that. Give them an inch and they will take a mile. I implore you to not do this. Don't protect the Epstein class. Protect we the people. Thank you

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Tyler Dean — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tyler Dean Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Tyler. I'm a software developer. I like to invest and it matters to me that we, the people, have access to as much information about a company as possible. It's enabling insider trading to reduce the reporting from quarterly to semi-annual. This only hurt people like me, the little guys.

Tyler Stout — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: My view on Rule S7-2026-15 From: Tyler Stout Affiliation: Jun. 10, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission: This does nothing but hurt everyday investors, I do not think it is a good idea. Why change the way it's been, if anything there should be increased reporting. Do not put this through us my vote!

Vanessa Cox — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vanessa Cox Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reporting needs to remain. Clients need to be able to monitor activity.

V.Cox, retired teacher.

Sent from my iPad

Vaughn McKnight — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vaughn McKnight Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Vaughn McKnight and I am retired. I believe quarterly reporting should stay as it is. The private sector should not be left in the dark. Six months is too long to go without a report. Thank You

---

Velma Blodget — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Velma Blodget Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Keep quartet reporting.

Sent from my iPhone

Vergil deComyn — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vergil deComyn Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 My name is Brendt Hess, and I am a retired disabled American citizen.

Having less view into the operations of the companies whose stock I own and consider for purchase will make it significantly more difficult to make wise decisions on my purchases and sales.

Large investors have the tools needed to monitor the companies closely. Small investors, such as myself, do not. Please leave us with the information we have simple access to for investment decisions.

Vernon McGivern — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vernon McGivern Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Vernon McGivern, RETIRED. My investments in your companies is my money not yours. I have the right to know what you are doing with it.

Vesper Dobbs — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vesper Dobbs Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm Vesper Dobbs. When I was a teacher, my favorite subject was Civics, because I taught students how things were supposed to work. They learned the rights and RESPONSIBILITIES of good citizens. Do you remember taking Civics? Do you remember checks and balances?

This cloaking of corporate financials is yet another step away from our nation's stated ideals of equality. The administration is already grossly abusing our economy. There is no end to the depravity of greed they consider sport. Don't chip away yet another check on the manipulations of the mega rich. Stand your ground for the rest of us. Preserve the remnants of our republic. Maybe there's a chance yet that we can save it.

Sincerely,

Vesper Dobbs

Sent from my Galaxy

Vicki Boling — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vicki Boling Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Quarterly reports are important to the financial health of this country. We are all aware that the only people who would benefit from biannual reporting are the insiders. The wealthy.

Vicki Boling

Vicky Gray — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vicky Gray Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 No no no. I want my reports quarterly. How would I know if things were askew? If I was losing too much money or how much the account had lost or made. Please don’t hide this from me.

Vicky B Gray
Retiree

Sent from my iPad
Vicky Gray
302-519-5838

Victoria Phillips — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Victoria Phillips Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 You want to see people pull money out of the US stock market, try hiding companies' books for 6 months and see what happens. As a boomer with substantial stocks, I will reinvest in anything not controlled by this lame brain idea. I don't spend time watching what companies are doing with my dollars to be kept in the dark while they make bad businesses decisions that are reflective in their bottom line. Who on earth sits and thinks of these things to hurt the average investor. Oh, wait I have an idea.

Vicki Phillips

"Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it's the only thing that ever has." Margaret Mead

---

vien19647224 — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: vien19647224 Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 The small investor as well as the public are entitled to as much and as recent investment information as feasible. Six months is way too long. So much can happen in that time, leaving the smaller investor defenseless.
Three months has worked.

Sent from Proton Mail for Android.

Virginia Smith — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Virginia Smith Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Retail investors are already disadvantaged. The SEC should adhere to its primary mission of protecting investors, not making it easier for companies to hide information.

Sent from my iPhone

Vishal Ila — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vishal Ila Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Vishal, I’m a U.S. Citizen, doctor, and this impacts me and other regular investors significantly. It’s important retail investors who’s aren’t billionaires have access to the most up to date company information to make educated decisions about money in the market.

Sent from my iPhone

Vito Racanelli — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vito Racanelli Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 This would be terrible for the average person. I own a small construction company and myself and my employees retirements ride on the oversight of Wallstreet. They are already manipulating the markets and allowing them to do it even more is not fair to the average person

---

Walter Mosby — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Walter Mosby Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Timely information is vital to investors; anything the reverses that is backward thinking. Do not pass this rule.
Walter S Mosby
retired still investing

Walter Tarbox — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Walter Tarbox Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Walter Tarbox
Retail investor
I believe that in this day in age reporting financial information is of outmost importance. I feel corporations should be reporting more often not less. How can we trust a financial system when it is hidden?

Wanda Lovell — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: wanda lovell Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Our nation needs transparency at all levels. There should be no additional loopholes for people to manipulate. We the people are tired of politicians and the top 1% using every little way they can to make more profit and cost the people.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Wendy Peale — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Wendy Peale Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I am invested in stocks and want to continue to see what is happening quarterly. Twice a year is not enough.

Wendy Peale, retired

Sent from my iPhone

Wilbur Taholski — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Wilbur Taholski Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 Keep it the 3 months are u bringing to in more then u deserve. Im going to start with u even thinking about a stupid move like that.

Yerdarlin — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: yerdarlin' Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I can't afford to wait 6 months to be able to decide whether my investments need adjusting. No change to the quarterly reporting, please.

Yolanda Williams — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Yolanda Williams Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 We need quarterly report. We do not want insider trading influencing my future

---

Zachary Handa — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Zachary Handa Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 My name is Zachary Handa, I'm a retail investor and work as a marketing professional.

Having seen the disparity between quarterly investor calls and quarterly SEC mandated reports, these quarterly reports are essential for good faith trading.

Zachary Hart — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Zachary Hart Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Hello,
I am Zach Hart, an engineer a major defense firm. Transparency is key to monitor the health of anything, whether it be the body, a program, or company. The data shows our current mandatory quarterly reporting requirements has lead to stronger valuations. This increased value is tied directly to the trust created by the system we have.

I am against changing the reporting requirements of any publicly traded company on the stock exchanges. OTC securities, specifically pink sheets, is where companies that want to report less exist at. The NYSE is a different level of prestige that needs to be protected.

Best Regards,

Zach Hart

Zack Jones — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Zack Jones Affiliation: Jun. 7, 2026 I'm an American citizen. Reducing the flow of information to investors is against their interests and increases the risk of fraud. This is an obviously bad idea. I hope you choose to invest in the American public as a whole instead of the private interests of a few.

---

zeiglerdon63 — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: zeiglerdon63 Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Quarterly reporting should be kept for transparency sake. What is being hidden here?

Ziggy T — Jun 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ziggy T Affiliation: Jun. 07, 2026 Who, other than unscrupulous players who might benefit from hiding their corruption, could this possibly be meant to help? Clearly, this connects directly to the assault on the United States from within by domestic terrorists sitting in the highest position in the federal government. At least be clear that the intent is obvious - this will further screw the American people.

Abi S — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Abi S Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Quarterly reporting has been the standard for a reason. There is no reason and no excuse for cutting back on reporting in the modern era when access to timely information is easier, and more critical, than ever. This change would not offer relief to companies who have been reporting at this frequency for decades but it would put those who rely on accurate and timely reports at a disadvantage.

Thank you for your consideration.

Al Marklin — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Al Marklin Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Albert Marklin, IT Manager:
Quarterly reporting is absolutely essential to maintain investor confidence and protect retail investors against predatory insider trading! The burden on companies is minimal compared to the harm and abuse that would, (WOULD, not "could") be visited on the market.
A six month interval makes it far too easy to hide malfeasance and damaging financials for investors to make informed decisions. DO NOT ELIMINATE QUARTERLY REPORTING!

Alan Robinson — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alan Robinson Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Alan Robinson, private citizen, this is unfair to the majority of investors.

Get Outlook for Android

Alec Milnes — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alec Milnes Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Quarterly reporting is a pMINIMUM to protect the average, 401k/retirement investor. Anything else is pretty blatant self-dealing for Wall Street.

Alton — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alton Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This would destroy the idea of the free market, so why not do it? The public loses confidence in stocks just as a democrat comes in, isn't that what you want?

Amanda Genti — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amanda Genti Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 While there is already a great unfairness in the difference between the wealthy and the rest of Americans, changing this exact policy would only allow further divide for the wealthy to quickly a mass even more wealth tipping the scales even more in their favor. As we've quickly watched how fast corruption can occur in these current times it's of utmost importance to keep laws which promote fairness for all. I hope in your decision making you take the benefit for all Americans into account which would deny granting this exact ruling change.

Thank you for your time.
Sincerely,
Amanda Pennington

Amit Gosai — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amit Gosai Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 In light of the current state of affairs in the United States, it is concerning to observe the proposal to reduce the frequency of quarterly market reports. This move raises significant concerns about transparency and accountability within the market.

Quarterly reports hold companies accountable to investors on a regular basis, providing timely information that is crucial for informed decision-making. In contrast, a semi-annual report would result in delayed information, potentially leading to a lack of transparency and increased opacity in reporting.

Furthermore, reducing the frequency of quarterly filings may not necessarily lead to cost savings. Critics of quarterly filings often advocate for streamlining them rather than eliminating them, as regular reporting continues to serve investors and maintain market discipline.

It is imperative that the government agency responsible for market regulation prioritize transparency and accountability. By doing so, it can protect small businesses and investors from potential harm and ensure a fair and efficient market.

Pls do your job rather than serving special interests.

Thanks,
Amit

Andrew Bartholomaus — Jun 6, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Andrew Bartholomaus Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Name: Andrew Bartholomaus
Job: Systems Administrator and army veteran
In an age where data is cheep and precise, it makes no sense to create fewer datapoints for investors. This is a move for the few to profit at the expense of the many. People of this nation struggle to invest enough to educate their kids and provide for themselves in their later years. This is a move to hide valuable information from long term investors.

Anne Gausmann — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anne Gausmann Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I have had a business for 49 years. This is ridiculous. We need to know what's going on. What are you trying to hide?

Sent from my iPhone

Annie McLean — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Annie McLean Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Annmarie mclean, a consumer. As it is, the SEC has little power that it chooses to wield when it's obvious the president of the United States is able to brazenly manipulate the markets. Changing the quarterly or not, the SEC has no teeth and has allowed stock buyback to fix the game. The markets move like a multi pyramid ponzi schem Either way, crooks gonna be crooked

Anonymous — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Let's do more to protect people and their savings and less for Wall Street!

Sent from my iPad

Anonymous — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Investors need that 3 month data, to see how worthy the company is, and for proper analysis. also, 6 months is an open invitation for fraud. No to 6 months

Sent from my iPad

Anonymous — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Ethan, student @ belmont. As a retail trader, the information that companies give us is paramount to making informed trading decisions. The natural conclusion one could draw from reducing this reporting frequency would be to "cover up" for as long as possible any failures of the business model to allow the most uninformed traders (retail) to provide exit liquidity to insider investors. At any rate, any good business would have all of this information compiled by the utmost trained professionals in their fields. I really don't see an argument to limit the information, after all, this is the capitalistic land of the free isnt it?

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous I recently learned about File No. S7-2026-15, that would give all Exchange Act reporting companies the option of filing interim reports on a semiannual basis rather than quarterly. I am commenting now to reconsider those options and keep the reporting quarterly, as it is now. I'm a retail investor and longer gaps create an unfair advantage for corporate insiders.

Anonymous — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: Quarterly reporting From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Reporting is already questionable at best. Quarterly reporting allows changes to be made in a more timely fashion

Sent from AOL on Android

Ash S — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ash S Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Gaps create insufficient evidence to make informed decisions.

Transparency is everything.

Athena Contreras — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Athena Contreras Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 We need more transparency, not less.

Don't let companies switch to less transparency. There is zero good reason to do this.

Sent from Proton Mail for iOS.

Austin Wingate — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Austin Wingate Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 As a REAL, working American, I rely on my market investments to have a shot a not working until the day that I die. Market transparency is critical, and removing it puts yet another nail in the coffin of every day middle class Americans who don't have the ability to trade on inside information. Instead of the working class getting a leg up, this is another ploy to kneecap them. This rule cannot stand.

Barry Jacobson — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Barry Jacobson Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Why is it when things are going good they want to change the rules 🚫

Bert R — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bert R Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Quarterly reporting is essential to plot the course of the investments. What are they trying to cover up here?

Sent from my iPhone

Beth Tennant — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Beth Tennant Citizens need more transparency from corporations not less. Please reconside six month reporting. Thank you.

Beverly Hill — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Beverly Hill Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Beverly Hill, retired owner of a small business and grandparent. It is often different to see the trends and overall health of a company. Lessening the reporting to only twice a year makes trusting a company with long term investments even more difficult

Beverly Hill
Beverly Hills Landscape Consultation&Design beverlyhillsnursery.com

---

Bill Davis — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bill Davis Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Do not change SEC reporting from quarterly to every six months, this is dangerous and could greatly affect our retirement investments that we use to survive. Too many shenanigans can be hidden if reporting less often is required. This is a terrible idea that saves the company little and helps stockholders or investors not at all.

Don’t tell us it’s “optional,” either. We all know every company would switch to doing it less often if allowed.

If this is allowed, we’ll be suing the people in charge at the SEC who allow it PERSONALLY for corruption, for that is the only reason this change is being made.

DO NOT MAKE THIS CHANGE.

We’re watching you closely now.

Bill Davis

Retired

Blake Turner — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Blake Turner Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I am Blake Turner, a donor advisor. As a personal investor, I rely on companies regularly reporting their earnings, progress, and shortcomings. Transparency promotes good business practices and investment. It is essential that quarterly filing is a requirement moving forward.

Thank you,
Blake

Bob Carver — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bob Carver Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 We are retired and not investors, but we, like everyone else in our country, are at the mercy of the markets, and believe that timely transparency is critical to stable, secure markets. Please do not cut the financial report frequency in half. We already have enough opacity (looking at you, private credit).

Robert & Lynda Carver Palm Coast FL 32164

Bonnie Jean Clancy — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bonnie Jean Clancy Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 As a retiree dependent on my investments for income, I want and Need up to date information
Keep Quaretly Reports

Bonnie Jean Clancy 🌿🌺🌿

Sent from my iPhone

Brad Sinclair — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brad Sinclair Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 B. Sinclair, Warehouse Loader, USMC Veteran. Do not shorten one of the Public's only windows into corporate financial wellbeing. These entities have a great effect on the economy, and thus affect all of our lives.

#KeepItQuarterly

Brenda Marshall — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brenda Marshall Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is totally unfair to small investors and to those who have 401ks. No one should have access to info that would give them advantages over small investors.

Sent from my iPad

Brian Howard — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brian Howard Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Brian J Howard
Retired
As this rule change could be considered indirectly associated with corporate taxation which is determined by the US Congress. And as this rule could be considered not a rule change but a law. Did not the US Supreme Court rule that this change would be considered as a law and as such only the US Congress has the Constitutional authority to make such laws?

Brian Rose — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brian Rose Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Several of my family members lost their lifetime savings in the Enron scandal. Stop the corruption! Thousands of employees lost savings, sometimes life savings, while only 22 Executives went to jail. Families need protection from a current culture of corruption and greed.

Brian Rose

Carl Prestipino — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carl Prestipino Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Carl Prestipino, retired, living on savings invested in diverse companies and their performance. Up to date company performance is critical to know when to make advantage changes based on a company's performance. Otherwise, you're flying in the dark and subject to potential unavoidable losses.

Carol Smouse — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carol Smouse Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Why is this being proposed? It is to bilk the average person out of their money, to allow financial fraud to grow at a time when we have the largest wealth gap in history.

We pay our taxes for the services of the SEC, but average Americans will be in the dark. The already filthy rich coporate leaders and big investors will know what is happening, but people like me - a 66 year old single woman trying to manage my meager 401k savings - will not know if my chosen investment options are tanking, until it is too late.

This ruling sounds like more insider influence to make a few people wealthier, at the expense of struggling Americans. Who's "brilliant" idea was this?

America used to be a country of trusted government, with civil workers who helped average Americans. But everything that we rely on is being gutted. Meanwhile, the rich get richer and richer because of their access to information that I don't get.

My prediction is if you do this, Americans will lose more wealth to flow upwards to the 1%ers. And you will spark an American revolution that will make the French revolutionaries proud. Maybe this is why all the billionaires are building underground bunkers??

This is a stupid idea and I oppose it. KEEP QUARTERLY REPORTING!!

Carol Smouse
Still working because I can't afford to retire because my 401k was wiped out twice by manufactured crashes.
11511 Aberstraw Way
GERMANTOWN. MD 20976

Caroline Mirshamsi — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Caroline Mirshamsi Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Quarterly reporting is necessary for people to have confidence to invest, it should remain in place. Caroline M. PMP

Cathy Bodi — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cathy Bodi Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 We need transparency everywhere.

Cathy Smith — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cathy Smith Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Cathy Smith, retired teacher. The only way we can function as a country is if we have transparent agencies working for us. Since so much of the mechanism to hold accountability has been destroyed by this administration, we need to maintain whatever oversight we have left. This is yet another step in the wrong direction that will make it difficult to try to recreate a democratic form of government when we come out the other side of this nightmare.

Charles E. Willmore — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Charles E. Willmore Continue requiring quarterly report filings of corporate financial acvounting and operating profits losses and of insider readings and other legally required safeguards for those who invest in corporate USA public corporations Unless this vital safety net is kept the protection of and confidence of good faith investors could be shattered by devious corrupt public corporations All rights reserved in good faith Without prejudice Charles E. Willmore

---

Cliff Parmer — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cliff Parmer Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Cliff Parmer and I'm retired, depending in part upon the returns of my investments for income. In order to keep my portfolio performance at its best, quarterly earnings reports provide more timely information on earnings than the proposed 6 month intervals. The fact that some people will have more current information than the individual investor seems very unfair.

Connie Storey — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Connie Storey Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 There’s too much theft & dishonesty NOW. Why increase the ability to hide cheating?

Sent from my iPhone

Cristian Monterroza — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cristian Monterroza Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 As reporting becomes more automated, it should be made more frequent not less frequent.

Cristian A. Monterroza
[REDACTED]

Curt Fisher — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Curt Fisher Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Quarterly is good for Retail investors but it is terrible for companies. Because of the stock market reacts to any kind short term weakness companies insanely stupid things to hit quarterly earnings. So while as a Retail investor I like the visibility that quarterly earnings releases provide I also hate the value destruction that is done to hit short term somewhat meaningless report outs.

Sent from my iPhone

Cynthia Pierce — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cynthia Pierce Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is highly irresponsible and will further damage the full faith and credit of the U.S.A. It will speed up the hostile takeover of our economy.

Get Outlook for Android

Cynthia Pierce — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cynthia Pierce Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This legislation is highly irresponsible and will further damage the full faith and credit of the U.S.A. It will speed up the hostile takeover of our economy. Stop the grift.

Get Outlook for Android

D Jackson — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: D Jackson Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 To SEC,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to any changes regarding the current reporting requirements for publicly traded companies. It is essential that these companies continue to provide quarterly reports, as has been the standard for over 60 years.

Transparency and truthfulness in quarterly earnings reports are vital for the public. These requirements must remain in place to ensure corporate accountability.

Best regards,

Mr. D Jackson

Dan Michalko — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dan Michalko Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Daniel Michalko. We are retired and do not have the luxury of waiting out the market after a big hit. We need accurate quarterly reporting so we are not surprised by a company's results. Please do not permit any changes to the current sec requirements.
Thank you.

Darrin Bell — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Darrin Bell Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Darrin Bell, I am an individual investor and have been for years. This rule change will undermine the confidence of retail investors, we are already risking our investments on quarterly reports.
The only reason for this rule is for insiders to front run retail even more.

Daryl Davis — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Daryl Davis Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Quarterly reporting is actually the bare minimum we should tolerate since the folks in charge are able to take full advantage of the time available to perpetrate unfair practices as it is. There is no advantage to extend reporting time for any other reason. Please reject the proposal to go to longer reporting periods.

Sent from my iPhone

David Kirsch — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Kirsch Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 So there's really is only one question here. Have you been bought and serve the 1% or do you still serve the public. How you vote on this will gives us the answer. Only the corporations and more specifically the 1% benefit from voting to change the reporting requirements. I'm for the public, which side are you on? I'm hoping it's the publics. Don't approve this change.

It's not just me and the people I care about who will suffer harm from this, but people you care about that you may not even have considered who will too. Their financial security is also at risk if you vote yes to this change.

V/r
David Kirsch

Davin Anderson — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Davin Anderson Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This would prevent people from making timely decisions on their investments! Every business does this already and any attempt to delay would cost investors because this seems like an attempt to deceive shareholders!

Davin Anderson

Sent from my iPhone

Davis Hinkle — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Davis Hinkle Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 In these times it is important to have all the information possible to make informed decisions. It is important the SEC keeps its quarterly system open. Davis Hinkle, Retired

---

Deborah Kuchtiak — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Deborah Kuchtiak Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I have stock market investments. The quarterly reporting is a way to tamp down on shenanigans and make sure everyone involved knows we are reading and watching. Six months is ridiculously long to go with a news blackout. Sooner information is much preferable.so the SEC can intervene before things get out of hand. With the current administration, there is no telling what might happen. My name is Deborah Kuchtiak. I am a divorced woman with 2 grown daughters. I live in North Aurora, IL.

Debra MacKillop — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Debra MacKillop Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This proposal to let companies hide their financials for six months can lead to fraud, which we the investors will not know about or other financial issues. Why would the SEC want to hide this information from the public. There is no good reason, only bad reasons about doing bad things. I once worked for the CFTC in appellate litigation. At that time, neither the CFTS or SEC would ever propose something like this. I am so disappointed in the approach that federal agencies are taking with your fiduciary duty to the public. You are no longer decent public servants, nor do you respect government workers at all. They are the backbone of our country. You are dismantling our government agencies, on which we vitally depend. DO NOT TAKE THIS ACTION. MY VIEW IS ABSOLUTELY NO ON THIS PROPOSED RULE. Debra MacKillop, Grand Junction, CO Medical Research Assistant, University of Colorado, Anschutz Medical Campus. I expect to be able to see corporate financials consistently according to the present rule that has been in effect a long time, WITHOUT ANY CHANGES.

Demetrius Stavros — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Demetrius Stavros The SEC has previously conducted the experiment of reducing the quarterly Form 10-Q reporting requirement to a semi-annual frequency. It is ridiculous to think that the public deserves less information, especially in the current climate. If anything, given the availability of digital record keeping, calculating, and reporting methods, the report requirement should be more frequent than quarterly. At a minimum, do not increase the time between required reports.

Devin Westover — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Devin Westover Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is reduces transparency. I want to know as much as possible about companies I invest in. That comes from quarterly reports.

Diane Lebedeff — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diane Lebedeff Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Investors rely on timely information to have anassurance of solvency and good business judgment. Don't cut reporting requirements!

Diane

Diane Lebedeff

Diane Smith — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diane Smith Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 UMMM YOU CAN'T BE SERIOUS RIGHT?! ALLOW CORPORATE AMERICA 6 MONTHS TO HIDE THEIR EARNINGS?!!! YOU BETCHA!! THAT IS A TOTAL DISASTER IN THE MAKING!!! CORPORATE AMERICA IS ALL ABOUT THEMSELVES AND MONEY. THEY DON'T CARE ABOUT WE THE PEOPLE!!! DUHHHHH WHO'S IDEA WAS THIS AND WHY DO THEY WANT 6 MONTHS?! THIS IS TOTAL BULL!!! I WANT TO KNOW WHAT IS GOING ON AT A MINIMUM QUARTERLY SO I CAN KEEP AN EYE ON THEM. IF YOU ALLOW THIS YOU ALL ARE GOING DOWN TOO ALONG WITH MAGA. I AM SO SICK OF CORPORATE AMERICA AND THE UBER RICH STICKING IT TO WE THE PEOPLE THE WORKER BEES. NFW!!!!!! I CAN'T EVEN BELIEVE THEY ASKED THIS!!!!!! I'M SURE THEY HAD SOME GOOFFY REASON. BUT THE TRUTH IS THEY WANT MORE TIME TO HIDE WHAT'S GOING ON FROM WE THE PEOPLE.

Dieter Hanrath — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dieter Hanrath Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I am a small time investor and rely on quarterly reports to know which stocks are worth keeping and which to dispose of . Moreover I am retired , hence current information is important for me.
H.D. Hanrath

Dilan Ozusta — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dilan Ozusta Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Keep the corporations actions transparent! It's within our rights to see where our money is going in the stock market

---

Doug Carnes — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Doug Carnes Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Please stop ripping off the United States investor, consumer, whatever else we're sick of it

Doug Carnes

Elaine Cornacchia — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elaine Cornacchia Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is designed so americans can lose it all before they even know it? that is theft and due to the person controlling the SEC being controlled by the trump/maggat party - surely this is to corporate benefit only and designed to further fleece americans. - elaine cornacchia, paralegal and average american

Sent from my iPhone

Elizabeth Horn — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Horn Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I am a retired woman. My name is Elizabeth J. Horn. Title Mrs. I was a widow in 2013. Remarried. All I have is in investments. I'm not adding more. I need all the information I can get about the investments I have. Keep the reporting quarterly.

Erin Poh — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Erin Poh Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 It seems there are major changes that affect our rights in regards to our pension and investment funds. Private equity can extend their reach now into index funds, and it seems there are further moves to ensure we cannot see wether or not those making- and possibly losing - money off our investments are handling our money properly, and if they are making wise decisions. This is information we must have to protect our hard-earned retirements. Protect us- don't give them the ability to act with impunity with OUR money. We have a right to oversight.

Gage Fisher — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gage Fisher Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Gage Fisher, VP. As an active retail investor, I need regular reporting. We also need to give all investors every opportunity to make smart investments without favoring insiders.

Gary Furrow — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gary Furrow Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I'm fairly certain that you're creating another class of investors. If the large corporations have to do this only every six months then the small people should only have to do it every six months. It's more of Trump's [REDACTED].

Sent from my iPhone

Gavin McDonald — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gavin McDonald Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Gavin McDonald and I don't approve of this proposal. As our economy collapses due to the weakened regulations, wealth inequality, and monopolies, it's already too easy for those in power to commit fraud and insider trading. Most of Trump's administration has been insider trading. The result of this is that wealth inequality will only get worse. Now is the time for stricter regulations and oversight.

Gino Sinigaglio — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gino Sinigaglio Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Gino Sinigaglio and I am a pharmacist. As social security does not give much income and will be making likely reduced payouts, I need my 401k to retire comfortably and at a reasonable age. This rule will disadvantage me as a regular American from retiring on schedule. Please do not finalize this.

Henry Wasowicz — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Henry Wasowicz Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Henry Wasowicz, Retired. My life savings is tied up in a stock investment IRA. There are unscrupulus people. That can vanish these investments without a trace in a 6 month interval. Will the SEC create an insurance protection program as the government did for banking?

Herb Aarons — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Herb Aarons Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I am a small investor with a small stock portfolio. I rely on quarterly reporting to make wise choices on buying or selling individual stocks. I use "Seeking Alpha" which provides quarterly, income, cash flow and balance sheet information.. Without quarterly reports, I and all other small investors who ;purchase equities are flying blind. We become victims without current information, patsies to the insider traders who steal us blind, insiders including polticians, corrupt regulators on the take, felons buying & selling using insider knowledge. Why should we allow the SEC to become their enablers at our expense. The market depends on trust but verify", if the SEC becomes the enabler of fraudsters, the entire middle buyer of stocks will become their victim. There absolutely no reason to lower reporting standards except to enable the ubiquitous thieves...pump and dump boiler room operaters among others. DON'T SELL US OUT BY KEEPING US IN THE DARK, SO FARM THE SEC HASN'T SUCCUMBED TO REGULATORY CAPTURE, BUT THE PROPOSAL REEKS OF jUST THAT-- ITS A BAD FAITH PROPOSAL CRIPPLING SMALL INVESTORS AND COMPANIES SEEKING INVESTMENT WITH A FUTURE PROMISE OF LESS INFORMATION, 6 MONTHS LATE BEING AN OPTION

HERB AARONS
COMMUNITY FARM LENDER

Irene Duffy — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Irene Duffy Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I am an investor and options trader. So much of finance favors big money. A six month blackout gives advantages to the big fish and leaves “the people” behind and holding the bag once again. Quarterly reporting encourages transparency!! We need transparency!

Sent from my iPhone

Ivan Jimenez — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ivan Jimenez Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is a stupid idea

Kindest Regards,
Ivan

Jacqueline Bury, MBA — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Yahoo! Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Keep transparency for investors.
Jacqueline Bury, MBA

Jacqueline Bury

From my iPhone

Jake Skurka — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jake Skurka Corporations shouldn't be worrying about quarterly results. There is not enough signal and too much noise. Companies often do silly and harmful things to try to meet their earnings targets. It encourages short-termism. Companies should focus on running their businesses and the growth and innovation of the enterprise long-term. Investors should focus on anticipating what earnings are likely to be based on macroeconomic conditions. The following two quotes also encapsulate my opinion. "I think it’s a very bad practice to be in the game of earnings guidance, and it is a game" - Warren Buffett "It can often put a company in a position where management from the CEO down feels obligated to deliver earnings and therefore may do things that they wouldn’t otherwise have done." - Jamie Dimon

---

James — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 One more way we get to stick it to retail and force the gov. To use tax-payers money to bail us out of our Fraud!

James Alcorn II — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James Alcorn II Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Approval will limit and in some cases eliminate investment opportunities for small investors. The beneficiary of such approval will obviously be large investors or investment houses. The real issue is for those mega investment firms is to have more influence over market conditions (gains/losses)giving them an unfair advantage over the average investor. In reality companies should be more transparent and required to report their financial bimonthly.

Jamie Alcorn
[REDACTED]

James Verberkmoes — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: james verberkmoes Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Dear SEC, KEEPING THE PUBLIC in the dark for six months while companies are free to hide timely financial information if they want is not transparency. Only insiders would know what's going on. Martin Verberkmoes. Cascade Fire Wagons, LLC Roseburg, Oregon

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

JC Freedline — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: JC Freedline Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Jc freedline Production worker

This idea of allowing problems to remain hidden from the people that would be harmed is another blow to the population of this nation. Why does this administration seem hell bent on tearing down any form of scrutiny for these industries at the expense of the general Population. I urge you to not take this step

Jeff Schmidt — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Schmidt Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Jeff Schmidt. I’m a

UAW member. This change you are proposing doesn't benefit the employees! It makes it so we can't see what our retirement funds are doing so we can make needed decisions. The corporations that will opt into this are the ones that need more transparency!
Why are we always the ones taken advantage of? We work hard to be able to have a few decent years to enjoy before we can't!
Please don't pass this proposal!

Sent from my iPhone

Joan Zacharias — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joan Zacharias Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 To Whom it May Concern,
I am writing to strongly encourage that the quarterly reports which are currently required, be continued in order to protect investors. This will continue to keep investors informed on a regular basis and hopefully allow trends to be noted on a more consistent basis.
Thank you,
Joan Zacharias
Hartland, Wisconsin

Sent from my iPhone

John Phillips — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Phillips I urge the SEC to abandon this proposed rule. It will significantly increase risks to investors. Our stock markets rely on accurate information. It will make our markets more volatile. It will also increase vulnerability to fraud insider trading and market manipulation. The rule serves no legitimate purpose.

John Rowe — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Rowe Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Hello,

I am writing in response to the proposal set forth by the SEC and the Publicly Listed Companies which they are supposed to monitor for impropriety. This proposal seeks to limit the frequency in which Publicly Listed Companies are obligated to financially disclose reports that accurately detail the state of each companies' financial solvency allowing investors to infer that external or internal pressures are affecting financial solvency one way or another. This of course becomes even more difficult to do when reducing the frequency in which investors are affordedbinsight into the companies' finances while allowing much greater opportunity to "game the system" affording a handful of actors acting in bad faith to make themselves a bunch of money at the expense of everyone else involved and will certainly lead to greater losses which investors will be responsible for while none of the bad actors will be held responsible for impropriety. I disagree with moving from once every three months to once every six months and find it shameful and disgusting that the SEC is ostensibly colluding with those who seek to game the system and provide for greater opportunity to steal from investors.

Thank you,

John Rowe

John Sims — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Sims Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 John Sims Investor with Raymond James. I need my broker to have intelligent data to invest my money. Need quality quarterly reports. This is the 21st century age of information. Stupid idea.

John Tweedell — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: john tweedell Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 We need the visibility into companies' results more often than twice a year.

Johnny Kryptonite — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Johnny Kryptonite This is a shady proposal intended only to support shadier practices. I don't buy anything I can't be informed on. Instead INCREASE reporting requirements. /

Joshua Rodriguez — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joshua Rodriguez Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Joshua Rodriguez and I work as a hazardous materials technician. At 39, I have finally been able to buy a home and start investing in the stockmarket outside of a retirement account. Allowing companies to hide bad numbers for 6 months while inside investors dump their shares is unconscionable. I already do not have access to the same investment opportunities because I am not rich. This change will make investment even more difficult, and will lead to great losses from retail investors such as myself. Please, for the love of God, do not pass this bill!

Joyce Draper — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joyce Draper Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Do keep reporting to us, obviously some one has to keep tabs on you or you will take advantage.

Joyrobin — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joyrobin Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Don't make Insider Trading easier!!

Judith Wegner — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judith Wegner Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Keep CEOS honest.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Kare Agron — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kare Agron Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Investors need to stay informed about their investments for making sound decisions. Timely and transparent information is crucial. Let's ensure that all stakeholders, big and small, have access to quarterly updates. Thank you.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Karen Langlais — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karen Langlais Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 The public needs all the timely info it can get
We are at a disadvantage amd need support.

Karen Parish — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karen Parish Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 NO! This SEC rule will hurt investors and the public. There is no good reason to do this. As a small investor, this is information we rely on.

Karen Parish, retired

Karen Tilley — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: Rule S7-2026-15 From: Karen Tilley Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 To Whom It May Concern:

Quarterly Financials are a must to protect our investments! We watch our investments daily! Do not handicap citizens by allowing companies to hide their financials for 6 months at a time.

Karen Tilley
Small Business Owner

Sent from AOL on Android

Karthik Chowdhary — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karthik Chowdhary Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I don't think this is a good decision. Quarterly reporting should remain in place.

As investors, we rely on regular financial updates to understand how companies are performing and to make informed decisions about the future. Reducing the frequency of reporting would decrease transparency at a time when transparency is more important than ever.

We're currently in an environment where companies are making massive AI and infrastructure investments, spending billions in capital expenditures. Investors deserve to see the progress, returns, and effectiveness of those investments on a timely basis. Quarterly reports provide an important checkpoint that helps markets evaluate whether management is executing on its strategy.

Less frequent reporting may reduce accountability and make it harder for shareholders to assess performance. The current quarterly system strikes a good balance between transparency and long-term planning, and I don't see a compelling reason to change it.

Kasey Shue — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kasey Shue Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 EMPIRE INVESTMENT HOLDINGS GROUP AND YES I AMD THE OWNER AND CEO OF THE TOP HOLDING COMPANY ON THE MAP.
JOSH ROGERS AND I DON"T SEE ANY COMMENTS OPEN AND I HAVE A FEW ISSUES WITH THEM HIDDEN AND LIES THAT MAKES ME MISS SUCH ACTIONS THANKS

FUNCTION (C)

Katharine Corp — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Katharine Corp I cannot say I'm surprised by this proposal but dismayed, yes. It would be yet another strike against the People and boon for corporate. No matter how it's presented. It is another version of the false idol that was trickle down. The intention is not benefit to the People, but another built in structure to assure profiteering for the smallest percentage of players. True fiscal responsibility would look like, reduction in corporate travel and lodging/ vacation homes, various perks, WHICH would be more visible in quarterly reports, rather than semiannual meetups. How about we all just bang in annually, over Skype, from Bermuda? The People, the investors deserve total transparency in the management of their funds. This proposal in itself is utterly transparent. And anyone who rules in favor, will be putting their allegiances under the same microscope.

Katherine Dattoma — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Katherine Dattoma Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Why would you create a rule that hides information from the small investor like me? This is a terrible idea, unfair and designed to increase anger at the administration that does not care about all citizens, only the extremely wealthy.

Sent from my iPhone

Keith — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Keith Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 More usable ways to make it easier for me to make money online

---

Kelley Owen — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelley Owen Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 The Blackout would harm everyone who isn't an insider. I would not be making trading like I used to. This is a corrupt piece of, er rule. Name: Kelly Owen; Med. Tech.; This would harm everyone who doesn't have the inside scoop, and chill trading.

Kelly Benedetti — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelly Benedetti Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Less reporting equals less accountability, transparency, honesty. This is good only for the corporations, not the American people.

The citizens of America want MORE accountability, not less. Please do not reduce reporting requirements.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Kevin Quinlan — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kevin Quinlan Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 As a senior software engineer working on systems for the International Space Station being, I rely on data integrity every day. If we do not have timely, accurate telemetry, we lose confidence in the system. Financial markets are no different.

Reducing public company reporting requirements from quarterly to every six months moves in the wrong direction. Investors already operate in an environment where monopolistic behavior, political conflicts of interest, excessive leverage, and declining trust in institutions have distorted markets. Transparency is one of the few protections ordinary investors still have.

Over the last decade we have watched corporate debt markets inflate, fraud enforcement struggles increase, and retail investors shoulder more responsibility for retirement security while having less visibility into the companies they are expected to invest in. At the same time, many Americans feel economic pressure while seeing political and corporate leadership accumulate extraordinary wealth and influence. That combination is not sustainable long term.

If anything, regulators should be strengthening confidence in markets through better enforcement, clearer disclosures, and faster accountability — not reducing the flow of information to investors.

The public is being asked to trust institutions at a time when trust is already fragile. Weakening reporting standards risks further damaging confidence in both the market and the regulatory system itself.

Sent from my iPhone
Kevin Quinlan

Kimber-Lynne Conger — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kimber-Lynne Conger Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I do not consent to allowing companies in my retirement portfolio hide their financials for any period of time.

KM — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: KM Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Company financials need to always be transparent to the public! Shoot this rule change down

---

Krysta C — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Krysta C Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Krysta C. Business owner. Transparency holds all the trust. Integrity is lost when an investor is stripped of their rights to know how well their finances are investing/building throughout the year. Major losses can be avoided keeping it quarterly.

Kurt Schluter — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kurt Schluter Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 As an owner of companies, I don't trust management and boards to give them 6 months of unknown results and activities. This would be a betrayal of the investing public's trust. Hold them accountable quarterly. Kurt Schluter Retired from Simpson Strong Tie

---

Kyle Pigman — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kyle Pigman Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Please leave our 401k money alone. I want to enjoy my retirement without worrying. Thank you.
Sincerely,
Kyle Pigman

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Lawrence Heagle — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lawrence Heagle Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Lawrence R Heagle, retired teacher. There is already far too much corruption in our society.
The overwhelming greed currently descending upon us is untenable.

Sent from my iPhone

Leanne Robinson — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Leanne Robinson Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is unconscionable. How many more steps to a complete corporatocracy?

Lisa Cates — Jun 6, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lisa Cates Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 They are trying to force you into an agency to reinforce their lies. They are protecting Congress and the president from insider trading charges. They are making you complicit. Do not consent to this!

Lynn Deno — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lynn Deno Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I believe transparency in every avenue of life should be kept especially in business.

Sent from my iPhone

Margaret Thorpe — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Margaret Thorpe Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 There is no public benefit to hiding company financials, the insider trading will skyrocket, the members of Congress will become oligarchs, the average American investor will be harmed. Please do NOT allow a change to financial reporting, rely on common sense!

Marie Cassese — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marie Cassese Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 To the SEC
It is essential that transparency in company reporting that quarterly earnings reports support. Why should investors be kept in the dark about performance when company insiders will benefit from such data and be in an advantageous position to act upon it for their financial benefit. Maintain quarterly reporting.
Marie Cassese
Advisory Board Member

Sent from my iPhone

Mark Widmar — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Widmar Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Leave it alone.

Martha Derow — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Martha Derow Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This matters to me because the goal should be transparency, trust, and accountability.
Quarterly reporting generally,
* Gives investors, employees, retirees, and pension funds more timely information.
* Makes it harder for problems to remain hidden for long periods.
* Helps markets allocate capital more efficiently.
* Creates more opportunities for shareholders to hold management accountable.

Historically, many major corporate scandals were uncovered because of ongoing disclosure requirements and scrutiny.

Respectfully,

Martha Derow, Program Manager

Marvin Perez — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Marvin Perez This proposed ruling would be a disaster for small retail investors like me that perform their due diligence with quarterly earning reports. Having less data from companies (twice a year vs 4 times a year) would be a great Public disservice for small retail investors like myself and would only benefit insiders with private information that would currently be made public on a quarterly basis. Please reject this new ruling and uphold the current quarterly reporting basis.

Mary Curry — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Curry Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Quarterly statements only . No changing .

Sent from my iPhone

Marye Phillips — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marye Phillips Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 It is egregiously dangerous to double the time between the required reporting. Don't gamble with our economy this way. Things are already uncertain and volatile enough. We all know what corporations will do with less oversight.

Marye Phillips

Maureen — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Maureen Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Maureen Valadie, USPS, this will just allow for more corruption such as SpaceX and their "public" IPO, which will hurt those initial public investors.

Maureen Drdak — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Maureen Drdak Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Dear SEC,

WHAT THE HELL IS THIS!?
THIS IS INSIDER TRADING DRESSED UP AS EFFICIENCY!?
NO.NO.NO.NO TO TWICE ANNUAL REPORTING AND KEEP THE QUARTERLY!!!!
I NEED THE INFO FOR MY PERSONAL INVESTING!

Sincerely,
Maureen Drdak
Self Employed Vidual Artist/Semi Retired

Get Outlook for Android

Melissa LaBonte — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Melissa LaBonte Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Melissa LaBonte
Retired
What will you do when small investors are gone from our stock market because they are closed out of meaningful data? Why is it so difficult to be equal in terms of providing appropriate information? You really prefer disadvantages to be rife for would be investors? They will simply remove their money and invest in other things.

Sent from my iPhone

Michael UA — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael UA Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This kind of stupidity is why I WON'T invest!

Miles Toder — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Miles Toder Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 No reporting means no more investing. Why should we when we have better options.

Get Outlook for iOS

Miriam Berkley — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Miriam Berkley Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Transparency is important for accountability, and both are important for just and honest dealings and the protection of us all.

Miriam Berkley

Molly — Jun 6, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Molly Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 In this age of fraud, why would a government made to protect its people allow our (already overburdened with privileges we the people do not enjoy) corporations to be even less accountable? No to this.

Nancy Caton — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Caton Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 While I don’t want corporations to use quarterly earnings as the measurement for bonuses because it’s too short sighted, I do believe in transparency for public corporations. Quarterly earnings as well as annual audits should be mandated for all public corporations.

- Full time controller with equal experience in capital markets.

Sent from my iPad

Nanette Nilssen — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Nanette Nilssen Dear SEC, Please remember your job is to monitor stock market trades for illegal activity and to keep the public informed. The public deserves accurate and timely information regarding all of their investments. Your obligation is to the public, not wealthy CEO's and brokers. Do not be just another sellout government agency. Nanette Nilssen, commoner with a retirement account.

Nicholas Connor — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nicholas Connor Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Nick, sde, occasional daytrader.

I can't imagine any reasons which are in the public interest for less transparency. It is hard to imagine the reduction in administration fees outweighing the cost of fraud, and I think this will damage trust in the American stock market leading to poorer performance overall. Perhaps there will be some winners, but it is a race to the bottom.

I can diversify. Invest less in America. I think that will be my answer, and many others' answers.

Nicholas Whelan — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nicholas Whelan Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Faith in our financial markets is the bedrock of our society. A reduction in reporting requirements undermines that.

Nick Jessen — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nick Jessen Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 The risks this will impose on the savings and earnings of hard-working American Individuals is far too great. Do not hand anyone a fastpass to the market.

Nick Matthews — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nick Matthews Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Nick , PT/Musician This and hundreds of other issues can only be addressed and remedied in a timely fashion if progressives take charge ie FDR. Middle of the road dems are too entwined in our system to radically change the tax code, end bribery of " elected" officials, prioritize public education and focus emergently on climate change. Dem voters need to go left but being afraid to lose to fascism again will repeat Clintons, Obama, Biden for a very slow tragectory toward FDR leadership. usa.

Oliver Davis — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Oliver Davis Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Oliver Davis financial advisor
Let smaller companies report semi annually or even annually but keep big companies reporting quarterly. There should be a size cutoff so private companies don't stay private longer to avoid the extra cost of reporting

---

Pamela Birmingham — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pamela Birmingham Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Pamela Birmingham, .Independent investor. Please keep reporting as it is. Changing it to a longer period of time of would allow nefarious actions.

Pamela Postma — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pamela Postma Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Do NOT remove the quartelu reporting requirement for public companies. More frequent reporting reduces the information gap ofor insiders and politicians - ALL of which are occurring more frequently. The Commission should retain quarterly reporting to preserve market transparency, maintain continuous corporate discipline, and minimize information asymmetry between insiders and retail investors. Replacing this framework with a semi-annual model would create data vacuums that heighten market volatility, increase the cost of capital, and expand opportunities for speculative rumors and insider trading. The root cause of short-termism is not the reporting frequency itself, but the practice of forward-looking earnings guidance, which companies can independently choose to eliminate while maintaining vital quarterly disclosures

Pamela Postma

Pat Turner — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pat Turner Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 The only reason I trust and invest in the U.S. stock market is because of transparency through quarterly earnings and guidance. Without those I'm flying blind and could crash. This would more than likely cause me to withdraw my investment in the market I could no longer follow closely.
Sincerely Richard Turner

Live and love

Paul Fussell — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Paul Fussell Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Paul Fussell, Business Systems Analysis
In the current climate of distrust of government and regulatory bodies, making this change only weakness public trust (and thus confidence in the market as a whole)

Get Outlook for Android

Paul J. Zachow — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Paul J. Zachow Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is a company's RESPONSIBILITY, after all! Anything less is unethical, inappropriate, unprofessional, and irresponsible!

I have a right and we ALL have the right to know what is going on financially with companies at ALL times----NO excuses and NO exceptions---ALWAYS! This is only JUST and only RIGHT, after all!
Paul J. Zachow

Paul West — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Paul West Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 In this age of immense wealth disparity in our society, we need as much opportunity for accountability as can be reasonably expected. SEC should be a guardian of this, and not be party to an action that will have the reverse effect for stockholders on the more modest end of the wealth spectrum. Please maintain quarterly reporting.

Sent from my iPhone

Paul Zachow — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Paul Zachow Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I have a right and we ALL have the right to know what is going on financially with companies at ALL times----NO excuses and NO exceptions---ALWAYS! This is only JUST and only RIGHT, after all!
Paul J. Zachow

Philip John — Jun 6, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Philip John Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Public companies already hide too much. Plus they can create offerings overnight. Dilute shares whenever they want.
We need to tighten scrutiny and regulations, not make it more lax. Instead of quarterly, make it monthly reporting with a mandatory press release of all relevent updates.

Preston Houser — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Preston Houser Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 No.
This is not a good idea and will only encourage fraud.

Sincerely,
Preston Houser

Rachael Johnson — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rachael Johnson Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Rachael Johnson Musician Manager

We need more information, more light, not less. Keep it at 3 months.

Rachael Peterson — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rachael Peterson Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Rachael Peterson and I am a retired teacher. I rely heavily on the quarterly reports to manage my retirement accounts. Doing away with quarterly reports puts undo pressure on individual investors and places them and their retirement accounts in an extremely risky position. I do not want to see the end of quarterly reporting!

Sent from my iPhone

Ray Underwood — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ray Underwood Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Ray Underwood, Architect
This sounds like you are trying to keep us small investors out of the loop.
I can guarantee that you have no intention of keeping large investors uninformed. Just another attempt to keep us regular people poor so the rich can get richer. Disgusting.

Raymond Engelman — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Raymond Engelman Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Keep it open. I have children who have yet to get their eyes 👀 on this information!

Ray L. Engelman
Disabled frmr Web Application & Software/Network Specialist

Sent from my iPhone

Raymond Engelman — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Raymond Engelman Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 People will not be comfortable investing their money if they only see a report only twice per year, imho.

Sent from my iPhone

Rebecca Hoepcke — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rebecca Hoepcke Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 No to increased opportunities for fraud and malfeasance.

Sent from my T-Mobile 5G Device
Get Outlook for Android

Richard Burke — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Richard Burke Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Richard Burke CEO DilutionWatch.com

There is a reason we have these details be apparent, its to keep the people in these businesses honest and keep track of what is essentially OUR COMPANY. We own shares of a company and its OURS. How dare you tell us you don't feel like reporting to your shareholders. Seems only dishonest people, or companies with something to hide would want something like this.

Rick Burns — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rick Burns Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Please do not allow reduced filings. As a retiree who regularly tracks investments, I rely on this information and wish it was published more frequently, not less

Rick Burns

Rob Mills — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Rob Mills Making this proposal after gutting the SEC & IRS is an awfully convenient “next” change in favor of/support of corruption. Remember Enron b/c iftthis is approved it will be that times 1000. Trump SEC toadies are trying to turn the Federal Government & its oversight independent agencies to make them run like a TRUMP Corporation & head straight for hiding corrupt actions & collapse companies as his companies always have done, all while bilking contractors & investors. Let's not forget the many lawsuits, bankruptcies, & crimes that have been discovered associated with Trump, this will only extend that corruption umbrella opportunity to other CEO's & corps. As an investor I want more & better transparency; I want to make well informed & time sensitive decisions based on information that is material to investors and that can only be supported via the tool of quarterly reporting.

Robert Frambs — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Robert Frambs Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This action would harm the small investor as the insiders will be given more time to hide their moves from the public. Big money will get another gift that they don't need. I say vote no.
Robert A Frambs

Sent from my iPad

Roberta Echelson — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Roberta Echelson Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 NO. NO.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Rosemary Kirlin — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rosemary Kirlin Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Those quarterly reports are important for banks & others who do business with those corporations to ensure corporate financial soundness. Some companies can change dramatically in 6 months. Quarterly reporting promotes public knowledge of financial stability in corporate activity . Quarterly reporting is also necessary for financial regulation. It helps secure the financial stability of our country. I support requiring quarterly reporting and continued government oversight of financial activity. The government wants American investment. Investors want facial stability and dependable government oversight of the corporations that are traded on our markets.

From Rosemary Kirlin
Investor
Des Moines, Iowa

Russell Frankel — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Russell Frankel Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Please do not change corporate reporting requirements to semi-annual from quarterly. Reducing the reporting requirement will hurt the public by obscuring poor performance and fraud while insiders can cash out before retail investors catch wind of problems. Russell Frankel, Retail Investor Sioux Falls, SD

Sabniveesu Shashank — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sabniveesu Shashank Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 It is a regrettable move to reduce the transparency of public companies by increasing the gap between disclosures to 6 months. This reduces reporting burden and also accountability which is unwelcome. We should keep the current 3 month reporting undisturbed. -- Shashank S

We’ve created the greatest collection of shared knowledge in history. Help protect Wikipedia. Donate now: https://donate.wikimedia.org

---

Sally Sheldon — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sally Sheldon Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 It's OUR MONEY! I want my reports to be quarterly and SEC has NO RIGHT to stop that!!

Samantha Riffe — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Samantha Riffe Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Samantha, RN. Have you not been allowed to rob us enough? This ridiculous move will hurt everyone with a 401k. Unless you already have substantial family wealth, or have been blessed enough to have made enough money to be comfortable, then this is yet another money grab for the billionaires. Have they not fleeced us enough over the last 40 years. Now you're just treating Americans like we are a corporation that is going out of business. Selling off what you can for profit while destroying lives. I would ask if any of you have any shame, but I already know the answer. You will destroy what tiny bit of savings I have left, for your greed and corruption. I just hope sooner than later that you face actually justice. Then the prison terms you desperately deserve.

Samuel Young — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Samuel Young Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Sam. I work in data analytics at a credit union in Virginia. I am an investor with retirement accounts as well as other stocks I have bought and sold. I am gravely concerned at this proposal to allow companies this level of leniency. There is far too great the opportunity for insider trading. With this time frame a half year can change a lot. Hide a lot. There is absolutely no inventive or positive outcome of this measure for me or any other investor for that matter. If this measure passes I will have lost all faith in the decision making of the SEC. It would bring into question the quality of our future. The only benefits will be for companies who feel the need to hide the reporting. The cost of quarterly vs bi annual is negligible at best. Do the right thing for your country. Do the right thing in general.

Sent from my iPhone

Scott Walker — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Scott Walker Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 I'm against it bad for lower c las great for the rich to get richer its not fair

---

Scratch — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Scratch Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This would ruin the American investing market and create deception among the American people this is not ok I am a student and I want to graduate in a world where we can invest without being worried that companies are hiding

---

Sean Snodgrass — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sean Snodgrass Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is a comment on switching companies away from quarterly reporting, to semi-annually. We need transparency. We need insight as retail investors, into what companies are doing with publicly raised funds, achieved through our retirement accounts. Our lives in old age depend on it.

Sean True — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sean True Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Our markets depend on transparency. This does not improve that.

Sent from my iPhone

Sharon Sprouse — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sharon Sprouse Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My husband and I follow our wall street portfolios closely. You have no right to exclude us from viewing our retirement income!

Sharron Hope — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sharron Hope Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Keep the quarterly. Transparency in activities is important.

Shelley Caldwell — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shelley Caldwell Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Shelley Caldwell. I retired after 30 years at the national office of (then) Boys Scouts of America; my last two positions there were Editor and Director of Graphic Production.

Retirement has brought new challenges, including managing my pension portfolio. I've always worked best with words and images rather than numbers; it's clear that I didn't inherit my father's accounting skill as an IRS agent.

He taught me enough that I can keep a fairly accurate grasp of my pension and 403b accounts, but I rely heavily on the quarterly reports from my investments.

I've done pretty well at that, but it's going to be a lot harder if I get only two reports a year.

Please help an old lady out, and as my representative, keep the quarterly reporting standard.

Thank you.

Sheri Hall — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sheri Hall Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is so blatantly ridiculous the only reason it's even being considered is greed. There is no reasonable expectation that this will benefit any but nefarious actors.

Shirley A Dull — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shirley A Dull Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 You people must be insane. You already allow insider trading. The SEC IS THERE TO PROTECT THE INVESTING PUBLIC.

ARE YOU GOING TO ELIMINATE 8Ks too???

Julie Dull MAcc CPA

Sent from my iPad

Stefanie Reagan — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stefanie Reagan Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is a joke. An attempt at creating a deeper division amongst those with and those without in this country. To give rich investors, and companies to more access than regular individuals and it is blatantly disregarding the small investors on purpose so those with the money can make more. Pure greed and it harms more people than it helps.

Essentially you are coming out into the open and saying it by

Stefanie Reagan

Steffen Guenzel — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steffen Guenzel Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Dear Sir or Madam,

Continue requirement for quarterly reporting. If change is needed, then think about the format: quarterly should be a dashboard type overview and, in addition, there can be a bi-annual regular reporting as it is now.

Sincerely,
Steffen Guenzel

Steven Kiel — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steven Kiel Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Steven, retail manager. Reporting should be within 72 hours. This isn't the 1800s by pigeon or smoke signals, we are taking iPhone pictures of the moon. Why can the elite do their business and hide it? They buy, let 5he business grow, when we finally can see it - they sell!! Don't let the transparency become even murkier!!

Susan Moore — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Moore Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Stop giving rich criminals more leverage.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Suzanne Gould — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Suzanne Gould Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is not the legislation that encourages people to invest in corporations. It is more of the same cheating business that gave us an end to Jo Ann's Fabrics, and other favorite places that were raided, pillaged and then closed . We are sick of Wall Street shoving a knife into the heart of consumers. Do not support this legislation.

Tamara VanMiddlesworth — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tamara VanMiddlesworth Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Tamara Vanmiddlesworth
Pricing Coordinator.
It effects the world economy.

Tanner Balluff — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tanner Balluff Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Tanner Balluff, I'm a software engineer and a retail investor, I rely on quarterly reporting to keep track of my entire financial future, from the trades I make to the status of my RSU's and IRA. I was trained in Information Security, Policy, & Management at Carnegie Mellon University and my degree gave me a deep background in how good governance prevents insider threats and fraud. The only reason to do this is to weaken transparency and public trust on purpose, destabilizing organizations and the market.

Tanya Zaccone — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tanya Zaccone Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Tanya Zaccone. This is just another scheme to obscure dealings. Why three months to six months? One reason. To hide malfeasance. It's the time for American institutions to have more transparency, not less.

Sent from my iPhone

Terry Lee Derrick — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Terry Lee Derrick Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is another way to rig the system. People are already fed up with it. It's bad for democracy and transparency.

Theodore Manzanares — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Theodore Manzanares Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 The life of the world ?? And and looking forward to what's coming in the end of the years and next year . I want to be able to work with the people not against the people or the businesses and with the countries and to let everyone know that it's not about the money that it's about the people to get them involved and stand up and speak up cuz everyone has a voice I've always believed that we should all be treated equal and I think that why we live this life and I see so many people out there struggling and trying the best they can I think the most important is family and loyalty loyalty is the my one concern when it comes to doing business and for the people and hopefully I could make a change not only for myself but for the world thank you. Thankyou Theodore Sisto Manzanares

---

Thomas Blaney — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Blaney Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 No blackouts!

Sent from Proton Mail for iOS.

Thomas M. Deboni — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Thomas M. Deboni Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 In these times of oligarchy, political dishonesty, economic collapse, wanton warfare, cultish demagoguery, technological upset, and environmental destruction, failure to provide true and timely information to investors of all ranks and sizes would be the final straw dropped upon the back of civilization. Do NOT let that happen!

Thomas M. Deboni
Enfield NH
Sent from my iPad

Timothy M. Hayes — Jun 6, 2026
I write to inform the Staff of my opposition to the Commission's proposal to permit reporting companies to cease quarterly reporting, as described below. All investors, including those who typically do not trade securities in the short term, benefit from being able to view company results from mostly contemporaneous reporting periods. Under current rules, Forms 10-Q are typically available about 30 days after a reporting period; this misguided proposal would create a twice-annually information gap period of at least 90 days.
I am a (happily) retired former corporate counsel whose clients included reporting companies. Now, as an investor, I and all other investors benefit from quarterly reporting to enable investors to make informed investment decisions. For example, I routinely review Management's Discussion & Analysis especially in times of market upheaval. The most recent MD&A is also useful for assessing liquidity and capital when I consider investing in or disposing of fixed income securities.

While the advocates for this proposed rule argue that it will reduce expenses and create focus on longer-term investment horizons, I have a vastly different view:
• The United States has a well-deserved, stellar reputation for open and fair securities markets with robust disclosure framework, which will be eroded as reporting companies are tempted to save a few basis points in an expense line-item by delaying a periodic report.
• Investors will be "in the dark" about important company developments for extended periods of time when quarterly reports are missing.
• Rumors, speculation, and innuendo from unscrupulous secondary market traders can fill an information void in the absence of accurate, timely information, thus emboldening speculators and actually leading to greater market volatility in the short term.
• Management presentations filling a 10-Q reporting void may become 'pitch' documents not presenting a complete picture for an investor to be able to form an informed view about a reporting company.
• Over time, investors will begin to view U.S. securities markets as tilted in favor of insiders and those who have special access to information that the public doesn't have.
This ill-advised proposal is a solution in search of a nonexistent problem, and would result in less transparency and greater market volatility. I urge the Commission to reject this intuitive.
Respectfully,
Timothy M. Hayes

Tommy Becker — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tommy Becker Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 That matters more than any specific argument. A few angles that work: (1) you rely on quarterly information to make decisions, (2) longer gaps create an unfair advantage for corporate insiders, (3) "optional" doesn't fix the problem because companies that opt in are often the ones whose investors most need frequent updates, (4) the savings to companies aren't worth the cost to me the market is already unfair. There's an extreme amount of illegal practice and the synthetic shares that are inside this market is insane. I think it already favors insiders way too much.

Sent from my iPhone

Tony Zimmerman — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tony Zimmerman Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 What good reason would a business have keeping investors In the dark? No thanks, any company adopting this would not be an investment for me.

Tony Zimmerman
Sales consultant

Transparency is non negotiable.

Trina Sines — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Trina Sines Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Blatantly deceitful. We the People have had ENOUGH!!

Tyler Park — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tyler Park Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 My name is Tyler Park, I appose these changes to the SEC rules regarding public filings. Your job at the SEC should be to protect the investor, especially the small investors, not make it easier for companies to hide losses and reduce their need to be accountable to their investors

---

William Higdon — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: William Higdon Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 This is very bad for the market & people investing

---

Wojciech Dominik Bogdan — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Wojciech Dominik Bogdan Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Employees of the SEC,

We the American people, demand all businesses and companies be required to continue to report all their numbers quarterly!

Stop acting like a bunch of dispicable corrupt billionaires' lapdogs and do your damn jobs and protect the American peoples' investments and life savings!

Your job is not to feed the rich pigs more money and rob the working class! This proposal is anti-American, and stinks to high heaven of a criminal conspiracy and racketeering. When this is over, you'll all be held accountable by the law.

Regards,

Wojciech Dominik Bogdan
Disabled Combat Veteran

This e-mail and any attachments therein are confidential, intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If You are not the intended recipient, please call or e-mail the sender and delete this message and any attachment from your system. Additionally, if you are not the intended recipient you must not disclose the content or take/retain/distribute any copies.

The content of the correspondence is directed exclusively to its addressee and may be disclosed to third parties only with written consent of the sender. Disclosure of any content of the correspondence without the consent of the sender will be prosecuted to the fullest extent permitted by law.

Zach Ratliff — Jun 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Zach Ratliff Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 Quarterly financial are fundamental in descerning the value of a company as they allow for refunding patterns indicative of deceit and bezel. This information, like the Epstein files, should be available to the public.

Zachary Ratliff
Healthcare Consultant

Michelle Rollins-Hall — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michelle Rollins-Hall Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I believe that this is unnecessary. This would allow fraud to go undetected for a longer period of time. It would be an incentive for people to “borrow” from the account. And for what reason? The savings it would generate is minuscule. This matters to me because if you expect me to invest my cash ISNT accounts such as these, I want it as protected as possible.

Michelle

Alan DT cook — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alan DT cook Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 My name is Alan Birmingham Jr. of Newark, Ohio, and I am a cook at a Hilton hotel. I have been in hospitality and tourism business for twenty years. This is important to me because I realize that regular people have stake in securities, and so they should. Anybody should be able to have a fair shot at trading in securities.
Cutting quarterly reporting on securities seems irresponsible to me. If anything, we should have more reporting on them. I feel like this is a kind of attempt at shafting less-able people from contending in securities, which would be both devious and immoral. Let us please not do this, and go ahead, retain our previous configuration of quarterly reporting in securities, I think that this is the only fair way to treat everybody, and not just high-dollar people who have MORE stake in the market than everybody else, or anybody else. Only because there aren't more people trading in securities doesn't make it right to make it harder, particularly at a time when the cost of living is higher, to trade in them.

Alan Lamb — Jun 5, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alan Lamb Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Alan Lamb, investment owner. I am writing about SEC proposed Rule S7-2026-15
This is absolute craziness, there is already fraud taking place with the current reporting requirement. Nothing good will happen and fraud will probably increase if this rule goes through. So please do not allow this rule and increase enforcement instead. Six months increases the time for insiders to quietly sell their shares to you (or your ETF) before the bad news tanks the stock. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window and stop it sooner.

Alastair Kay — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alastair Kay Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Re: Subject: S7-2026-15

To whom it may concern at the SEC,
I would like to object to the above and as that you redact your proposal allowing listed companies to opt-out of quarterly reporting. The quarterly financials reported are necessary for all retail investors to know not only how the company is operating but also allows us to spot important abnormal information when filings are changed intentionally to hide operational errors or in cases of fraud. Filing twice a year will prolong this non-disclosure to retail investors, but not to insiders or those professional investors who have greater access. Therefore i ask that you continue to require public filings of all quarterly financial disclosures.

Kind regards,

Alastair Kay

Alex Cramer — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alex Cramer Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The most important cornerstone of a 'free and fair market' is to ensure people are playing freely and fairly. Quaterly report mandates that shady business can't grow across an entire year without any investigation.

Allison Raduziner — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Allison Raduziner Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Keep or increase reporting. Anything this regime does is shady.

Allison Raduziner,
Pilchuck Business Consulting

Sent from my iPhone. Please forgive exuberant assumed spellings by my phone!

Andrea Horbinski — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Andrea Horbinski Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Quarterly reporting is essential to keep individual investors informed about corporate risk so we can invest our money with the knowledge we need to not lose it due to being duped by corporations. Do not allow companies to keep their books secret for up to six months. Keep quarterly reporting.

Andrea Horbinski, PhD

Angela — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Angela We deserve to know what you are doing with the money we earn. You are supposed to be working for us! You have enough power already. You don't need more. The American people deserve to get what they have worked for, and that's our hard-earned money, not yours to gamble with.

Anonymous — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Stop this bill. Keep mandatory monthly reporting to protect small investors from being scammed through loss of equity due to unreported and unscrupulous methods of corporate wealth transference such as buy outs, sell outs, and gains and losses not revealed without full disclosure to ALL.

Sent from my Galax

Anonymous — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Quarterly reporting is necessary to ensure accountability in a rapidly changing world. Investors need viable current information to make informed decisions. The system works don’t screw it up.

Anonymous — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This is giving companies a route to get over on everyone. You need to keep the quarterly system to prevent fraud, insider trading, etc. it’s bad enough that the policies in place for everything else have been ruined do not ruin a system that has worked for years. These companies need oversight to be tighter not more lenient. This will be the fall of the people’s oversight and will help to make more people poor. This shouldn’t happen.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I'm not buying what I can't research. Keep quarterly reporting.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Arturo, CEO — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Arturo Please keep making public companies report every single quarter to help prevent fraud. We the people need transparency!

Ashley Snyder — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ashley Snyder Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This would be damaging to investors and destroys transparency in publicly owned companies.

Sent from Proton Mail for iOS.

Barbara Gibbons — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Barbara Gibbons Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The only reason for companies to reduce reporting is so they have more time to hide problems. If the company is public, the public has a right to know in a timely manner. Barbara Gibbons (Palmyra, Va)

Barbara Gibbons

Barbara Silberg — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Barbara Silberg Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Change in reporting will let theives cash out. Keep an eye on them.
Barbara Silberg
Houston, TX.

Bernadette Halloran — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bernadette Halloran Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Why is the authority to investigate (and hold corporations accountable) of the SEC being undermined. Passing such a rule ONLY is good for the criminals.

Beth Horowitz — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Beth Horowitz Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 What a terrible idea! Capitalism only works if there is transparency. There is no reason to be passing this rule except to REDUCE transparency to the normal investors while the big shots corruptly work with insider information. Stop making our system unfair to the average investor. There is absolutely no reason to be passing this law, except for this administration s involvement in and encourageWhat a terrible idea? Capitalism only works if there is transparency. There is no reason to be passing this rule except to REDUCE transparency to the normal investors while the big shots correctly work with insider information. There is no reason to pass this except for this administrations participation in and encouragement of corruption.

Bob Stevens — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bob Stevens Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 As a retired person I am solely dependent on my management of my investments to provide funds to live on. I am very distressed that the SEC is even considering a plan to let companies hide their activities - good and bad - for 6 months without public disclosure. I need timely and accurate company information in order to properly choose between investment choices. We have already seen the effects of ethic-less company leaders and allowing them months and months and more months to hide behind non-disclosure is a danger to the investing public and even to the fund managers that a lot of us depend on in their investing choices.
It's been said that the SEC is claiming that this 6 month approach is taking the world by storm, and it is only beneficial. Problem is it seems that is a lot of hot air. There have been numerous downsides experienced by those countries that have tried it, the UK, EU and Singapore have all seen negative consequences. The SEC's job is to protect and serve the investing public, not the devious corporate leaders who want to stack the odds in their favor and line their pockets with our money. We don't need more Madoffs, more Enrons, more SMCIs, more Worldcoms in our lives. We don't need another GFC or Internet bubble bursting. They are hard to detect as it is. We need accurate and timely information, delivered quarterly to the investing public, because these are Public Corporations.
Do your job SEC. Ensure the marketplace is fair to everyone. Do not allow some to optionally hide behind the curtains for 6 months.

Thank you for your attention in this manner.
Bob Stevens
retired investor

Bobby Pattillo — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bobby Pattillo Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Why would you let them hide it. Is it for your or their profit...or both???

Bret Vanderplough — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bret Vanderplough Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The idea of moving away from quarterly reports is ridiculous. Please don't contribute to making the country even worse than what it's already becoming...

Brian Doherty — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brian Doherty Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Eliminate the onerous 10-Q but enhance the scope of material event disclosure for the 8-K or replacement.

Same protection, more timely and less cost.
Sent from my iPad

Carol Leake — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carol Leake Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 We’re in a time when more transparency is needed, not less.

Sent from my iPhone

Carol O'Callaghan Staves — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carol O'Callaghan Staves Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 My name is Carol Staves. I am a homemaker. This matters to me because I am an Amercan who believes in truth, honor, justice, and equality. This gives a window for corruption. This should never be allowed.

Carol Ward — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carol Ward Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Carol Ward CSA UBS- This will hide data for too long from investors. We have the right to know quarterly what the numbers are regarding our investments. This also would increase the amount of time to hide any adverse news. This is an awful idea!
Carol Ward

Sent from my iPhone

Carole Lester — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carole Lester Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 As a retired widow I rely on my meager investments to live out my life. With a volatile stock market we need quarterly updates on owned stocks and projections. I do not trust the current administration and fear they are benefitting from insider trading—the rich get richer and I am struggling to have enough money to live on. Please continue with Quarterly Earnings Reports. Carole Lester. Retired in 2020. 75 years old in great health. Chances are I will live to at least 90 years old.

Sent from my iPhone

CFP Mike Spelman — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: CFP Mike Spelman Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 People barely know what they invest in now... moving to a semi annual cadence will only make things worse

Sent from my iPhone

Securities offered through LPL Financial Member FINRA/SIPC

The information contained in this email message is being transmitted to and is intended for the use of only the individual(s) to whom it is addressed. If the reader of this message is not the intended recipient, you are hereby advised that any dissemination, distribution, or copying of this message is strictly prohibited. If you have received this message in error, please immediately delete.

Chris Nelson — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris Nelson Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I'm Chris. A software developer in Northern California. I feel companies already try to pull lots of financial tricks to keep things looking good the public. The last thing I want is for it to be easier for companies to hide more for longer.

Christine Mulder — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christine Mulder Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The cheating thieves are trying once again to hide shady dealings. With cripto de reg pushes, hopes to mingle with REAL money? My REAL money? They can back their own crap , not with US fed assured (real money) bank funds! WTF! Regulate or outlaw!

Sent from my iPhone

Chuck Schultz — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chuck Schultz Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 You need to keep quarterly reporting as a requirement. As a retiree it is imperative that I have frequent updates on my financial situation, if I am not to end up as a ward of the state.
Regards,
C Schultz

Chuck Sherwood — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chuck Sherwood Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Hey SEC, don't let public corporations hid the quarterly data we need to be able to analyze and know what's going on with our investments.

Chuck Sherwood, former public sector telecom/cable consultant

---

Colton Growney — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Colt Growney Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 To Whom it May Concern,

Semiannual reporting for publicly traded companies will reduce available information for market participants, making our capital markets less efficient and more prone to manipulation. This is categorically a bad outcome for publics and investors alike. As an investment advisor with 10 years in the industry, a CFA charterholder, and a history major, I can confidently suggest that a decision to move to semiannual reporting will lead to bad outcomes for stakeholders, the opposite of what the SEC should be aiming to achieve.

Please consider maintaining the current reporting schedule for publicly traded companies, for the benefit of stakeholders in American capital markets.

Regards,
Colton Growney, CFA

Craig Wobrak — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Craig Wobrak Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Craig Wobrak - Machinist

Why the government would want to enable opacity and the opportunity for fraud amongst large (or small)corporations is beyond me. Less reporting means less knowledge for main street investors, as well as opportunities for companies to cook the books without detection, putting increased economic risks that will disproportionately affect average US citizens while the upper echelons of society remain insulated, or worse, involved in insider trading. Stop catering to the wealthy elite and show some respect for the 90% of Americans who would be harmed by this policy.

Cypress Cordero — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cypress Cordero Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Cypress Cordero, Uber Driver, Human being. I think the more opportunity people have to invest into a business big or small they need more transparency and more confident buy ins. Changing time for filings from 4 times a year to a Corporate 2 times a year sounds like we are going backwards. Ive been told this sounds like more potential for shady insider trading. If you want more investors be more transparent. A public stock market deserves a public look in to the markets and what businesses are making which moves. I'm surprised this is trying to be pushed through the SEC. Reporting filings twice a year? Quarterly is much more responsive and insightful. For everyone. If anything we need more honor and tradition in this time of uncertainty than to allow businesses to go unseen for 6 months. Thank you for hearing me out. The stock market is very important to me.
Written,
Cypress Cordero of Santa Cruz, California email:cypresscordero55@gmail.com phone:831-430-8309

Daniel Choi — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: daniel choi Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I've been an auditor and I can tell you quarterly already isn't enough to protect the public, semi-annual is absolutely insane and could only possibly be pushed by those looking to seek harm.
-daniel choi, business consultant

Danny Navarro — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 my comments From: Danny Navarro Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 My name is Daniel Navarro I live in Washington DC. This is important to me because I need to know how companies are doing that I'm invested in, and I do not want to wait 6 months to find out when things are bad.

Darlene Ryan — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: darlene ryan Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Accountability and transparency for all.

David Chan — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Chan Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 david c entrepreneur one of the strengths of our capital markets from a global perspective is transparency. filings should remain quarterly if we still want to maintain our competitiveness in the global market place

---

David Schwab — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: david schwab Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 In a world of computers that tabulate numbers every day, why on earth would we go semester based. We should, if anything go monthly with less narration in reports.

David Scott Smith — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Scott Smith Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 It is proposals like this that have caused Americans to distrust everything about their government. The Trump Administration isn't even trying to hide their corruption anymore.

Dawn Ann Gallagher — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dawn Ann Gallagher Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 You can’t change the reporting rules. This isn’t fair to institutional investors.
Stop scamming Americans.

Sent from my iPhone

Deb Driver — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I support quarterly reporting, nothing longer! Longer reporting gaps are NOT in the best interest of the American people or competition - maintain maximum transparency. Quarterly is barely enough when stocks and world events change so rapidly. - Deb Driver

— From Deb’s iPhone

---

degmel55 — Jun 5, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: degmel55 Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Stop this to keep from defrauding the public. These protections are necessary to protect the hard working smaller investors who CANNOT afford to be to have their life savings destroyed by by unscrupulous and corrupt people keeping the books for these investors. All SEC controls need to be enacted and protected to ensure publicly funded investments are not seized, forfitted or risked without complete fiscal oversight. All monthly reporting should remain the same. Melanie DeGiorgis, Retired Educator . This is important to all who have earned and invested in the future of America.

Sent from my Galaxy

Dennis Joyce — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dennis Joyce Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Dennis Joyce, retired. I don't trust the rich and infamous to be honest and above board. Giving them more time to screwup my retirement investment doesn't lend itself to my benefit.

Sent from my Galaxy

Diane Johnson — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Diane Johnson Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Diane Johnson, resident of Minnesota. I have been retired for 5 years. I depend on my pension, social security, and my investments for my living expenses. Keep required financial reporting quarterly!! Financial transparency is necessary to make intelligent investment decisions. Thank you.

Don Poggemoeller — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Don Poggemoeller Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Donald Poggemoeller, electrical preventative maintenance technician. Do not give the deceitful more of a chance to commit fraud. As a 401k owner I deserve the same forsight as the wealthy.

Donna Clark — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Donna Clark Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Oh hell no. The industry already has questionable practices that enrich them and rob the working class. We need less corruption and far more transparency.

---

donna mccollum — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: donna mccollum Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The trend toward secrecy is strong in this country right now. This SEC decision would only add to that ability to hide things, to keep ordinary people from doing their own thinking about what is best for them instead of the super rich. Please continue reporting every three months.

Dr. Donna McCollum
Retired and on fixed income

Sent from my iPad

Doug Blair — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Doug Blair Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 You all know this is a bad idea. Please don't do it.

Elisabeth Hass — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elisabeth Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I am a retail investor and strongly support keeping quarterly reporting requirements for public companies. Quarterly reports are one of the few standardized, reliable sources of information available equally to all investors. Reducing mandatory reporting to every six months would increase information gaps, make it harder for ordinary investors to evaluate companies, and create greater advantages for insiders and large institutions with access to alternative sources of information. The benefits of transparency, accountability, and investor confidence outweigh any compliance burden associated with quarterly reporting. Please retain the current quarterly reporting framework.
Sincerely,
Elisabeth Hass
Portland, Oregon

Elizabeth Oseid — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Oseid Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This sounds like another move to creating a new third world country right here at home. If companies are reporting Q6M, I will invest elsewhere. I will also cease to do business with these companies the the extent possible because the only reason to do this is to be more corrupt. Good luck with that SEC. The new fascist regime hat we are under will not be around long and neither will companies that investors and consumers cannot trust.

Ellen Crosby — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ellen Crosby Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Ellen F Crosby, retired RRT
Stay in your lane and stop trying to make the billionaires happy at our expense.

Sent from my iPad

Emily W — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Emily W Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Allowing these institutions to work behind the scenes, favorably for themselves and against the American people without regular disclosure and full transparency is utterly unacceptable and downright criminal. In this age of massive corruption it's so important to stay on top of every issue that emerges around Wall Street, corporate and banking corruption.

It's the SEC's job to stay on top of the protections required for a stable economy, which when left to the criminals, affects every Americans economic welfare negatively.

Emily West
Amherst, Massachusetts

"Man plans and God laughs." -- George Hanus

"We've begun to raise daughters more like sons... but few have the courage to raise our sons more like our daughters." -- Gloria Steinem

---

Erik Peterson — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Erik Peterson Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This hurts the average investor and gives more power to insiders. This is completely unacceptable.

Family Kandadai — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Family Kandadai Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Please don't kill quarterly earnings report please. This is what makes US markets transparent and attractive.

Farhad Dhabhar — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Farhad Dhabhar In whose interest is the SEC acting? In whose interest SHOULD the SEC be acting? There's not a chance that it's in the public's best interest to decrease the frequency with which companies have to report. This will only pave the way for more corruption and grift from insiders at the expense of retail investors. If it costs companies more money to report quarterly, so be it. Let them figure out how to pay for it. Perhaps they can reduce the salaries of overpaid executives to compensate for that. KEEP QUARTERLY REPORTING please. Semi-annual reporting will just increase the ability of corporations to cover up malfeasance and hurt ordinary people.

Fragrant D — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Fragrant D Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Gene retired.

This would give bad actors more time to get away with their crimes bad idea.

Frances Heath — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Frances Heath Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Frances Heath, retired! It matters because you already screw the little guy! You try to survive on my meager 401k & SSA as is....what do you have to hide?!

Gayle Partmann — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gayle Partmann Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 All we 401K investors need quarterly reporting to track where we are in our retirement savings! Need to keep on top of things to make changes.

Giovanni Montgomery — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Giovanni Montgomery Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 SEC stop trying to help insider trading, insiders already have a 3 month investing lead on the public with quarterly reporting. Absolutely against switching to bi-annual reporting, it seems like the SEC just wants no publicly disclosed filings from publicly-traded companies.

Stop making corrupt policies to help only insiders SEC, the investing public has a right to disclosure. The voter will not accept a Communist China opaque stock market.

Grace Montgomery — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Grace Montgomery I have been an investor for over 25 years. I have both private accounts with two brokerages, 401K and 403(B) accounts. I read the reports that a company generates, files and sends out to gather information and, make informed decisions on purchasing or selling a holding. If the required reports are reduced the public as well as the investment firms are then making uninformed decisions. A company could suddenly be having problems and, with the reduced reporting we (myself, the public and investment firms) will be unaware of greatly reduced earnings, increased debt and impending doom. Please keep the reporting requirements as they are so we all can make better informed decisions. Regards, Grace Montgomery

---

Gregory Capaldi — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gregory Capaldi Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Companies need more accountability not less

In this day of high frequency trading, 6 months is an eternity.

I saved my whole life to establish a decent 401K retirement nest egg, which will be at risk as my investment choices will be less transparent.

I would opt for MORE frequent filings. Once a month.

Thank you,

Gregory Capaldi
Healthcare industry worker

Hunter Camfield — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Hunter Camfield Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 We need more accountability not less. Please don’t change this to a 6 month rule. SpaceX is already going to sldestroy all of our retirement accounts

Best Regards,
Hunter Camfield

I D — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: I D Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Less oversight is silly with a track record like Wall Street.

Ia Terry — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: ia terry Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Ann Terry, consultant.
I need quarterly statements to accurately track my investments since I am retired. This 6month window is unacceptable. You are using my money as an investment I have a right to know what is happening!!

Ian Bell — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ian Bell Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Our government is already at its LEAST trusted and supported by the Commonwealth. This is nothing but the spread of corruption, a cancer reaching its way across our government to fill every gap with insider trading and embezzlement.

Irene Heurkens — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: Reporting financials From: Irene Heurkens Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I am a retired teacher and rely on quarterly reports to keep track of my investments, therefore want to see as much transparency as possible.

Many people rely on your report every three months, not every 6 months.

Irene H.

Jacob Garlick — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jacob Garlick Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 We need accountability, allowing the filings for information to double on an annual basis would hurt all consumers, but especially those who stand to lose the most

Sent from my Galaxy

Jacob Glazner — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jacob Glazner Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 To Whom It May Concern,

My name is Jacob Glazner, and I am a retail investor, homeowner, and working professional in Louisiana. I currently work as a Program and Project Management professional in the electrical manufacturing industry and regularly invest a portion of my income into publicly traded companies and retirement accounts.

I am writing to express my support for maintaining quarterly reporting requirements for publicly traded companies.

As an individual investor, I do not have access to management teams, institutional research, private analyst meetings, or the resources available to large investment firms. Quarterly reporting is one of the few tools available to investors like me that provides consistent, transparent, and standardized information about a company's financial health and operational performance.

Timely reporting helps create a level playing field between everyday investors and large institutional investors. Without quarterly reporting, the gap between those with access to information and those without would likely widen. Transparency is one of the primary reasons U.S. capital markets are viewed as the strongest and most trusted in the world.

In my professional career, I manage complex programs and projects worth millions of dollars. Decisions are made using regular reporting cycles, milestone reviews, schedule updates, and performance metrics. Waiting six months or a year to identify problems would make effective management significantly more difficult. The same principle applies to public companies. Investors need periodic visibility into performance, risks, cash flow, debt levels, and management execution in order to make informed decisions.

Quarterly reporting also serves as an important accountability mechanism. Public company executives and boards are entrusted with shareholder capital. Regular disclosures encourage disciplined management, allow investors to identify emerging issues sooner, and help maintain confidence in the market.

While I understand concerns that quarterly reporting may contribute to short-term thinking, I believe the solution is not to reduce transparency. Long-term investors can choose to focus on multi-year performance trends while still benefiting from quarterly updates. Less information does not necessarily promote long-term thinking; it often increases uncertainty.

As someone who invests regularly for retirement and long-term financial security, I strongly believe quarterly reporting remains an essential component of fair, efficient, and transparent capital markets.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Jacob Glazner
Metairie, Louisiana
Retail Investor and Project Management Professional

Sent from my iPhone

Jacob Rippelmeyer — Jun 5, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jacob Rippelmeyer Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 We need to hold businesses accountable on financial matters as often as possible. Checks and balances are what help this country to function properly. That concept applies to businesses as well.

James Galle — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James Galle Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This is a terrible idea. People will end up in worse conditions that could cost them their groceries being unaffordable, or losing their homes.

James Hardin Jr. — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James Hardin Jr. Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 It’s inconceivable to me that the very government agency that is tasked with protecting investors is doing everything within its power to obscure investors vision of corporate performance giving us 1/2 the information we currently enjoy. Shame on the SEC for bending the knee. This has nothing to do with the cost of compliance and everything to do with politics.

Sincerely

James & Julie Hardin

Sent from my iPad

Janet Porter — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Janet Porter Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Dr. Janet Porter, Psychiatric Mental Health Nurse Practitioner-BC. Please keep quarterly reporting. I cannot make informed decisions about investing if I don't have up to date information.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Jani Kajala — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jani Kajala Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Reducing reporting frequency clearly reduces transparency to the markers.

Jani Kajala,
McKinney, Texas

Jason — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jason Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Going from 3 to 6 months provides less transparency at a time when confidence in our institutions is eroding. Global confidence in US capital markets has made America great for decades. Why jeopardize that with less transparency? Productivity gains are on the horizon that make more frequent reporting easier. Our ideal should be real-time reporting. We're heading in the wrong direction. Please turn this ship around.

Jason Boyd, Individual investor — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jason Boyd Hello, Our markets need transparency and trust to function properly. Reducing reporting requirements will increase opportunities for fraud and abuse, will harm investors, and will drive capital to other safer more transparent markets. Please do not reduce the reporting requirements. Thanks.

Jean Stewart — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jean Stewart Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Stop coddling rich people. The function of a government is to ensure that ALL of its citizens have a decent life.

Jeff Villinski — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Villinski Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 My name is Jeff Villinski and have recently retired from my teaching career where I helped 8th grade students develop their thinking skills, their values and, hopefully, at least a little something about science (specifically chemistry and physics). I am an investor and have chosen to invest primarily in US based stocks due to patriotism, wanting to be part of our own economy and a belief that our approach to government and general morals are fair, transparent and makes it possible for any American to succeed through hard work. Adopting semi-annual reporting is against all of these values. The global precedent you site is in fact not universal, is uncommon and in fact Singapore is considering revoking it due to a decrease in investment. Semi-annual reporting has negligible cost savings and these don’t benefit the average investor. My biggest criticism is semi-annual reporting will make it harder for investors to make timely decisions and will allow companies more opportunity for fraud and misdirection, all of which hurt the average investor (though can certainly benefit insiders). In American we value honesty and fairness, and there are no arguments about semi-annual reporting that align with or support those values. Please do not adopt semi-annual reporting; please keep the long tradition of regulatory oversight intact and keep our stock exchange as the standard against which all other nations are compared. Thank you for your time. Jeff

Sent from my iPhone

Jeremy Leslie — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeremy Leslie Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Jeremy Leslie Senior technical consultant

Why give public businesses more time to hide financial woes? The AI bubble is going to pop, does our administration want to save AI executives that do nothing for the common person?

Jim — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jim Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Having been an insider - keep the 4/yr schedule.

Jim Hazlett's I Phone

Joanne Engman — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joanne Engman Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 If we must report our income or face charges and fines so must corporations. After all the government sees them as persons with rights. Shouldn't they have responsibilities as well?
Sincerely,
Joanne V. Engman

Sent from my iPhone

Joe Wolfarth — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joe Wolfarth Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 NO HIDING THE TRUTH!!! THE PEOPLE DESERVE TO KNOW!

John McCool — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John McCool Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 6 mo is way too long for reporting. Too much fraud and abuse can happen in this amount of time. In a time when rules should be getting stricter, you are leaning for leniency. If corporation can cheat, they will. 6mo gives them that time to cheat.

Jeff

John Watt, Business Owner — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Watt The timing of this proposed change is noteworthy. The country is suffering through an administration whose only goals are self-enrichment, removal of government safeguards, and retribution for perceived slights. This proposal seems to give them another tool to use with their cronies to spread corruption and allow illegal activities to go unpunished. I, for one, do not support this proposal.

Jordan Silvera — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jordan Silvera Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I'm writing to share my strong opposition to the proposal that would let public companies shift from quarterly to semi-annual financial reporting. For over fifty years, the three-month reporting cycle has been a vital safeguard for the average investor, and cutting that frequency in half feels like a massive step backward for market transparency.

If we move to a six-month window, we are essentially greenlighting a massive information gap. Corporate insiders and massive institutional funds will always find ways to track a company's health in real-time, but regular retail investors don't have those resources. We rely on these timely disclosures to make educated decisions. Leaving the public in the dark for half the year just invites wilder market volatility and rewards the people who already hold all the cards.

The SEC's job is to protect investors, not shield corporations from routine transparency. Please keep the current quarterly system.

Jordan Silvera

Joseph Corcoran, Managing Director, and Associate General Counsel, and Raymond Mosca, Assistant Vice President, Asset Management Group, Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association — Jun 5, 2026
June 4, 2026
Vanessa A. Countryman
Secretary
U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street, NE
Washington, D.C. 20549-1090
Re: Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; 39-2563; IC-36140; File No. S7-2026-15
Semiannual Reporting
Dear Ms. Countryman:
The Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association ("SIFMA")1 and its Asset Management Group ("SIFMA AMG")2 are writing to request that the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC" or "Commission") extend the comment period on the Commission's Proposed Semiannual Reporting Rule ("the Proposal")3 by 60 days to provide commenters with additional time to review and comment on the Proposal, which would allow companies to file semiannual reports in lieu of quarterly reports to meet their interim reporting obligations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.
SIFMA and SIFMA AMG represent broker-dealers and asset managers that invest in and have as clients public companies of all sizes across the U.S. capital markets. SIFMA members also serve as underwriters and placement agents for companies seeking to raise capital in the
1 SIFMA is the leading trade association for broker-dealers, investment banks and asset managers operating in the U.S. and global capital markets. On behalf of our industry's one million employees, we advocate on legislation, regulation and business policy affecting retail and institutional investors, equity and fixed income markets and related products and services. We serve as an industry coordinating body to promote fair and orderly markets, informed regulatory compliance, and efficient market operations and resiliency. We also provide a forum for industry policy and professional development. SIFMA, with offices in New York and Washington, D.C., is the U.S.
regional member of the Global Financial Markets Association (GFMA).

2 SIFMA AMG brings the asset management community together to provide views on U.S. and global policy and to create industry best practices. SIFMA AMG's members represent U.S. and global asset management firms that manage more than 50% of global AUM. The clients of SIFMA AMG member firms include, among others, tens of millions of individual investors, registered investment companies, endowments, public and private pension funds,
UCITS and private funds such as hedge funds and private equity funds. For more information, visit http://www.sifma.org/amg.
3 See SEC Semiannual Reporting, 91 F.R. 24968 (May 7, 2026), https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/FR-2026-05-
07/pdf/2026-09095.pdf.

public markets, including through initial public offerings. These are the perspectives from which SIFMA and SIFMA AMG are evaluating the Proposal.
As the Commission notes, the Proposal represents a significant change to the long-standing quarterly reporting regime for public companies and could have wide-ranging impacts on the capital markets. Such a significant change raises complex and technical issues. For example, from a SIFMA perspective, the Proposal creates questions regarding underwriters' due diligence processes. From a SIFMA AMG perspective, the Proposal creates questions about the timeliness of information available to investors and the ability of investors to compare companies in the same sector if they report financial information on different cadences. Given the potential significant implications of the Proposal on various aspects of capital markets, we request an additional 60 days to evaluate the potential impacts of the Proposal.
We also note that there are currently two additional outstanding rulemaking proposals relating to offering reform.
4 Given the overlapping comment periods of these proposals and the overarching policy objectives of facilitating capital formation in public markets and encouraging IPOs, additional time to consider these proposals concurrently would allow our members to more thoroughly review the proposals, better articulate their opinions, and provide more useful suggestions to the SEC.
Finally, the comment letter due date currently falls on July 6th, 2026. This coincides with the 250th anniversary of American independence. We expect that many of our members' staff will likely be unavailable or occupied with other obligations during this once-in-a-lifetime celebration.
Accordingly, we kindly request that the Commission extend the July 6th comment deadline by 60 days to provide our members and other market participants additional time to review the Proposal and more fully assess the potential implications of semiannual reporting by public companies. If you have any questions or wish to discuss our extension request, please do not hesitate to contact us by calling Joe Corcoran at (202) 962-7383 or Ray Mosca (202) 962-7342.
***
4 See SEC Registered Offering Reform, 91 F.R. 31022 (May 26, 2026), https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/FR-
2026-05-26/pdf/2026-10373.pdf; SEC Enhancement of Emerging Growth Company Accommodations and Simplification of Filer Status for Reporting Companies, 91 F.R. 30086 (May 21, 2026), https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/FR-2026-05-21/pdf/2026-10222.pdf.

Sincerely,

_____
Joseph Corcoran
Managing Director and Associate General Counsel
Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association
1099 New York Avenue, NW, 6th Floor

_____
Raymond Mosca
Assistant Vice President, Asset Management Group
Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association
1099 New York Avenue, NW, 6th Floor
cc: The Honorable Paul S. Atkins, Chairman
The Honorable Hester M. Peirce, Commissioner
The Honorable Mark T. Uyeda, Commissioner

Joyce Baskind — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joyce Baskind Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I'm an ordinary retail worker (cashier) who works part time now. Information is vital to my financial wellbeing.

Joyce Baskind

Joyce Hoffman — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joyce Hoffman Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Why are they allowed to this in the first place/…..it is un ethical what is world coming to? We are all life human . We should be working for the good of ALL HUMANS! ! Not see where we can screw each other!

Joyce

Judy Stapleton — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Judy Stapleton Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Keep it public.
Silly me, but level the playing field.

Judy

Julie Green — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Julie Green Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I've been an investor since the 70s. Started with common stock. I'll admit I didn't do legitimate research before I graduated high school (1980).

I oppose changing to semi annual reporting. I'm not an industry insider, I have to rely on the contemporary release of audited financials, meanwhile, there will be market slippage while insiders take positions or move out of positions according to what they know… before the public knows it

Yeah, I know that should be part of your enforcement, so please enforce the reporting requirements, I don't wanna have to rely on regulatory actions to punish illegal moves while I remain punished because of those illegal moves directly in the market

My primary email is leathercorsetry@gmail.com. Thief is done this face won't let me change my email.

Is Julie

Sent from my iPad

Justin Hsi — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Justin Hsi Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Justin Hsi, CEO. Quarterly statements matter because we need a pulse on what is happening with a company. Waiting half a year is too long. I have been a victim of fraud by various companies and the damage would have been far greater if they were reporting less than quarterly.

Karen Kirchdoerfer — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karen Kirchdoerfer Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Why the change? What are they trying to hide? When people invest their money, they have a right to know what's going on at all times!

Sent from my iPhone

Karl Stathakis — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karl Stathakis Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Don't reduce the frequency of reporting. Make the metrics more lightweight, and potentially more frequent (monthly or even weekly, rather than quarterly).

The name of the game is to focus everyone more on long-term thinking. Less-frequent disclosures aren't the way to do it.

Kathy Dull — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kathy Dull Affiliation: Jun. 6, 2026 We need more transparency, not less!

Kathy Gervais — Jun 5, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kathy Gervais Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Stop the Corruption, Criminals, Grifting, Lying in The White House and Most Republicans. Tired of their Grifting, Stealing from the American People and America. Deplorable!!! Catherine Gervais Retired and Struggling

---

Kathy Gray — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kathy Gray Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This matters to me because it's unfair and super shady for corporations. My name is legion. Kathy Gray

---

Kathy Holland — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kathy Holland Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Future investor - NO

Kennyon Sadler — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kennyon Sadler Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Kennyon Sadler, Cybersecurity Analyst this is a bad idea from the administration and will crush the retail marker which is always behind and bears the lion’s share of the failure. Leave it as is!

Kent McMillen — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kent McMillen Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Please don't change reporting rules for corporations offering 401-K's!

Kimberly Miller — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kimberly Miller Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I’m less than 10-years from retirement. My husband is retired and drawing social security. It’s critical for us to keep tabs on what is necessary for our income and ability to live. Twice a year checks are not enough transparency.
Kimberly Miller
Auditor for BCBS

Sent from my iPhone

Kyle Shirley — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kyle Shirley Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Kyle Shirley - Program Manager of Embedded Financing

Removing quarterly reporting is highly dangerous and provides additional time to defraud investors and removes confidence in the market. This should not change and be kept quarterly

---

L.W. Brown — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: L.W. Brown Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 During the sudden 2007/8 & 2001 market downturns, a reporting rule less than every 3 months would have even more severely harmed my ability to properly respond to market movements. I was hurt enough as it was, and the proposed rule change would hurt all savers and small investors far more than it could ever help the businesses & large investors pushing it. This is further deterioration of an already bad situation.

–L.W. Brown,
Retired Investor

Larry Austin — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Larry Austin Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This is a stupid idea. Please keep the 3 month rule. Too much can go wrong over a 6 month period of time.
Larry A. Austin, CEO, Austin & Associates. I am a small investor who needs to be protected.

Laura Gehlin Powers — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Laura Gehlin Powers Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Financial accountability is critical to our personal and our national finances. We need as much transparency as possible, so lease don't lengthen the current reporting intervals. Thank you.

Get Outlook for Android

Lawrence Ramsay — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lawrence Ramsay Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 How corrupt must the SEC be to allow businesses regulated regulated by the to conceal their books from clients for 66 months? C

Leddy Fdz — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Leddy Fdz Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 There is absolutely no reason this should even be a topic of discussion. The damage that can be done in six months by corporations would cause too much harm. Companies are not financially hurt because of filing fees - that is an absurd argument. Keep the filings as they are and prevent the fraud. The ones who are hurt the most by these companies' deceptive behavior are the general public, who cannot afford it. Do the right thing and do not implement this 6-month rule.

Leor Koubi — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Leor Koubi Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Leor Koubi
I am Leor Koubi and I am very concerned by this proposal to deprioritize quarterly reports.
Public information is a necessary factor for any effective free market of capital.
This will significantly curtail the markets ability to actuate upon the real value of the traded asset.

Leslie Gold — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Leslie Gold Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Transparency is crucial to your responsibility. Do not disregard it.

Leslie S. Gold

Sent from my iPhone

Leslie White — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Leslie White Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 We need to have quarterly reports to make proper choices! We need this information and it was probably a part of the original agreement. People need as much info as possible. The quarterly reports are the least you can do. Thank you, Leslie White

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Lilly Beach — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lilly Beach Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Keep SEC quarterly reporting for ALL, this matters to me for my 401K. Lillian Beach, Business Systems Analyst

Sent from my iPhone

Linda Graae — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Graae Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I'm on a fixed income and it is Vital that I know my finances on AT LEAST A QUARTLY BASIS !!! SAVING for an emergency is ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY!

Sent from my iPhone

Linda Thomas — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Thomas Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I would like the SEC to reject this concept whereby the investors are kept in the dark about stock performance. Please accept this request as soon as possible. Retirees need to manage our funds to survive the current economic downturn. Thank you for your consideration.

Linda Thomas

Sent from my iPhone

Lisa Delgado — Jun 5, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: lisa delgado Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 No changes should occur

---

Lisa Poo — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lisa Poo Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Lisa Poo warehouse manager we need to be able to check company financial records. We want to be able to check documents every 3 months.

Sent from my iPhone

Loretta Hoskins, Attorney — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Loretta Hoskins This rule change is a terrible idea. It will allow critical information about a company to be hidden for a half a year. This increases the chances for fraud. Keep the rule to quarterly reporting.

Lorna Pater — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: lorna pater Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I'm a investor and I count on those quarterly reports to help me with my decisions I make with my retirement accounts. Keep quarterly reporting.

Sent from my iPhone

Luke Peerenboom — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Luke Peerenboom As an investor, semi-annual reporting vs quarterly reporting doesn't make any sense. Less information is not and will never be more beneficial to investors.

M. — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: M. I am writing in support of this decision. Quarterly reporting encourages short-term planning and discourages long-term planning. Corporations need to be encouraged to plan for the long term, and I believe this change will help them do just that, as there will be no more pressure to look good for the quarterly report.

Manish Mahendru — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Manish Mahendru Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This doesn't make any sense! What problem is it trying to solve! Lack of transparency is the biggest problem we have right now and with AI Agents and improved productivity we should be pushing for monthly Updates! No turning the clock back to dark ages!

Sent from my iPhone

Marc Cyr — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marc Cyr Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This doesn't just hurt retail investors, but also the employees of these companies who would be put into blackout periods for an egregious amount of time every single year.

This type of change is unacceptable.

Marc Cyr
Director of Engineering

Maria Blaha — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Maria Blaha Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This is perceived as a tool for this administration, particularly but not only, the president to steal and grift continuously under the radar and the SEC under this administration is enabling those actions and are now attempting to hide their collusion until it is too late to stop the abuse. The words you use to cover your tracks are nowhere near truthful and that is obvious and it abandons legal accountability because the president has been recently proven outright to abusing the systems to make millions illegally and the SEC is abetting in his unprincipled thefts. This is a black mark on the history of the formerly trustworthy SEC and a betrayal of American investors and people. It is proof they are no longer trustworthy as an organization. This must not be allowed.

Maria Blaha

Sent from my iPhone

Mary Ann — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Ann Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Investing needs a clear view of a company's health! Taking away 1/2 of the information means investors will not be able to invest safely. This might be great for cooking the books but really bad for the investor!!

Mary Moloney — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Moloney Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Mary Moloney SEC needs to keep the frame work it has. Corruption is leaking into all our institutions.

Mary Tabatcher — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary Tabatcher Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The ignorance of such a thing makes it clear you are all onboard corporate corruption! Much can be hidden in six months!

Mary L. Tabatcher
Peace To All Beings

Mary-Ellen — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mary-Ellen Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I have reviewed the Arguments for and against, and it is clear this is a bad choice and should NOT be adopted. NO to this change. Thank you for your consideration. ~ Secretary, retired. The proposed change clearly benefits only businesses at the expense of common sense and the the public good.

Mateo Martinez — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: mateo martinez Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 My name is Mateo Martinez and I'm an amateur investor and I find it hard for us already to try and make money. While insider traders already have a leg up on us. America is becoming so greedy it makes me ashamed to be an American. Greedy crooks.

Matt Walker — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: Keep it quarterly From: matt walker Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The retail investors are already working at a massive disadvantage. We need protections from companies, or protections for companies.

Please excuse my brevity, sent via mobile.

Work Hard. Make Movies.
Matt Walker
mwovie.com
mwovie@gmail.com

Matthew Mikelonis — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Mikelonis Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 6 month reporting is fine. We need to stop living quarter to quarter. Can not compete in global marketplace with only 90 day vision. Also quarterly reporting is waste of financial resources.

Matt Mikelonis
Truckee, Ca

Micah Bush — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Micah Bush Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 It's outrageous to further obscure the details companies use to communicate with share holders and customers. Please do not let the come to pass.
-Micah Bush, Inside Sales Rep

Michael Adkins — Jun 5, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael Adkins I do not support changing company reporting rules. I don't trust you and I think you are rigging the system in favor of billionaires and corporations.

Michael Goldschmidt — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Goldschmidt Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Quarterly reporting needs to be required! We've already seen the catastrophes possible without proper regulation (see: 2008 Financial Crisis).

Financial regulation is not a burden on free markets, it is a requirement that helps avoid disaster, and enforces transparency.

Michael Goldschmidt

Sent from my iPhone

Michaela Fuchs — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michaela Fuchs Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Accountability and transparency

Michaela Fuchs

Miles Morris — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Miles Morris Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Government transparency is essential for a functioning democracy. Easing financial reporting for companies would allow corruption to fester further, and erode our ability to respond to it democratically. Stand with the people, not the large corporations.

Miles Morris Bartender

Monika Kelly — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Monika Kelly Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Absolutely not! It should be monthly

Sent from my iPhone

Ms Denice Murray — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ms Denice Murray Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 My name is Denice Murray. I'm a retired Supervisor and Payment Research Specialist from JPMORGAN Chase's Credit Card Division. In the 21 years I worked at Chase, I always had access to my 401K which was important to me for transparency reasons and confidence that my savings were growing to better prepare me for my future retirement. Please don't take that access away. What are you trying to hide? Corruption? Theft? If you can't do your job with openness and transparency, then you shouldn't be able to do your job at all. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Ms. Lynn Marr — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ms. Lynn Marr Transparency is vital to prevent more corruption, more cheating and inequitable practices, more insider trading. Please continue requirements for quarterly reports.

Nabil Alanbar — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nabil Alanbar Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 My name is Nabil Alanbar. I am the CTO of a small computer company. In the past 25 years, I have seen data acquisition and throughput speeds increase 100 fold or more. It is now possible to move and computer data faster than we have ever been able to, and with fewer staff manning the machines. It is thus incredible that the SEC is considering reducing reporting requirements.

The rolling back of investor protections is crazy - in a world where data flows like water, and reporting is easier than ever, it is incredible that y'all are considering reducing reporting requirements. There is no legitimate reason to do this, and it will only perpetuate more scams and Ponzi-esque schemes. Frankly, it smells like cronyism and corruption.

I know it is hard for the American government these days, but consider doing the right thing - don't reduce transparency and widen the communications gap further than it already is. Again - there is no legitimate reason to do so.

Nothing good can happen, it can only bad happen.

Nabil Alanbar
Burlington, VT

Nancy Meehan — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: Quarterly reports From: Nancy Meehan Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 You crooks have some [REDACTED] nerve!! Make it monthly!!!!! Not 6 months!!!
You corrupt money hoarders!!

Sent from AOL on Android

Nelly Wolf — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nelly Wolf Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The stock market cannot become a gamble for most of its investors, while a sure thing for a select privileged few. There is NO good reason to change these filing dates but to further rig the game. We need to be protecting people, not executives, who already hold a disproportionate amount of power and influence. Insider trading is already too easy to commit, we should be passing laws to discourage it, not make it even easier!

Nelly Wolf | PGY-1
Department of Pathology & Laboratory Medicine University of Louisville Hospital nelly.grigorian@louisville.edu

Niki OBrien — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Niki OBrien Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Please do not give Wall Street even more time and opportunities to screw all of us on Main Street. Stock market manipulation and malfeasance has already caused untold damage to working class folks like me, directly and indirectly, while a small group of wealthy people laugh all the way to the bank.

I’m tired of struggling to get by, working my butt off only to tread water, while these people steal our wealth. I should be retiring soon, but I can’t afford to because of this rigged economic system. Wall Street needs MORE regulation, not less!

Sincerely,
Niki Weber, struggling electronic technician.

Sent from my iPhone

Nizar Gulamhussein — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nizar Gulamhussein Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Do not do this. It will hurt every consumer. We need to know what the Financials are of the companies we are invested in. We dont want another Enron situation

---

Pamela de Butler — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Pamela de Butler I am a private retail investor who has been investing on my own for approximately 40 years. I have been grateful for the transition to Edgar for online reports, which I had to previously review in libraries or request directly from companies. This helped me to review and assess company financial statements along with their corporate leadership on a timely basis. I have never been a day trader, but I have benefitted from this knowledge and used it to invest and plan for my retirement. Now that I am basically retired, I need this information even more to protect my nest egg. Therefore, I am extremely distressed with the move to remove the quarterly filing requirement. Waiting more than 3 months to be able to review a company's performance and projections is too long. It will expose retail investors, who do not have access to company information that various large investors do, to increased risk and fear of the U.S. stock market. Less opacity will result in less investment and breed more rampant disinformation.

Therefore, I strongly reject the proposal of S7-2026-15.

Pamela Haun — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Pamela Haun Dear SEC, You have no right to hide company's 401K monies for up to 6 months from regulators and people who are investing they money for their own futures. Clarity from corruption and scams is essential to prevent another "ERON Energy" CEO Rip Off.

Patricia Linna — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Linna Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 It's my money, and I want to see how it's doing quarterly. Not twice annually!! Leave it as it is.

Patricia Mepham — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Mepham Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Why does the SEC want to keep the investors in the dark about how their investments are doing? This sounds like a setup for some kind of illegal activity where the lawyers, executives, and big institutional investors can make trades, purchases ... and possibly influence the prices.

Patty Dubin — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patty Dubin Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 If the SEC hides company reporting they will KILL the Stock market. INSIDER TRADING is about to give the market the kiss of death. Costco was run up $85. dollars last week and someone made a killing. Then it landed harder and is slowly creeping up. The market is not stable.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Quinton Johansen — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Quinton Johansen Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The quarterly report is HOW we investors know what is happening. NO black out periods. We need it all, ALL the information and NO ALLOWANCE for shenanigans!!!!

Quinton, an investor WHO CARES ABOUT HONESTY AND HONOR!

Randy Zeinemann — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Randy Zeinemann Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I love the corruption this enables. With 6 month reporting we can drive companies into the ground and banks can provide riskier loans with outdated data, same with investment. I actively want a market crash so I can buy a house so removing this regulation is an amazing choice. Please please do it. I can't wait.

It is a terrible idea, but I own nothing. Crash the market, crash the market.

Ray Hersey — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ray Hersey Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This is wrong in so many ways, fraud and corruption would be easier, that's probably why this regime wants to implement this. People would be in the dark for 6 months, with no idea what companies' earnings and losses are.
Stand up for your investors, not the companies and this regime. You will be part of the demise of institutions and protocols. You can NEVER be wrong when you stand up for the American people, and not the corporations. Please don't add to the insanity of this regime. We need the protections that have been in place for decades. Please don't betray the American people and allow the billionaires to keep us without the information needed to make our personal financial decisions. This is insanity. Stop this!
Teresa H.

Regina satterfield — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Regina satterfield Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 This is dangerous for anyone who has investments, please don’t break the system. We are approaching 3rd world status, please think about all the people who this will affect. Transparency is critical

Sent from my iPad

Renee Martinez — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Renee Martinez Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Please do not change the current process of quarterly reports .
Our economy changes every day so even quarterly reports are late .
We need help in a time of crisis which is now .

Sent from my iPhone

Renita Lopez — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: RENITA LOPEZ Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I say NO to changing quarterly reports to every six months. As a retiree and investor, I want to see a quarterly report on companies I have invested in. This proposed change reduces transparency. It’s important to be able to see trends and quarterly is the best option. Renita Lopez, Retired Healthcare Provider

Sent from my iPad

Richard Charboneau — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Richard Charboneau Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 When is enough, enough? Try to convince the ultra rich to spread the wealth before it’s too late. The he poor, the infirm and the aged will either perish or come and take your wealth away. That includes all the double dippers in congress. Wake up.

Richard Parmelee — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: RICHARD PARMELEE Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I oppose this new grift on the American people, we suffer now from our government's lack of accountability. This new rule will remove transparency about how our retirement funds are reported to us. We will loose the ability to manage these investments with current performance reporting information.

Sent from my iPad

RLC Timothy Sheehy — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: RLC Timothy Sheehy Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 It’s clear that this move is not being proposed in the interests of shareholders but rather in the interests of senior executives and insiders. Speaking as an executive who has taken three companies public.
Please note my vehement opposition to this proposed legislation.

Best regards,

Timothy Sheehy
Founding Principal & Managing Director
Red Legend Capital LLC

M: +1.331.457.3600
Timothy.sheehy@redlegendcapital.com

Sent from my iPhone

Robin Cassidy — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Robin Cassidy Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 With all the things that can change or go wrong in 6 months, Americans could lose money and companies can cover up what they want. This should not be allowed to pass. We've seen this playbook before.

Sent via the Samsung Galaxy S24+, an AT&T 5G smartphone
Get Outlook for Android

Rome — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rome Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to proposed rule S7-2026-15.

Allowing public companies to switch to semiannual reporting is a significant step backward for market transparency. Quarterly reporting is essential for maintaining a level playing field.

Extending the reporting window to six months will:

Exacerbate information asymmetry, granting insiders an unfair advantage over retail investors.

Increase market volatility by creating extended periods of uncertainty where investors are forced to trade on speculation rather than timely data.

Damage investor confidence by prioritizing corporate convenience over the public's right to accurate, consistent financial information.

The SEC's mandate is to protect investors and maintain fair, efficient markets. This proposal undermines both. I strongly urge the Commission to reject this rule and maintain the current quarterly reporting standard.

Best,

Rome Edgar

Ron G — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ron G Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 obscurity is not what I came for!!
GVM (garden veriety milionaire)

Ronny & Steve — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: RWP/SEC Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Please do not let these corporations do this. This corporations need to have this transparency so they can be held accountable for anything that comes about regarding this.

Ronny & Steve

Ross Dowdy — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ross Dowdy Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Are we all going to get insider information?

Sent from my iPad

Rubén M Ayala Ruth — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rubén M Ayala Ruth Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 As a private investor, knowing what is happening with the companies who have my money is important. This 6 months report bs is nothing more than another way to hurt and steal from the poor. Shame on you.

S T — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: S T Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Hello SEC,

We as investors have a right to quarterly reporting. Businesses already get out of paying their fair share of taxes. Don't let them screw us over even more than they already do. We all know this will probably do no good as Trump seems to have you in his pocket!!! DO THE RIGHT THING FOR ONCE!!!!

Are you ever going to investigate Trump and his friends and family for all the stock market manipulation that he has been engaged in?????

Regards,
Scott Thomson
Retired Railroad Engineer

Sarah Fraser — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sarah Fraser Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Do not adopt this rule! Both I and my financial advisors read the quarterly reports to both understand where the companies are going and make investment decisions based on that. This rule will create longer gaps in our knowledge of performance, putting me at a disadvantage to investors within the companies. I am incised that you'd let companies opt in: this is opening the door to at best malfeasance, and again, leaves individual investors in the dark if and when operations are not going well.

Scott Paschal — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Scott Paschal Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I rely on quarterly statements I see no reason that they shouldn’t continue. With computing power that we now have there is no reason not to have this information available to us

Sent from my iPad

Shaun McLean — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shaun McLean Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Opaque markets are disastrous for Main Street.

Sent from my iPhone

Shayn Delph — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Shayn Delph The Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission")'s proposed amendment to allow companies to file semiannual reports on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reports would be a grave mistake that would ONLY benefit corporate bad actors at the expense of individual investors. Most companies have been voluntarily providing quarterly reports for approximately 100 years of this Great Nation's history. Therefore, the idea that, in the era of our highest national productivity of all time, where AI Agents are taking on burdensome and repetitive tasks to enable workers to focus on work that matters, now quarterly reporting is too difficult for companies to keep up with is completely non-credible. If any change should be made, it should be made to be monthly instead of quarterly. Reduced reporting frequency can only serve to hide information from investors and hinder the natural price-discovery process. This would have a negative impact on the investing public at large, but most critically those who have worked their entire lives in a culture of quarterly reporting and are now retiring to enjoy their remaining years while relying on what would be a more opaque market. There is no reason why, in this modern age, we can justify less information and transparency for the market. I trust that the Commission's members are too perceptive and wise to allow themselves to be hoodwinked by the companies pushing for such a rule.

Sondra Roe — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: sondra roe Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Sondra Roe, Retired business owner. I see absolutely no good reason to change the quarterly reporting that companies are required to comply with. Investors must have timely information to track the health of their investments. Keep the quarterly system . Six months with no information is a terrible idea.

Stephanie Sabourin — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stephanie Sabourin Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 As a recent retiree, I know the importance of keeping my investments safe and growing. The SEC is supposed to act on behalf of investors like me and not hide things. the proposed change in rules only benefits those with insider trading information while hurting everyone else who wants to follow the law and be honest. Do the right thing and expand this period of time where companies can hide things!
Sincerely,
Stephanie Sabourin

Sent from my iPad

Stephany Butler — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stephany Butler Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 We need More transparency for public companies, not less . Please uphold the Quarterly reports, as it directly affects my portfolio.

Stephany Butler
Ooltewah TN

Stephen Bohmann — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stephen Bohmann Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Quarterly reporting is a shareholder value that that is a direct benefit to the stock holders, i.e. the owners. There is no legitimate reason to end quarterly reporting.
Stephen Bohmann

Susan Bridges — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Bridges Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I can't have risky, unregulated investments, nor will I.
Our economy is unstable enough, with oil prices rising and the dollar declining. We could be headed for another 1929. Many rumors are that this is a deliberate ploy by oligarchs to control the public. Certainly doesn't spell confidence.
The American people deserve better.
I'll need to divest in the US in favor of more foreign investment if regulations are weakened.

Susan M Bridges,
Macungie, PA. 18962.

Sent from my iPhone

Susan Jacques — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: susan jacques Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 My IRA needs to be protected without oversight the funds I depend on can be miss used and our current administration is gutting government services

---

Susen Friday — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susen Friday Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 As a shareholder (owner) I am entitled to know what is going on inside the companies I own. By reviewing Q data I am helped in making decisions regarding my personal investments. Reducing the frequency of this information is detrimental to good investing decisions

Sent from my iPhone

Tanner Kelly — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tanner Kelly Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Tanner Kelly college student and investor this doesn't seem right e drone should know at the same time so that failing companies can't drop their bad stock on an unsuspecting public

---

Taylor Kemp — Jun 5, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Taylor Kemp Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Taylor Kemp, Software Engineer, Quarterly reporting helps me make informed decisions on where my money is invested. If it is swapped to semi-annual I will likely try to move much of my money out of the current markets as lack of transparency would leave me with little trust in the very markets the SEC is supposedly meant to protect. We need more information not less. Companies already operate on half or annual planning at the lower levels so shifting the reporting to semi-annual won't help in creating longer term goaling. The purpose of the SEC should be transparency not growth or any other metric. Loosening reporting is exactly what leads to issues like the 2008 crash in real estate, Enron, Luckin Coffee, Evergrande etc. If anything the SEC should be pursuing much more stringent reporting requirements and should strive to set the global standard in transparency. This ruling if approved is only to help create a Ponzi scheme to enrich a few people with insider information at the cost of everyday Americans such as myself. The SEC should be protecting American pensions, retirement accounts & American's life savings not reducing transparency.

Terri Russio — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Terri Russio Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Keep the checks quarterly. It keeps everyone in check, and honest more frequently

---

Terry Miller — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Terry Miller Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Why would you stop something that’s working? Are you trying to hide someone’s corruption?

Sent from my iPhone

Thatcher Ross — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Thatcher Ross Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 It's, "We the people".
Not, "We the billionaires".

Do what's right, not what your bribers tell you to do.

Theresa Duperon — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Theresa Duperon Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Keep quarterly reporting because a lot of shady things are going on in the market and we have criminals working in the White House. That’s impactful.

Sent from my iPhone

Theresa Longo — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Theresa Longo Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I am Dr Theresa Longo, a pediatrician and rancher, married to Jacob Martinez. We started with our wits and our wills and our and not much more. We started investing what we could to have something to retire on. Jake has taught himself a little about making investment choices. We work with a financial advisor. In these very uncertain times, we need to know how the companies we invest in are actually doing. Quarterly updates are vital to our peace of mind. T Longo MD

Thomas Stachowiak — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Stachowiak Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Only twice a year is too long. Quartaly reports are necessary so investors of all sizes can plan trades and see trends. Chaning this benefits no one except the insiders and already ultra wealthy.
Tom Stachowiak

Timothy Reed — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Timothy Reed Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 To Whom It May Concern,
I find it abhorrent that anyone is considering allowing corporations to file their profits, or lack thereof, bi-annually. Anyone who follows this is only someone who can benefit from insider trading. I think a revision to this proposal should enforce bi-weekly filings as quarterly filings are enough to allow for insider trading and fraud as it currently stands. Anyone in support of this is Anti-American.
Sincerely,
CEO Timothy Reed.

Tina Williams — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tina Williams Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 SEC SHOULD ENFORCE COMPANCIES TO BE MORE TRANSPARENT. SEC HAS GOTTEN LACKS AND COMPANCIES ARE TAKING ADAVANTAGE OF IT.

Tina A. Williams

Todd Hansen — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Todd Hansen I believe in free markets. Let the market decide. I'm fine with less frequent reporting. It should be up to the company. If an investor wants quarterly reporting, they can choose to invest in companies that voluntarily issue quarterly reports. If those companies attract more capital, perhaps more companies will voluntarily inform their investors on a quarterly or even monthly basis. As an adult investor, I can pick where I invest my money. I don't need a government to protect me. The marketplace will protect me. Thank you.

Tony Belden — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tony Belden Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Quarterly reporting is for investors, not companies. With AI automation creating efficiencies in corporations - including in accounting and finance departments - meeting reporting requirements should be growing easier and easier by the month. Please maintain the transparency and accountability requirements that individual investors need to make informed decisions.

I am an independent investor with an MBA, and a small business owner who is in the process of seeking another small business investment opportunity. I plan to use some funds I have earned through investing. I'd like to think that public companies will remain accountable to the street.

Thank you for your consideration!

Tracie McCutchen — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tracie McCutchen Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 My name is Tracie -Keep Quarterly Reporting as is. It's open, and accessible to investors. Keeps you fellas honest. So hands off, and leave the quarterly reporting as is!

Travis Proulx — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Travis Proulx Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I am Travis Proulx, a federal employee. Keeping reporting quarterly matters to me because within the current culture in our society, the impression is that the executives, politicians, and ultra wealthy already have access to information and market changes before the average retail investor. By cutting reporting periods, you are removing more information from the hands of the retail investor - the American citizen - who this whole economy should be organized to support their access and fair competition.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Tyler Wilson — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tyler Wilson Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I'm Tyler Wilson. I'm a Software Engineer.

We're already setup for quarterly reporting. Investors undeniably benefit from more timely information. I'm sure companies want to save costs by reporting less. Too bad.

Vanessa Miller — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vanessa Miller Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I think it is irresponsible and detrimental to individual investors to report earnings. Many people have IRA's and this affects many . Thank you. Vanessa H Miller.

Veva Harguindeguy — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Veva Harguindeguy Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 Quarterly reporting needs to remain. There needs to transparency to allow for decisions to be made in a timely fashion.

V. Harguindeguy

Wes Kaplan, Vice President, The Kaplan Group — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Wes Kaplan Affiliation: Vice President, The Kaplan Group Jun. 5, 2026
Do you really think the American people are this stupid? That we won't see the obvious, staggering fraud this administration is trying to shove down our throats?
Release the Epstein files, these distractions aren't going to work.
And for the love of God, don't let billionaire oligarchs steal even more from actual hard working Americans who contribute the betterment of our union.

Wes Kaplan, Vice President, The Kaplan Group

Wes Kaplan

Will Francis — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Will Francis Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 While I believe monthly is an ideal circumstance, the overhead of that creates a lot of busy work as reporting and metrics are aggregated. I think that 3 months is a fair trade off, enabling the company to operate while not having to continually prep financial documents. 6 month is just NOT the way to go. If ANYTHING, it should get tighter or retain the status quo. Going to 6 months is a bad idea and I dont think we should enable nefarious behaviors like this.

---

xy47402 — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: xy47402 Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 More transparency and full disclosure;. I want to know how my retirement accounts are doing.

Zack — Jun 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Zack Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 I am writing in opposition to the proposed Form 10-S rule that would allow public companies to reduce quarterly reporting to semi-annual reporting.

Quarterly disclosure requirements exist to protect ordinary investors, not corporate management. Executives, board members, and large institutional investors have continuous access to internal financial data. Retail investors do not. Quarterly filings are one of the few mechanisms that partially close that information gap. Extending the reporting window to six months doubles the period during which insiders can act on material non-public information while the public remains uninformed.

The “voluntary” framing does not hold up to scrutiny. Competitive and market dynamics will pressure companies toward semi-annual filing once larger peers adopt it. Voluntary standards in disclosure contexts have historically become de facto floors, not ceilings.

The fraud prevention argument also deserves serious weight. Major accounting scandals share a common feature: extended opacity. Quarterly reporting shortens the window in which material misstatements can compound undetected. Lengthening that window is a structural regression, regardless of intent.

The compliance savings cited in support of this proposal accrue to companies and their executives. The cost — degraded information quality — falls on the retirement accounts, IRAs, and college savings funds of ordinary investors. That is not a reasonable trade.

I urge the Commission to reject Form 10-S and maintain quarterly reporting requirements

Sent from my iPhone

AccuSpect Inspections — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: AccuSpect Inspections Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Dale Raines, Private Home Inspector
Individual investor:
It is difficult enough for the middle-class working American to find good information to purchase stocks and ETFs. Large investors, hedge funds, institutions, and brokerages deal with the numbers 24/7. They also control what information is released and when, putting individual investors at a disadvantage. Quarterly filings are a necessity for smaller investors like myself. Even under the current system, transparency is minimal, with items being buried in the details.

Corporations can sometimes stretch the truth; unfortunately, many do.

Even now, with the extensive run-up in AI stocks, the actual value of companies would be hidden even further with an extended wait between reporting periods.

It is the SEC's mandate to protect the market and investors. Limiting public information is no way to accomplish this mandate. Semi-annual reporting does neither.

I am against relaxing the quarterly reporting requirements. The SEC should require tightening of accounting regulations to ensure full transparency and the highest level of integrity in corporate reporting.

Adam Bauhs — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Adam Bauhs Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Hi,
My name is Adam Bauhs, and I am economics student at the University of Chicago. I'm writing to express my support for quarterly reporting. As we approach a world of increasing information collection and aggregation, I'm afraid of the widening disparity between sophisticated firms and small investors such as myself. Introducing of semi annual reporting would only widen this disparity, giving traders with access to proprietary data collection and insiders an even larger advantage over regular people. Purposely widening the information disparity would represent a perpetual transfer from ordinary people to the well connected. To senselessly blind ordinary investors would be a betrayal of the principles of free and fair markets, liberal democracy, and the American nation.

Please retain the quarterly reporting schedule.

Best,
Adam

Alex Roumanidakis — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alex Roumanidakis Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I am writing regarding Rule S7-2026-15, and my view that earnings reports must continue to be provided on a quarterly basis. Quarterly financial disclosures give me the information I need as a working professional to make informed investment choices. These reports often when released, result in large single day shifts in the value of a stock. This reflects the reality that in the business world, the winds can shift rapidly based on competition, new technologies, and the capital spent by businesses. Given information, investors make choices to buy or sell, the sign of a healthy market. A longer window would result in more volatility during disclosures, more insider trading, and less accountability from companies that make decisions that harm the public. In the current jubilant investment environment, the financial sector seems to have forgotten large returns are not everything. Stability of the market, valuations that reflect the worth of companies, and enough data to see where a company has been and project where it is going are all of high value to investors both at the retail and institutional level.

The economy has been defying gravity for years now. Decoupling from the financial reality us working stiffs face. If anything, we need more sunlight on the companies we hold a stake in, not less. To financial institutions, this is an account. Part of a job. A job that, frankly, if you do well enough for a couple years you could retire comfortably on. The rest of us don't have that luxury to make a living without providing value to real people. To me, this is my retirement. This is money I am investing to hedge against inflation. This is money I invest to support companies based on their merits long term, not based on the nuances of math modeling the curvature of its stock ticker. Ultimately, you obviously don't think of people like me if you're proposing something this thoughtless, this focused on short term potential for massive gains for insiders off the backs of those of us who build your roads, make your medicine, cook your food, and clean your linens. Think about who this rule benefits, and who could really use a break right now. I kindly ask you do not proceed with this rule change, and move towards a stock market that helps support and guide business to make life better, not a cheap gaudy casino that bilks the average man.

Alicia — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alicia Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Please seriously consider the ramifications this could have for everyday investors, the ones the SEC was created to protect. This could change the country for the worse and ruin the reputation of the SEC if you aren’t careful and that’s a terrible legacy.
-A Campbell

Andi Fin — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Andi Fin Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This would be ridiculous. Especially for the smaller investors!

Sent from my iPad

Anne Trotter, Information security management — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anne Trotter The world is speeding up. Slowing the pace of reporting doesn't make sense. What about the opposite? Continuous reporting requirements are being implemented in all critical systems in most areas that matter. Real-time adjustment could be made, versus delays and gaps and "too late for any better decisions to be made". We live in a digital world, I don't see why you can't automate this stuff. It's a challenge, sure. But so's everything worthwhile. Integrity is validated through transparency and effective audit. Removing reporting requirements is a recipe for catastrophic failure of every critical system. A terrific CISO described security controls in infosec in a way that made sense. Security controls aren't supposed to be roadblocks to successful business. They're the brakes on the car that let you take the hairpin turns without crashing. These reporting requirements? Part of the brakes systems. I predict that investors would regret losing them - maybe not today, but in a year or so.

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Hell no!! Why would you vote to usher in more fraud?? This country I was born in, USA is becoming unrecognizable!! This is EXACTLY why the middle class has all but disappeared! HOW much more MONEY does the elite class need?? It obvious they want it ALL. Just sickens me. The ONLY thing that keeps me going is the knowledge SOMEDAY all this corruption will be judged. The people responsible for stealing and defrauding the working people will not be able to take a dime with them and it will be too late to make the right choices. Do what is right TODAY!! DO NOT allow this insane rule change to pass!!

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 We need transparency. We ARE the owners if these companies

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 stop the steal! don't let insiders have an even greater advantage over the public.

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 It’s not a level playing field

---

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I am retired, and I am one that reads the quarterly reports in order to make investing decisions, even in retirement.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I'm a small investor who follows the quarterly statements for guidance that would be lost if they were released in a lesser frequency. Further, the speed of which developments and trends occur that impact a company's financial strength or weakness would be impaired. I'm at a loss to understand the justification for this action as companies produce these reports internally on a daily basis.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Quarterly reporting is the only way to keep it from being corrupt. We have enough corruption now with Trump in charge. We want America back the way it was.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I am a retiree, living partially on my lifetime investments. Quarterly reporting is an important tool & is necessary information for ALL investors. Stop this effort to reduce timely information available to ALL investors.

Sent from my Galaxy

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This window is valuable for so many people, closing it would be irresponsible, and lead to more corruption, leaving companies unsupervised for months at a time

---

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Do not change the reporting requirements. Six months is too long for investors to not be able to track how companies are mnging financially.

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Dear sir or madam:

Clearly more transparency is needed, not less. The proposed change gives unscrupulous boards and executives time to engage in all sorts of shady practices.

A long time investor who reads 10-Qs.

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Hell no! We need all the information we can get or there will be more insider trading than what is making Washington and the billionaire Epstein class richer already. It only benefits them not the average citizen. Stand up for us and don't let this happen

Sent from my iPad

Anonymous — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 5, 2026 The SEC should already be investigating Congress and the WH for insider trading and they aren't!

This would make it more complicated for the people of this country to invest, let alone investigate wrongdoing doing!

If Martha Stewart went to club Fed, you need to put many more there and you know it! Do your job and stop hiding!

Sent from my iPhone

Anthony Rice — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anthony Rice Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Clearly we shouldn't regress on corporate reporting during times like these… companies are shadier than ever and consumers deserve to know details about the companies they do business with

---

Arby Bramlitt — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Arby Bramlitt Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Arby Bramlitt

Publicly traded companies, that enjoy the benefits of operating in or from the US, need to be transparent. If they don't want to be transparent, then they are hiding something and need to lose their SCORP, LLC, etc protections and go private. In the age of computers and automation, monthly, and probably weekly reporting, is possible.

Ben Averia — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ben Averia Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Ben Averia and I'm an English professor. As a retail investor, this plan by the SEC is a blatant farce intended to allow further corruption and insider trading while the public suffers. This change cannot be allowed to pass because companies need to be held responsible for their profiteering methods.

Benjamin Davis — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Benjamin Davis Removing requirements for regular quarterly reporting risks further detachment of the market from companies performance. This threatens market stability. The SEC should not move forward with this proposal.

Beth Perry — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Beth Perry Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I'm retired, I'm invested, and I want more information, not less. Computerization and digital reporting ought to make this easy. Let's get monthly reporting online, because it should be no big deal to be transparent, and honest.

Beth Perry

Yahoo Mail: Search, organise, conquer

BMO Football — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: BMO Football Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Tonald Drump, Casino Owner, The financial and legal system only functions efficiently if it's transparent and fair. If the rules can be changed arbitrarily, for certain individuals, or companies -- to coverup general negligence or misconduct then you're likely have more market failures and systemic fraud, worsening market participation and outcomes -- and I think thats like.. bad?

Brent Forys — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brent Forys Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Brent Forys, Systems Analyst. Do not change reporting requirements. If any changes should be made, require monthly reports/ increased frequency for more transparency

Sent from my iPhone

Brian Chasteen — Jun 4, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brian Chasteen Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 There is no valid reason to make this change - it smacks of further government and big business corruption. No one is asking for this except for organizations that want to avoid public scrutiny. Do not do this!

Bridgette Belle — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bridgette Belle Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Bridgette and I am a paralegal. This will hurt the economy and make it harder for companies to be accountable.

Bruce Golden — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bruce Golden Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Quarterly reporting is essential for optimum accountability and transparency, which are good things!!! Biannual accounting gives more time for bad people to do bad things in the dark!I am a small investor and have been trading and investing for over 50 years , my opinion should count for something. Sincerely, Bruce H Golden

---

Burwood Nowicki-McFarland — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Burwood Nowicki-McFarland Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This is very clearly a way of having more time to manipulate information and hide it from investors. It's a doorway to corruption that should not be opened and it's absolutely obvious those proposing this know what they're doing is solely for that purpose regardless of any protestatuons of innocence. This is one of those situations where you freeze the accounts of the people proposing this while checking their browser history, because these arent good people doing honest business or the people's work.

Catherine Burton — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Catherine Burton Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Cathy - Medical Billing Specialist
Stop catering to the rich. Do not hide financials from us. It’s everyday Americans that make this world go round and your changing the rules so they benefit.

Sent from my iPhone

Charles Brewer — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Charles Brewer
Financial services professional & part time investor
As an investor, it’s really important to me to be able to see how a company is doing. I disagree with the notion of decreasing the reporting requirement.

Sent from my iPhone

Chris Witzgall — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris Witzgall Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 As a private investor, this change is unacceptable. You are there to protect us, not the companies bottom lines. Please keep the reporting period as is.

Chris witzgall
Cambridge, MD

Christian Perthen — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christian Perthen I'm a retail investor and I rely on quarterly reports to make decisions about my retirement savings.

Christopher Adams — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Adams Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Making this change would be horrible in my opinion as there needs to be more transparency into corporate America's financial status not less. What you should be focusing on is getting legislation passed that significantly reduces corporate executive and Director stock compensation and eliminates the ability to borrow money using securities as collateral. I'm a retired ph.d. with 30 years of service to the biotech corporations, and I've witness what I would call blatant piracy by C-suite level people that drives worker motivation and innovation into the dirt. Christopher Adams, Ph.D, retired Global Product Manager and current stock market weekly trader

Sent from my iPad

Christopher H — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christopher H Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Comments need to be kept quarterly plain and simple. Does the only way to know what companies are doing so that the public can properly invest in them. Do not let these companies hide whatever they're doing by not reporting as often it is not ethical nor is it fair.

Best Regards,

Christopher H from California

Get Outlook for Android

Cindy Bischoff — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cindy Bischoff Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Quarterly reporting is important to me, even more so now that Trump has wielded his ridiculous attempts at cheating everyone; giving all others the impression it is ok and in fact, should be doing the same to cheat and swindle. With out the necessary restraints and processes there will be even more innocent people being robbed.

Sent from my iPhone

Clif Jacobs — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Clif Jacobs Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I spent >20 years as a mid-level exec in two publicly held companies. People in the mid-mgt up through my level generally felt the squeeze for quarterly data submission and various analyses (e.g., white papers to address "one-timers" like financial reserves). Here's the REAL STORY: It's not that hard to support clear, consistent and accurate quarterly reporting. For God's sake, SEC leadership: back off. Keep the 10Q requirements in place. Stop clowning and do your jobs.

Cm Lade — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Cm Lade Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 If I am going to invest in your company then you have a responsibility to me to be transparent with how the company is functioning. [0]

Dan Small — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dan Small Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Daniel Small Distinguished Member of the Technical Staff, Sandia National Laboratories

This is a horrible idea, obviously put in place by well monied interests who loathe transparency. Quarterly reporting is the bedrock of the people's ability to hold financial institutions and corporations to a high level of transparency and accountability, and should not change in such a major way.

Dave Kaechele — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dave Kaechele Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Keep it open!

Sent from Dave Kaechele

David Bechtel / Mary Isaac — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Bechtel / Mary Isaac Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Keep reporting requirements quarterly. Do not allow corporations to delay reporting for months at time. Having worked at 8 large corporations, and done extensive auditing, I've seen first hand how much pressure can be brought on the finance teams. Make reporting requirements clear, and frequent, with strong periodic audit requirements.

White collar crime hurts all of us, and is not taken seriously enough.

Trump's pardons of convicted fraud criminals is despicable and impacts our children.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

David Nydam — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Nydam Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Financial transparency is critical to a well-functioning market and proper asset pricing. Moving to a 6 month reporting period will reduce investor insights and oversight of management. The current quarterly system should be maintained.

Dawson Mullis — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dawson Mullis Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Why would I invest in the stock market if I could be up to six months out of date with my information?

—Dawson Mullis, Freelancer

Deborah Holobaugh — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Deborah Holobaugh Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Keep businesses on the up and up and do not change the reporting. This is purely Trump agenda, and it stinks to high heaven.

Sent from my iPhone

Deepak Rajagopal — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Deepak Rajagopal Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Hi. I'm a poor salaried person and it strikes me that this will inevitably lead to fraud. Please do not go forward with this because this will lead people like me who rely on the records to make decisions fly blind.

Dennis M. Kelleher, Cofounder, President and CEO, and Benjamin L. Schiffrin, Director of Securities Policy, Better Markets, Inc. — Jun 4, 2026
VIA Email
June 4, 2026
The Honorable Paul S. Atkins
Chairman
The Honorable Hester M. Peirce
The Honorable Mark T. Uyeda
Commissioners
U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street, NE
Washington, DC 20549-1090
Re: Semiannual Reporting, File No. S7-2026-15, 91 Fed. Reg. 24,968 (May 7, 2026)
Dear Chair and Commissioners:
To give investors adequate time to comment on such an extensive, far-reaching, and dramatic change after more than half a century of practice, Better Markets1 requests that the Commission extend the comment period by an additional sixty days on the above-referenced proposed rule change.2 The proposed rule change would allow public companies to file reports containing material information about their financial performance semiannually instead of quarterly – as they have done since 1970. The current comment period of sixty days is not enough time for the public to comment on a proposed change of this magnitude.

Better Markets looks forward to providing its own substantive comments on the proposed rule change. At this time, however, it simply wants to ensure that all investors have the opportunity to provide comments too. The proposed rule change affects all investors, yet it will be difficult for investors—especially retail investors—to digest the proposal and provide comments within 60 days. The proposal spans 279 pages and includes 58 requests for comment, each with multiple associated questions.3 Investors need more time to have a meaningfully opportunity to comment.

It is noteworthy that when the Commission issued its request for comment regarding the possibility of revising quarterly reporting in 2018, it gave the public 90 days to provide

1 Better Markets is a non-profit, non-partisan, and independent organization founded in the wake of the 2008 financial crisis to promote the public interest in the financial markets, support the financial reform of Wall Street, and make our financial system work for all Americans again. Better Markets works with allies—including many in finance—to promote pro-market, pro-business, and pro-growth policies that help build a stronger, safer financial system that protects and promotes Americans' jobs, savings, retirements, and more.

2 91 Fed. Reg. 24,968 (May 7, 2026).

3 https://www.sec.gov/files/rules/proposed/2026/33-11414.pdf.

comments.4 That request did not include a specific rule proposal that would permit semiannual reporting. It was only 30 pages and did not include an economic analysis. Yet it provided a longer comment period than the Commission provided here where the proposal is almost ten times long and substantially more complex. A total of 120 days to comment on the instant proposal, compared to 90 days to comment on the 2018 request for comment, would be reasonable.

The Commission needs to provide enough time to hear from investors for whom quarterly reports matter. Quarterly reports provide investors with timely information about public companies. They "are designed to increase transparency to investors by providing unaudited financial statements and continuing insights into the company's financial health throughout the year."5 Quarterly reports make it possible for investors to more easily compare companies and their financial performance and future profitability. In this way, quarterly reports provide investors with the material information that they need to make informed investment decisions.6

Quarterly reporting is especially important to retail investors. That is because most retail investors lack any other way to obtain information about the public companies in which they may want to invest. "Absent disclosure of information regarding the issuer of securities, average retail investors have no mechanism for distinguishing between high and low quality enterprises, hampering efficient allocation of capital."7 Retail investors therefore greatly rely on and "use the information disclosed in the company's periodic reports."8 Indeed, "the most important source of information for their investment decisions is the company's mandatory disclosure documents."9

In light of the importance of quarterly disclosures, the Commission must ensure that retail investors have sufficient time to become aware of the proposal, review the proposal, and provide comments.

Indeed, it is particularly important that the Commission hear from retail investors because the proposal will disproportionately impact them. Institutional investors "can presumably obtain from public companies whatever information they need to make informed investment decisions.

”10 They have the resources and relationships to obtain information on a continuous basis even absent quarterly reporting. But retail investors need the information in companies’

4 See Request for Comment on Earnings Releases and Quarterly Reports, Exchange Act Release No. 84842 (Dec. 18, 2018), https://www.sec.gov/files/rules/other/2018/33-10588.pdf.

5 Rachel G. Miller, A Practice Worth Ending: EPS Guidance Harming Long-Term Growth, 95 Notre Dame L. Rev. 445, 453 (2019).

6 See id. at 446.

7 Celia R. Taylor, Capital Market Development in the Emerging Markets: Time to Teach an Old Dog Some New Tricks, 45 Am. J. Comp. L. 71, 72 (1997).

8 Jennifer O’Hare, Don’t Forget the “G” in ESG: The SEC and Corporate Governance Disclosure, 64 Ariz. L. Rev. 417, 449 (2022).

9 Id.

10 Id.

required disclosures.11 “Quarterly reports play a vital role in leveling the playing field among investors with regard to their access to information.”12 As a result of the “relatively short period of time between quarterly reports, average investors are able to maintain confidence through continual access to meaningful information.”13 So the proposal has the potential to exacerbate the “information asymmetries” that are “more acute for retail investors who, unlike market professionals, have little or no ability to gather reliable market information absent disclosure.”14 For an agency that “has always recognized that it has a special responsibility to protect individual investors, who may lack the sophistication and resources of institutional investors,”15 it is essential to provide those investors with sufficient time to comment on the proposal.

Conclusion

We respectfully request that the Commission extend the comment period by 60 days and appreciate your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Dennis M. Kelleher
Cofounder, President and CEO
Benjamin L. Schiffrin
Director of Securities Policy
Better Markets, Inc.
2000 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Suite 4008
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 618-6464
dkelleher@bettermarkets.org bschiffrin@bettermarkets.org http://www.bettermarkets.org

CC: Vanessa A. Countryman
Secretary

11 Id.

12 Miller, 95 Notre Dame L. Rev. at 453

13 Id.

14 Charles R. Korsmo, The Audience for Corporate Disclosure, 102 Iowa L. Rev. 1581, 1595 (2017).

15 O’Hare, 64 Ariz. L. Rev. at 449.

Desirae Rasmussen — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Desirae Rasmussen Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Desirae - Entry level retail, $36,000/yr
The everyday working class citizen is so far away from the insight that's prevalent on wall street. I've invested a couple hundred to $800 semi-annually or even annually over the last 6 years. Being able to make decisions based off of quarterly results allows me to have more of an even playing field with wall street so that I can have positive returns, with no bonuses through my work being able to sell with the most recent information is something I can do for myself. We all want our money to make money and for far too long the average American was shut out from that opportunity. Semi annually reporting would only enable a repeat of the past where the working class people are continuously in the dark and lose more of their hard earned money.

Doris Youngman — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Doris Youngman Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Doris E Youngman, Financial Controller. Compliance Reporting is part of ethical due diligence and has historically been a safe guard for the public good. It's important both for transparency and trust.

Doris E. Youngman
Accounting & Finance Consultant

Elizabeth Melcher-Haddada — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Melcher-Haddada Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 The average investor is already at a huge disadvantage compared to the top 5% of wealthiest investors, upper level management, and politicians in terms of access to relevant and accurate information when predicting the future value/performance of a given stock. Given that the average American has no traditional pension plan, but relies on 401k accounts and similar ypes of investments for retirement income, it would be a grievous disservice to the public to transition from quarterly to biannual reporting.

Thank you,
Elizabeth Melcher-Haddada

Elizabeth Whitehead — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Whitehead Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 As an investor who is also a retiree, I am a stakeholder and timely knowledge is imperative, now more than ever. Changing this requirement now seems mighty suspicious to me. Keep quarterly reporting compliance for better accountability. Thank you,

Elizabeth Whitehead

Elizaga, Sales Marketing — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elizaga Affiliation: Sales Marketing Jun. 4, 2026 I'm a retail investor and I rely on quarterly reports to make decisions about my retirement savings

---

Elyse Asch — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elyse Asch Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I'm retired and it's tough enough waiting for those quarterly reports. To wait 6 months is totally unfair to all investors

---

Emily Lunney — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Emily Lunney this is a horrible idea and puts millions of individuals at the mercy of companies and bad business.

Eric — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Eric Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 We need that window to be able to manage our money.

Eric Knudson — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Eric Knudson Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Quarterly reporting serves as a valuable information tool for investors. Reducing the frequency of accurate disclosures will increase fraud and exacerbate the role rumor, misinformation, and fear play in destabilizing securities markets. Ultimately, the proposed rule change would make regulatory enforcement more difficult; undermine the ability of investors to assess the performance and quality of management; and reduce the quality, frequency, and timeliness of the information available to investors.
The proposed rule change should not be adopted.

Respectfully,
Eric Knudson
Attorney at Law

Gabriel Gardner — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gabriel Gardner Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I am writing to express my strong opposition to the Commission’s proposal to make quarterly reporting optional and allow public companies to switch to a semiannual schedule via Form 10-S.

Reducing disclosure frequency will severely damage the transparency, efficiency, and fairness of the U.S. capital markets. I urge the Commission to reject this change based on three critical concerns:

Increased Information Asymmetry: A six-month reporting gap is far too long in today's fast-moving markets. Depriving investors of timely data will widen the gap between corporate insiders and the public, fueling market speculation, rumors, and heightened volatility.

The Inadequacy of Voluntary Releases: Unstructured, voluntary quarterly press releases on Form 8-K are no substitute for Form 10-Q. They often lack essential financial statements and MD&A disclosures. Furthermore, allowing companies to choose different reporting schedules creates a fragmentation of disclosure quality, destroying industry comparability for analysts and investors.

No Material Cost Savings or Strategic Benefits: The administrative savings for companies are highly speculative, as lenders and debt covenants will still require quarterly financial tracking. Additionally, there is no empirical evidence that reducing transparency cures corporate "short-termism." Short-termism is a governance issue, not a disclosure issue, and it should not be solved by withholding vital data from the public.

The SEC's core mandate is investor protection. Moving to optional semiannual reporting directly compromises this mission and undermines investor confidence. Please withdraw this proposal and maintain the mandatory quarterly reporting framework.

--

Gabriel J. Gardner 7x.gardner@gmail.com

George A Housley Jr., MD — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: George A Housley Jr MD Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 George Housley Retired
I depend on my investments and am not an insider. If insiders are given another leg up on the market other than themselves this will only lead to more benefit to a privileged class and diminish general trust in the market.

George Capalbo — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: George Capalbo Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is George from Massachusetts. I am a proud US citizen.

I have benefitted greatly from the stock market for a long time. Rules that make it harder to cook the books have kept me safe, and have also generally kept many other investors like myself safe.

I am VERY concerned with this change. If the rest of the world is walking back their changes AFTER trying it, then why are we going ahead with it?

Bad. Very bad idea.

We're supposed to be leading in investor confidence - not creating the conditions to make insider trading easier.

More transparency is better.

This change would materially harm not just me, but also (in my opinion) the national security of our country in the long run.

Bad business leads to less investment overall, in a time where we need all the advantages we can get.

Gerard Mitchell — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gerard Mitchell Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This is information that should remain available to the public!
Gerard Mitchell
Programmer, retired

Sent from my iPad

Glenna Mote — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Glenna Mote Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Honest quarterly reports are vital to US

Griffith Davies — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Griffith Davies Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Do not steal the quarterly reports from average American investors. It's our one snapshot into how our lifetime built savings for retirement are doing. I study my statement for clues how my money is faring, especially the 4th quarter so I can plan how to treat my annual disbursement. Can I take a vacation? Do I have to be conservative and plough it back into a CD? I for one, and I expect there are millions, cannot afford to wait six months for information insiders will continue to have access to.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Halsey Smith — Jun 4, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Halsey Smith Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 You should not change company quarterly financial reporting rules because it opens the door to improper behavior by insiders and it places individual and other investors at a great disadvantage. Being a retiree, I am dependent on my investments for income and I need the most current information in order to make rational investment decisions. Changing these rule will place all investors at an unfair disadvantage; particularly if you do not place very strict trading restrictions on all insiders, e.g., board members, employees, business partners, and others who have non-public information - including their family members.

Information disclosure, such as financials, lawsuits, new products, product issues and the such are extremely necessary for determining the appropriateness of making an investment or selling an investment. That information should be regularly available and on a timely basis for all investors; particularly smaller investors who have limited access to information beyond company reports.

Halsey Smith
Retiree and small investor
13907 Ishnala Circle
Wellington, FL 33414

Sent from my iPhone

Harold Binder Comcast — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Harold Binder Comcast Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 The proposed change is not in the public interest. It is an invitation for deception.

Sent from my iPhone

Henry Grindon — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Henry Grindon Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Henry G, engineer. I want to companies to be accountable, and for that knowlege to keep being provided to me a shareholder theres needs fo be transparency for accountability

---

J Y — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: J Y Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 J, Advertiser: I'm a retail investor and I rely on quarterly reports to make decisions about my retirement savings.

J. M. Evans — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: J. M. Evans Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Keep quarterly reporting. It allows retail investors to know what is happening more often and helps us make better decisions.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Jack Anderson — Jun 4, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jack Anderson Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Jack, and I'm a Director at an Architecture and Engineerig firm.

This rule appears to be and entirely in the interest of corporate insiders at a time when wealth inequality reaches all time highs. Quarterly SEC filing should not be an onerous tasks for companies already required to close their books monthly and submit reports to their board and lenders. It has been a rule for 50 years - companies that can't handle such a staple of public markets shouldn't go public. They can easily leverage AI and other technologies to make this critical level of transparency efficient and cost effective. The SEC's job is to provide an ecosystem of fair play and efficient markets, and allowing public companies to starve the market of information would do serious damage to the efficiency of the market.

Jack Kaplan — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jack Kaplan Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I think quarterly reporting is key for retail investors such as myself to have anything close to an even footing with industry insiders.

Jackie Connolly — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jackie Connolly Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Transparency in business helps against corruption.

Sent from my iPhone

Jacob Perius — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jacob Perius Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 SEC regulators and officials,

Access to quarterly financial documents is imperative for Americans and those we entrust our capital with to make informed investment decisions.

This reporting cadence also forces a level of transparency and accountability for those running public companies.

These same companies dominate industries and hold ever-growing influence over our lives. It is of increasing importance that these companies provide insights into their activities to regulators and policymakers, especially as the rate of technological change is much greater than ever before.

Let’s maintain the integrity of our financial markets! Enforce continued quarterly reporting.

Respectfully,

Jacob Perius

Sent from my iPhone

Jake Weber — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jake Weber Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Jake Weber, Real estate agent CA, stop allowing people in government to trade if you want to change quarterly announcements. It's already offensive to the common people to see so many officials who have information multiple weeks in advance call it whatever you want they are taking advantage of the everyday worker. Shame on all who agree with changing it to 6 months.

Sent from mobile

JAKE WEBER
530-264-6510
https://dot.cards/jaketweber

Real Estate Consultant
Realty ONE Group Complete
1150 Sunset Blvd,#150 Rocklin,CA,95765
DRE#02131739

DOWNLOAD MY FREE HOME SEARCH APP HERE
https://app.realtyonegroup.com/N9Cu

James Hartman — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James Hartman Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This will benefit "big money" to the real (measurable) detriment of smaller (less well off) investors.

James McCarthy — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James McCarthy Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Seriously, this reeks of simply : keep them (retail investors) in the DARK while we work magic in accounting..

Sent from my iPhone

Jean Roldson Saint Juste — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jean Roldson Saint Juste Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Small investor will pay the price if the requirements change to semi-annual from quarterly. DO NOT GIVE THE BIG INVESTORS ALL THE ADVANTAGE WHILE SMALL AND RETAIL INVESTORS WILL BE SUFFERED.

Jean-Paul Dracolakis — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jean-Paul Dracolakis Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 In a day and age where corruption is on the rise in every corner of our country why would we want LESS transparency? We don't, we never will, and it is the job of the SEC to protect citizens so they feel safe investing in the US economy. Weakening that system only encourages successful citizens to leave the US for a country with more secure financial systems.

From The Desk Of Jean-Paul Dracolakis

Jeffrey Ferraro — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeffrey Ferraro Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Jeff Ferraro, investor. I am against this change as an investor as it encourages fraud and insider trading I may not be privy to, putting me at risk. The Sec has a job to do and it should INCREASE fillings, not reduce them.

Jel — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jel Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 There is no justification for changing from quarterly to seni-annually whatsoever. The amount the save is minimal and the opportunity for abuse enormous!

Jessica — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jessica Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Jessica Dodd
Software Engineer
Without frequent insight into business performance investors can't plan their investments adequately. Business will have to collect this data regardless. This email (and any attachments) is a highly classified transmission from ThunderStrike and/or its affiliated companies or partners. If you're not the intended recipient, you've somehow infiltrated our communications network; congratulations, but please stop reading immediately. Any unauthorized review, disclosure, copying, or distribution is strictly prohibited and may anger our legal department (and possibly summon a mild thunderstorm).

If you received this message in error, please notify the sender, delete it from your system, and pretend this never happened. Seriously, just forget everything.

Stay safe, stay dry, and may your inbox remain lightning-free.

Joe — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joe Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Joe W
Investment Analyst

I've been in the industry for 10 years and this is by far the most boneheaded and president indulging thing coming out of the SEC. People depend on those reports to accurately determine the financial health of the companies they invest in. You want to be a publicly traded company, you're going to be held to a higher standard. It's plain and simple and up until now didn't ever seem like a line that the SEC of all people would cross. You're going to tell me that a mutual fund family or a publicly traded company can blow up a clients inbox and mailbox over some stupid proxy vote, but as investors we should somehow expect less correspondence unless that company needs us? Figure it out.

John Brennan — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Brennan Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Transparency is of paramount importance. Only bad actors are served by delaying filings. Stop the very real possiblity of fraud .

John Gordon — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Gordon Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 It's for our safety! Keep the law!!

John Harry — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Harry Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Why would this change even need to be debated? It is our money, we want, atca minimum, quarterly reports. More transparency- NOT LESS!

Joseph Corcoran, Managing Director and Associate General Counsel, and Ray Mosca, Assistant Vice President, Asset Management Group, SIFMA — Jun 4, 2026
June 4, 2026
Vanessa A. Countryman
Secretary
U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street, NE
Washington, D.C. 20549-1090
Re: Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; 39-2563; IC-36140; File No. S7-2026-15
Semiannual Reporting
Dear Ms. Countryman:
The Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association ("SIFMA")1 and its Asset Management Group ("SIFMA AMG")2 are writing to request that the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC" or "Commission") extend the comment period on the Commission's Proposed Semiannual Reporting Rule ("the Proposal")3 by 60 days to provide commenters with additional time to review and comment on the Proposal, which would allow companies to file semiannual reports in lieu of quarterly reports to meet their interim reporting obligations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.
SIFMA and SIFMA AMG represent broker-dealers and asset managers that invest in and have as clients public companies of all sizes across the U.S. capital markets. SIFMA members also serve as underwriters and placement agents for companies seeking to raise capital in the
1 SIFMA is the leading trade association for broker-dealers, investment banks and asset managers operating in the U.S. and global capital markets. On behalf of our industry's one million employees, we advocate on legislation, regulation and business policy affecting retail and institutional investors, equity and fixed income markets and related products and services. We serve as an industry coordinating body to promote fair and orderly markets, informed regulatory compliance, and efficient market operations and resiliency. We also provide a forum for industry policy and professional development. SIFMA, with offices in New York and Washington, D.C., is the U.S.

regional member of the Global Financial Markets Association (GFMA).
2 SIFMA AMG brings the asset management community together to provide views on U.S. and global policy and to create industry best practices. SIFMA AMG's members represent U.S. and global asset management firms that manage more than 50% of global AUM. The clients of SIFMA AMG member firms include, among others, tens of millions of individual investors, registered investment companies, endowments, public and private pension funds,
UCITS and private funds such as hedge funds and private equity funds. For more information, visit http://www.sifma.org/amg.
3 See SEC Semiannual Reporting, 91 F.R. 24968 (May 7, 2026), https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/FR-2026-05-
07/pdf/2026-09095.pdf.

public markets, including through initial public offerings. These are the perspectives from which SIFMA and SIFMA AMG are evaluating the Proposal.
As the Commission notes, the Proposal represents a significant change to the long-standing quarterly reporting regime for public companies and could have wide-ranging impacts on the capital markets. Such a significant change raises complex and technical issues. For example, from a SIFMA perspective, the Proposal creates questions regarding underwriters' due diligence processes. From a SIFMA AMG perspective, the Proposal creates questions about the timeliness of information available to investors and the ability of investors to compare companies in the same sector if they report financial information on different cadences. Given the potential significant implications of the Proposal on various aspects of capital markets, we request an additional 60 days to evaluate the potential impacts of the Proposal.
We also note that there are currently two additional outstanding rulemaking proposals relating to offering reform.
4 Given the overlapping comment periods of these proposals and the overarching policy objectives of facilitating capital formation in public markets and encouraging IPOs, additional time to consider these proposals concurrently would allow our members to more thoroughly review the proposals, better articulate their opinions, and provide more useful suggestions to the SEC.
Finally, the comment letter due date currently falls on July 6th, 2026. This coincides with the 250th anniversary of American independence. We expect that many of our members' staff will likely be unavailable or occupied with other obligations during this once-in-a-lifetime celebration.
Accordingly, we kindly request that the Commission extend the July 6th comment deadline by 60 days to provide our members and other market participants additional time to review the Proposal and more fully assess the potential implications of semiannual reporting by public companies. If you have any questions or wish to discuss our extension request, please do not hesitate to contact us by calling Joe Corcoran at (202) 962-7383 or Ray Mosca (202) 962-7342.

***
4 See SEC Registered Offering Reform, 91 F.R. 31022 (May 26, 2026), https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/FR-
2026-05-26/pdf/2026-10373.pdf; SEC Enhancement of Emerging Growth Company Accommodations and Simplification of Filer Status for Reporting Companies, 91 F.R. 30086 (May 21, 2026), https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/FR-2026-05-21/pdf/2026-10222.pdf.

Sincerely,

_____
Joseph Corcoran
Managing Director and Associate General Counsel
Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association
1099 New York Avenue, NW, 6th Floor

_____
Raymond Mosca
Assistant Vice President, Asset Management Group
Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association
1099 New York Avenue, NW, 6th Floor
cc: The Honorable Paul S. Atkins, Chairman
The Honorable Hester M. Peirce, Commissioner
The Honorable Mark T. Uyeda, Commissioner

Joseph Horan V — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joseph Horan V Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Joseph Horan, I just turned 16 so I'm unemployed, and this problem matters to me because I invest in stocks. If you let these companies only report earnings when they want to it would ruin the relationship with investors, and take away the trust they have. So DONT do this!

Sent from my iPhone

Josh Jay — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Josh Jay Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 There is no merit to doing this. Why we would willingly cede our right to quarterly reports? This only benefits businesses and does not protect the consumer.

Josh Liang — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Josh Liang Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Dear securties and Exchange Commission staff,

We honor the flag, and you crap on it when you don't require public companies to report on a quarterly basis.

Your brother from another mother,

Josh Liang

Julian Andrews — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Julian Andrews Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 The cost of reporting is de minimis for most publicly traded companies, and the value of the information to investors is huge. Companies still need to track their finances after all. Some sort of targeted exception from quarterly reporting for small or newer companies might make sense. This blanket policy is unjustifiable on cost grounds.

The argument that the reduced reporting is optional, and therefore not a problem also makes no sense. There is basically no incentive for companies to report more often than required by law. If the requirement is semi-annual, most companies will report semi-annually. I struggle to even make this argument make sense.

The best rationale I've seen given is that this will free companies up from having to be responsive to the market in the short term, which will allow them to make better long term decisions. That's Orwellian double-speak. We want companies to be responsive to the market, and the idea that most of the time CEOs will use their new freedom to make better long term plans instead of to advance their own short term agendas is inconsistent with a rudimentary understanding of how most companies operate in the real world.

I have little doubt that the employees at the SEC understand all this. If this rule passes, we will all know this is regulatory capture.

- Julian Andrews

Julie Beers — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Julie Beers Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This is a ridiculous attempt to shield companies from legitimate consumer oversight. What do they need to hide? Outright theft? Market manipulation?

Julie Tessler — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Julie Tessler Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This is an unnecessary and reckless change to policies and procedures that are working well.
There is simply no need to move from a 3 month reporting cycle to a 6 month. Unless that reason is fraud, I can’t understand it

Sent from my iPhone

Juliet DiGiovanni — Jun 4, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Juliet DiGiovanni Dear SEC, Please maintain the quarterly mandate that public companies and certain large private entities regularly disclose financial conditions, business operations, and material events using standardized electronic forms including a 10-Q. Please maintain the mandate that the quarterly 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. and that the 10-Q is available to the public. I am an independent investor I use the 10-Q, quarterly earnings report to make informed intelligent decisions on my stock trading. I am depend on the 10-Qs accurate quarterly filings improve my retirement portfolio. I will be dependent on my retirement portfolio funds, in my most vulnerable time of life, elderly. Please protect the individual investors! Thanks for reading, Juliet DiGiovanni

---

Justin Toney — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Justin Toney Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This is probably missing the point but I thought the reason Enron perpetrated the fraud to the extent they did was because they did not release a straightforward balance sheet and obscured assets and liabilities with partnerships and off-balance sheet items. From this standpoint the frequency of reporting wouldn't have been relevant and not so sure it is going to matter with the proposed rule change.

—JDT

Justus Fenner — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Justus Fenner Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Name: Justus Fenner
Job title: senior IT professional

One day I hope to be a larger investor in the stock market. Just like my parents before me. But this would make stocks a much less transparent process for the average American, and make investing a much less safe means of wealth growth. It will also create perverse incentives for companies that will lead to worse products for Americans. I was raised to believe in an American dream that has been slowly stolen from me by the powerful. I wanted to own a business, i wanted to retire with my wife, I wanted to build up my community. Letting this happen will directly effect all of those dreams, and make my every day life worse with companies being able to hide thier sins more effectively.

---

kani44030 — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: kani44030 Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 As an investor I want to know when a company is having problems sooner, not later. Please do not change the reporting period.
Thank you,

Kathleen Nicholson

Karen Lewis — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Karen Lewis Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Dear SEC,

My name is Karen Lewis. I worked for Disclosure/Primark/Thomson Financial. The quarterly financials reported are necessary for all investors to know how the company is handling the operating environment, which can and often does change on a dime. The change to semiannual reporting, especially in this volatile economy, would endanger all but insiders by depriving them of the information necessary for prudent investing decisions. Please continue to require public filings of quarterly financial disclosures.
Thank You,

[REDACTED]
Retired Sr. Business Analyst and Data Architect.

Katie Rideout — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Katie Rideout Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Letting them hide 6 months of records is unreasonable and frankly dishonest.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Kelly Ng — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelly Ng Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I think visibility into publicly traded companies is incredibly important. These companies are given the ability to raise capital on public markets. If they don't want to share out earnings then they're more than welcome to go private.

Kelly Pennington — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kelly Pennington Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This move limiting reporting is a move that will destroy public confidence in the stock market!!

Sent from my iPhone

Kenneth Dobrowolski — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kenneth Dobrowolski Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Please don’t change the SEC rules for companies reporting timelines. It would allow them to make their filings even more difficult for investors to track their earnings, price to sales ratios and the overall revenue for an entire six month period keeping investors in the dark about the overall health of the company. It’s bad enough that we have to depend on GAAP accounting principles which can be manipulated and now investors won’t be able to tell the full health of a company for 6 months? Please do not do this to the shareholders.

Kento Locatelli — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kento Locatelli Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 As someone whose retirement savings are primarily locked up in stocks and indexes, regular quarterly reporting provides a significant measure of confidence in both individual stocks and the overall market. Especially in this time of uncertainty. Any cost savings are negligible at the scale of modern large companies. Long-termist corporate policies come from better boards and executive compensation strategies, not from reducing visibility.

Kevin Opp — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kevin Opp Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This is corruption. Quarterly reporting is the bare minimum to maintain accountability and prevent insider trading.

Kevin Perryman — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kevin Perryman Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 As a retail Investor I am already at a disadvantage. Now you want to limit the data I can review. NOT GOOD! If you want to make meaningful changes require monthly reporting by the 15th of the month. With AI and internet there should be a very limited cost and marginal cost. At a minimum make it tiered. Companies with more than 10,000 investors must report monthly, 1,000-10,000 investors quarterly and less than 1,000 different investors report every 6 months. Companies with less than 1,000 investors are going to be mostly sophisticated investors or insiders so retail investors are not losing anything.

KWP
Sent from my iPhone

Larry Smith — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Larry Smith Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Larry S. Smith

Quarterly reporting provides more timely data for investors to analyze companies operations.

Sent from my iPad

Linda Goodrich — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Linda Goodrich Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Investors need to keep an eye on their investments. This is troubling to me. I don't see the need to keep this information from us. Thanks for your help.

Linda Goodrich retired teacher
Richmond Virginia

Lord Tofu — Jun 4, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lord Tofu Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I would like to keep quarterly reporting. These quarterly reports are what gives the world faith to invest into US markets. If it's really so hard to report some numbers that they still need to track anyways even if this goes to 2 times a year then they should invest in better infrastructure to keep count of their earnings.

Lori Hensley — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Lori Hensley, and I'm an upper-middle-class suburban mom. Our household invests, more than most. This change is the wrong thing to do for the majority of investors, and the market. Too much volatility as-is and the worldwide case studies are enough to know it's a bad idea. Please do the right thing by the majority of Americans.

Sent from my iPhone

M G — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: M G Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 To SEC:

Form 10-Qs were forged in the wake of the 1929 market crash and the Great Depression to dismantle a financial "Wild West" defined by corporate secrecy and rampant insider abuse. Before mandatory reporting, executives routinely exploited a massive information advantage, front-running the public on material news and colluding in manipulative "stock pools" to fleece retail investors. The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 created the SEC to enforce transparency, and the 10-Q was later established to eliminate dangerous 12-month information gaps, ensuring that fresh financial data stripped insiders of their unfair advantage. There are valid reasons why these things were created.. .ignoring hostory does not sound smart to me.

Today, keeping the 10-Q is vital because annual reports are backward-looking obituaries; quarterlies provide the real-time vital signs necessary to price risk accurately and prevent catastrophic capital misallocation. Abolishing them would instantly widen information asymmetry, drive up the cost of capital, and crush investor confidence. In a fast-moving economy, a year-long information vacuum invites speculation, fraud, and a return to insider dominance—proving that standardized quarterly disclosure is not administrative red tape, but the bedrock of market integrity.

M. W. — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: M. W. Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This will cause a lack of visibility that will only foster fraud and hurt retail investors. Keep the quarterly reporting requirement.

Mark Colburn — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Colburn Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 What's wrong with transparency? Keep the reporting as it is. We all have investments.

Mark Gooding — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Gooding Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Quarterly reporting is critical to making sound investment decisions. Please, for all investors, especially the small ones, keep it at three months. Mark Gooding. Retired in NC.

Sent from my iPhone

Mark Hostetler — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Hostetler Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 It should be monthly

---

Marty Hansen — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marty Hansen Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Marty Hansen. Cashier. Do not allow companies to go longer between reports.

Matt Gilbert — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matt Gilbert Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Please keep SEC reporting quarterly. It's not necessary to change this reporting that provides accurate updates

Matt G

Matt Gilbert — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matt Gilbert Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Please keep Public company reporting quarterly. It will only make it harder to learn the status of my investments, which is already hard enough.
Concerned US citizen trying to build retirement

Matt Gilbert

Matt Johnson — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matt Johnson Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 What our financial markets and system need now more than ever is more rather than less transparency. Increasing asymetry of information between investors and insiders is exactly the opposite of what we need. If I had it my way companies would be required to report monthly numbers to increase market knowledege.

Matthew Egge — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Egge Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Matthew Egge. I am an environmental planner at a large a&e firm. I know about bureaucracy and how much it sucks. The bureaucracy of sec reporting is worth it for the public accountability and transparency that wouldn't otherwise exist. Please do not adjust reporting periods.

Matthew Johnson — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Johnson Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 What our financial markets and system need now more than ever is more rather than less transparency. Increasing asymetry of information between investors and insiders is exactly the opposite of what we need. If I had it my way companies would be required to report monthly numbers to increase market knowledege.

Meagan — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Meagan I believe that the information provided in quarterly reporting not only offers protections to consumers, employees, and investors, but also encourages a more competitive market. It allows for informed business decision making. Additionally, as someone who works in market research/data analytics, moving to semi-annual reporting will have real consequences on industries that use 10Q reports as a reference for their research, products, or decisions. The cost savings are minimal for a policy change that withholds information from the public and creates volatility and insecurity in the market. We have a right to make informed personal and professional decisions more than twice a year. Thank you for the consideration of my comment.

Memorandum from the Division of Corporation Finance regarding a June 3, 2026 meeting with Representatives of Donnelley Financial Solutions — Jun 4, 2026
MEMORANDUM
To: File No. S7-2026-15 and File No. S7-2026-17
From: Division of Corporation Finance
Re: Meeting with Donnelley Financial Solutions
Date: June 4, 2026
On June 3, 2026, staff from the Division of Corporation Finance (Sebastian Gomez Abero, Ted Yu, Jessica Ansart, Dillon Hagius, Ryan Milne, Joshua Gorsky, and Jacqueline Bachrach) and the Division of Economic and Risk Analysis (Robert Girouard) met with representatives of Donnelley Financial Solutions (Bridget Hughes and Marcie Clark) and representatives of Blue Ridge Law & Policy (Walton Liles) to discuss, among other things, the proposed rulemakings Semiannual Reporting (Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; 39-2563; IC-36140; File No. S7-2026-15) and Registered Offering Reform (Release Nos. 33-11418; 34-105513; IC-36160; File No. S7-2026-17).

Michael Buechele — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Buechele Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Michael Buechele, Accountant

Financial reporting needs to be timely, consistent, and accurate. Timely access to publicly available reporting is a fundamental part of investment profiling. Retail investors are already at a major disadvantage and giving further leeway to potential insider trading will further erode confidence in American markets. Public companies will always push for more leeway to take on risk. It is a regulator's duty to push back on behalf of shareholders, employees, and consumers. Lack of oversight inevitably leads to irreparable damage to the longevity of an organization and the economy by extension. Well-meaning or not, idiots will abuse their position, risk what isn't theirs, and lose it all.

Michael Cianos — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Cianos Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I hope that the SEC can appreciate the role that it has to play in building a healthy society and economy for everyone. Corporations have shown time and time again that they do not give a damn about the broader society they are embedded within, and allowing for even more secrecy benefits no one but the privileged few on the inside. For decades, they have made the rules that they get to play by - and look where it's gotten us. Sky high stockmarket but most people struggling just to get by. This is the system you're complicit in creating. I have little faith in your ability to see that anymore, but providing yet another avenue for a handful of people to protect themselves and get richer while everyone else flies blind is so clearly asinine. But the mere fact that I even need to write this comment means we're too far gone.

In a world where it is becoming harder by the day to find real information about what is going on - don't make it even harder.

- Mike

Michael Johnston — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Johnston Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission,

I am writing to formally express my strong opposition to the SEC’s proposal to allow public companies to move from quarterly to semiannual financial reporting. As a retail investor, I believe this change would be detrimental to the integrity of our markets and the safety of individual investors.

Public financial disclosure is a cornerstone of market transparency. Quarterly reporting is essential because it provides investors with a necessary, timely window into a company's health. Extending this window to six months would leave retail investors "flying blind," creating significant information asymmetry. It would unfairly advantage corporate insiders and institutional investors, who would possess material, non-public information for much longer periods than the general public.

Furthermore, I am concerned that reducing the frequency of reporting would create more opportunities for corporate misconduct to fester. History has shown that transparency is the best defense against accounting scandals. Lengthening reporting gaps does not improve long-term business strategy; it only increases the potential for fraud and market volatility.

Finally, while proponents argue that this change reduces compliance burdens, these savings are minimal for the corporations involved and do not justify the risk imposed on the investing public. My retirement savings and financial planning depend on accurate, frequent, and reliable data. I strongly urge the Commission to reject this proposal and maintain the quarterly reporting standard.

Thank you for your time and for considering the perspective of individual investors.

Sincerely,

Michael Johnston
Enterprise Account Executive

Mike — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mike Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 It is not in the public interest to shelter up to date financial data that retirement planning depends on. Please don't

Sent from my iPad

Monty Botschner — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Monty Botschner Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Please maintain the quarterly reporting requirements of financial results for public companies. If they are switched to 6 month reporting intervals, this will negatively affect me as a retail trader. I rely on the quarterly reports for my investing strategy. Inside traders will benefit from the longer gap, but I would be put at a disadvantage as a retail trader. The deck is already stacked against the retail trader and this would just add to their disadvantage. The minimal savings to the companies are not worth the disadvantage this would cause to me.

I am asking that the quarterly reporting of financial of public companies be maintained.

Nancy Cobb — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Cobb Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Nancy E Cobb, Attorney at Law, keep the quarterly reporting in place! Wall Street Insiders already have have way too many advantages over the common investor! Don't make it even harder for them to try & figure out what is gping on in the company they've invested their hard-earned cash!

Nick Suvak — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nick Suvak Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I’m writing to express my concern over the proposed policy change that would allow companies to forgo quarterly stock reports and only make semiannual reports. I use these reports to make investment decisions and evaluate how my financial planner’s are doing managing my money.
I am also concerned that this optional delay in disclosure will give company insiders an unfair edge compared to the general public, thus eroding confidence in our markets.

Sent from my iPhone

Nick Yeager — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nick Yeager Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Nicholas Yeager. I am a U.S. Marine Corps veteran, construction manager, husband, father of three, and a retail investor.

I oppose the SEC proposal to allow public companies to move from quarterly reporting to semiannual reporting.

As an ordinary investor, I do not have access to corporate executives, analysts, private meetings, or insider information. Quarterly reports are one of the few tools available to help me evaluate the health of companies that may be held in my retirement accounts, 401(k), and personal investments.

Reducing reporting frequency from every three months to every six months decreases transparency and increases the information gap between corporate insiders and everyday investors. A great deal can change in six months, including debt levels, revenue trends, litigation exposure, customer demand, and overall business performance.

I understand the argument that quarterly reporting may encourage short-term thinking, but I do not believe withholding information from investors is the solution. Transparency and timely disclosure are fundamental to fair and efficient markets.

The SEC's mission includes protecting investors. In my opinion, reducing the frequency of required financial reporting would weaken investor protections and make it more difficult for retail investors like me to make informed decisions.

I respectfully urge the Commission to maintain quarterly reporting requirements for public companies.

Nicholas Yeager
Construction Manager
Ambler, Pennsylvania

Nick Yeager

NM Comcast — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: NM Comcast Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I am retired and manage my own portfolio. I rely on quarterly reports for decisions almost exclusively. You must not change this.

Sent from my iPhone

Pamela England-Moore — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pamela England-Moore Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I do not have huge amounts invested but precisely because of that I need to be able to more closely monitor what I do have.
Do not reduce the frequency of these reports!

Thank you for your consideration,

Pamela England-Moore

Patrick Browne — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patrick Browne Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Retail already trades at a disadvantage compared to wallstreet and other insiders. Anyone that's even paying even a little bit of attention can clearly see that despite all the rules in place to make this not true, insider trading and the like is still happening and not enforced strictly enough for anyone to care. Do not go to 6 month reporting!

Sent from my iPhone

Patrick Matlin — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patrick Matlin Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Whoever approves this surely imagines themselves benefiting from it, but forgets that they are not immune to consequences. When they invest they will also be less protected, and if not them, their children and family and friends. As corruption and insider trading run rampant, those with power will try to build a fortune so massive they become untouchable, but no man is an island.

Patrick

Paul R. Long III — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Paul R. Long III Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Transparency is key to any financial transaction. Quarterly reports are time -tested and fundamental to fund managers' ability to make important decisions about their investments. The public has the right to see the same information as industry insiders. Leave quarterly reporting as is.

Paul Long

Philip Impaglia — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Philip Impaglia Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 To do this is to further alienate the retail investor at time when they have historic participation in financial markets. Furthermore, implementing this at a time when market value vs. GDP is closing in on 2.5 standard deviations above the historical trend, when p/e ratios are continuing to disconnect reality in a low breadth environment. You are essentially working to undermine healthy market corrections and retail investors economic mobility in favor of wealthy investors who already have the advantage of a historic wealth gap. We see you, never get so bold as to believe you are invincible. We can read these days.... And we are hungry....

Quinn Robinson — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Quinn Robinson Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Quinn Neste. Lead Technical Artist.

This is so stupid. I cannot imagine the absolute idiocy of someone that would approve this. Are you genuinely unwell? A hedgehog could see the problems here. Companies file quarterly for accountability.

I don't understand even the surface level logic of this.

Rahul Desai — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rahul Desai Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Rahul Desai and I'm a retail investor. I rely on SEC filings to determine where to put my hard earned money. Don't give quants and HFT firms an even bigger advantage by reducing retail investors' access to information.

Ramesh Doraiswamy, Individual Investor — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ramesh Doraiswamy To the Securities and Exchange Commission, I am writing as an individual retail investor based in Carlsbad, California, USA, with over two decades of experience managing my own portfolio using publicly available SEC filings, earnings reports, and options strategies. I am opposed to the proposed amendments under File No. S7-2026-15. The quarterly reporting cadence is not a burden on investors; it is valuable and vital information for them. Retail investors like me rely entirely on public filings to make informed decisions. Institutional investors, corporate insiders, and large asset managers have continuous access to operational data through analyst relationships, private briefings, and internal channels. Extending the interim reporting window from 90 days to 180 days does not level the playing field; it widens it in favor of those who already have the least need for public disclosure. For investors who use options strategies tied to earnings cycles like I do, a 180-day blind spot materially increases risk. Options pricing, implied volatility, and position sizing all depend on predictable disclosure timelines. Halving the frequency of interim reports is not a modernization; it is a structural disadvantage imposed on retail participants. The cost-savings rationale also does not hold up. The largest public companies, the ones most likely to influence market behavior have automated their reporting pipelines. With the advent of AI and modern technology tools, the marginal cost of producing a quarterly 10-Q for a large-cap issuer is no longer the burden it was in 1970. If the Commission's concern is genuinely about smaller companies, I propose a targeted approach: make semiannual reporting optional only for companies below a defined float threshold (e.g., under $75 million), while keeping quarterly reporting mandatory for large- and mid-cap issuers. I respectfully urge the Commission to reject or substantially narrow this proposal. Transparency is the foundation of fair markets. This rule moves in the wrong direction. Respectfully submitted, Ramesh Doraiswamy Carlsbad, California

---

Reagan Leonard — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Reagan Leonard Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Reagan. I live in South Carolina and I work as a web developer. This proposal to allow companies to report their financials every SIX MONTHS is insane to me. Personally, I am not the day-trading type. I prefer auto-investing into broad low-cost index funds and ETFs. However, even for a person like me who doesn't necessarily read companies' quarterly reports and make investment decisions based on them, this is bad news. It gives companies a longer leash to do irresponsible things without investors' and stakeholders' knowledge. To me, this is yet another example of our government telling the public, "We're going to change the law so that corporations can financially benefit the already-wealthy class (who are blatantly and unashamedly insider trading) MORE while they will benefit you, the working class, less". This will allow the wealth gap between normal US citizens and the 1% to grow even larger because it holds normal people at even further arms length while those rules do not apply to the ultra wealthy. ...But I bet you guys at the SEC already know all this, don't you? DO NOT DO THIS. Companies should still have to file earnings reports QUARTERLY.

Rhymsceme DLow — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rhymsceme DLow Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Please keep disclosures quarterly. Six months is too long. Investors need access to the maximum amount of information in the most timely manner possible.

Rian Burleigh — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rian Burleigh Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This shouldn't have ever been even considered. I am outraged no one is will be able to trust their investments ever again

Rian Burleigh

Rich R — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rich R Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Do not under any circumstances allow reporting to go semi-annual. Our stock market is already a fraudulent system. Do not allow information to go into the dark and allow bad actors more space to operate.

Rich Rhodes, Director, Ruskin, FL.

Robert Gough — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Robert Gough Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Do you want to destroy the small investor? When we put our money in to a company's stock we have the right to know what they are doing with that money and how their earnings and the bottom line impacts the investor.
Robert Gough

Ronald Merritt Jr — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ronald Merritt Jr Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Quarterly SEC reporting should be preserved to ensure robust transparency and accountability in our capital markets. Frequent, timely disclosures give investors critical visibility into a company's financial health, performance, and risks, enabling better-informed decisions. Moving to biannual reporting would reduce oversight, create dangerous information gaps, and weaken corporate discipline by allowing problems to build unchecked for longer periods. Strong transparency through quarterly filings strengthens market integrity, protects investors, and promotes long-term economic confidence.

It is beyond important that financial situational awareness is maintained at its current schedule. Longer terms of silence will result in larger problems once revealed.

Thank you,
RLMerritt

Rudolph Gartner — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rudolph Gartner Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Your proposal to diminish required SEC revenue reporting for public companies from every three months to every six months is a downright dangerous proposal for investors, especially retail, individual investors. Your proposal is yet another galling example of hpw this Administration is doing everything it possibly can to undermine and hurt ordinary Americans while handing the economy and everything else over to Big Business, Big Tech, and to further the construction of the authoritarian, corporate state and the intentional dismantling of America's constitutional republic founded upon law, liberty, and a democratic form of government.

The first thing to go in an authoritarian takeover of democracy is the intentional wresting of public information, research, and knowledge from the public, the taxpaying public, it should be added. Your proposal to limit public reporting by corporate America is in lockstep with the current unfolding of authoritarianism inside the people's federal government. That this is happening during our nation's 250th anniversary of the birth of our constitutional Republic is most outragious and a betrayal of our nation's values and principles. Shame upon you!

Rudolph Gartner, individual investor and born citizen of the United States of America.

Russell Greco — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Russell Greco Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I think this a great idea, reducing reporting requirements, the burden on corporations and the costs and waste of public audits. Please stop the waste of quarterly reporting and greenlight semi-annual.

Thanks.

Ryan Blakeslee — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ryan Blakeslee Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 You risk major divestment once you undermine trust by removing transparency. This is not difficult. The fact this is being considered speaks volumes about where greed is at.

Get Outlook for iOS

Ryan Reuther — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ryan Reuther I strongly oppose the proposed rule permitting optional semiannual reporting on Form 10-S. While intended to lower compliance costs, removing the quarterly mandate actively harms market integrity via three distinct mechanisms: 1. Severe Reduction in Liquidity: Empirical data from the 2014 UK and EU regulatory shifts proves that dropping quarterly reports directly causes market liquidity to dry up and bid-ask spreads to permanently widen, increasing transactional friction for all participants. 2. Systemic Adverse Selection: Stable issuers will maintain quarterly disclosures to satisfy credit markets. Form 10-S will primarily be utilized by distressed companies seeking to delay the public disclosure of material risks, creating an opaque sub-market. 3. Sanctioned Information Asymmetry: A 180-day reporting void allows institutional capital to utilize private, high-cost alternative data to track corporate health, while retail investors are left completely blind. Please reject Form 10-S to ensure markets remain fair, orderly, and efficient. The savings are not worth the costs.

Salvador Guzman — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Salvador Guzman Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Adrian Guzman, and I work as a CNC Operator. I disagree with this potential new SEC ruling because I rely on quarterly earnings reports to make informed decisions about my investment choices. Lowering my opportunities to review the company's financials would put my retirements at risk, which is made all the more important given how fast the world moves nowadays. Semi-annual disclosures would only end up hurting ordinary investors.

Sandra Setti — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sandra Setti Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Sandra Setti. Energy Compliance Manager.

Hello,

Please keep quarterly reporting requirements. These are essential for ensuring transparency and accountability. I trade to supplement my income and rely on these reports to help me make decisions and avoid pitfalls where I might lose my retirement savings.

Thank you

Sara Barker — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sara Barker Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 We have the right to see how and what companies are doing so that they don't become "too big to fail" and then we have to bail them out again. Focus on the people, not the money.

Sent from my iPhone

Scotty Burleson — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Scotty Burleson Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Dear Staff,
I strongly support quarterly reports of 401(k) plans and IRA accounts.
Sincerely,
Scotty Kent Burleson
Haleyville, Alabama 35565
Retired/Disabled

Sent from my iPhone

Sean H — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sean H Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is Sean and I am a business analyst living in Nebraska. I am FOR the proposal as I believe the current quarterly reporting requirements force executives to make decisions that benefit the company in the short-term with less regard for its long-term wellbeing.

Again, I think this is a good rule change and would hope the SEC passes the ruling.

Sent from my Verizon, Samsung Galaxy smartphone
Get Outlook for Android

Serge Paquette — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Serge Paquette Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I don't support this change. I prefer to see quarterly reports as it allows me to evaluate the company more often. More data, more transparency, better markets.

Serge R. Paquette

Sharif Hasnat — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sharif Hasnat Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Companies must maintain strict accountability. The stock market needs to be trusted and reliable to support people for the future as it has replaced traditional pensions and retirements.

Shelley Fendlay — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shelley Fendlay Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 My name is shelley fendlay. Im a child care provider. Im one of the little guys who could be financially devastated if this rule takes effect. We already have the least, you CANNOT allow companies to go dark for six months as alot can happen in six months and by the time we find out about it, we may have already bought something we wouldn't have. All the while there are people who know what we dont for half of a year. And they can still trade but we'd be flying blind. Thank you for your time. Shelley

---

Shirley Paulson — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shirley Paulson Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 If you want the little guys' retirement money to play with, you need to play fair! Otherwise, we will just have to go back to stuffing our funds in our mattresses and in tin. cans in holes in our back yards.

Stacie Ford-Bonnelle — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stacie Ford-Bonnelle Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Stacie Ford-Bonnelle, Museum worker. It's important that companies are held accountable to those invested and to the communities in which they employ, remit taxes and impact in many ways. If companies have unaddressed, underlying problems that ultimately could result in mass layoffs, uprooting the business or closing completely; that has a detrimental on local, national and possibly international markets. More frequent reporting is a reasonable expectation.

Stephen Sherwood — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stephen Sherwood Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I want weekly reporting. This proposed rule is no good.

Steve Van Oudenhoven — Jun 4, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steve Van Oudenhoven Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This is totally against all that America stands for! The unamerican presiodent does not care for you or anyone but himself. So he and his buddies do all they can to get all the money! This kind of action needs to stop. It is up to you to get this nonsense stopped!

Steven Menicucci — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steven Menicucci Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 The 6-month delay in companies withholding their business data will only invite fraud and illicit business practices primarily hurting consumers. PLEASE don't allow this policy to go into effect. Sincerely, Steve Menicucci

---

Sue Sikes — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sue Sikes Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Please this is not fair as it does not let ordinary people know where their accounts are at and allow for change

Sue Sikes

Sue Zimmerman — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sue Zimmerman Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 NO! No more hiding facts. Insider trading should be outlawed and prosecuted!

Sent from my iPhone

Suzanne Olander — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Suzanne Olander Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Less transparency is not better

Sent from my T-Mobile 5G Device
Get Outlook for Android

Sylvia Wexler — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sylvia Wexler Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Do not stop quarterly reporting by corporations. Have our 401K and our financial futures. Do not cave into special interests

Be kind to one another = a better world.

Theresa Condict — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Theresa Condict Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange

Commission:

I am writing as an individual retail investor to oppose the proposed shift from quarterly to semiannual financial reporting under Rule S7-2026-15.

I rely on quarterly earnings reports to make informed decisions about the stocks and funds in my retirement portfolio. A six-month gap in financial disclosures would leave me — and millions of investors like me — flying blind while corporate insiders, institutional investors, and executives continue to have full visibility into their companies' financial health. That information asymmetry is fundamentally unfair and undermines the level playing field that the SEC exists to protect.

The proposal is framed as voluntary, but I'm skeptical this will stay that way. Once large companies begin filing semiannually, competitive pressure will push smaller companies to follow, and reduced disclosure will quietly become the new norm. The supposed compliance savings accrue to companies and their executives — not to the shareholders whose retirement savings bear all the risk of being less informed.

I'm also concerned about the fraud risk. Quarterly disclosures create regular checkpoints that make it harder to conceal deteriorating financials. Longer gaps give bad actors more runway. The collapses of Enron and WorldCom are cautionary tales about what happens when opacity grows.

The SEC's mandate is to protect the investing public. I urge the Commission to keep quarterly reporting requirements in place.

Respectfully,
Theresa Condict
Woodstock, CT

Thomas Prak — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: Individual investor comment on S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Prak Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Hi The Commission should preserve quarterly reporting.

Sent from my iPhone

Thomas Tessen — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Tessen Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 It must be voided due to a lack of transparency for hard-working Americans. People will pull money out of the system, and growth will decline in a relatively short time.

Best regards,
Thomas Tessen

Toby Knighton — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Toby Knighton Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I use quarterly reports to evaluate company trajectories. Having to wait years to get multiple reports instead of 12 months would leave me woefully behind the curve.

Please keep the 10-Q

Todd Gmail — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Todd Gmail Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 This is ridiculous. Our country and its embrace of corporate greed need to be more transparent not less. We will lose confidence in the US stock market and put our money elsewhere. The Trump administration is just a haven for crooks and criminals.

Sent from my iPad

Vic Lange — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vic Lange Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I'm a director of analytics at Michael Kors and it's already obvious that the people at the top of our companies magnify their wealth through insider trading hidden behind the veil of ethics laws. Any further advantage you give to them will be played to the hilt.

Victoria Deckelmann — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Victoria Deckelmann Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Do the right * thing for once.

Sincerely,

Victoria Deckelmann

Wayne Comcast — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Wayne Comcast Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Keep the quarterly reporting, trust and transparency are critical to a working financial system

Kind Regards,
-w

Wes Jones — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Wes Jones Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 I want to say that I think the quarterly filings should not change to semi annual.

🙄

Please talk to the powers that be and reconsider. It is not a good idea to change this.

Respectfully

Wes

Get Outlook for Android

William Donihoo — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: William Donihoo Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Investor who will be retiring within the next 10 years. Quarterly reporting is driving short-term thinking in publicly traded companies. On the surface, I like increasing the disclosure time to allow companies to make (longer) term decisions. But, if insiders are allowed to know information before I do, then I disagree with the premise. Lets make reporting an annual event and allow companies to keep it confidential to EVERYONE.

Thanks in advance…

Will

William Pratt — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: William Pratt Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 It's a ridiculous idea to make corporate financials even more opaque. Please don't do it.

Zachariah Southard — Jun 4, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Zachariah Southard Affiliation: Jun. 4, 2026 Please keep statements quarterly. Transparency is important.
Zachariah Southard.

Adam Arndt — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Adam Arndt Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 My name is Adam. As a small businesses owner, I invest some of my annual profits into the market to provide for the day I am able to retire. Quarterly fillings assist me in trying to be able to fairly make companies that I am interested investing in, as well as the added benefit of transparency into the company for the good of the public. I think changing to a semi-annual filling schedule would weaken faith in companies and markets in general, and I think there has been too much weakening of governmental pressure on companies in this administration as it is. This is a step in the wrong direction.

Have a great day!
-Adam

B&D Upholstering
26641 Gratiot Ave.
Roseville, MI 48066

(586)-777-9396
(586)-219-9751 (cell)
Adam@bdup.biz

Adam Garner — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Adam Garner Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Something feels really fishy, like a conflict of interest, with this whole SpaceX IPO coming up. I think there should be stricter rules around companies that have that much valuation but have so little actual worth/value/returns to show for it. Especially when said company has already gobbled up 2 smaller companies that were also owned by it's CEO....

Alex McCourt — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Alex McCourt Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Name: Alex M.
Job: Electrical Estimator

Knowledge on how the companies I am invested in is already so limited. These quarterly briefings give valuable insight and six months is too long to go before hearing from said companies again.

Amar Sahai — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Amar Sahai Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Hello,

My name is Amar Sahai and I have been an accountant for over a decade. The purpose of my field is to make sure that the financial health of businesses is known to all relevant parties. These relevant parties include investors. For public companies, this includes the public en masse. Quarterly reporting on a level beyond monthly reporting is a very common internal standard. For integrity and transparency, this should be maintained for investors. Keep the quarterly standard.

Sincerely,
Amar Sahai

Andrew Bartz — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Andrew Bartz Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year?

Andrew Bilodeau — Jun 3, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Andrew Bilodeau personally, I believe we need more transparency in reporting, not less. Bonuses should only be given out semi annually. personally I would love to see a report have to come out eight times a year instead of four so that all investors can get more accurate data not just the ones engaging in Insider trading.

Anonymous — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous As an investor, I do not agree with this change

---

Anonymous — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 This absolutely should not change in the interest of the consumers safety

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous I am writing as a corporate finance and M&A attorney to highlight a potential issue regarding the proposed shift to semi-annual reporting. In M&A and financing transactions, we often rely heavily on quarterly filings for various diligence points. The shift to semi-annual reporting means we may end up working with older data or requesting supplementary information from companies, which can raise costs and reduce transparency, as information that would otherwise be part of public filings may instead be shared privately/ confidentially, potentially increasing the risk of less scrupulous disclosures. While this issue alone does not seem material enough to stop the proposed rule, it should be considered along with other comments highlighting other problematic consequences of adopting the proposed rule.

Ashley Schenker — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ashley Schenker Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 My name is Ashley and I am a project manager in technology.

I am concerned about proposals that would reduce the frequency of financial disclosures by public companies.
First, timely and consistent disclosure is a cornerstone of transparent and efficient capital markets. Investors rely on regular financial reporting to assess company performance, allocate capital appropriately, and make informed decisions. Extending the period between required disclosures could reduce transparency and increase information asymmetry between company insiders and the investing public.
Second, markets today react rapidly to new information. Less frequent reporting may increase uncertainty and contribute to larger price swings when material information is eventually released. More regular disclosures help investors incorporate information gradually and support more accurate price discovery.
Third, reducing reporting frequency may create additional opportunities for speculation and increase the importance of unofficial signals, rumors, and selective interpretations of company performance. Strong disclosure requirements help promote accountability and investor confidence while reducing the risk of market manipulation and insider advantages.

Quarterly reporting requirements have served investors and markets for decades. As businesses evolve and markets become increasingly interconnected and information-driven, maintaining robust disclosure standards remains important. Rather than reducing transparency, policymakers should focus on ensuring timely reporting, effective enforcement of existing regulations, and equal access to material information for all investors.
For these reasons, I support maintaining the current requirement for public companies to provide financial disclosures every three months.
Thank you.

Bardez The Avatar — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: bardez_the_avatar Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Quarterly reporting is necessary for clear insight into company performance, health, and direction. Reducing this frequency leads us into areas of insider trading, book-cooking, and financial obfuscation. I am AGAINST any reduction in corporate reporting to investors!

Sent from my Galaxy

Belair Barca — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: belair barca Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Hector Bacetti, retired

This shortening of the corporate reporting period is mostly advantageous to the corporations, while it's disadvantageous to the people (outsiders) who manage my TSP.

Ben Finch — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ben Finch Big corporations have plenty of money to donate to politicians and pay execs ten figure "compensation" packages. The reports are prepared internally monthly and quarterly anyway. Lets not get sloppy on reporting.!!!

Ben Zink — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ben Zink Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 This is Benjamin Zink, Technical Specialist. Quarterly reporting enables investors to be better informed about the risks they’re taking when investing in a company. Do more to enable fair reporting among companies.

Sent from my iPhone

Benjamin Key, Process Technician, QCells — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Benjamin Key Quarterly reports are a basic duty to shareholders so that we can make informed decisions on how to invest in our future. Whether that be multi-billion dollar hedge funds or small individual investors, everyone relies on these reports. This would also effect the overall economy as without regular reports, companies would go over or undervalued for longer periods of time, causing more dramatic swings in the market when the proposed semiannual reports finally go out.

Brian Lawrence — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brian Lawrence Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 My name is Brian Lawrence and I work as a Global Supply Chain Leader for an energy technology company. As an Employee of a public company and an investor in various publicly listed companies I want you continue to make it mandatory for companies to publish quarterly reports of their financial results!

Sent from my iPhone

Bruce Francois — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bruce Francois Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 This rule matters to me because my money is invested in shares of publicly-traded companies! I don't like missing out on selling shares before their value has dropped or paying for shares before they have already risen in value. The sooner a company releases information, the sooner retirement fund owners can act on that information, especially doing so before people with privileged insider information can drive down or drive up the value of the shares.

Thank you,

Bruce Francois
retired

Calvan North — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Calvan North Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 The continued campaign to shut down info sources that individual investors depend on in favor of increasing the power of insiders is banditry and must be stopped. Investors must have as contemporary information as possible.
Calvan North
[REDACTED]

Chad Prey — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chad Prey Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Reducing reporting will reduce transparency and erode trust in a time where both of these facets are at a premium. Part of the American enterprise is rule of law and stable economic markets. Changing SEC will be a step toward less transparency and less trust.

Charlie Klein — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Charlie Klein Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Charlie K, Pilot. Quarterly reporting is important to a fair and transparent open market. It must be kept.

[REDACTED]

Christina Passafaro — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christina Passafaro This is another form of insider trading. Letting companies hide bad numbers for 6 months before disclosing lets insiders bail before making information public. Thats crazy.

Christopher Whiteford — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Whiteford Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Christopher Whiteford, Software Engineer. Given the stock market is already in a place where the PE ratios and valuations already don't seem tethered to reality taking away Quarterly reports is just another foundation brick to make it all more unstable and unreliable.

Clara West — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Clara West Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Dear Sirs,
With the current pace of events in the world, both in the economy and in business. And in politics, 3 month reporting seems like a minimum to me that needs to be done. And i'm really requesting that you will keep that format for the sake of all who invest in the stock market, and who trust you to provide us with a certain level of safety. Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

Clara Gamache
Investor who is a newby

Colten Ford — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Colten Ford Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Colten Ford, Electrical Engineer, transparency into my savings is extremely important to me. I believe it is the right of every American to see how your hard earned savings are being used. Why would we want less accountability with our life savings? Why would you permit it?

Dallas Nazar — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dallas Nazar Howdy, my name is Dallas and I am a physician assistant. Since I do not work in finance, I rely on my investment company to track financial statistics. By reducing the filing from quarterly to biannually, this will make stocks much harder to predict and will certainly affect my retirement. Burnout in medicine is real, and the promise of an eventual end of my career is necessary to keep me motivated. If I felt like I would have to continue working past my scheduled retirement, I would change careers now to something with less income but also less stress to make sure I don't have a mental breakdown.

Darlene Futch — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Darlene Futch Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Please withdraw the proposed shift to semiannual reporting. Reducing reporting frequency increases the risk of market manipulation.

David — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 This is a terrible route to take. As a shareholder or potential shareholder I like to know just how well a company is performing so I can make an informed decision on whether to buy or sell. Allowing for this change in reporting the health of a company just opens the door for potential corruption and mistrust in the system as a whole. My name is David McCarty, I am a retired engineer/ surveyor. I am a very active investor and I rely heavily on the quarterly reports of potential new buys or in reviewing my current portfolio status. Fresh information is crucial in making investments with one’s savings. If a company is a public traded entity, then they need to provide the information needed to everyone on their health in a timely manner. I strongly encourage that quarterly reporting remains unchanged.

Sent from my iPhone

David Ruymen — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Ruymen Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 The SEC has been requiring companies to disclose their financial results quarterly for decades. Now is a time for more transparency, not less. Do not reduce the public company reporting requirements!

David Ruymen
[REDACTED]

Doug OHair — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Doug OHair Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Quarterly reporting is a critical part of investing and our financial world. With less frequent reports investors will make less efficient decisions and our economy will weaken.

Douglas Davis — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Douglas Davis Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Doug Davis, personal investor, 55 Fenno, Revere, MA. Without quarterly reports and without an analyst team, how do I distinguish between what is real and fake about a company during the extra 3 months of time? This would hurt the abilities of many investors to allocate capital properly within equity markets. This is a poor decision on a personal and country level since it is both de-democratizing information and leading to society level mis allocations.
Obviously the damage is limited since it is still reporting every 6 months, however, still real effects. Please do not change this rule.

Best,
Doug

Douglas Reed — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Douglas Reed Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 To whom it may concern,

I'm writing as an individual retail investor who relies on regular, transparent disclosure to make decisions about my retirement savings and long-term investments. I am strongly opposed to the SEC's proposal under File No. S7-2026-15 to allow companies to report only twice a year instead of quarterly.

Cutting required reporting in half would leave ordinary investors effectively flying blind for six months at a time. In that period, a lot can change inside a business—failed product launches, rising debt, legal issues, or customer losses. Corporate insiders, their lawyers, and large institutional investors will still have access to up-to-date information, but people like me, investing through 401(k)s, IRAs, and brokerage accounts, would be the last to find out. That creates an unfair information advantage for insiders and increases the risk that bad news is quietly offloaded onto retail investors before it becomes public.

Less frequent reporting also creates more room for fraud and misrepresentation to grow unnoticed. History has shown—from Enron and WorldCom to the run-up to 2008—that opacity and long gaps in disclosure make it easier for serious problems to fester. Quarterly filings don't eliminate fraud, but they shorten the window in which it can go undetected. Extending that window to six months increases risk for the very "investing public" the SEC is supposed to protect.

I'm also concerned that calling this change "optional" is misleading. In practice, once large issuers move to semiannual reporting, competitive and market pressure will push others to follow, and quarterly reporting will become the exception rather than the norm. Over time, this would likely turn a voluntary option into a de facto new standard, reducing transparency across the market.

Finally, the benefits to issuers appear modest compared to the cost imposed on investors. Companies still maintain internal books, brief boards, and monitor performance. Skipping a public filing mainly saves on legal and accounting costs, which accrue to the company and its executives—not to investors. The cost of poorer, less timely information is borne by people like me who are trying to responsibly manage long-term savings.

For these reasons, I urge the SEC to keep quarterly reporting requirements in place and reject the proposal to allow Form 10-S and six-month blackout periods. Frequent, consistent disclosure is fundamental to fair, efficient markets and to the trust that individual investors place in the U.S. public markets.

Thank you for considering my comment.

Sincerely,
A concerned retail investor

Dovile Nanda — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Dovile Nanda Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Quarterly filings are a necessity for individuals to make informed decisions about their investments. Do NOT allow companies to reduce their obligation. Less transparency into financial information has led to horrible outcomes for working families that make up the vast majority of the population.

Best regards,
Dovile

Elizabeth Scott — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Scott I am not in favor of the SEC File Number S7-2026-15 which would allow public companies to switch from quarterly reporting (Form 10-Q) to semiannual reporting (the newly proposed Form 10-S). I am not in favor of this switch due to three major areas of concern. First, this would greatly decrease transparency for investors. Many investors (retail and institutional) rely on the quarterly filings to make informed decisions regarding investing. With a six-month gap, it leaves these investors vulnerable financial risk. Second, this would increase the risk of insider trading and information asymmetry. Currently, public investors have already seen the impacts of insider trading on the financial investments (ex. Tesla, DoorDash, Apple, etc) and this proposal would allow for corporate insiders to have a greater significant advantage over public investors due to their access to financial knowledge before the public is even aware. Lastly, even if the SEC makes quarterly reports optional, top-tier companies might feel pressured by Wall Street to continue releasing quarterly data voluntarily to appease analysts. If only struggling or opaque companies opt into the semiannual schedule, using Form 10-S could inadvertently become a "red flag" to investors, defeating the purpose of the rule change. In summary, these above concerns are why I do not approve or support the SEC File Number S7-2026-15. Thank you for your time and please take into consideration my comment.

Eric Volkman — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Eric Volkman Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Quarterly reporting will keep companies honest. Which makes me wonder if the SEC is being honest?

Fresnel Phan — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Fresnel Phan The US Securities Market is easily the largest such market in the world. We are the market of choice for the largest companies in the world and receive capital flows from the entire globe. I cannot think of any reason why we would ruin what has made our markets so successful and the global standard of transparency and stability. Other country's markets that have moved to semiannual reporting are not as large and successful as the US market and I have seen no evidence that moving to semiannual reporting provided any positive benefit to their markets. These smaller markets should not be providing any inspiration for the rules that apply to our own market.

Garrett Fletcher — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Garrett Fletcher Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 I'm an investor who has lived through financial collapses caused by companies skirting the rules and abusing investor trust. Changes like this expose hard working Americans to needless risk in their investments. Please do not change the reporting standards.

Thanks,
Garrett Fletcher
Rego Park, NY

Garris Varner — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Garris Varner Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Don’t mess it up any more than you already have. 3 months is too long be we deal with it as investors. Anything longer creates more fraud and puffing. If Jesus Christ was running every company it would be different but he is not and the human nature causes liars.

Sent from my iPhone

George — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: George This rule change will negatively affect transparency which is so important in the public markets. I do not support this rule change.

Gregory Nasca — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gregory Nasca Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 You wanna work less for me? I don't think so. I like the quarterly reports because I love capitalism and the USA.

Harry O — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Harry O Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 This is a leader to true anarchist disrupting our financial leadership and lend to drifting into Totalitarianism. Or should I reverse that suggestion.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Hunter — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Hunter Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Hunter King Security engineer

Being able to see what's actually happening in companies is the best way to keep the market in touch with reality. Massive speculation doesn't help anyone.

Ira Gottlieb — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ira Gottlieb Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Hi, my name is Ira Gottlieb and I worked in leadership roles for public companies for more than 20 years. The requirement to report financial results quarterly helped provide the rigor and discipline to run the business efficiently and with a sense of urgency. I believe moving to a bi-annual reporting is a bad idea, and gives companies too much room to let their discipline and compliance lapse - while giving investors less visibility into the performance of the companies they are invested in. Please reconsider this decision.

Isaac Olson — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Isaac Olson Corporations should be subject to more transparency and scrutiny, not less. This opens the window for fraud and offloading losses on retail investors.

J. Dole — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: Public Comments re: S7-2026-15 From: J. Dole Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 To the SEC:

Quarterly reports must be kept. Otherwise you're just adding more chaos to the market. Maybe that's what you want, to help undermine this country. If so - then shame on you. But I also have news for you - Trump and his cronies are on the way out. And then we're going to right this ship again.

J. Dole
Santa Monica, CA

Jacob Rentschler — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jacob Rentschler Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 My name is Jacob and I am a deli manager, please don't make investing harder for people like me just to save big corporations a couple bucks. This would be extremely damaging to investors like me. It's already hard enough to pick good investments with the meager amount of money I'm able to use to buy stocks every month, and this rule would make it even harder and add more risk to people like me!

James Beswick — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James Beswick Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Quarterly reporting is essential for transparency. This proposal is not in the interests of the average investor.

Jeff Zhu — Jun 3, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Zhu Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 I'm Jeff, an engineer, and I'm deeply concerned about this rule change. The SEC is meant to level the playing field for us common folk, elders included, and this change would tilt the information gap against us even more.

Jim Cook — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jim Cook Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Jim cook, CEO, retired. This is an egregious erosion of public confidence, period! I urge you NOT to pass this.

John Hartman — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Hartman Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Faith in institutions is already floundering, this will make things worse. If we want stability and foreign investment as well as domestic, we need more transparency, not less.

John Lourie — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Lourie Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Quarterly reports (at a minimum) are the only way to track a company's financial health. Changing to every 6 months would be a disaster.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Jonathan Green — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jonathan Green Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 I’m Dr. Jon Green, a retired pharmaceutical chemist and individual investor, whose only substantive source of income is SSDI. There is already substantial grift going on in the stock market that we truly cannot afford to open another loophole for the grifters to drive their money truck through. The institutional investors will get their info through their personal networks, but the little guys will get the shaft. Please do not allow the 6-month silent period to become law!

iPad, iTypos (and iAutocorrects), iApologize

Jonathan Rynd — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jonathan Rynd Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 The SEC's job is to maintain public trust in the markets. If the entirely forseeable consequences of 6m reporting come to pass (huge profits for insiders, losses dumped on retail investors), public trust in the markets will be destroyed for a generation.

Jonathan Rynd

Justin Kuenstle — Jun 3, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Justin Kuenstle Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 My name is Justin Fox. I am a citizen, and I am not interested in you allowing more corrupt behavior risking my retirement by removing quarterly reporting. I don't know why public comments even exist anymore though, because you don't serve us now. You serve corrupt oligarchs at the expense of America's future. Shame on you. Cowards

Sent from my iPhone

Katie Long — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Katie Long Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Without earnings transparency, how do you expect any average investor to be able to enter the market confidently and how do you expect any billionaire to participate on the market one instead? They'll simply back channel and move money and everybody will chase the billionaire and the market will not be healthy. I think you underestimate how stupid people are and how unstable this market will become.

on mobile

Kay Carlton — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kay Carlton Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Let's be transparent!!! Why would you let the insider have MORE of an upper hand than they already do! Shame on you

Sent from my iPhone

Kemper A Leonard II — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kemper A Leonard II Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Kemper Leonard Professional Baker

Stocks are the one thing that give US citizens a chance to be apart of something big they believe in and also be rewarded for that trust this essentially destroys the very basics of what it was made for and proves we are inevitably heading towards the downfall of what used to be a proud nation

Best regards -Kemper A Leonard II

Kevin Hope — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kevin Hope Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Kevin Hope Chef
Increasing the time frame for reporting will give an advantage to industry insiders at the expense of individual investors.

--
Sent with mail.com Mail app

Larry Lance — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christina Passafaro This is another form of insider trading. Letting companies hide bad numbers for 6 months before disclosing lets insiders bail before making information public. Thats crazy.

Leslie Cunningham — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Leslie Cunningham Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Leslie Cunningham.
Many people have money invested in stocks as their retirement plan. This change endangers millions of Americans retirement plans and will allow poorly run companies to drag down investors while all capital is drained. Witness the multiple bankruptcies already in process and vastly increasing as our economy tanks under Trump.

Leslie Grant — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Leslie Grant Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Leslie Grant, Financial products wholesaler.

While I deal with investments and investment products day in and day out, I am not an insider. I rely on the free flow of publicly available information to make informed investment decisions about my own portfolio and to guide the financial advisors whom I serve.

By reducing the required reporting to bi-annual, we as every day investors do not get access to the data we need to make informed decisions about the fiscal health of the companies with whom we invest.

The world and markets move in real time, with markets trading virtually 24/7 the lack of timely information greatly disadvantages retail investors allowing insiders and institutional investors to dump their shares while those of us in retail are buying on outdated information.

This rule does not protect investors, it allows companies to hide and institutions to profit on the backs of every day people just like the misguided SpaceX/NASDAQ index addition.

Louis Dipaolo — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Louis Dipaolo Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Insiders already have too many advantages. Maintain quarterly filing requirements.

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Lynn Dombrowski — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lynn Dombrowski Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Dear SEC,

Please do not reduce the amount of reporting companies are required to do. It will hinder my ability to make good judgement calls about which companies to invest in. I am the first person in my family to have a 401k and to invest in the stock market directly. I need information to make good judgements. Please do not hinder a key form of accountability for companies trading on the stock market.

Best,
Dr. Dombrowski

M Thomas, Investor/Trader — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: M Thomas I actively manage a portfolio for a living, heavily in individual stocks, and can say this undermines one of the key pillars of transparency that makes investing in the US markets so attractive. I believe the quarterly filings and rigorous reporting requirements are one of the things that defines the excellence of US equities for investing. It seems a mistake to me to undermine the quality of US equities just as other equity markets are becoming easier to access for retail investors.

Marcus Lawson — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marcus Lawson Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 As an investor, I feel it is important to continue to require quarterly reporting. Otherwise, investors will have no true window into what is happening with their holdings.
Marcus Lawson, Consultant

Mark Coelho — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark Coelho Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 As a small investor, that reads reports before buying and while owning stocks, I find this very concerning. The reasonable response to this course I'll likely take is better familiarizing myself with foreign markets. I cannot see how discouraging investment inside the US is a good thing.

Matthew Grossman — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Grossman Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Less information inherently makes the stock market riskier.

Maura Teague — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Maura Teague Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 I am an ordinary retail investor. I invest regularly and responsibly. I invest so that I can retire. I invest so that I can manage unexpected emergencies. I invest so I can handle unexpected medical expenses. My investments make up a significant part of my total net worth. The money I would use to buy a home, to buy a car, to buy an education for my children. The money we would have to live on if one of us became unemployed, or disabled. Investors deserve maximum transparency in exchange for the risk they take. The transparency that is the standard in our system lays the foundation for our trust in it. This is true for all investors, foreign, and domestic, retail and institutional. Changing the rule in and of itself, in a time of unprecedented and rapid change, hints at instability, and will shake trust in the American system. In conclusion, I see no compelling reason to decrease public companies' accountability to their shareholders. If they wish not to disclose such information, they may remain private, as many companies do.

Maura Teague

Graphic Designer

Michael Keller — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Keller Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Michael Keller, veterinarian and individual investor: More information for the public allows average shareholders to make better investment decisions. Keep quarterly reporting.

Nora Lyn Harlow — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Nora Lyn Harlow Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Quarterly reporting is our only view to what is actually happening to the company we are investing in. I am Nora Harlow, an accountant, so I know the significance of timely reporting to be able to make a reliable and timely assessment of the company based on the recent performance.

Patrick McCabe - McCabe Fine Woodworking — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patrick McCabe - McCabe Fine Woodworking Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Keep quarterly reporting! If you create a two-tiered system, where company insiders and institutional investors know critical news months before everyday investors, those everyday/individual investors will choose to remove their capital from the market.

We expect our regulatory bodies to REGULATE.

With clear expectations, sincerely,

Patrick McCabe
West Chester, PA 19380

Paul — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Paul Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 We the PEOPLE not we the corporations

---

Phil Kuz — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Phil Kuz Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 I strongly disagree with changing the reporting requirements to be less than quarterly.

Pink Pug — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Pink Pug Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 This is at best an absurd mistake. More likely, it is the result of poisonous corruption of the current administration. The direction the SEC should be moving towards is requiring real-time daily reporting of public companies, so the public can see the ebb and flow of business. This could be followed by a quarterly, binding, attestation of the validity of the postings. Instead, This proposal to allow semi-annual reporting would radically disadvantage the majority of American investors. Further the talking point that quarterly reporting carries a heavy cost is a LIE. Tax filings continue to be done quarterly, and so the public reporting should, at a minimum, match such filings.

Piyush Shah — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Piyush Shah Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 I respectfully oppose reducing public company reporting frequency from quarterly to semiannual reporting.

First, transparency and accountability require regular disclosure and oversight. History demonstrates the risks that can arise when independent oversight is reduced or pushed further away from the underlying activity. For example, concerns have been raised about the extent to which regulatory oversight functions were delegated to manufacturers in the period preceding the Boeing 737 MAX accidents. Regardless of the specifics of that case, the broader lesson is that effective governance depends on maintaining strong mechanisms for independent review and timely visibility into potential problems. Less frequent reporting reduces transparency for investors and regulators and may allow issues to go undetected for longer periods.

Second, the argument that semiannual reporting would encourage more long-term thinking is unpersuasive. Moving from a three-month reporting cycle to a six-month cycle does not fundamentally change managerial incentives, capital market pressures, or investment horizons. Companies would still be evaluated on financial performance, and there is little evidence that eliminating one quarterly report would materially increase R&D or other long-term investments.

Third, advances in accounting systems, data integration, and AI-driven automation have significantly reduced the burden of preparing financial reports. As reporting processes become more automated, the cost savings from eliminating quarterly reporting are likely to be modest, while the loss of timely information for investors could be substantial.

For these reasons, I believe quarterly reporting should be retained.

Best wishes,
Piyush Shah, PhD
Assistant Professor

Rebecca Whittemore — Jun 3, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rebecca Whittemore Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Please do not weaken oversight! Corporate malfeasance and fraud are devastating for our economy and our people. Why would you be making it easier?

Richard — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Richard Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Industry traders already have access to greater information that other traders in the stock market. This is already an unfair playing field and this would make it more unfair. On top of that, we have rampant speculation that isn't based on fundamentals of a stock. That behavior has been getting worse and worse to the point that the market is functioning heavily "on vibes". Spreading out disclosures will make this behavior even worse. People will bet on stocks that feel good, rather than the ones that actually are good. The result will be companies marketing departments becoming more important than their actual product. That will be the slow-moving-end of American companies, many of whom are already under threat from Chinese companies who are heavily focused on fundamentals.

Richard

Richard Borden — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Richard Borden Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Absolutely a scam to leave the general public in the dark about company financial security and a companies review of it's s projected balance sheet.
The failure to require quarterly reporting would bring obvious harm to investors .
This administrations scheming with the stock market and it's failure t keep congress,the senate and all political players an upper hand on all stock trading.
There is obvious a willful attempt by many in this current administration to control the market.
If you wish to pass legislation pass legislation to impose term limits on all elected officials to 20 yrs. and 25 year limit on all gov't t civil service employment. Americans are tired of the greedy, ruthless , and unaccountable elected officials.

Richard Shirey — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Richard Shirey Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Require quarterly reporting at the very minimum. In fact, with advances enabled by artificial intelligence I would prefer that we require monthly reporting by all entities. Cost is now minimal, and most boards require monthly internal reporting anyway. More timely information would really assist individual investors. The big guys with their research departments already have this advantage.

Richard Shirey
Retired Pediatric Hospital Comptroller

Ron Salsbury — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ron Salsbury Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Keep quarterly reporting. It's essential for individual investors. Factors affecting stock price happen much too quickly with computerized trading. Ronald Salsbury VP Quality, TYRX Inc.

Ronen Yudzinsky — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ronen Yudzinsky Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 As a random US citizen, I demand quarterly reporting remain. It is NOT an "unnecessary" or "redundant" or "wasteful and fraudulent" function of government to pay attention to and record the numbers!

Sherry Welch — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: sherry welch Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 I'm a nobody with no money, but this proposal proves you people who are pushing it gave no soul. Shame on you. Very Swampy of you. My name is Sherry Welch

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Shivaram Rajgopal, Columbia Business School — Jun 3, 2026
June 3, 2026
Columbia University
Graduate School of Business
Uris Hall
3022 Broadway, Room 610
New York, NY 10027-6902
Ph: 206 724 6056
Fax: 212 316 9219
sr3269@gsb.columbia.edu
Shivaram Rajgopal
Roy Bernard Kester and T.W. Byrnes
Professor of Accounting and Auditing
Vanessa A. Countryman, Secretary
Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street NE
Washington, DC 20549-1090
Re: File No. S7-2026-15; Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; 39-2563; IC-36140 — Semiannual Reporting (Proposed Rule)
Dear Secretary Countryman:
I write to oppose the Commission's proposed amendments that would allow eligible Exchange Act reporting companies to file one semiannual report on new Form 10-S in lieu of three quarterly reports on Form 10-Q, while continuing to file an annual report on Form 10-K. I am the Roy Bernard Kester and T.W. Byrnes Professor of Accounting and Auditing at Columbia Business School, where I have spent my career studying financial reporting, capital market efficiency, and corporate governance. I have published extensively on the economics of disclosure, audit quality, and board effectiveness, and I have provided testimony and comment to regulators on financial reporting policy on prior occasions.
I have also written three detailed analyses of this specific proposal for Forbes, which form the empirical and analytical spine of this comment. My opposition is not reflexive defense of the regulatory status quo. I am not unsympathetic to the goal of streamlining the 10-Q's contents. But the proposed mechanism — halving the frequency of mandatory interim reporting — is the wrong instrument, and the proposing release's economic analysis is materially incomplete. The Commission should withdraw the proposal and, if it wishes to address legitimate concerns about reporting burden, pursue the correct reform: streamline what the 10-Q requires, not how often it arrives.

I. THE ECONOMIC ANALYSIS IS STRUCTURALLY INCOMPLETE

The proposing release's economic analysis suffers from a foundational asymmetry: it counts the issuer's savings in concrete figures while leaving the costs imposed on the market's downstream users either unquantified or unacknowledged. This is not a minor gap. It is the analytical defect that undermines the proposal's entire cost-benefit framework.

The Commission's release acknowledges, candidly, that it cannot quantify the harm to investors and markets from reduced disclosure frequency — even as the issuer-side savings are given specific dollar estimates. This asymmetry does not justify proceeding. An economic analysis does not get to wave away a cost merely because it is dispersed, second-order, hard to quantify, or borne outside the issuer's accounting department. The affected users fall into three broad categories, each of which the release treats glancingly or omits entirely.

A. Risk-Pricing Infrastructure

Credit rating agencies monitor leverage, coverage, and liquidity on a rolling basis using quarterly fundamentals. Move the public numbers to a six-month cycle and, for half of every year, a credit rating becomes a verdict on stale information. The likely result is not smoother credit markets but lumpier ones: downgrades that cluster and arrive as surprises rather than the gradual re-pricings an orderly market depends on.

The prior Regulation FD carve-out for disclosures to credit rating agencies was removed by Section 939B of the Dodd-Frank Act and the SEC's 2010 conforming rulemaking. As a practical matter, issuers that provide material nonpublic financial information to rating agencies between public reports may need to rely on confidentiality arrangements or otherwise ensure compliance with Regulation FD. Either way, the proposal risks moving fresh fundamentals from the public information set into private channels.

Derivatives markets are similarly affected. Earnings dates shape volatility surfaces — the well-documented "earnings bump" in implied volatility is an artifact of the quarterly calendar. Credit-linked and counterparty-risk models lean on current balance-sheet and cash-flow information. Stretch the public-information cycle to six months and the inputs to those models grow stale for half the year, concentrating volatility at the two remaining announcement dates and making risk harder to price, not easier.

For systematic and quantitative strategies, the proposal is more disruptive still. Every factor signal that defines quantitative equity investing — earnings surprise, the accrual anomaly, profitability, changes in leverage — is constructed from and refreshed by quarterly filings. Cut the cadence to semiannual and the historical record that back-tests are calibrated against describes an environment the rule has abolished. This is not a transition cost that washes out. It is a structural break.

B. Market Quality and Liquidity

Market makers' bid-ask spreads are, in substantial part, compensation for the risk of trading against more-informed counterparties — the adverse-selection logic of Glosten and Milgrom (1985). The longer the public-information gap, the wider the spread must be to compensate for that risk. A mega-cap with forty analysts and a wall of alternative data can survive a six-month public silence; the market will fill it through private channels. A small or newly public company, however, often discloses little beyond what the 10-Q forces out — for these issuers the quarterly filing is frequently the only systematic financial signal the market receives. Making it optional concentrates the harm precisely where public monitoring is most consequential and least replaceable.

The release acknowledges this concern but does not resolve it. The proposal's "optional" character does not cure the problem; it routes the harm toward the companies whose investors can least afford it. The firms most likely to elect semiannual reporting are not a random sample: they may include issuers with volatile results, weaker internal controls, greater competitive sensitivity, or negative news to manage. If so, the election itself becomes a signal, and the likely equilibrium is a two-tier market in which higher-quality issuers keep reporting quarterly to preserve credibility while weaker and more opaque ones go dark — concentrating reduced disclosure precisely where public monitoring matters most.
The proposal also sorts investors, not just issuers. The large asset managers and hedge funds that have built alternative-data programs — satellite imagery, credit-card panels, customs records — can substitute private signals for the public quarterly filing at a cost retail and smaller institutional investors cannot match. Stretch the standardized public cadence to six months and that informational gap widens. A reform marketed as reducing issuer burden would, in effect, tilt the playing field toward the investors who need the help least.
C. Users the Release Underemphasizes
Several categories of affected users receive no discussion in the proposing release at all. Each is worth putting on the record.
Debt covenants: The overwhelming majority of credit agreements require a covenant-compliance certificate every quarter, alongside quarterly financial statements. A leveraged public company that elects semiannual SEC reporting does not get to stop producing quarterly numbers — its lenders still demand them. So, a large share of the advertised savings is illusory: the accounting work still happens, but the public equity investors lose the window into it that their private creditors retain. A reform sold as reducing information asymmetry would, for every leveraged issuer, widen the gap between what private creditors know and what public shareholders can observe.
Index providers and passive funds: The S&P 500's financial-viability screen depends on quarterly data: a company generally must have positive GAAP net income from continuing operations for its most recent quarter and for the sum of its most recent four consecutive quarters. As of year-end 2024, approximately $20 trillion was indexed or benchmarked to the S&P 500 alone. The release does not meaningfully address how such quarterly dependent index infrastructure would operate if quarterly GAAP figures become optional.
Business development companies: The release counts 133 BDCs currently filing on Form 10-Q and leaves open the possibility that they could elect Form 10-S. What a BDC reports on a 10-Q is not operating earnings but the fair value of an illiquid private-credit and private-equity portfolio marked under judgmental Level 3 inputs. The quarterly mark is the discipline that prevents managers from sitting on unrealized losses. Stretch the cycle to six months and a manager reluctant to recognize a write down gets twice the runway to defer it. The words "fair value" appear once in the release's 279 pages; "Level 3" not at all.
Audit firms: Each quarterly review is an occasion on which an auditor catches an error, challenges a judgment, or detects a going-concern problem forming. Cut interim reviews from three to one and those problems do not vanish — they surface later, bunched at year-end, with larger restatement risk.
Less frequent independent review is not self-evidently a feature.
Short sellers and forensic analysts: Quarterly filings are often where deterioration, aggressive accounting, and outright fraud are first detected. Reduce the mandatory filing occasions and you extend the window in which problems can compound before outside observers can test management's narrative against standardized financial statements.
II. THE EVIDENCE DOES NOT SUPPORT THE PROPOSAL

The proposal's implicit premise — that quarterly reporting causes corporate short-termism and that reducing its frequency will encourage long-term investment — has been tested. The evidence does not support it.

The natural experiment is the United Kingdom. The UK mandated quarterly reporting in 2007, then eliminated the requirement in 2014, creating precisely the variation needed to identify the causal effect. My colleagues Robert Pozen and Suresh Nallareddy and I studied this experiment in depth (Nallareddy, Pozen, and Rajgopal, 2017, Columbia Business School Research Paper No. 17-33; also published by the CFA Institute Research Foundation). Our findings on the short-termism hypothesis are clear: when UK companies were required to report quarterly in 2007, we found no statistically significant reduction in capital expenditures, R&D spending, or property, plant, and equipment investment. When the requirement was lifted in 2014, we found no statistically significant increase in investment among companies that switched to semiannual reporting, compared with those that continued quarterly. The frequency of financial reports had no material impact on levels of corporate investment in either direction.

The proposal's logic fails on its own terms. R&D programs, capital expenditure decisions, and strategic acquisitions have multi-year horizons. They do not operate on three-month cycles, and they will not operate on six-month cycles. A CEO inclined to sacrifice a research program to make quarterly earnings will make the same sacrifice to make semiannual earnings. Halving the reporting frequency does not cure managerial myopia; it gives it a longer runway.

The UK evidence on market quality is equally unfavorable. When quarterly reporting became mandatory in 2007, we documented a substantial increase in companies providing quantitative guidance and an increase in analyst following — signals that markets demanded and rewarded the more frequent information. When the requirement lapsed in 2014, the immediate revealed preference of UK companies was to keep reporting quarterly: fewer than 10% stopped issuing quarterly reports in the first year. Over the following decade, however, most UK companies migrated to semiannual reporting — tracking a period during which the London Stock Exchange struggled to attract new listings and retain existing ones. Goldman Sachs European equity strategists examining the aftermath found no improvement in valuations, no better capital raising, and no healthier IPO market. The drift to semiannual reporting did not produce the benefits its proponents promised.

The IPO rationale deserves particular scrutiny. The proposal suggests that reduced reporting burden will revitalize the U.S. IPO market. This argument has the information economics exactly backward. The defining feature of an IPO is extreme information asymmetry between management and new investors — the founding team knows the company's trajectory; the public market is seeing it for the first time. Quarterly reporting is one of the few mechanisms that allows the public to close that gap in real time, as management's IPO narrative is tested against actual results. Moving newly public companies to semiannual reporting amplifies the asymmetry: an investor who bought shares in January would wait until August to see any systematic financial accounting of whether management's claims were accurate. This is not a recipe for more IPOs. It is a recipe for skeptical investors demanding a higher risk premium to buy newly public shares — which, if anything, makes the IPO market worse.

III. THE COST BEING RELIEVED IS IMMATERIAL RELATIVE TO THE FRANCHISE IT PUTS AT RISK

Even setting aside the market costs, the economic case for the proposal fails the most basic proportionality test. The compliance costs the proposal aims to relieve are a rounding error against the capital-market franchise that disclosure makes possible.

Consider the order of magnitude. In a separate analysis published in Forbes, I estimated ExxonMobil's all-in direct compliance cost for its annual 10-K at approximately $15 million — a generous estimate that triples the company's own figure to account for legal, executive, and board time. Against $332 billion in 2025 revenues and $28.8 billion in net income, that is 0.005% of the top line. The value ExxonMobil derives from being a public company — the private-company illiquidity discount it avoids, estimated at 20–25% of its $648 billion market cap, plus the S&P 500 benchmark inclusion subsidy documented in the academic literature — runs into the hundreds of billions. The return on 10-K compliance investment is, conservatively, between 19,000 and 26,000 to one.

These figures are illustrative, not structural estimates — they blend a recurring disclosure cost with one-time listing and index effects, and reasonable people will quarrel with the calibration. But the policy question survives the quarrel intact: should the market accept a degradation of the public-information commons to produce issuer savings that are immaterial relative to what being public is worth? The release counts the savings. It never weighs them against the franchise they put at risk.
The Nasdaq survey data cited in the release — which pegs the cost of quarterly reporting at roughly $334,698 per quarter for the average respondent, or about $426,700 after inflation adjustment to December 2025 — deserves a proportionality check. Annualized across three 10-Qs, the implied savings are meaningful in accounting-department terms but still small relative to the issuer's public-market franchise and the potential liquidity, comparability, and cost-of-capital consequences borne by investors.

IV. THE REST OF FINANCIAL REGULATION IS GOING THE OTHER WAY

The proposal's direction of travel is the opposite of every other segment of financial regulation that takes information and systemic risk seriously.
Nonbank swap dealers — institutions at the center of the derivatives market the proposal affects — file unaudited financial reports monthly with the CFTC and the National Futures Association under CFTC Regulation 23.105(d), with an audited annual report on top. Broker-dealers file monthly or quarterly FOCUS reports with FINRA under Exchange Act Rule 17a-5. Asset-based and leveraged credit facilities routinely require monthly covenant certificates. Wherever counterparty and systemic risk genuinely bite, the institutions responsible for managing it have already concluded that quarterly is not frequent enough — they want monthly.
The serious policy frontier in disclosure is timelier and more structured data, machine-readable XBRL, and potentially continuous assurance — not cutting the equity market's fundamental-data feed in half. The Commission is proposing to march public companies in the one direction the rest of the financial plumbing has already rejected.

V. THE 2019 RECORD SHOULD NOT BE IGNORED

This is not the first time the Commission has considered semiannual reporting. In December 2018 the Commission issued a Request for Comment on Earnings Releases and Quarterly Reports (File No. S7-26-18), with comments due in March 2019. The Commission ultimately took no action.
The 2019 comment record is instructive. Institutional investors, the analyst community, and investor-protection groups argued that they rely on quarterly disclosure for portfolio management, valuation modeling, and risk assessment, and that less frequent reporting would widen the information gap between management and the market. Even the preparers who wanted relief conceded that investors expect and value quarterly financial information — which is precisely why the Nasdaq survey anticipated that companies would keep releasing quarterly earnings voluntarily even if the mandate were lifted. That concession is fatal to the proposal's primary rationale: if firms keep reporting quarterly to satisfy investors, the savings evaporate; if they stop, the market-quality costs catalogued above arrive in full.
The Commission weighed this balance in 2019 and declined to act. Nothing in the intervening evidence has moved in favor of the change. What has moved is the political will to push it. The Commission should read its own record.

VI. THE CORRECT REFORM IS TO STREAMLINE THE 10-Q, NOT TO HALVE ITS FREQUENCY

Nothing in this comment is intended to suggest that the 10-Q is well-designed. It is not. The current form requires a high volume of information — including full financial statements and extensive narrative — much of which is boilerplate that assists no one. The growth in 10-K and 10-Q length since the 1990s is well-documented in academic literature, and much of it reflects managerial discretion and legal caution rather than mandatory requirements.

The right reform is to make the quarterly report shorter, more decision-relevant, and more structured — not to make it less frequent. The Commission should require less boilerplate, focus the mandatory narrative on information that is actually decision-relevant for the company's specific circumstances, allow more sector-specific guidance about materiality thresholds, and explore whether certain disclosures now required in the 10-Q could be moved to a less burdensome format. Fix what the form contains. Do not cut how often it arrives.

The quarterly clock is not the problem. It is the architecture that makes the U.S. equity market the most liquid, efficient, and investor-friendly in the world. The Commission should be very cautious about dismantling it to produce savings that the evidence suggests will, in many cases, be illusory — because the companies that elect semiannual reporting to avoid the costs will still have to produce quarterly financials for their lenders, their rating agencies, and the index providers on whose inclusion their access to capital depends.

VII. CONCLUSION

The Commission should not adopt the proposed amendments. The proposing release's economic analysis counts the issuers' savings and leaves the market's costs unmeasured. The empirical evidence from the United Kingdom — the natural experiment the proposal's proponents cite as the model — shows no reduction in short-termism, no increase in investment, and no improvement in market quality from reduced reporting frequency. The proposed savings are immaterial relative to the capital-market franchise that disclosure makes possible. The rest of financial regulation is moving toward more frequent reporting, not less. The Commission already considered and rejected this proposal in 2019 on a record that remains valid today.

If the Commission wishes to reduce the burden of quarterly reporting, the correct instrument is to streamline the contents of the 10-Q while preserving its frequency. That reform would reduce genuine costs without degrading the public-information commons that investors, analysts, creditors, index providers, derivatives desks, auditors, and the Commission's own staff have built their work on.

I respectfully request that the Commission withdraw the proposed rule.

Respectfully submitted,

Shivaram Rajgopal
Roy Bernard Kester and T.W. Byrnes Professor of Accounting and Auditing Chair, Accounting Division
Columbia Business School
sr3269@gsb.columbia.edu

Attachments: (1) "The SEC's Semi-Annual Reporting Proposal: A Solution in Search of a Problem," Forbes; (2) "ExxonMobil's 10-K Compliance Cost Delivers a 19,000-to-1 Return for Shareholders," Forbes; (3) "Who Else Uses the 10-Q? The SEC's Semiannual Reporting Proposal Doesn't Ask," Forbes.

Steve E — Jun 3, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steve E Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 This is one of the most absurd ideas I've heard. Giving less reports on something as important as financials? Public deserves to have quarterly reports as it's important for investments and for keeping companies regulated. Do not go through with this!

Susan Corman — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Susan Corman Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 I am against this change because it will be detrimental to shareholders who will not be as well and up to date informed. It has not worked out for glabally and it will open opportunities for businesses and lawyers to know problems in their companies that are still trading with no obligation to inform shareholders until reporting time.
“ The SEC keeps citing the "global standard," but that standard isn't doing well in the places it was tried. The EU's lighter regime is where Wirecard's €1.9 billion fraud hid in plain sight for years before the company collapsed in 2020. The UK's 2014 shift stripped analyst coverage from mid-cap stocks, and London has been bleeding IPOs ever since. Singapore moved to semiannual reporting in 2020 and is now reconsidering, because trading volumes fell and disclosure quality dropped. The "global standard" the SEC is invoking isn't standard, isn't working, and is being walked back where it was tried.” As a citizen and someone who has been an investor, I absolutely do not want the reporting requirements to change.
Susan Corman
Falmouth, Ma

Tammey Napier — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tammey Napier Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 My name is Tammey Napier, I am retired on disability. I am a personal investor. My savings are modest. This sounds like just another way to help companies and corporations to prosper while the average investor is kept in the dark. Quarterly reporting should stay in place to keep everyone honest. Quarterly disclosure is a must so the little people can stay informed too so they can can make informed decisions and don’t get taken advantage of and lose their investments.

Sent from my iPhone

Tom Grotenhuis — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tom Grotenhuis Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 The change from quarterly to semi-annual securities reporting will lead to increased market volatility and fraud. Businesses should want quarterly reports as financial reports should be used by business leaders for performance evaluation. The potential for abuse is high and negatives of this initiative far outweigh the positives.
Tom Grotenhuis - Fargo, ND
Please be advised that this email may contain confidential information. If you are not the intended recipient, please notify us by email by replying to the sender and delete this message. The sender disclaims that the content of this email constitutes an offer to enter into, or the acceptance of, any agreement; provided that the foregoing does not invalidate the binding effect of any digital or other electronic reproduction of a manual signature that is included in any attachment.
Confidential - Company Proprietary

Tyler Costello — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tyler Costello Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Tyler, software engineer, this will harm retail traders the most and has no advantages for Americans

Sent from my iPhone

Vincent Colletti — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Vincent Colletti Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 I would like to go on record as voicing my absolute opposition to changing the recording period to 6 months. This opens the way for all kinds of unscrupulous behavior and is detrimental to investors who rely on knowing how companies are performing.
Vincent Colletti

Walter Stobaugh — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Walter Stobaugh Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 Walter Stobaugh, retired, without this reporting my TDA could be in jeopardy. No change needed!

Wayne Brown — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Wayne Brown Going six months without mandatory financial updates creates "information asymmetry," reducing visibility for investors, analysts, and regulators. Without regular benchmarks, market speculation and stock volatility can and will spike.

Zif — Jun 3, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Zif Affiliation: Jun. 3, 2026 We need more transparency not less, these quarterly reports are important to keep everyone informed. Everything is happening faster and more often, why would we slow down disclosure in this environment. Looking at countries that have made this move, it has not been successful in having companies focus more on long term results either, it's just increased the amount of time that everyone is in the dark causing additional volitility.

-Andrew Sparks

Andy Svendsen — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Andy Svendsen Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Companies are exploiting the rules as it is. If you destroy what little trust is less you'll never get it back

---

Annelise Cummings — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Annelise Cummings I urge you to not change the reporting requirements for companies from quarterly to semiannually. Investors need to have that information available on a timely basis to make decisions about a particular company's stock. A lot can happen in 6 months.

Anonymous — Jun 2, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Public markets need transparency. This is an attempt to restrict important disclosures on behalf of companies in order to manipulate stock prices. The market itself is a tool of discovery for price and relies on this important transparency. To reduce the number of disclosure a public company makes, would enable fraud and manipulation against the public. This would create a weaker system. If any company wants to avoid these disclosures, they can remain private and surrender their access to the public open capital markets. You cannot have your cake and eat it too.

Brandon Ros — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Brandon Ros Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Brandon Ros
Project Engineer

I have been a professional for almost twenty years, self-managing my investments and enjoying having information available to make informed investment decisions.

Taking away the quarterly reporting responsibility will only weaken my ability to do such a thing.

Brink Williams, Realtor — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brink Williams Quarterly reporting must be preserved. I don't see why companies don't report monthly. Maybe not a full report, but the monthly numbers could come out with a click of a mouse. I have no idea why the SEC would want less transparency unless they do not prioritize the American investor's best interests.

Carl Speight — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Carl Speight Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Carl Speight Quant

Financial Transparency is very important to the public. Transparency stimulates a healthy spirit of Commerce.

Thank you for this opportunity
Carl Speight

Charles Lamar — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Charles Lamar Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Stop the corruption stop the fraud. Keep filings quarterly

---

Chris G. — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris G. Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Christopher D Guthrie, Promo Abuse Prevention Manager: Investing money in a company that actively tries to deceive or hide the truth should be outed. The company should pay their fair share, and the investors should not have to worry about being mislead 6 months at a time.

Chris Hamm — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris Hamm Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Keep it quarterly! We need to see what companies are doing to keep them accountable. As a shareholder I don't want to be dealing with mystery boxes only sharing information sporadically. The market depends on more reliability, more transparency. There's no reason to make this change. Keep it quarterly.

Christopher Hamm

Chris Hirte — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris Hirte Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 I started investing in the market during Covid in 2020. There was a lot to learn, trial and error. Gains and losses. I learned time horizons are critical. Company info from filings are extremely helpful in spotting changes and alignments with projections. Too much can happen in 6 months. - Chris Hirte, retail investor.

Chuck Fleming — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chuck Fleming Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 My name is Chuck Fleming and I work for a large tech company. I have a lot of money invested in the such market that is the basis for my retirement, like many Americans. Corporations need more transparency, not less. I didn't agree with changing the reporting period to six months instead of three. I already see insider trading, with our such making large moves before earnings. If this is delayed even more, retail investors will lose trillions because they have no idea how the company they're increasing in is doing, while insiders and big investors will have all the info. This will be an extremely unfair playing field.

Daisy Edmonds — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Daisy Edmonds Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 I am available 3-4 year new investor. We need more information not less and quarterly seem best. If it is not broken why fix it. It has worked as present for years!!! Why change???
Daisy Edmonds- investor

Daniel Sanders — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Sanders Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Quarterly Reports available to the public is one of the primary ways retail investors can assess what is good, bad or same of public companies. As a 1968-69 brief employee of a Wall Street firm on Wall Street quarterly reporting of public companies keeps them (and not all of them) straight. Do Not Eliminate Quarterly Reporting. d sanders

---

David Michael Smeenge — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Michael Smeenge Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 I am a primary care physician. It's reasonable to monitor diseases every 90 days, even when well controlled. We can monitor companies every 90 days, too.

Godspeed,
David Michael Smeenge

Fellow, American Academy of Family Physicians
M.D. 2015 | Wayne State University School of Medicine
B.S. Biomedical Engineering 2011 | Michigan Technological University

---

David Wile — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: David Wile Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Companies should be transparent. They don't need to hold analyst calls or any of that, but they should be announcing results just like Berkshire Hathaway does.

Ejaye Wilcox — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ejaye Wilcox Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Ejaye Wilcox, System Engineer. I'm already underpaid by 20%, according to sites like Indeed and Glassdoor. The only benefit my job provides that gives me control overy financial future is my company's ESPP program. How can any of us trade responsibly if we're working off of old data? The whole notion that this saves companies' time and money is absolutely absurd .

Emily McFadden, Co-Founder, Little Warrior Foundation — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Emily McFadden Affiliation: Co-Founder, Little Warrior Foundation Jun. 2, 2026 My name is Emily McFadden, I run a childhood cancer nonprofit, Little Warrior Foundation.

As a childhood cancer nonprofit, we rely on transparent and timely quarterly reporting to help assess the trajectory, stability, and scientific progress of biopharma companies developing promising therapies or contributing to the development of treatment. Our grant dollars are hard-earned and precious, and we have a responsibility to direct those funds toward organizations demonstrating meaningful momentum, operational discipline, and long-term viability. Quarterly updates provide critical visibility that helps nonprofits like ours make informed decisions in support of children and families counting on continued innovation and progress.

As an example, we learned through a quarterly update that one of our potential suppliers had suffered a catastrophic loss - a loss that we knew would disrupt or destroy their ability to continue to manufacture components of our immunotherapy clinical trial. We were able to pivot to another supplier. Without this information, we would have misplaced donations, and wasted time that kids with cancer don't have.

There's more than just money on the line.

Thank you,
Emily McFadden
Co-Founder
Little Warrior Foundation

Eric Cardoza — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Eric Cardoza Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Eric. Ford Motor Company, Engineer. Visibility knot companies is extremely important to making educated financial investments, and this will block that. We need to know how these companies are operating on a quarterly basis at the very least!

Erick Sassone — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Erick Sassone Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 More reporting. Not less. But in all honesty, your extreme corruption probably indicates you won't. Instead we the people must report any transactions over 500$.

Long live the Empire.

Gabriela Arias De La Rosa — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Gabriela Arias De La Rosa Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 To whom it might concern:

I hope you reconsider this change to the rules. It would harm both companies and investors. By making it easier for companies to withhold relevant financial information, it could reduce investor confidence and make them less inclined to invest, ultimately lowering company valuations.

Personally, I would sell any company in my portfolio that chose to report only twice a year rather than quarterly.

Gabriela Arias De La Rosa

Greg Zielinski — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Greg Zielinski Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 My name's Greg, I'm retired and this makes me think that certain companies want to hide the fact of how bad they're doing to fool people into believing and ESPECIALLY trusting in them and their products, services and security to keep the public pouring dollars into what may be a FAILING, SINKING ship!

James Thompson — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: James Thompson Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Our sound financial system is enhanced by periodic reports to the public. Reducing them weakens accountability. Keep the quarterly reporting requirements.

James Thompson, CISA, Government Auditor.

Jason Schultz — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jason Schultz Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Why does the government try to fix what isn't broken? Please do not give companies this option to only report to shareholders twice a year.

Jim Prochaska — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jim Prochaska Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Jim prochaska, retired, reliable data must be as timely and current as possible to support informed investment decisions.

Jim
Life is a collection of moments.

Strive to have as many good ones as you can.

Joel Kattermann — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joel Kattermann Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 This negatives of this change seem to outweigh the positives. Why should this be allowed when the potential for abuse is so high combined with the potential to impact so many people?

John — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Retail investors must know whatRetail investors rely upon quarterly reports. allowing fat cats and institutional buyers to manipulate information or conspire to fix price/strategy is untenable .The 1% will have to conjure up some other scheme.

John Schaub — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Schaub Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Dear SEC,
I am writing because I feel transparency is important if we are investing our money into a business we want to see thrive. Please do not rob investors of the ability to understand the health of a company each quarter. Allowing companies to report every six months has zero benefit to the investor. It gives companies a free pass to hide information about the health of their business for up to 6 months.

If this were to be passed, it would limit my desire to invest in the US stock market.

Best,
John

John Schaub
Orlando, FL
(Real person, not a bot)

Jordan — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jordan Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Jordan, Electrical Engineer. One would think government would be striving for more transparency for public ally traded companies not less. There is no benefit to retail investors in reducing the reporting.

Joseph Chen — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joseph Chen Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Joseph Chen
CTO/Founder of a small tech startup (garde.app)

Large companies shouldn't be able to get away with half year filings. Yes, companies will save money on compliance, but it's miniscule compared to the unfair advantage it gives to insiders. If you pass this law, you're essentially the American people that you care 2x more about the wellbeing of the top 0.01% than the vast majority of people. That's not the future I would want to paint for my potential kids and grandkids.

Julie Engle — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Julie Engle Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Judy Engle, Home Healthcare, I think it is important to have quarterly audits for transparency reasons. I am new to investing & have no knowledge about it. It feels somewhat like gambling when there is almost no transparency.

Justin K — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - Reject this proposal. Keep quarterly reporting. From: Justin K Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 I oppose SEC Proposal S7-2026-15.
Letting public companies go six months without required financial reporting is bad for ordinary investors. It gives insiders more time to act on information before the public sees it.
Retail investors should not be forced to buy, sell, or hold stocks using stale information while executives and large institutions have a clearer picture.
The savings from fewer filings are not worth the damage to transparency and market fairness. Public companies that take public money should report to the public quarterly, or even monthly Reject this proposal. Keep quarterly reporting.
Sincerely,
Justin Kobylarz, Software developer,
Chicago, IL

Landon McCoy — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Landon McCoy Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Dear SEC Commissioners,

I'm writing to oppose the proposed shift from quarterly to semiannual reporting.

As both a small business founder and a retail investor, I rely on quarterly filings to make informed decisions about where to put my savings. A 10-Q every three months gives me a fighting chance to spot red flags before they become disasters. Six months is an eternity in business. Product launches fail, debt balloons, and customers churn. Letting companies sit on that information while insiders trade on it isn't "reducing burden." It's tilting the table further toward Wall Street.

The "optional" framing doesn't reassure me. Once a few large companies opt in, competitive pressure will push the rest to follow. What's voluntary today becomes standard tomorrow.

The companies arguing for this change will save modest legal fees. The cost falls on people like me, retail investors whose retirement accounts hold these stocks. That's a bad trade.

Please keep quarterly reporting. Transparency protects ordinary investors. That's supposed to be the point.

Respectfully,
Landon McCoy
President | Chaos Audio
Panama City Beach, Florida landon@chaosaudio.com

Laura — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Laura Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 My name is Laura Bowen. I'm an accountant and a retail investor, and I'm writing to oppose SEC proposed rule S7-2026-15. This proposal would meaningfully harm ordinary investors while creating significant advantages for corporate insiders.

The modern market moves fast. Six months is a long time for material developments like failed product lines, ballooning debt, and litigation exposure to go undisclosed. Right now, companies are required to surface that information every quarter. Under this proposal, they could sit on it for six months while executives, who always have a clear picture of how the business is performing, have plenty of time to act before retail investors ever find out. That information gap is not a minor inconvenience. It's a structural disadvantage for anyone who doesn't have a seat at the table.

As an accountant, the fraud implications are what concern me most. Quarterly filings require companies to regularly reconcile, disclose, and certify their financials under penalty of law. That reporting cadence is one of the most important safeguards in public markets. Enron, WorldCom, and the conditions that led to the 2008 financial crisis were all made possible, in part, by insufficient transparency in financial reporting. Quarterly reporting doesn't prevent fraud, but it significantly limits how long fraudulent activity can go undetected before someone outside the company sees the numbers. Moving to semiannual reporting doubles that window. It gives bad actors more time, more cover, and more opportunity to cause serious harm before anyone on the outside has a chance to catch it. And when it finally surfaces, ordinary investors absorb the loss, not the executives who signed off on the filings.

The SEC's core mandate is to protect the investing public. This proposal undermines that mandate directly. I urge the Commission to reject Rule S7-2026-15 and maintain the current quarterly reporting standard.

Thank you for your time and consideration,
Laura Bowen

Lori Williams — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lori Williams Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Sirs and Madams: The quarterly reports are important to me. Without this transparency, I will in the dark while the big corporations will have an advantage not available to us small retail investors. Thank you for considering the general public before allowing a change in reporting. Lori Williams Woodland Hills CA [REDACTED]

Louis Lehot & Patrick Daugherty, Foley & Lardner LLP — Jun 2, 2026
L O U I S L E H O T and PATRI CK DAU G H ERTY
Foley & Lardner LLP
Silicon Valley • Chicago
June 2, 2026
Via Electronic Submission (rule-comments@sec.gov)
Vanessa A. Countryman, Secretary
Securities and Exchange Commission

100 F Street, N.E.
Washington, D.C. 20549-1090
Re: Comments in Support of, and Going Beyond, the Commission's Spring 2026 Capital Formation Proposals
File No. S7-2026-17 — Registered Offering Reform (Release No. 33-11418)
File No. S7-2026-18 — Enhancement of Emerging Growth Company Accommodations and Simplification of Filer Status for Reporting Companies (Release No. 33-11419)
File No. S7-2026-15 — Semiannual Reporting (Release No. 33-11414)
File No. CLL-16 — IPO Modernization (Chairman's Comment File opened May 26, 2026)
Dear Ms. Countryman:
We write in strong support of the three rulemaking proposals captioned above and in response to the invitation Chairman Atkins extended in his May 26, 2026 remarks at the Stanford Rock Center for Corporate Governance, where he opened Comment File CLL-16 and asked the bar, bench, and business community for bold and creative ideas to modernize the IPO process and reverse the long retreat from the U.S. public markets.(1) We write together, having logged more than seventy years between us advising founders, boards, underwriters, and investors on capital formation; one of us currently in Silicon Valley, the other currently in Chicago. The Chairman has the diagnosis right, and the May proposals are the most serious response to that diagnosis in twenty years. We support every one of them, and we urge the Commission to go further.
We will file a separate letter, before its comment file closes, in support of the Commission's May 29, 2026 proposal to rescind the 2024 climate-related disclosure rules.(2) For the reasons set out in that release, those rules exceeded the Commission's statutory authority and imposed enormous costs unjustified by any material informational benefit. Their rescission is consistent with the broader return to economic materiality that the Chairman has been calling for in his “back to basics” approach to SEC rulemaking and enforcement, and we will support it on the record.
Our position in this letter is simple. We support every measure the Commission has proposed that limits required disclosure to what is material to the reasonable investor, reduces the burdens of being a public company, and re-opens the on-ramp to the public markets. We also believe that, collectively, the May proposals do not go far enough. Those proposals, if adopted, will lower the cost of being public. The Commission also must confront, head-on, the reasons companies decline to become public. Those reasons reduce to three: the gun-jumping rules, the litigation system, and a private-market alternative that has no limits and is opaque. Each can be addressed. We explain how below.
4918-0760-7217.1
The facts are stark. The number of U.S.-listed domestic public companies peaked above 8,000 in the mid-1990s and stands at roughly 4,000 today, a decline Chairman Atkins himself has put at approximately 40 percent.(3) The companies that remain are extraordinarily concentrated. At the end of 2025, seven companies (the so-called Magnificent Seven) accounted for approximately 34 percent of the S&P 500's total market capitalization, up from 12 percent in 2015, and roughly 30 percent of the entire U.S. stock market; in 2025 those same seven names produced approximately 42 percent of the S&P 500's total return.(4) Outside those seven, broad swaths of the listed market are starved of research, analyst coverage, and market-making, even as private capital has crossed $8.5 trillion in assets under management and now represents more than a third of global AUM.(5) A capital-formation agenda that ignores those numbers is not serious. The Commission's spring 2026 agenda is serious. It deserves not only adoption but expansion.

I. Support for the Three Pending Rulemaking

We support each of the three pending proposals in its entirety. The Registered Offering Reform release
(33-11418) is the most consequential modernization of the registered-offering framework since the 2005 Securities Offering Reform that created the well-known seasoned issuer category and the 2007 "baby shelf" rule. The Simplification of Filer Status release (33-11419) finally rationalizes a taxonomy that has grown since Sarbanes-Oxley. The Semiannual Reporting proposal (33-11414) returns to issuers and their boards a choice that should never have been the Commission's to make. We summarize the principal proposed changes in the table below, all of which we support without qualification.

A. Registered Offering Reform (Release 33-11418)

We support all six core components of the proposal: (i) elimination of the Form S-3 one-year seasoning requirement and the $75 million public-float test for unlimited shelf registration, and the corresponding retirement of the "baby shelf" cap in General Instruction I.B.6; (ii) extension of the Enhanced Registration and Communication Benefits to all S-3-eligible exchange-listed issuers, including automatic shelf registration under Rule 462(e), pay-as-you-go filing fees under Rules 456(b) and 457(r), the free writing prospectus under Rule 433, and the freedom to omit selling security holders from a shelf statement under Rule 430B(b); (iii) the conforming amendments to the research safe harbors in Securities Act Rules 137, 138, 139, and 139b, which we discuss in detail in Part II.A below; (iv) the new "qualified purchaser" definition under Section 18(b)(3) preempting state registration and qualification for all registered offerings, listed or not; (v) modernization of Form S-1 to permit both backward and forward incorporation by reference for any reporting issuer; and (vi) the parallel relief for business development companies, closed-end funds, and Rule 482 advertisements. The Commission estimates a 60 percent increase in S-3-eligible issuers and a 200-plus percent increase in those eligible for the full WKSI-style toolkit.(6) Each of those expansions is overdue.

We make one specific recommendation in support of this proposal: the Commission should expressly state in the adopting release that the new "qualified purchaser" definition is intended to preempt state registration and qualification of registered offerings of all securities, including those of foreign private issuers conducting registered offerings under Form F-1 or F-3. The blue-sky cost falls hardest on smaller and unlisted offerings. Any ambiguity will be litigated by the state regulators most invested in preserving their jurisdiction.

B. Simplification of Filer Status (Release No. 33-11419)

We support the consolidation of the five overlapping filer categories into two, the elimination of the accelerated filer and smaller reporting company categories, the increase in the large accelerated filer threshold from $700 million to $2 billion in public float, the rolling-average measurement method, the two-year confirmation requirement, the new 60-month seasoning condition that operates as a statutory IPO on-ramp, the elimination of the Section 404(b) auditor attestation for all non-accelerated filers (approximately 81 percent of issuers), the extension of scaled disclosure and emerging-growth-company-style accommodations to that broader population, and the new "small non-accelerated filer" subcategory (total assets of $35 million or less) with extended Form 10-K and 10-Q deadlines.(7) We respectfully suggest two enhancements: (1) the large-accelerated-filer threshold should be set at $10 billion in public float, not $2 billion, because $10 billion is the present-day breaking point between companies that can sustain themselves in the public markets without scaled relief and those that cannot; and (2) the 60-month on-ramp should be lengthened to 120 months, particularly for issuers below the new $10 billion threshold, both to give newly public companies meaningful runway and to reflect that today's median IPO is a Series
D or E company that already has the operating maturity that an early-1990s Series B had at listing.

We have heard concerns expressed by certain members of the bar that easing Section 404(b) audits will weaken financial reporting. We disagree. The Section 404(a) management report on internal control remains in place, the auditor's annual financial-statement audit remains in place, the audit committee's independent oversight remains in place, the CEO and CFO certifications under Sections 302 and 906 remain in place, and the antifraud and disclosure-controls regimes remain in place. The marginal information added by the Section 404(b) auditor attestation, at a cost that the Commission's own staff and the SBA Office of Advocacy have repeatedly estimated in the hundreds of thousands to low millions of dollars per company per year, does not justify the deterrent effect that Section 404(b) has imposed on IPO candidates for two decades.

C. Semiannual Reporting (Release No. 33-11414)

We support the proposed Form 10-S as an optional alternative to three Form 10-Qs. The decision whether to report quarterly or semiannually is one that boards, audit committees, and investors are best positioned to make based on a company's industry, business model, and investor expectations, as the Chairman noted at Stanford.(8) We expect that relatively few companies will elect semiannual reporting in the near term, because U.S. equity markets have organized themselves around the quarterly cadence for a generation.

Cutting two quarterly reports could increase the cost of capital. But that is a business judgment, not a regulatory one, and we agree with the Commission that the choice should rest where it always should have rested.
4918-0760-7217.1
II. Additional Reforms the Commission Should Pursue (Comment File CLL-16)
Chairman Atkins's Stanford remarks invited "all ideas" for IPO modernization. We offer the following, in the order of our priority. Several were specifically endorsed by the Chairman; several track the recommendations the SEC Small Business Capital Formation Advisory Committee made at its April 28, 2026 meeting;(9) all are within the Commission's existing rulemaking authority except where we note that legislation will be required.
A. Comprehensive Gun-Jumping Reform
The single most important reform the Commission can now undertake is a top-to-bottom reconstruction of the Securities Act communication regime. Chairman Atkins said exactly this at Stanford, quoting Linda Quinn's 1996 question, "Do we need to continue to register offers?"(10) We submit that the answer is no, or at the very least, not the way the Commission's rules currently demand. The Securities Act's spider web of pre-filing, waiting-period, and post-effective communication restrictions, layered over by Rules 134, 135, 163, 163A, 164, 168, 169, 172, 173, 405, 433, and the four research safe harbors at 137, 138, 139, and 139b, was last meaningfully reformed in 2005, before the iPhone, before social media, and before the modern testing-the-waters and roadshow practices. It bears no relation to how companies actually communicate with employees, customers, and investors today, and it functions in practice as a tax on going public, payable to securities counsel for the careful avoidance of inadvertent offers.
We urge the Commission to: (1) extend the "safe harbor for communications more than 30 days before filing" in Rule 163A to all reporting and non-reporting issuers, including IPO issuers, eliminating the 30-day blackout that today silences a company at exactly the moment it most needs to introduce itself to investors; (2) extend the WKSI-only Rule 163 free-writing privilege to all S-3-eligible exchange-listed issuers, as a logical companion to the present proposal's extension of the other Enhanced Registration and Communication Benefits; (3) eliminate the Section 5(c) prohibition on offers before the filing of a registration statement entirely for issuers that have publicly announced an intention to conduct a registered offering, replacing it with an antifraud-based regime that polices misleading communications without policing the existence of communications; (4) generalize "testing the waters" under

Securities Act
Rule 241 and Section 5(d) to all issuers, regardless of EGC status, and to all investors, not only QIBs and accredited investors; (5) expressly permit reporting issuers to publish forward-looking statements, including projections, in registered offerings, subject to the same antifraud guardrails that govern ordinary disclosure; and (6) clarify that ordinary-course business communications, including factual product announcements, financial-results press releases, and earnings calls, are not "offers" for purposes of Section 5, regardless of timing relative to a planned registered offering.
We also endorse the gun-jumping reforms suggested by Edwin O'Brien in his April 28 presentation to the SEC Small Business Capital Formation Advisory Committee. While Rule 134 appropriately limits "tombstone" communications, the Commission should consider expanding that safe harbor to permit plain-English summaries of the issuer and the offering, including limited business information, provided that the communications are consistent with the registration statement disclosure. Similarly, in Rule 135, the Commission should consider expanding what is allowed to permit additional context regarding the company and the rationale for the proposed offering. Rule 163A is a safe harbor from the prohibition on pre-filing offers for communications made more than 30 days before the public filing of a registration 4918-0760-7217.1
statement. The Commission should consider reducing that time period to 15 days. Also, the requirement to take reasonable steps to prevent further distribution or publication of these communications should be modernized to reflect the realities of digital and social media where content, once disseminated, cannot practicably be recalled or controlled. Finally, the Rule 169 safe harbor hinges on whether historical or factual information has been "regularly released" and is intended for non-investor audiences. The Commission should consider refocusing that safe harbor on whether the communication was disseminated through an established channel of communication used by the issuer in the ordinary course of business, rather than focusing on the intended audience, recognizing that modern communications are distributed to multiple constituencies. Additionally, the definition of "factual business information" should be expanded to encompass a broader range of operational, strategic, and business updates.
These reforms will not weaken investor protection. Section 17(a) of the Securities Act, Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act, and Rule 10b-5 reach every material misstatement and material omission regardless of how it is communicated. What the current gun-jumping regime polices is not fraud, but truthful content and form. Revising this antiquated regime will not let bad actors off the hook. It will enable companies to actually speak to investors during the most consequential disclosure events of their corporate lives.
B. Research and Market-Making for Smaller Public Companies
We strongly support the proposed amendments to the research safe harbors. As we noted in Part

I.A, the cross-reference in Rule 139 to Form S-3 and F-3 eligibility, anchored as it has been to the $75 million float, has starved the issuers most in need of research coverage of the safe harbor that would let their own underwriters cover them. Conforming Rule 139 to the expanded Form S-3 will pull the additional 60-plus percent of issuers now becoming S-3-eligible into the safe harbor. We urge the Commission to go further and conform Rule 139 to Form S-3 eligibility regardless of whether the issuer is listed and to remove the requirement under Rule 139(a)(1) that the broker-dealer publish or distribute research "in the regular course of its business," replacing it with a simpler good-faith standard.
Research economics are a separate problem the safe harbors cannot solve. Decimalization in 2001 and the 2003 Global Research Settlement together hollowed out the analyst economics that supported coverage of small-cap and mid-cap issuers. The result is the small-cap research desert that the SEC Small Business Capital Formation Advisory Committee identified again at its April meeting. We urge the Commission to take three additional steps to support research and liquidity for smaller listed companies: (1) reauthorize the small-cap tick-size pilot program of 2016 in expanded form, permitting issuers below a $10 billion public float to elect a 5-cent or 10-cent minimum quotation increment, which the 2016 pilot data showed materially improved displayed liquidity and quoted depth for affected stocks; (2) work with FINRA and the exchanges to develop a market-making support program for small-cap issuers, including reduced trading fees and tighter capital-commitment requirements for designated liquidity providers, perhaps modeled on the NYSE's Designated Market Maker structure; and (3) provide an unambiguous safe harbor under Rules 137 through 139b for issuer-sponsored research, accompanied by clear disclosure of the sponsorship relationship, so that issuers themselves can underwrite the cost of research coverage where the secondary market will not.
The concentration data we cited at the outset of this letter are not an accident. They are what happens when the small-cap research desert, the small-cap liquidity desert, and the regulatory cost of going public 4918-0760-7217.1
combine over twenty years to drive issuers and capital alike into seven names. The Commission cannot reverse that concentration by rulemaking alone, but it can reverse course.
C. Direct Listings: Answering the Chairman's Questions
At Stanford, the Chairman asked three pointed questions about direct listings: whether, following Slack Technologies, LLC v. Pirani, 598 U.S. 759 (2023), the market really believes that a Securities Act registration statement continues to offer meaningful investor protection in the direct listing context; whether the Securities Act registration requirement is a hindrance to direct listings; and what other regulatory frictions might be removed.(11) Our answers, in order: no; yes; and several.

The unanimous Supreme Court decision in Slack held that a Section 11 plaintiff must trace their shares to the registration statement at issue. In a direct listing, registered and unregistered shares hit the tape simultaneously, and the practical impossibility of tracing means Section 11 claims are largely unavailable.
Section 11 has thus become, for direct listings, a strict-liability regime that mostly does not apply, while the burden of preparing the Securities Act registration statement (longer, more detailed, more costly, more lawyered, and more time-consuming than the Exchange Act registration statement covering the same company) continues to apply. That is the worst of both worlds. We urge the Commission to direct the NYSE and Nasdaq to amend their listing standards to permit a direct listing on the basis of an Exchange Act Form 10 registration alone, without a concurrent Securities Act registration statement, with Rule 144 governing resales by pre-listing holders. Antifraud liability under Section 10(b) and Rule 10b-5 will remain available to investors injured by material misstatements. The Securities Act registration statement, in the direct listing context, adds cost without adding protection.
D. Embrace the SPAC as a Second Front Door to the Public Square
For all its excesses in 2020 and 2021, the SPAC is the only on-ramp that lets a private company negotiate its valuation, raise committed capital, and tell a forward-looking story in a single transaction. It should be rehabilitated, not buried. Four changes would do the work. First, treat the de-SPAC as the IPO it is, and start the 60-month (or, we hope, 120-month) on-ramp clock at the closing of the business combination, with the full slate of filer-status accommodations available from that date. Second, restore a tailored projection safe harbor: the 2024 rules stripped PSLRA protection by redefining SPACs as blank-check companies,(12) leaving the one transaction structure built around projections unable to stand behind them.
A safe harbor conditioned on disclosed assumptions, a reasonable basis, and meaningful cautionary language would solve that problem without inviting the 2020-2021 abuses. Third, align the sponsor with the public shareholders by tying the sponsor's "promote" to long-term post-combination performance through forfeiture and vesting mechanics, rather than to mere deal completion. Fourth, require that the dilution and redemption math be displayed plainly on the cover of the de-SPAC proxy and prospectus, so that retail investors understand what they are buying.
E. Reform Litigation Exposure Through Expanded Safe Harbors
The cost of "strike suits" is among the strongest reasons companies decline to go public, and it is the half of the problem that the SEC's May proposals leave largely alone. The PSLRA safe harbor for forward-looking statements at Securities Act Section 27A and Exchange Act Section 21E protects seasoned issuers that identify their projections as forward-looking and pair them with meaningful cautionary language.

But
4918-0760-7217.1
Section 27A(b)(2)(D) expressly excludes statements made in connection with an IPO, and Section 27A(b)(1)(E) excludes statements made by issuers of "blank check" securities. The very companies most in need of room to describe their future are the only ones the safe harbor will not protect.
We acknowledge that closing those gaps will require legislation. We urge the Commission, in the meantime, to use its rulemaking authority to do everything within its power: codify the judge-made "bespeaks caution" doctrine in a Commission rule; create an express due-diligence safe harbor under Section 11(b)(3) for forward-looking statements made in good faith with a reasonable basis and meaningful cautionary disclosure; and confirm, through interpretive guidance and amicus participation in pending cases, that federal-forum-selection provisions for 1933 Act claims are valid under Cyan, Inc. v.
Beaver County Employees Retirement Fund, 138 S. Ct. 1061 (2018), and Salzberg v. Sciabacucchi, 227
A.3d 102 (Del. 2020), so that a single registered offering is not subjected to parallel proceedings in multiple state courts. The Commission should also, in cooperation with Congress, support legislation that would extend the PSLRA forward-looking-statement safe harbor to IPOs and de-SPACs on the same guardrails the statute already supplies for seasoned issuers. Safe harbors are not immunity, and fraud remains fraud. Safe harbors are the line between honest forecasting and being sued for the act of forecasting.
F. Return to Economic Materiality in Required Disclosure
The Chairman is correct that the Commission's disclosure regime should reflect, in his words, the minimum effective dose of regulation necessary to elicit information that is material to a reasonable investor.(8) The accreted bulk of Regulation S-K is the burden on issuers, not the cadence at which it is filed. The proposed climate-disclosure rescission is one step toward “reasonable investor” materiality.
Several more should follow. We urge the Commission to: (1) rescind the conflict-minerals rule and Form SD; (2) rescind or substantially scale back Item 402(v) pay-versus-performance disclosure, which the Commission's own economic analysis at adoption acknowledged would impose substantial costs for limited investor benefit; (3) rescind the human-capital disclosure rule of 2020 to the extent it now operates in practice as a mandate for disclosures investors did not request and on which no reasonable-investor materiality standard has been articulated; (4) revisit the cybersecurity disclosure rule of 2023, particularly the four-business-day Form 8-K incident-reporting requirement, which conflicts with active law-enforcement investigations and provides a roadmap for follow-on attackers; and (5) commit to an ongoing program of Regulation S-K and Regulation S-X review against the materiality standard articulated in TSC Industries v. Northway, 426 U.S. 438 (1976), and Basic Inc. v. Levinson, 485 U.S. 224 (1988), with the presumption that disclosures that have not produced a meaningful market response in five years should be sunset.

G. Tie Disclosure to Capital Raised; Restore the 500-Holder Trigger

A company that has raised one billion dollars privately is an enterprise of public consequence and should file audited financial statements with the SEC. A capital-raised disclosure trigger catches the shadow-public company that a restored 500-record-holder test would miss, because that company is held through a handful of large private funds, each counted as a single holder. The disclosure should be calibrated, not punitive: rather than the officer-by-officer pay tables that Item 402 requires, large private companies could report senior-management compensation in the aggregate, as much of Europe does, giving investors the total cost of the leadership team without the individualized exposure that today's pay tables produce.

Separately, we urge Congress, with the Commission's support, to restore the pre-2012 Section 12(g) trigger of 500 record holders. The JOBS Act lifted that threshold to 2,000 holders (or 500 non-accredited), excluded holders who received securities under an employee compensation plan, and let companies amass thousands of beneficial owners and hundreds of billions of dollars in value while staying entirely dark.(13) Google in 2004 and Facebook in 2012 went public because the 500-holder rule made staying private impossible at scale. That rule reached the right answer; its statutory replacement has not.

H. Open the Public Markets Wider for Foreign Issuers

The one constituency conspicuously absent from the May 19 proposals is the foreign private issuer. By their terms, those proposals do not extend the new Form S-3 freedoms, the Enhanced Registration and Communication Benefits, or the scaled filer-status accommodations to foreign private issuers, save at the margins, and the new Section 18(b)(3) blue-sky preemption is the principal cross-cutting benefit that will reach FPI registered offerings. The Commission has put the broader FPI question on a separate track tied to its June 2025 Concept Release on Foreign Private Issuer Eligibility.(14) We urge the Commission to resolve that separate review in favor of capital formation rather than in favor of narrowing eligibility.

There was a time when the United States was where the world's most ambitious companies came to go public. No longer. The U.S. share of the world's IPOs by number fell from roughly 27 percent in the 1990s to 12 percent in the 2000s, and its share of worldwide IPO proceeds from about 30 percent to 21 percent, even as the U.S. share of global output edged up. Among smaller firms the retreat was steeper still: the U.S. share of small-firm IPOs worldwide fell from 31 percent to 5 percent.(15) By 2012 the United States had more than 5,000 fewer listed companies than its size, financial development, and shareholder protections would predict, a listing gap that by 2023 left the United States with roughly half as many listed firms per capita as other developed economies.(16) Put Form F-3 on the same footing as Form S-3. Extend the on-ramp and the communication benefits to exchange-listed foreign issuers. Resolve the eligibility review in favor of drawing the world's best companies back to U.S. markets, not in favor of turning them away.

III. Conclusion

The Atkins Commission has the diagnosis right, and for the first time in twenty years the Commission has both the will and the technical expertise to act on it. The three rulemaking proceedings initiated by the Commission this spring deserve adoption substantially as proposed. The additional reforms we describe in Part II above are the work that remains. We believe that the Commission has the statutory authority to undertake most of it on its own. Where legislation is required (extending the PSLRA safe harbor to IPOs, restoring the 500-holder Section 12(g) trigger), the Commission should support that legislation publicly and on the record.

The public markets do not need another coat of paint. They need to be rebuilt. This Commission has assembled a senior staff with the prior experience required to see the problems as issuers do and to act on 4918-0760-7217.1
them so as to make IPOs great again. We are grateful for the Chairman's leadership and for the Commission's and staff's attention to these comments.

Respectfully submitted,

Louis Lehot
Partner, Foley & Lardner LLP
Silicon Valley
Patrick Daugherty
Partner, Foley & Lardner LLP
Member, SEC Investor Advisory Committee
Chicago

The views expressed in this letter are the authors' own and not those of Foley & Lardner LLP or of the SEC Investor Advisory Committee.

4918-0760-7217.1

Endnotes

1. Chairman Paul S. Atkins, "Remarks at the Stanford Rock Center for Corporate Governance" (May 26, 2026), available at https://www.sec.gov/newsroom/speeches-statements/atkins-052626-remarks-stanford-rock-center-corporate-governance. The Chairman opened Comment File CLL-16 in connection with those remarks, with a preferred submission deadline of July 27, 2026.

2. Rescission of Climate-Related Disclosure Rules, Release No. 33-11421; 34-105572 (May 29, 2026), File No.
S7-2026-19, available at https://www.sec.gov/files/rules/proposed/2026/33-11421.pdf. Comments are due 60 days after Federal Register publication. The authors will file a separate letter in support of the proposed rescission.

3. Testimony of Chairman Paul S. Atkins before the House Financial Services Committee (Feb. 11, 2026). U.S.-

listed domestic companies peaked above 8,000 in 1996 per World Bank data compiled in "Looking Behind the Declining Number of Public Companies" in the Harvard Law School Forum on Corporate Governance (May 18, 2017). The count today is approximately 4,000 per the Center for Research in Security Prices, as reported by CNN Business (June 9, 2023).
4. S&P Dow Jones Indices and Slickcharts data as of December 31, 2025 (Magnificent Seven, which are Alphabet, Amazon, Apple, Meta Platforms, Microsoft, Nvidia, and Tesla, represented approximately 34.3% of the S&P 500 by market capitalization, up from 12.3% in December 2015); Voronoi/Bloomberg data (August 8, 2025, approximately 30% of the total U.S. stock market); WWM Investments analysis (the Magnificent Seven contributed approximately 42% of the S&P 500's total return in 2025).
5. McKinsey & Company, Global Private Markets Report 2026 (private-capital AUM approximately $8.5 trillion in 2025; average buyout holding period exceeding 6.5 years); McKinsey & Company, Global Private Markets Report 2025 (private vehicles representing approximately 35% of global AUM).
6. “Registered Offering Reform,” Release No. 33-11418 (May 19, 2026), 91 FR 31022 (May 26, 2026), File No.
S7-2026-17, available at https://www.sec.gov/files/rules/proposed/2026/33-11418.pdf. This release proposes to amend rules and forms across 17 CFR Parts 210, 229, 230, 232, 239, 240, and 249, including Securities Act Rules 137, 138, 139, 139b, 415, 430B, 433, 456, 457, 462, and addresses the new Section 18(b)(3) qualified-purchaser definition.
7. “Enhancement of Emerging Growth Company Accommodations and Simplification of Filer Status for Reporting Companies,” Release No. 33-11419 (May 19, 2026), 91 FR 30086 (May 21, 2026), File No. S7-2026-18, available at https://www.sec.gov/files/rules/proposed/2026/33-11419.pdf. This release proposes to amend Regulation S-X Rules 2-02 and 8-01 through 8-08, Regulation S-K Items 10, 101, 201, 302, 303, 305, 308, 402, 404, 407, and 504, and Exchange Act Rules 10A-3, 10C-1, 12b-2, 14a-20, and 14a-21. Per Table 2, large accelerated filers presently constitute 35.4% of registrants and carry 98.8% of total public float; under the proposal they would fall to 19.2% of registrants while still representing 93.5% of float, with nonaccelerated filers at 80.8% and small non-accelerated filers (assets of $35 million or less in each of the two most recent years) at 17.9%. Per Table 1, current filing deadlines are 90/45 days for non-accelerated, 75/40 days for accelerated, and 60/40 days for large accelerated filers (Form 10-K / Form 10-Q).
8. Atkins Stanford Remarks, supra note 1 ("Removing the SEC's thumb from the scale, as we proposed, affords companies regulatory flexibility based on their industry, business model, and investor expectations.";

"Guided
by materiality as our north star, I would like to see the Commission's disclosure regime reflect the minimum effective dose of regulation necessary to elicit information that is material to a reasonable investor.").
9. SEC Small Business Capital Formation Advisory Committee, Meeting Materials and Webcast (Apr. 28, 2026). At that meeting, members observed that the U.S. IPO decline accelerated after 2013, that small-cap research economics require structural support, that litigation reform is essential to IPO market repair, and that a return to economic materiality should anchor the Commission's disclosure agenda. We agree.
4918-0760-7217.1
10. Linda C. Quinn, “Reforming the Securities Act of 1933: A Conceptual Framework,” 10 Insights 25 (Jan.
1996), available at https://www.sec.gov/info/smallbus/acsec/reformingsa33.pdf, quoted in Atkins Stanford
Remarks, supra note 1.
11. Atkins Stanford Remarks, supra note 1 ("following the 2023 Supreme Court decision, does the market really believe that a Securities Act registration statement continues to offer meaningful investor protections in the direct listing context?"). The decision he was referring to is Slack Technologies, LLC v. Pirani, 598 U.S. 759 (2023).
12. “Special Purpose Acquisition Companies, Shell Companies, and Projections,” Release No. 33-11265 (Jan. 24, 2024), amended the definition of "blank check company" for PSLRA purposes to make the forward-looking-statement safe harbor unavailable to SPACs and to de-SPAC projections, required the private target company to be a co-registrant on the de-SPAC registration statement, deemed a business combination with a reporting shell company a "sale" of securities, and added Subpart 1600 of Regulation S-K.
13. Section 501 of the Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act (Pub. L. 112-106, 126 Stat. 306, 2012) amended Section 12(g)(1) of the Exchange Act to raise the holder-of-record threshold from 500 to 2,000 (or 500 non-accredited) and excluded holders who received securities under an employee compensation plan in transactions exempted from registration. The threshold is statutory and cannot be lowered by Commission rulemaking alone.
14. Release No. 33-11376 (June 2025), reconsidering the criteria for FPI status under the federal securities laws.
15. Craig Doidge, G. Andrew Karolyi & Rene M. Stulz, “The U.S. Left Behind? Financial Globalization and the Rise of IPOs Outside the U.S.,” 110 J. Fin. Econ. 546 (2013); NBER Working Paper No. 16916 (Mar. 2011).
16. Craig Doidge, G. Andrew Karolyi & Rene M. Stulz, “The U.S. Listing Gap,” 123 J. Fin. Econ. 464 (2017) (by 2012, the United States had more than 5,000 fewer listed firms than predicted by its size, economic and financial development, and shareholder protections), updated in Craig Doidge, G. Andrew Karolyi &

Rene M.
Stulz, “Are There Too Few Publicly Listed Firms in the US?” Fin. Rev. (2025) (gap persisting through 2023, with the United States at approximately half the listed-firms-per-capita ratio of other developed economies).
4918-0760-7217.1

Lydia Bugatti — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lydia Bugatti Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 THIS MUST NOT HAPPEN. We have a working system and this will break it. Transparency is the bedrock of Democracy and this will allow fraud.

Only fraudsters want this bill.

Routine measurements for publicly held companies MUST be reported quarterly to keep me alerted to my investment safety. You are asking me to invest without tracking the health of the company, so what.... I just guess if the company is doing OK?

If a company only reports twice a year and has starts losing money before finally admitting it 6 months in, then I would have to SUE FOR THE NEGLIGENCE of not having transparency.

It's choosing fraudsters over ethically based business when America needs the transparency of quarterly communications, not "head-in-the-sand" slatternly avoidance.

M.K.F — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: M.K.F Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 This proposed rule change is obviously a bailout for insiders. There's no rationale at all to hide information from investors.

Malik Peshimam — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Malik Peshimam Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Keep the earnings quarterly. Changing it to reporting semi annually will take the transparency and trust from the markets

---

Marc Baer — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marc Baer Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Full transparency is the only option. #keepitquarterly

---

Marianne Powell — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Marianne Powell Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Just keep the present system going

Hello - I have a new email! Please use mopowell30@gmail.com

Mark Klein — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mark Klein I am absolutely against the proposed semiannual reporting. Google AI sums up several reasons: 1. Less transparency---investors would have to wait six months instead of three to get official, audited data on a company's financial health; 2. Bigger surprises---with longer gaps between official updates, missing an earnings target could cause massive, volatile swings in stock prices; 3. Advantage for Insiders---large institutional investors can afford alternative data (like tracking satellite images of parking lots or credit card data) to see how a company is doing, while everyday retail investors are left in the dark; 4. Harder to Spot Fraud---quarterly checks make it easier for auditors and regulators to catch accounting red flags early before they snowball into major corporate collapses. Charles Schwab (brokerage) also makes a couple additional points: 1. People generally dislike change---moving to a twice-a-year cadence could lead to less overall engagement from retail investors who look forward to earnings season like a recurring golf or tennis tournament. Less engagement means larger moves when reports do come out and people/models are triggered to buy/sell; 2. Disrupted data models---a shift to biannual filings would significantly alter backtesting models. Analysts and day traders rely on predictable historical quarterly data to evaluate and prove their trading strategies. The last point is huge for me as I've done lots of backtesting over my trading/investing career. It will take years to general a large sample size of data points to see how semiannual reporting affects the landscape. Even with quarterly reporting, much goes on that escapes the guise/awareness of retail investors. I can only think semiannual reporting will make this much worse. Thanks for your time!

Mark McKenzie — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mark McKenzie Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Do not change the corporate reporting to twice a year. This will keep the small investor in the dark compared to the current system. There should be MORE transparency not less.
Mark MacKenzie, retired investor living on a fixed income.

Matthew Friedman — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Friedman Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 My name is Matthew Friedman I am a product owner and it is extremely important to me to keep fiscal reporting quarterly. It ensures that I have the visibility I need to make correctly informed investment decisions. Don’t change this, and don’t facilitate more opportunity for investor fraud

Thanks.

-Matt Friedman

Matthew Guerrera — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Guerrera Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 You need to protect the little guy. MORE DISCLOSURE IS SAFER. Please!!!!

Respectfully,

Matthew Guerrera

Meera K — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Meera K I am against the changes allowing companies to make semiannual filings to the public. As an investor with an individual brokerage account relies on quarterly filings to make informed decisions on my investments, and need a smaller gap between filings to ensure the info is relevant and that insiders have less time to gain an advantage. It's important for quarterly filings to stay required and I am also against companies to have the option to file semiannually as this defeats the purpose of quarterly filings.

Michael Ceyko — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Ceyko Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Quarterly reporting prioritizes short term benefits over long term thinking. Companies cannot innovate when beholden to quarterly reports. They need to reiterate their long term strategy while reporting short term losses over and over, while also bearing the burden of constant reporting.

I fully support elimating quarterly reporting.

Signed,
Michael Ceyko
Engineer at Meta, a company that has always focused on long term but is forced to report to a world that only cares about next month instead of next year.

Michael McMearty — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael McMearty These changes stand to decrease visibility and increase risk for the everyday investor and make markets more prone to manipulation by insiders as a result of the public having less relative insight into the financial health of a company. The burdens of reporting can be heavy especially for smaller companies. A middle ground might be struck where there could be a simplified quarterly reporting that is less burdensome but still highly informative, with full reporting happening once or twice a year could be a happy medium. Even though the current SEC proposal is optional, due to competitive and cost concerns, most companies will face high pressure to only report the minimum amount, especially as larger “gold standard” companies only report semiannually, their stakeholders will see that reporting more often in comparison would be wasteful.

Noah W. — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Noah W. Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Noah Williams, Systems Architect I am an investor who actually reads the reports. I look forward to them. We all know that the next big thing is right around the corner just wait and hold on. Words lie but numbers speak volumes and this would be a painful pill to swallow as you would lose a great deal of fidelity into how the business is actually functioning. Keep quarterly reports.

Noah W. Williams, CISSP “I can imagine no more rewarding a career. And any man who may be asked in this century what he did to make his life worthwhile, I think can respond with a good deal of pride and satisfaction: 'I served in the United States Navy.” — John F. Kennedy

---

Parker Berg — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Parker Berg Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Can any one say... insider trading extravaganzas? Fraud, corruption, no accountability are earmarks of this policy change. What more reasoned exposure for shenanigans to happen when the fox is telling the hen house to stand down for six months.

Patricia Boykins — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Boykins Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Patricia Boykins Operations Manager This is unconscionable! Keep the reporting quarterly. Help protect us smaller, private investors before we are forced out of the market. We do not have vast financial resources and need to be able to make informed investment decisions.

Paul Bartelt — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Paul Bartelt A cursory review of submitted comments is not just overwhelmingly against semiannual reporting, it is nearly if not entirely in total opposition. 1. Who’s interests does this serve and how is it a benefit to them? 2. Whose interests are to be safeguarded by the SEC, corporations or investors? I encourage those that will take this proposal under consideration review the three part mission statement of the SEC as presented at https : / / www . congress . gov / crs_external_products / IF / PDF / IF11714 / IF11714 . 6 . pdf . None of the 3 pillars of their mission as stated there mention anything about acquiescing to the desires of corporate interests.

Porter Gardiner — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Porter Gardiner Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 This is absolutely absurd it is even getting suggested. If I own part of a company, the company ought to be obligated to provide reporting on a regular basis. Quarterly is plenty of time for a public company.

Porter Gardiner
CTO & Cofounder
(307) 747-3410
getfurnace.io

R. Koop — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: R. Koop Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 My name is Michelle & I have what amounts to my life savings in The stock market. It's dependent upon some financial advisor or stock broker that I've never met in my life but my company has chosen to entrust our retirement fund to. It may not be a lot to anyone at the SEC but it is everything to me.
I would like to know one VALID, REASONABLE, reason why the group that is supposed to be protecting people such as myself is considering even allowing big business to do this. Considering they have to keep their books anyways and they have to report those earnings to their shareholders, what is the difference if they have to do that publicly? What is the amount that's being saved by them? If they just have to report that to the general public such as myself, the people that are most affected by the things that go on with that company because I have my money in it. What is the basis for even thinking about letting them do this when everyone knows that crimes of fraud and theft prosper over the longer amounts of time that it can happen without someone checking books.
I worked as a lowly bank teller at a small bank and it was required of me to take a week's worth of vacation vacation in regular intervals because that made it easier for the bank to determine if there was any type of fraud going on. Everyone knows time is crucial to large frauds. Why in the world is the SEC who's supposed to be protecting me and the little guys out here even considering making this a thing.
This would be the complete opposite of what your jobs are. You can not possibly justify this change.

Rick Christie — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Rick Christie Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Transparency is non-negotiable. With more retail investors than ever; this proposal seems to be missing the mark.

Sarah Browne — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Sarah Browne Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Sarah Browne
Small business owner
I have a very small business and need information frequently to successfully monitor the little money I have. Extending the timeframe for companies to release their information would be greatly detrimental to me and the millions of other low income people trying their best to monitor and make good decisions for the money they've invested.
This proposal is minimally positive for businesses(creating small gains likely to be paid to executives), but will greatly injure nearly every American that has money invested in these businesses. This proposal seems to be intended to benefit the wealthy and injure the everyday American. This proposal should NOT be adopted.

Sarah L. Browne

Highwater Farms
[REDACTED]

Shakir — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shakir Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Less reporting will not help retail investors make educated decisions. Semi-annual reporting will be a decidedly negative impact to investors. I say NO.
A concerned investor.

Shannon Brinkman — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shannon Brinkman Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Shannon brinkman, owner of small photo business. We need quarterly reporting - to understand if our money is being invested well! Without it is investing blindly.

All my best, Shannon

Shayn Delph — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Shayn Delph The Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission")'s proposed amendment to allow companies to file semiannual reports on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reports would be a grave mistake that would ONLY benefit corporate bad actors at the expense of individual investors. Most companies have been voluntarily providing quarterly reports for approximately 100 years of this Great Nation's history. Therefore, the idea that, in the era of our highest national productivity of all time, where AI Agents are taking on burdensome and repetitive tasks to enable workers to focus on work that matters, now quarterly reporting is too difficult for companies to keep up with is completely non-credible. If any change should be made, it should be made to be monthly instead of quarterly. Reduced reporting frequency can only serve to hide information from investors and hinder the natural price-discovery process. There is no reason why, in this modern age, we can justify less information and transparency for the market. I trust that the Commission's members are too perceptive and wise to allow themselves to be hoodwinked by the companies pushing for such a rule.

Stephanie Micinski, CPA — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Stephanie Micinski Re: SEC Proposed Rule S7-2026-15 — Semiannual Financial Reporting To whom it may concern, My name is Stephanie Micinski, and I am a CPA writing to provide comments on the SEC's proposed Rule S7-2026-15 regarding semiannual financial reporting. After reviewing the proposal and relevant international research, I do not support the transition from quarterly to semiannual reporting. Extensive international research does not support the premise that semiannual reporting promotes longer-term corporate decision-making. Studies conducted in both the UK and EU following their transition to semiannual reporting found no measurable improvement in long-term investment behavior or strategic planning. These findings directly contradict the expected benefits cited in support of the proposed rule. Quarterly reporting also plays a critical role in maintaining strong internal controls. More frequent reporting requires management to continuously monitor financial results, identify anomalies, and address control weaknesses in real time. Moving to semiannual reporting would create longer gaps between required disclosures, increasing the risk of undetected errors, weakened oversight, and greater volatility. For corporations with less mature control environments, these gaps could materially harm investors and potentially erode confidence in U.S. capital markets. Additionally, the anticipated cost savings from semiannual reporting appear overstated. Companies with strong internal controls already perform monthly close procedures and continuous monitoring, meaning their reporting cadence would not materially change. Conversely, companies with weaker controls may attempt to reduce costs by outsourcing or reducing oversight; these are steps that increase the likelihood of material misstatements and undermine the reliability of financial information. For these reasons, I respectfully urge the SEC to maintain quarterly reporting requirements to preserve transparency, protect investors, and support the stability of U.S. capital markets. The views expressed in this comment letter are my own and do not represent the views of my employer. Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this proposed rule. Sincerely, Stephanie Micinski, CPA

Stephen Carlisle — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Stephen Carlisle Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Stephen Carlisle, construction worker/Small business owner, Veteran.

This policy as I understand it will not help markets become more transparent, but will enable the corporate practices that erode public trust in the financial system. If 2021 was any indication of public sentiment towards the financial system, the SEC would develop policies that will make publicly held companies more accountable for misuse of investor funds. There is a term in the industry regarding individual small investors. Dumb Money. It has been used by Wall Street to dehumanize retail investors and justify taking people's money.

I was deployed to Iraq in 2007-2008 when the financial crisis hit. I came back after putting 20% of my paychecks into my Thrift Savings account and was shocked to see about 50% less money in the account than had been taken out of my paychecks. I understand that was an outlier but the SEC needs to realize that many small investors are emotionally attached to the money they put into the market. Those dollars represent hours working in brutal conditions, placing their lives at risk, time away from family. It's important to remember this when making your decision.

I pray the SEC will keep this in mind while making policies that are not in the public interest.

Thank you.

Stephen Carlisle
Florida

Steven Zuber — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Steven Zuber Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Steven Zuber, Investor
I would like to keep SEC reporting quarterly because transparency is important to me. Less frequent reporting means less transparency.

Tek Consult — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Tek Consult Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Public companies should be required as they are today to report Quarterly. This ensures that public shareholders have access to timely financial information and not at a disadvantage to insiders and analyst.

Ash Mathew
Vice President

Terry Bohaning — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Terry Bohaning Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 Terry Bohaning, Retired , Currently trading stocks.

Reducing the number of reporting periods is a terrible ideas. It reduces the amount of good data available to the small investor. If anything changes, the companies need to provide more data not less. All companies close their books on a monthly basis. Require them to post the raw unaudited results each month with full reporting as is currently provided every third month.

Will B Nelson III — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Will B Nelson III Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 I believe as a citizen of the United States and if someone decides to invest any of their income into an investment within the country or abroad they should have current accurate information.

William Moore — Jun 2, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: William Moore Affiliation: Jun. 2, 2026 William Moore/Retired - This is not how business is done. I can’t image any other meaningful organization, with such potential dire consequences, holding (2) two meeting per year.

Adam Luthman — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Adam Luthman Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I oppose the proposed semiannual reporting rule. The SEC was created to ensure full and fair disclosure. With so much rampant fraud in this country now, reducing visibility of financials would only encourage more.

Adam Luthman

Adam Nash — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment for S7-2026-15 From: Adam Nash Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Adam Nash
Certified Public Accountant
The SEC is opening up a double edge sword of problems. Yes, going from quartering to semi annually will alleviate some of the short term sight of CEOs and management, but this will allow management to also let financial issues to go unreported for up to 6 months leaving investors as bag holders of potentially toxic investments.

Al Fenger — Jun 1, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Al FENGER Please require quarterly filing of 10-q statements. As an individual investor I need them for my research since they are the top of my list to decide what to invest in.

Alan Birmingham — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Alan Birmingham My name is Alan Birmingham and I am a restaurant worker in Newark, Ohio. It seems pretty fishy to me that the Securities and Exchange Commission should want to reveal workings of the stock exchange less. Particularly at a time when corporate tax breaks are the order of the day, smaller companies fall by the wayside, and disparity between the rich and the poor is at its most stark, you would think that anybody interested in what the market is doing should be better informed. It does not seem like that quarterly reporting should cost so much that it should be unable to be done. It seems, instead, as if this is like is some kind of professional subterfuge. I think that reporting on the market should be done quarterly, as a courtesy to the market to which we all contribute, as opposed to twice a year, which does not seem to me an improvement.

Anand — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anand The rule will make it to difficult find timely financial information about companies and make it harder for average retail investor to arrive at investment decisions. Further this will only incentivize companies to share information internally to select few. Lastly, the quarterly information does not need to reflect companies forecast : it can cite past performance and any material adversary impact to the company which will result in financial impact

---

Andrew Weinstein — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Andrew Weinstein Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 There is no public benefit for reducing the transparency of publicly traded companies. The SEC will have done a disservice to investors and traders by halving the number of times per year companies must report. The SEC will need to massively increase personnel to investigate the increase of insider trading. Or is that something not done anymore?

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 As a personal investor, who is teaching herself to invest, in order to support her own retirement-who bears all the risk, how dare the SEC enable corporate America against We the People, leaving us less informed about important, timely information upon which to base our investment decisions. It supports the financial industry's tactics to scare people away from investing their own money. Any government agency should practice transparency and act to support the citizenry v. Corporate America. If it ain't broke, and it ain't, it doesn't need fixing. Leave it alone. Leave it quarterly.

Sent from AOL on Android

Anonymous — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I believe the changes in reporting will allow fraud to go undetected because it could allow companies to “fix their books” As I am fairly new to the markets, please keep it the same.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment for S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 This new rule would allow companies insider trading information while average people will not have correct or up to date information to make good choices. This is not a good idea for the people.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Quarterly earnings are critical to investors in order to provide insight into companies financial health. Please keep them quarterly.

Anonymous — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Please withdraw the proposed rule. Companies that don't want to report quarterly can stay private.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: Anonymous Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Do not change the reporting timeframe. Companies should report quarterly. It's safer for investors.

Anonymous — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: Ghst Rydr Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Public companies need to report to shareholders, and quarterly reporting is extremely important. To move this to 6 months would be a crime.

Art — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Art Hello. As an individual investor I feel this proposal to change the reportable earnings schedule is a mistake of the largest order.. The market at one time had circuit breakers in place to mitigate volatility. Over time, these have been eroded by the Flash Boys, pay for order flow. private equity investment . The individual investor has not benefited. This proposal is another step backward. This proposal is an attack on the individual investor. Another David vs Goliath. Quakerly reporting must not be changed. I cannot think of a reason on why these changes are needed other than to further manipulate data, increase volatility, and make earnings a binary event. The current administration is pushing for these changes . Please, stop them. The market and tech are converging at warp speed and the last thing I need is less information on the companies we own or are looking to invest in. Thank You

---

Austin Franks — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Austin Franks Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Dear SEC,

Every act against the good people of the United States, committed by every bad actor in a position of authority and wealth, is remembered. Do not add your acts to the scale. Again, they will be remembered.

Austin Franks — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Austin Franks Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Dear SEC,

Every act against the good people of the United States, committed by every bad actor in a position of authority and wealth, is remembered. Do not add your acts to the scale. Again, they will be remembered.

Ben Barber — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Ben Barber Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Stop allowing insiders to have more knowledge than the rest of us. Democratize investing by requiring more reporting, not less.

Bernard Zhang — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Bernard Zhang Although I understand the reasoning behind this proposal, this is a terrible idea for transparency. Most of the companies will be fine, but companies that are already a bit more on the fringe/smaller will be able to push back any poor performance or fraud for longer before anything gets discovered. Any companies committing potential fraud would be able to get away with it for longer, potentially magnifying the degree of loss when it occurs.

Bill Sweeney — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Bill Sweeney Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Insider information is already an advantage to companies who are going public. Allowing them to conceal even more data can only hurt investors not directly associated with the company.

The scenarios where hiding the information is an unfair advantage are:

- the company growth has exploded over the last two quarters. Investors receive a skewed view of further growth potential.
- the company growth has significantly diminished or leveled off. Investors see only the prior growth periods not the slowing.
- the underwriters will have insight into the data hidden from the investing public. This will allow them to offload the stock if they know that it will likely crash &/or over invest in the stock if they see growth taking off
- in this day of building models to forecast return, example using AI to predict growth, data is king. By allowing insiders to control access to the data you are giving them a significant market advantage in model building.

Regards,
Bill Sweeney

Brandon Ross — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brandon Ross This is the completely opposite that direction public financial reporting should be moving in. Investors need this information to make important decisions. Financial reporting should be moving towards technologically driven, stream-lined, cost-effective MONTHLY reporting. Stretching reporting out to semi-annual is downright medieval. Keep public companies accountable with quarterly reports.

C. Yu — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: C. Yu I am an American with my retirement invested in the stock market. I am also a retired attorney with exposure to securities regulation in my past practice. As someone on "both sides" of this type of rule-making, I have absolutely no doubt that this rule would be absolutely terrible for both the market and individual investors. It would incentivize insider trading and securities fraud. As the famous saying goes, sunshine is the best disinfectant. This rule change casts us all back into the Dark Ages of regulation and will only give us a diseased securities market.

Carsten McCollum — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 comment From: Carsten McCollum Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I support maintaining quarterly earnings reporting requirements because quarterly disclosures provide investors with timely, consistent, and transparent information needed to make informed investment decisions. More frequent reporting reduces information gaps between management and shareholders, enhances market efficiency, and helps identify emerging financial risks before they become more significant. Quarterly reporting also promotes corporate accountability by encouraging regular communication regarding financial performance, operational developments, and material changes that may affect investors.

As an individual investor, I believe access to timely financial information is essential for making informed investment decisions and maintaining confidence in public markets. Quarterly reporting provides investors with the information necessary to evaluate company performance, assess risks, and respond appropriately to changing market conditions.

While some argue that semi-annual reporting could reduce compliance costs and short-term market pressures, any reduction in transparency would likely outweigh those benefits. Investors rely on current information to assess risk, allocate capital effectively, and maintain confidence in the integrity of U.S. capital markets. Quarterly reporting remains an important mechanism for protecting investors and supporting fair, orderly, and efficient markets.

Thank you for considering my comment.

Catherine Mcginnis — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: catherine mcginnis Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I want to continue with quarterly reporting, we need that transparency!!!

Chris — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting From: Chris Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 You must continue quarterly reporting!!

Christian Bordelon — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Christian Bordelon Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am writing to oppose Rule S7-2026-15. This rule allows for a hostile market environment and threatens the wellbeing of hundreds of thousands of hardworking Americans who rely on their retirement savings to survive and a profitable market to keep those savings aloft. Allowing companies to essentially hide poor performance passes their issues onto the consumer rather than handling it themselves.

Christopher Babayans — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: Christopher Babayans Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 We need reporting MORE OFTEN, because reporting more often is THE RIGHT THING TO DO.

Christopher Fisher — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Fisher Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Please keep quarterly reporting. People and investors need consistent and accurate data. This effects the retirement of millions of Americans.

Christopher Warson — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: My comment on S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Warson Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I write in opposition to the proposed shift to semiannual reporting. This is not going to help retail in any way. And isn’t retail just as important as the firms that commit fraud every day? You have Citadel that operates a hedge fund and also has a market maker arm. That’s an inherent problem and conflict of interest. So with this rule they only have to cook the books twice a year instead of four times a year. This is going to be disastrous if this passes.

Claudette Lopez — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Claudette Lopez Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am a retail investor and quarterly reports inform me how to make my decisions.

D — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: D Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Quarterly reporting to shareholders, govt, and public is crucial to ongoing accountability for publicly owned entities. Operative word here is PUBLIC. Do not change required reporting period to six months. Too long between looks under the hood.

David Varnadoe
dvarnadoe@gmail.com

Dalvyn — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting From: Dalvyn Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026
Dalvyn - Civil Engineer
Keep quarterly reporting! These companies and feckless CEOs are going to attempt the same rug pull Elon is attempting with SpaceX and TRUST ME you do NOT want to be the one everyone points to as for why we have another economic crash like 2008. The regime is already doing what they can to weaken the US economy, why would you guys volunteer to take the fall for them??

Thanks,
Don't be Dumb,
Dalvyn

Dan Murillo — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: RE: S7-2026-15 From: Dan Murillo Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am writing to express my opposition to the proposed rule.
Transparency is a cornerstone of investor confidence and market integrity. Reducing disclosure requirements may lower costs for certain companies, but those savings appear minimal when compared to the value that transparent reporting provides to investors, particularly everyday Americans who rely on accurate information to make informed decisions about their retirement accounts, savings, and investments.
American investors should not have less access to information about the companies in which they invest. Public markets function best when investors have the information necessary to evaluate risks, opportunities, and corporate performance. Any reduction in transparency risks weakening trust in our financial markets.
I respectfully urge the Securities and Exchange Commission to prioritize the interests of investors and maintain robust disclosure standards. The long-term benefits of transparency far outweigh the relatively modest compliance costs borne by large public companies.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,
A U.S. Citizen

Daniel Cooper — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Cooper Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I found keepitquarterly.org, and had to say something! The American people on all sides want more transparency, not less. Corporations have a duty to report and we the people have a vested interest in their transparency. It's not a guarantee semi-annual disclosures will make things worse, but do we really want a bunch of tiny Enron-like scandals building in the background, with little to no accountability? No. We want transparency. Keep it quarterly!

- Daniel Cooper of South Carolina

Sent from my Galaxy

Daniel Silvers — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: Daniel Silvers Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am writing in opposition to the proposed semiannual reporting rule. Information asymmetry harms ordinary investors most.

David Sturgeon — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: David Sturgeon Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Please withdraw the proposed Form 10-S. Removing quarterly reports tilts the playing field toward institutions that for years have had been deregulated, we need quarterly reports to keep them honest.

Denny — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment for S7-2026-15 From: Denny Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Keep quarterly reporting. Now that we have computer, wait, yes we do have computers. The companies have our money, already making decisions annually or whenever, without consulting us. The SEC is supposed to be the financial 'Watch Dog', so, you set the standards and Companies Comply. Don't let the Fox Guard the Hen House.

Sent from my iPhone

Derek Martin — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 comment From: Derek Martin Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 This represents a massive increase in the risk for fraudulent activity. Visibility is critical with companies that are publicly traded.

Devon Golde — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Regarding S7-2026-15 From: Devon Golde Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am opposed to the elimination of quarterly reporting. This rule undermines the SEC's core mission. It encourages corporations to operate with little transparency or oversight, both of which have repeatedly proven essential to protecting the broader economy and the public from unchecked corporate greed. If the SEC intends to overturn more than 50 years of established reporting standards, it should formally justify such a significant change and clearly demonstrate how reduced disclosure requirements would meaningfully benefit the public.

Donald R. Sacca — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Donald R. Sacca To the Securities and Exchange Commission: I am writing as a retail investor to express my strong opposition to any proposal that would reduce corporate earnings reporting from quarterly to semiannual. Reducing reporting frequency in 2026 is not just harmful to transparency. It is fundamentally misaligned with the reality of modern financial systems. Today's public companies already generate internal financials far more frequently than quarterly, and modern accounting software, automated reporting tools, and real-time dashboards make monthly or even continuous reporting entirely feasible. Given the capabilities of today's technology, the idea of less frequent public disclosure is not only outdated. It is counterproductive. If anything, the conversation should be about shortening reporting intervals, not lengthening them. Retail investors like myself rely on timely, standardized financial information to evaluate company performance, assess risk, and make informed decisions. Extending the reporting gap from three months to six months would significantly increase information asymmetry, giving insiders and large institutions an even greater advantage over everyday investors who do not have access to private data streams or alternative datasets. Longer reporting intervals also create greater uncertainty, which leads to higher volatility and less efficient price discovery. Quarterly reporting is one of the few mechanisms that helps level the playing field between retail and institutional participants. Weakening that mechanism would directly harm the fairness and transparency of U.S. markets. The argument that quarterly reporting is too burdensome for companies does not reflect the reality of modern financial operations. With today's automated systems, the marginal cost of releasing standardized quarterly data is negligible. Public companies already produce internal financials far more frequently than they publicly disclose, and the infrastructure to support more frequent reporting already exists. For these reasons, I strongly urge the SEC to maintain quarterly reporting requirements. Reducing transparency at a time when technology enables more information, not less, would be a step backward for investor protection, market stability, and the integrity of U.S. capital markets. Respectfully, Donald R. Sacca Retail Investor

---

Dustin Lenz — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: Dustin Lenz Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am opposed to the semiannual reporting proposal. Less disclosure means more opportunity for corporate misconduct.

Regards,

Dustin

Elaine — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: Elaine Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Please do not adopt the proposed shift to semiannual reporting.

This decreases investor transparency and is not a move in the right direction.

Best,
Elaine

Elaine Cornacchia — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Elaine Cornacchia Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 this sounds like it only benefits the rich who don't have everything to lose like an average american. elaine cornacchia, paralegal

Sent from my iPhone

Eric Patterson — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: Eric Patterson Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I urge the Commission to reject the proposal to drop Form 10-Q.

E Patterson

Fred Chase — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Regarding S7-2026-15 From: Fred Chase Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Quarterly reporting requirements are the backbone of the rigorous public disclosure system upon which investors have come to depend. To loosen the reporting window is an unnecessary and dangerous proposal for the investing public.

Fred Chase

Sent from my iPhone

Gary McClellan — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Gary McClellan Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Not fair! Especially for the small investor!

Sent from Yahoo Mail on Android

George Wright — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: George Wright Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I urge the Commission to reject the semiannual reporting proposal. The game is already rigged. Please don't make it worse!

Hunter Collins — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Feedback on S7-2026-15 From: Hunter Collins Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Hello,

As an American with a retirement account I would like to see the quarterly reporting window for publicly traded companies preserved. Corporate fraud and abuse are at record highs and I unfortunately cannot always count on regulators to investigate I have to do my own research and quarterly reporting helps with that.

Thank you

-Hunter Collins

Huy — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Feedback on S7-2026-15 From: Huy Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Removing public oversight benefits no one but the bad actors.

Jackson Lemp — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: Jackson Lemp Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Asymmetrical information directly harms investors and opens the door for abuse. Moving from quarterly to annual reporting would reduce transparency and further advantage insiders and large institutions over retail investors. Timely disclosure is one of the foundations of fair and efficient markets.

Jacob G — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: My comment on S7-2026-15 From: Jacob G Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Keep reporting. This is not fair

Sent from my iPhone

James Johnson — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: james johnson Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 No. No. No.

Jamie Koehl — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: JAMIE KOEHL Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 This is outrageous! Is the goal of the SEC TO ENCOURAGE CORRUPTION? vote this measure down! There is already so little oversight why make even less?

Javier Kato — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: JAVIER KATO Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 As an investor in stocks, I regularly listen to Earnings reports of recorder. This allows me to make informed and educated decisions about my investments.

Please do not limit the small retail Investor.

Jeff Heynen — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Heynen Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Quarterly reporting is the only way the public has full transparency into the performance of public companies. Half-yearly reporting does not allow for an adequate level of transparency, especially in the midst of significant industrial change brought on by AI.
Thank you for your consideration.

Jeff Kaps — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: jeff kaps Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Busnisses should keep data posted weekly. Those of us investing need to know the numbers. Vote no.

Sent from Samsung Galaxy smartphone.
Get Outlook for Android

Joanne Baek — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joanne Baek Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Please reject this proposal. Making financial information MORE hidden instead of less harms ordinary investors and makes insider trading all the more lucrative.

John Hummel — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: John Hummel Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 My name is John Hansarick, and I'm a Senior Technical Writer. Moving away from quarterly reports doesn't help consumers, it doesn't help us employees who keep an eye on our company finances to know how healthy they are, and it doesn't help investors know if they're making safe investments. Keep reporting quarterly so companies are forced to stay transparent and keep the economy working for all of us instead of letting companies hide their failures until it's too late for investors.

John Hunter — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: John Hunter Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I write in opposition to the semiannual reporting proposal. Reducing reporting frequency increases the risk of market manipulation. Please don’t take away information away from the American public.

John Warner — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: John Warner Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I work as a data scientist. My job is leveraging data. Cutting quarterly financial reports makes no sense to me. Especially at a time when nasdaq and other exchanges are blowing to large companies and changing how and when institutional indexes need to buy new ipos. It makes it seem like the financial sector is really stacking the deck against individuals

---

Joseph Ford — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Joseph Ford Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 If you change this it’ll only show that the market is rigged for corporations and those with money. Expect many to pull out of mutual funds. Keep it quarterly!

Joshua Wright, Developer, Licensed Architect, Licensed general contractor - unlimited — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Joshua Wright Keep quarterly reporting mandatory. Even Make it monthly. We need to be able to see the trends in materials manufacturing for construction pricing.

Kelly Durand — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Kelly Durand Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 This issue should never have been brought up in the first place. How is this even fair for the public. This is actually the opposite effect with less consumer confidence placed in the stock market.

Thank you,

Kelly Durand

Kenneth Dobrowolski — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: Kenneth Dobrowolski Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Do not change the quarterly reporting rules for companies. This would leave investors blind for months with no clear picture of what companies are doing. This will cripple the average investors who are the lifeblood of the markets. Stop this Now. It's bad enough that we have to deal with GAAP accounting and now companies want to just not report for 6 months? No way is this good. Transparency goes out the window and the investors get blinded and have no idea what's going on in the companies that they invest in.

Kenneth Mucalo — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Kenneth Mucalo Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Hi,

My name is Kenneth Mucalo, and i am a Site Engineer in Wisconsin. I am against the semiannual reporting proposal. Investors need timely information to make sound decisions.

We need to maintain transparency, especially now.

Thanks,

Kenneth Mucalo,

Kerri Nugent-Wells — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment for S7-2026-15 From: Kerri Nugent-Wells Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Most of our savings are in stocks. There is no way we will keep investing in the stock market without quarterly reports. I am sure the same would be true of my family and most of the friends we have who save in stock funds.
Keep stock reports quarterly.

Kerri Nugent-Wells
Boston MA
02134

Kristy Johnson — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Kristy Johnson Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Do not change this rule. It is completely irrational with the amount of fraud and dishonesty that is already rampant in big business. This is wrong!

Sent from my iPhone

Larry Wilson — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Regarding S7-2026-15 From: Larry Wilson Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am opposed to the semiannual reporting proposal. We need to reduce fraud in our system, not increase it.

Sent from my iPad

Lisa Gill — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Lisa Gill Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Listen, when have rollbacks on financial reporting or audits ever been a good thing? Do. Your. [REDACTED]. Jobs. Do not submit to pressure from this administration. You all know what's going to happen and feigning ignorance is inexcusable.

Sincerely,
Lisa A. Gill

Lisa Gill — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Lisa Gill Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Listen, when have rollbacks on financial reporting or audits ever been a good thing? Do. Your. [REDACTED]. Jobs. Do not submit to pressure from this administration. You all know what's going to happen and feigning ignorance is inexcusable.

Sincerely,
Lisa A. Gill

Lucas Frisch — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lucas Frisch Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 My name is Lucas Frisch. I am a machinist who is trying to get to retirement one day. The quarterly reports have served us well to this point. Less information cannot be good for investors. Do not change this.

Matthew Lunsford — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Lunsford Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I'm retiring in August. Moving the reporting period for companies from 3 months to 6, does not benefit the investment decisions of my pension fund or myself. It does give a big advantage to those inside the company whether a company upturn or downturn occurs. Advantages listed as part of the push for this are not borne out when you look at other nations around the world. Many who have tried it appear to be retreating. In conclusion, this appears to be a bad idea.
Matthew Lunsford

Sent from my Galaxy

Matthew Russell — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Russell Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Did we learn nothing from Enron? Please don't do this. It's irresponsible with retail and institutional investor capital. How does this follow GAAP guidelines?

Best Regards

Concerned Investor

Melanie Bieder — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Melanie Bieder I disagree strongly with the potential change to business quarterly report filings. The regular reports have been used for decades and companies have consistent procedures for producing them. As an investor I have relied on these quarterly reports for three or more decades to evaluate a firm's progress on their initiatives and my assessment to continue to invest in the firm. Removing the quarterly requirement will mean firms may then have lax control over their finances, etc., allowing them to fudge information or postpone important information to the public. The quarterly report should stay as it has been required for decades.

Mercer Pickens, Director of Operations, Academy of Dental & Medical Anesthesia — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mercer Pickens Dear Commissioners: I am writing as an individual investor to express my opposition to Rule S7-2026-15 and any proposal that would reduce the frequency of required corporate financial reporting. Quarterly financial information is one of the most important tools I use when making investment decisions. Timely reporting allows me to evaluate a company's performance, monitor changes in business conditions, and make informed choices about allocating my capital. Reducing the frequency of required disclosures would leave investors with less information for longer periods of time and would make the markets less transparent. I am also concerned that longer gaps between required reports would create an unfair advantage for corporate insiders and other parties with access to nonpublic information. Public investors depend on regular disclosures to maintain a level playing field. When reporting intervals become longer, information asymmetries increase, and ordinary investors are placed at a disadvantage. Some have suggested that companies could simply choose to provide more frequent updates voluntarily. I do not believe this adequately addresses the problem. Companies whose investors most need regular updates, particularly those facing operational challenges, financial uncertainty, or significant business changes, may be the least likely to provide robust voluntary disclosures. Investors should not have to rely on optional reporting to obtain information that is fundamental to making informed investment decisions. Finally, while reducing reporting requirements may provide some cost savings to issuers, I do not believe those savings outweigh the costs imposed on investors. Transparent, timely financial reporting is a cornerstone of investor confidence and efficient capital markets. Any modest reduction in compliance costs should not come at the expense of market transparency, accountability, and investor protection. For these reasons, I urge the Commission to reject Rule S7-2026-15 and preserve strong, regular reporting requirements for public companies. Thank you for considering my comments. Respectfully submitted, Mercer Pickens Seattle, WA

Michael Bailey — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: michael bailey Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Don't want to open the door for more fraud !

Michael Edwards — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael Edwards Please do not amend reporting to be required less frequently than quarterly. Private individuals need frequent filing data to make informed choices. Reducing reporting frequency harms individuals.

Michelle Cardona — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Michelle Cardona Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 To SEC,

In regard to S7-2026-15. We the people are so sick of being used. Stop predatory widening the gap between the rich and the rest. So greedy and debase. They have enough. People don't need to be kept in the dark anymore than has already been done to us! People can't live correctly anymore due to the stacked deck against us. It's predatory, it's unethical business. There is no need…just the usual greed; absolutely no need of this except to disadvantage the public.

I am fully annoyed big business seems to be focused on every underhanded means to keep removing wealth from the people.

Michelle Cardona

Sent from my iPhone

Mike — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Mike Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Transparent, quarterly reporting keeps this as fair as possible. You should work to protect us, not businesses.

Sent from my iPhone

Mike Corn — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: My comment on S7-2026-15 From: Mike Corn Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Quarterly corporate reporting is important, for regulators and investors. Without quarterly reporting, a wide window is made available for all things troublesome. Investors and regulators both will not have current data upon which to measure. Besides, virtually every corporation will continue to compile the quarterly data, so it will not be an extra burden. In short, we need quarterly reports. Reject the change and keep quarterly reporting rules.

Mike Corn
Hays, Kansas.

Sent from my iPhone

Mike Moore — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mike Moore Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 It's hard enough to try to play the stock market without taking away indicators. Leave it alone. Give the public it's due.

Mike Powers — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: Mike Powers Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Moving away from quarterly reporting would increase the risk of fraud. I am against it

Mike Powers

Get Outlook for iOS

Nicholas Miller — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Feedback on S7-2026-15 From: Nicholas Miller Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Please withdraw the proposed Form 10-S.

My name is Nicholas Miller, I currently work as a Medical Assistant and I wanted to express my dissatisfaction with the move away from quarterly financial reporting from corporations. Maintaining the current quarterly reporting is a fundamental basis that our markets rest on. Public markets need public information to function.

Kind regards,
Nicholas

Nick Selby — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Nick Selby I urge the Commission to reject the proposed rule.

Nico Prieto — Jun 1, 2026

Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Nico Prieto Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Quarterly reporting please. Why would this even be a consideration unless you want Americans to get caught holding the bag.

Paul Dinger — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Paul Dinger Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I'm Cut it to trimester reports. A sensible alternative!

Paul Dinger — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Paul Dinger Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I'm Cut it to trimester reports. A sensible alternative!

Paul Swirski — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: My comment on S7-2026-15 From: Paul Swirski Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am fully against giving the insider's even more leverage and stealing more money from the retail class.

Sent from my iPad

Pete — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Pete Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Not happy with this sec rule which allows companies to hide their books for most. Insiders will have power over public owners of th e stock

Not making it greater, making it more corrupt

Pete Fritz
Issaquah, wa
4257365704m

Peter Vauthy — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: PETER VAUTHY Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Quarterly report needs to be kept for the financial integrity of every investor and The longevity of the United States. Corporations have not shown the capacity to be honest enough to watch themselves.

Sent from my iPhone

Quentin Rykard — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Quentin Rykard Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 A proposal which insinuates the ability of Insider trading is completely unacceptable. The blatant greed perpetrated by the trump administration and its cronies has unleashed upon our country is disgustingly apparent and unacceptable. At what point do these corporate and government fat cats care
BM they have stolen and hoarded enough off the backs of the people?
And what crumbs are left for the 99%?

Rachel Sutton — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Feedback on S7-2026-15 From: Rachel Sutton Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Please reject the proposal to drop Form 10-Q.

Randal Works — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Randal Works Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Allowing any SEC company to post financial results only twice a year is both criminal and explotive for the country.
Quarterly postings allows us as both investors and taxpayers to better clarity on how these public companies are using profits. We help profit these companies, so we should have more financial insight on the performance of all SEC companies. There is no justifiable argument that can be validated to suddenly ammend quarterly fillings.

Randal Works — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Randal Works Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Allowing any SEC company to post financial results only twice a year is both criminal and explotive for the country.
Quarterly postings allows us as both investors and taxpayers to better clarity on how these public companies are using profits. We help profit these companies, so we should have more financial insight on the performance of all SEC companies. There is no justifiable argument that can be validated to suddenly ammend quarterly fillings.

Rick — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Rick Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 It’s not a good idea to do two instead of four a year a lot can happen in just a month let alone a quarter that could affect stock price and you want to switch to twice a year… one word… Retarded. Maybe two words… Gross negligence -Dick IV hmfic @dmfbs

Sent from my iPhone

Robert Fox — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on file no. S7-2026-15 From: Robert Fox Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 My name is Robert Fox and I am an Electrical Engineer. I believe that quarterly reporting is good for market stability over the long term. Semi-annual reporting seems to only serve those with insider knowledge, allowing retail investors to be taken advantage of. A change like this would also serve to reduce overall confidence in publicly traded stocks and could lead to far less market participation. Please keep quarterly reporting requirements.

Rodney Ross — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: Rodney Ross Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Would like to mention that this is very important, not be left out. To have activities that are influential in our communities, yes maybe not everybody quite comprehends what is actually going on. And now, it's even more important to stop the denial of repressing America's citizens our opportunities having equal access to knowledge The reasoning behind this is lost, not really explained. To be excluded to this platform for possible financial growth appears extreme, and now for what purpose? IThank you for listening and, hopefully the appropriate decision can be met. And that, ALL Americans are equally included. with theopportunities that equalaty that is provided to all. I am thankful for this time provided. I am greatly appreciative,and thank you for you're time, Rodney Ross

---

Ryan Finch — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Ryan Finch Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I prefer more frequent company reporting in order to make better investment decisions for my retirement and financial livelihood. Please keep them quarterly.

Thanks, Ryan Finch

---

s7202615-2413186.htm — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Steve Komondorea Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am opposed to the bi-annual reporting rule. Shifts in market trends, changes in financing costs during that long time period with C-suite opportunities to leverage the company, commit additional shares, leveraging then cashing out among other opportunities would leave the retail trader as the last to know and the first to get hurt with the biggest impact on retirement accounts and investment accounts that could hollow out the plans of main street americans.

Satyam C. Patel — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Satyam C Patel As a retail investor, I rely on this information to make investment decisions about my retirement. Further, I am concerned about any action that would further enable companies to evade transperancy. The playing field is already tilted towards the executives and legislators as they are able to partake in these insider moves at the expense of ordinary citizens like myself. This change will place further pressure on those of us who trying to invest for our future. Please do not go forward with this action.

Scott MacLeod — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on file no. S7-2026-15 From: Scott MacLeod Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Stop the enshittification of semi-annual fillings for corporate welfare. Stocks are still publicly traded.

Make it a Great Day for Yourself,

Scott MacLeod
832-993-9744

Seren Barz — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Seren Barz Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 This rule is unfair to retail investors. This can lead to corruption as well as uncertainty and paranoia amongst retail investors. The market may be less stable and everyday people will pay the price.

Shane Gibeault — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Shane Gibeault Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 SEC Chairman,

Changing the reporting requirements will rig investments against all common investors and ensure only brokers and corporation's win. That’s not in the best interests of Americans.

As someone who has served his country I cannot sit idly by and not voice my opinion in the matter. This should not change now, or at any time in the future.

Best regards,

Shane Gibeault
Director of Information & Marketing Technologies

Mobile: (585) 557-6470
Fax: (585) 706-2113
Email: sgibeault@cookproperties.com

Confidentiality Notice:
This message has been sent as a part of discussion between Shane Gibeault and the addressee whose name is specified above. Should you receive this message by mistake, we would be most grateful if you informed us that the message has been sent to you. In this case, we also ask that you delete this message from your mailbox, and do not forward it or any part of it to anyone else. Thank you for your cooperation and understanding.

Steve Komondorea — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Steve Komondorea Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I am opposed to the bi-annual reporting rule. Shifts in market trends, changes in financing costs during that long time period with C-suite opportunities to leverage the company, commit additional shares, leveraging then cashing out among other opportunities would leave the retail trader as the last to know and the first to get hurt with the biggest impact on retirement accounts and investment accounts that could hollow out the plans of main street americans.

Thomas — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Thomas Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026
Thomas Butler
Full time trader/investor

Keep it fair for everyone.

Thank you for your time

Tiffiney Domina — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: RE: S7-2026-15 From: Tiffiney Domina Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 This is a sign of the corruption that is taking over our country! Keep it quarterly please!

Taxpayer & investor,
Tiffiney Domina

Tim Parker — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Tim Parker Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Dear SEC,

I am opposed to changing the reporting requirement for companies from quarterly to twice a year. As an investor, I rely on the quarterly reports to keep track of revenue and earnings for the companies that I am tracking. This move would hurt the U.S. investment market and drive customers away from investing.

Sincerely,

Tim Parker
30 Steelhead Rd, Fairbanks, AK 99709

Tim Trowbridge, Private Investor — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Tim Trowbridge I believe that reducing corporate reporting requirements to semi-annually will deprive investors of timely, critical information, regarding the companies in which they have invested. Given the rapidity at which markets move in our global environment it is imperative that the owners of corporations, the shareholders, are provided timely financial performance information and the reports of the managers. Semi-annual reporting will increase uncertainty about company performance and thus increase volatility of individual stocks and the markets as a whole. Please reject S7-2026-15.

Timothy Boyer — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Timothy Boyer Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Please reject the proposed shift to semiannual reporting. If anything this change goes in the wrong direction, in today's digital age we should have mandatory monthly reporting.

Tim B.
Information Security Forensic Analyst

Sent from my iPhone

Victor Espericueta — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: victor espericueta Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I strongly oppose any proposal that would reduce the frequency of public company financial reporting from quarterly to semiannual reporting.

As an individual investor, timely access to accurate financial information is one of the few tools I have to compete in a market dominated by institutional investors, hedge funds, analysts, and corporate insiders. Reducing public disclosures would create a significant information gap that favors large institutions while leaving ordinary investors at a disadvantage.

Quarterly reporting promotes:

* Transparency and accountability
* Efficient price discovery
* Stronger corporate governance
* Greater investor confidence in U.S. capital markets

The argument that less frequent reporting would reduce short-term thinking ignores the fact that management teams and institutional investors will continue to have access to far more information than the general public. The result would not be less short-termism—it would be less transparency.

America's financial markets are the strongest in the world because they are built on disclosure, trust, and equal access to information. Reducing reporting requirements risks increasing information asymmetry and undermining confidence among retail investors.

The SEC's mission includes protecting investors and maintaining fair, orderly, and efficient markets.

This proposal would move in the opposite direction.

I urge the SEC to preserve quarterly reporting requirements and reject any rule that would reduce the frequency of financial disclosures to the investing public.

Victor Espericueta MHA, BSN, RN, CMSRN
Clinical Nurse III
K7 Trauma / Acute Care Surgery
Stanford Health Care
500 Pasteur Drive, MC 5672 | Stanford, CA 94305
C: 408.910.5589 O: 650.497.3290
vespericueta@stanfordhealthcare.org

Vincent L. — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Vincent L. Dear SEC, The average retail investor love having quarterly updates and earnings call to reassess its investment thesis. I don't know how confident I would feel about 6 months reporting. There are so many misstatements and frauds that go on in reporting. By making even less of those, you are helping scammer stay under the radar and have time to hide their misdeeds! The cost is negligible and necessary for these corporations. V. An average investor.

William Ragan, Small farm and ranch owner — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: William Ragan It makes no logical sense to give less information in the age of technology. This is an opportunity for companies to obscure their malfeasance and failure at no benefit to the consumer. Less reporting is exactly what a bad actor wants to take advantage of little old ladies and the last of their investments. Bad actors and the sorry politicians they bribe.

Wilson Cabarcas — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Wilson Cabarcas Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 Dear SEC, Quarterly earnings reporting is essential because U.S. public markets depend on frequent, standardized, comparable information. Investors cannot fairly price securities, allocate capital, or assess risk if corporate performance is disclosed only infrequently or selectively.
Quarterly reporting provides several critical benefits:
Market transparency
Investors need timely data on revenue, margins, cash flow, debt, guidance, and operational trends. Without quarterly reports, the market becomes more dependent on rumors, management spin, private meetings, and unequal information access. Investor protection
Retail investors are at a disadvantage when information is scarce. Quarterly earnings help level the playing field by forcing public companies to disclose material financial information on a consistent schedule. Price discovery and market efficiency
Earnings reports are one of the most important mechanisms for updating expectations. They allow the market to quickly incorporate new information into stock prices, reducing uncertainty and improving capital allocation. Accountability for management

Public companies receive capital from shareholders. Quarterly reporting keeps executives accountable for execution, spending discipline, balance sheet health, and changes in business conditions. Early warning signals
Problems in liquidity, demand, debt service, inventory, margins, or customer concentration can emerge quickly. Quarterly reporting helps investors detect deterioration before losses become severe. Confidence in U.S. capital markets
The strength of U.S. markets comes partly from high disclosure standards. Reducing the frequency of earnings reports could weaken trust, increase information asymmetry, and make public markets less attractive to investors. While some argue that quarterly reporting encourages short-term thinking, the better solution is not less disclosure. The better solution is to discourage excessive short-term guidance while preserving mandatory quarterly financial reporting. Investors should not lose access to timely financial statements simply because some companies or analysts focus too much on short-term targets.
For these reasons, quarterly earnings should remain a core requirement of U.S. public-company disclosure. It protects investors, strengthens transparency, and preserves confidence in the fairness and efficiency of the market.

Thank you,
Wilson C

Zach McGuire — Jun 1, 2026
Subject: Regarding S7-2026-15 From: zach Mcguire Affiliation: Jun. 1, 2026 I truly think this will not help the every day retail investors and I think it needs to stay transparent going forward.

Regards,
Zachariah McGuire

Ahulani — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Ahulani Affiliation: May 31, 2026 We need more transparency, not less. This rule does not benefit investors nor does it help companies. To make informed investments in solid companies, investors need demonstrable facts. To minimize investment by emotion and manipuation, companies must continue to provide the facts on a quarterly basis. The world is changing too fast to wait 6 months for information. Talk about putting the pig in the poke! This measure will cause further erosion of faith in American business. The dangers far outweigh any minimal benefit.

Alan Hart — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting From: ALAN HART Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Bad idea, if I invest in a company. I need to know what is going on with the company and not wait for results!
Carol Hart. Retired. nowTax Preparer.

Sent from my iPad

Alex Paransky — May 31, 2026
Subject: Regarding S7-2026-15 From: Alex Paransky Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Keep it quarterly. I want to know what I am investing in.

Alexandre C — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Alexandre C Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Hello
I am writing to express my opposition to the proposed shift to semiannual reporting. Quarterly reporting deters fraud and discourages manipulation.
It allows for a more transparent and free market which positively impacts economy through growth.
Please keep the quarterly reporting format.
Alex

Alexis R. — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Alexis R. Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Implementing this rule would negatively impact my ability to make investment decisions. I do not support it.

Alyssa Zacarias — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Alyssa Zacarias Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I'm a retail investor who relies on quarterly filings in order to make sound decisions for my retirement account. If companies were allowed the option to disclose their financial statements less often to the public, the eventual outcome could be that they care less about preventing fraud or insider trading.

Alyssa Zacarias
Accounting Major at Fullerton College

Anne Handy — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Anne Handy Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Please don't change the reporting cadence

Sent from my iPad

Anonymous — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 comment From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Information about how a publicly traded company is doing should be available to their investors more than twice a year. I want to be able to see what is happening and I want my 401k to be able to do the same. They need to keep their books anyway, and they should be required to continue disclosing them.

Anonymous — May 31, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous I oppose lengthening the reporting period as a retail investor. The quarterly reporting period helps retail investors close the gap with powerful institutional investors by giving them frequent access to interim financial statements and managements discussion of results.

Anonymous — May 31, 2026
Subject: Feedback on S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Why change the time frame? Who does it really benefit? It can allow waste, fraud and abuse to go undetected for a much longer period. Isn't the present administration all about combatting these infractions?

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am against the proposed SEC change to half yearly reporting. We need more transparency and accountability with company management, not less. I understand the short term vs long term arguments, but in this day and age it is important to keep investors, especially retail investors like me, informed of market pressures and company performance, news and results, not less informed, for several reasons, including deterring fraud. Please take my thoughts into consideration,

Sent from my iPad

Anonymous — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Ridiculous - example of fraud and insider trading everywhere and you’re trying to make it EASIER to mislead investors, the public, and the governing bodies who are supposed to be preventing this, not enabling it.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Absolutely ridiculous idea. As if insider trading u see the current administration isn’t bad enough, let’s find another way screw over the little guy. I can’t believe this even requires discussion.

Sent from my iPhone

Billy Welch — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 comment From: Billy Welch Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I seen all the key points was already made on the page, and it's like this, simple and put. Who in they right mind would go bet on a basketball game and you can't see the results until halftime? That's absurd you are going to have the little guys back in the blind. What for? To try to gain back the momentum that people "small investors" have gained now that we are learning and mastering the market.

BJ Mitchell — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting From: BJ Mitchell Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Do not lower the reporting requirements. I'm a Technology Analyst and understand how things can go wrong in days, let alone half a year. As a stockholder, this could wipe out my gains. The companies can deal with the current regulations, just as they have for decades. Do not lower the bar.

BJ Mitchell,
Technology Analyst

BJ Mitchell
RenaissanceToday
RenaissanceToday is a minority/female owned company specializing in solutions for clients' technology challenges.
Sent from my iPhone Pro Max 17

Brandon Mitchell — May 31, 2026
Subject: Regarding S7-2026-15 From: Brandon Mitchell Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Let's not open a window for fraud and insider trading. Do not change the reporting requirements. The way Wall Street acts to reports is up to them. Do not change reporting cadences

Sent from my iPhone

Chayce Horton — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Chayce Horton Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Quarterly review is part of the foundation of well-informed and therefore well-functioning public capital markets. The operational benefits of this change to corporations does not outweigh the detriment to the overall allocating public.

Sent from my iPhone

Christina Anne Burnham — May 31, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christina Anne Burnham I urge you to reject S7-2026-15. This is bad for investors and bad for the country. Please do what's right for people and investors and for the market itself to stat healthy.

Christopher Janik — May 31, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Janik Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am opposed to the change to six month reporting primarily due to it providing a greater opportunity for insiders to trade and benefit from it. Perhaps the SEC should spend its time on trying to reduce insider trading, both by corporate insiders and politicians. I suggest all Federal office holders be required to place their investments in trusts over which they have no direct control regarding investment decisions.

Christopher Janik

Christopher Kortlever — May 31, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Kortlever Affiliation: May 31, 2026 If this proposal passes, it would be an egregious act against the shareholder not privy to the inner workings or financial standing of a company. I implore you not to allow such an act to take place.

Christopher Kortlever

Christopher Smith — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Smith Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Keep it as Is, to Sniff out Fraud!!!! I Lost Money in The 2008 Debacle. What is NEXT??

Dan Downer — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Dan Downer Affiliation: May 31, 2026 This is an absolutely insane rule. Companies opening the books once a quarter is already you little. Making it 1/2 a year would allow companies to do fleece investors in new ways. Maybe the rule should be earnings resports once a week?

- Dan Downer
[REDACTED]

Edward Delana — May 31, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Edward Delana Expressing strident opposition to this change. I rely on these specific quarterly reports in decision making for significant retirement accounts and strategies. Reduced transparency in accounting and reporting is unfavorable to average investors. Reduced accounting, filing, and oversight costs will accrue to the companies and management who adopt the new standards, rather than to the investors and owners. Opportunities to hide the ball on actual facts for periods lasting twice as long will permit unethical organizations to harm investors and the economy in both quantity and quality.

Eric Patterson — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Eric Patterson Affiliation: May 31, 2026 To whom it may concern,
I am against SEC rule Rule S7-2026-15, changing companies responsibility of reporting their accounting books to the SEC only twice a year.

A lot can go wrong in half a year. Failed product launches, ballooning debt, lawsuits, vanishing customers. Today the law forces companies to surface that information every quarter. Under the new rule, they can sit on it for six months at a stretch. Plenty of time for insiders to quietly sell their shares before the bad news tanks the stock.

There will be more time for fraud to grow.
Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it.

The framing is voluntary, but the dynamics aren't. Once large companies start filing twice a year, smaller competitors face pressure to follow. They can't justify "more compliance than the bigger guy." Investor expectations adjust downward. What started as a choice quietly becomes the new normal. Almost no rule like this stays optional for long.

The supposed savings are tiny, and they don't help anyone.
Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on you, the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad trade for ordinary investors.

Based on these facts, I recommend the SEC omit Rule S7-2026-15.

E. Patterson

Fred Boll — May 31, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Fred Boll Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Allowing companies to only report in 6 month intervals would be a bad decision and would lead to a loss of confidence in the market. Already there is too much insider trading, this would make it worse

Sent from my iPhone

Gary Boni — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Gary Boni Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Please do not put this rule into effect it reeks of insider advantage

Gary Boni

Harp — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 comment From: Harp Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Quarterly reporting forces business to keep up with financials and transperancy. Removing that requirement will create more opportunities for fraud and keep investors blind to the companies actual situation. Quarters can change so drastically and cash flow can be manipulate more without quarterly reporting.

Ms. Harp

Henry Han — May 31, 2026
Subject: Feedback on S7-2026-15 From: Henry Han Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am against Rule S7-2026-15. Allowing companies to hide their financial health for 6 months at time to the public will be disastrous.

Huy H. — May 31, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Huy H. Taking away quarterly earnings would take a way my faith in the market. It is a huge advantage to insiders and a great disservice to investors. These are publicly traded companies, we need more transparency, not less!

Jackie Callahan — May 31, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jackie Callahan Quarterly reports are a big help to individual investors since they must be audited and signed by the company. It would be a travesty to not require them.

Jarrett Homan — May 31, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jarrett Homan Dear Commissioners, I strongly oppose proposed rule S7-2026-15, which allows companies the option to report their finances semiannually instead of quarterly. As a retail investor, I rely on frequent, quarterly updates to make informed decisions for both my personal and retirement investment accounts. Halving our access to this information threatens market transparency. This rule gives corporate insiders an unfair advantage. Six months of silence provides executives ample time to quietly sell their stock before the public discovers bad news. Furthermore, doubling the time between reports helps bad actors conceal financial ruin, whereas quarterly audits expose problems early and prevent fraud from festering. While proponents claim this rule reduces corporate paperwork, retail investors pay the actual price by navigating the market blind. Even if the SEC labels this change voluntary, opaque reporting will quickly become the new normal. Once major companies adopt semiannual reporting, others will inevitably follow suit. We know this system fails because international attempts have already caused severe stock volatility and massive frauds, forcing many countries to return to the quarterly standard. The SEC exists to protect investors, not to help companies conceal their performance. Please defend market transparency and maintain the quarterly reporting standard. Very Respectfully, Jarrett Homan

---

Jean Psmith — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Jean Psmith Affiliation: May 31, 2026 A six month dark period for reporting is insanity, criminal, in fact. Allowing companies to hide their bad numbers whilst continuing to offer shares to the public is the proverbial “buying a pig in a poke” and no sane investor with even a basic understanding of Wall Street operations, would go near trades of these companies.

This action would absolutely chill our stock market. Serious investors will turn their backs on US companies. Our economy would be further discredited and degraded by this corruption.

Jeff Laufenberg — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Laufenberg Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am an IT Risk Advisor for a publicly traded bank in NC. If the SEC allows companies to file publicly every 6 months, the only thing that would accomplish is enabling corporate insiders and executives to profit off of less frequent visibility into their operations and financial performance. It's 100% predictable, and it's 1000% foolish.

Thank you,
Jeff Laufenberg

Jeff Wickizer — May 31, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Wickizer Affiliation: May 31, 2026 There no world in which this will be a good thing. This is not a world standard and everywhere you see biannual reporting you will find fraud but hey thats the United States way, right. Well at least under a republican administration.

Jeremy — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 comment From: 266 Jeremy Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I do not support this and I do not think this should be the law

Sent from my phone

Jim Casey — May 31, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: Jim Casey Affiliation: May 31, 2026 The proposal has unbalance costs and benefits. The small cost benefit of reduced reporting that each reporting company would receive would be more than offset by the material reduction in public disclosure of information. This will harm US stock exchanges in that the public information will become less trustworthy, and companies will use other markets for equity over time. Further, companies which wish to avoid public disclosure rules already have an option, and one that some companies have used: take the company private. In that case, there are no public reporting obligations of earnings, costs, and most other financial information.

Jim Dionne — May 31, 2026
Subject: Regarding S7-2026-15 From: Jim Dionne Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Don't let this happen! Transparency is critical

---

Jim Roberts — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: Jim Roberts Affiliation: May 31, 2026 We need a good playing field. Retain quarterly reporting. One half on the playing field and the remaining on the sandlots. Grossly unfair.

John Peltier — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: John Peltier Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am writing to oppose the proposed semiannual reporting rule. Quarterly reports prevent fraud from compounding over months.

Jordan Porter — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 comment From: Jordan Porter Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Please do not change to semiannual reporting. It's unclear why this is even being considered. Quarterly reporting has worked well for decades. For public investing you want as much transparency into company financials as you can get, and semiannual reporting is not that

---

Josh Seifferlein — May 31, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Josh Seifferlein Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Dear Sir or Madam,

My name is Josh, and I'm CIO for a small tech startup based in Phoenix.

I am writing in opposition to the proposed shift to semiannual reporting. Retail investors deserve the same access to information as Wall Street. There should be no difference between the two.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sent from my iPhone

Juan Bran, Site Reliability Engineer — May 31, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Juan Bran This is lunacy. Please reject the proposed reduction in reporting frequency.

Justin Bull — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: Justin Bull Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am writing to express my opposition to the proposed semiannual reporting rule. Quarterly reporting protects retail investors. This proposal encourages corporate fraud. There is no upside to such a proposal.

Sent from my iPhone

Karen Taylor — May 31, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: Karen Taylor Affiliation: May 31, 2026 For decades, one of the strengths of U.S. public markets has been the idea that a retiree with 100 shares and a pension fund with 10 million shares receive the same required financial information at roughly the same time. What evidence shows that quarterly reporting is causing measurable harm, and what evidence shows that reducing reporting frequency will not increase the informational advantage already enjoyed by sophisticated market participants?

Karen S. Taylor, Ed.S

L. A. Best — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: L. A. Best Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I understand the SEC has proposed allowing the public companies to file financial reports twice a year instead of quarterly. I have been a member of an Investment Club for 31 years and we update our stock reports quarterly, based on the quarterly reports. We use these reports to decide which stock/stocks we want to invest in or which stocks we may want to sell. By dropping our information down to twice a year, you would really impact our decision making when we purchase and or sell stocks. We need current information to make informed decisions. We would loose over half of the reviewed, certified financial filings annually if this is approved. It is my understanding that currently, the 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. As I said before, we need good, current information to make good investing decisions, as a small investor, I request that you DO NOT approve this proposal.

Thank you,

Levester Best
[REDACTED]

Laura — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15. NO! From: Laura Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Do not adopt the proposed semiannual reporting rule. The SEC should be increasing disclosure, not reducing it.

You literally are saying you agree with corporate greed and corruption if you vote Yes.

You are telling the world you have no ethics. It’s another destabilizing choice that will dismantle America. Stop.

Liam Bruce — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Liam Bruce Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Liam Bruce, licensed commercial HVAC technician. Please DO NOT change the reporting period. Changing to semi annual will not realistically change the goals of short sighted business management. It will, however, greatly increase the ability of those who are not dealing in good faith to hide their actions. This will cause their actions to have even further reaching consequences.

LLC Serene Distribution — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: LLC Serene Distribution Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Hello, my name is Lawrence Schaffer II from Tennessee and I am writing you to say that as a small business owner I think this change to six month filings is an atrocity. Public companies should absolutely need to continue filing quarterly so that the public is protected from losses in their stock portfolios that they rely on for retirement. Do the right thing.

Luis Rengifo — May 31, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Luis Rengifo Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am writing to express my opposition to the proposal to drop Form 10-Q. Investors need timely information to make sound decisions.

Lynda Seymour — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Lynda Seymour Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Lynda Seymour
Associate Director, Clinical Data Manager
Dear sir or madame,
Please do not allow companies a black out window of six months. Doing so could allow companies a six month period of dishonesty and truth hiding, which in the end would not hurt the wealthy, but could cause great financial harm to the countries worker bees, by them not knowing an Asian hornet has infiltrated the nest. A black out period could cause a retired person the loss of much of their retirement account, if not all.
There is no gain for the working class in doing this, however there may be a great gain for a company to hide behind the blackout curtain.
Please also think about how this could be disruptive to worker bees, and how much of a nest can be destroyed by a one Asian hornet.
Thank you for your time.
Lynda Seymour

Lynda Seymour
Laconia, NH 03246
Lynda.Seymour59@gmail.com

Martijn Vels — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Martijn Vels Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Please withdraw the semiannual reporting proposal. It will hurt regular investors, increase risks and not be good for anyone but insider trading.

Matthew Bernardo — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Bernardo Affiliation: May 31, 2026 This is not good for consumers and retirement savers and could harm those without deep knowledge of a businesses filings. A public company has a right to inform its investors in a timely and transparent manner to prevent insiders from slowly dumping stock during a longer blackout from public filings.

Matt B
Medical Device Sales

Sent from my iPhone

Michael Giraldo — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Michael Giraldo Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I'm a retail investor, and I do not support moving public companies away from quarterly reporting.

Quarterly reports matter because ordinary investors do not have the same access as executives, insiders, lawyers, bankers, or large institutions. If companies can wait six months between reports, regular people are the ones left guessing.

I understand the argument that companies want less reporting burden, but the cost of less transparency falls on investors like me. My retirement savings, ETFs, and long-term investments depend on timely public information. Six months is too long for a company to go dark.

This should not be optional either. Once some companies move to semiannual reporting, others will feel pressure to follow. That means less information becomes the new standard.

Please keep quarterly reporting in place.

Michael McIntosh — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on file no. S7-2026-15 From: Michael McIntosh Affiliation: May 31, 2026 By negating the 3-month exercise that has gone on since... I don't know when, a very long time, the SEC, along with individuals, departments and other agencies provide the rich AND their minions another means to increase their wealth leaving those NOT rich or their minion AGAIN high and dry while their main worry continues to be 'how to get by until the next paycheck.' But Judgment Day is coming when the Lord will remember the SEC and their minions for assisting the prideful, arrogant and controlling rich; doing absolutely nothing for the poor & needy. I know that is not your mission, but maybe the prideful, arrogant and controlling government could help the poor & needy. But that cannot happen, they're too busy finding means to help the rich get richer. We've become another Rome ready for destruction. Sincerely, R Michael McIntosh, Boise, ID

Michael Vangeli — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Michael Vangeli Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Quit working for the insiders. Public companies need to report results quarterly as a minimum.

Thanks,

Michael Vangeli, P.E.

Sent from my iPad

Michael Wayland — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting From: Michael Wayland Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I write in opposition to the proposed reduction in reporting frequency. Quarterly reporting protects retail investors. I listen to the quarterly earnings calls and read many of the reports for the clients I'm a shareholder in and it helps inform me about my investments. I would prefer not to have less visibility into the companies I owe if others will be able to know and trade on that non public information.

If you do this then all controlled officer's shares should not be tradeable for any reason outside of a 7 day window immediately following the public earnings release.

- H. Michael Wayland

-H Michael Wayland

Mike Lucas — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting From: Mike Lucas Affiliation: May 31, 2026 As an active investor, my broker and I need the latest most accurate info on a potential buy or sell. A six month informational black out puts all market investors at a distinct disadvantage. Do not allow companies to cover up financial information and make them report quarterly. Mike Lucas, retired

---

Mitch Hughes — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Mitch Hughes Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I'd -much- rather you force all public companies to expose their financials weekly via a web page, or monthly. Extending their exposure serves only laziness.

Please don’t accede to -any- reduction of responsibilities.

Please don’t allow any more information or behaviors to be hidden: expose everything, always.

It will work fine. It doesn’t have to be the way it was done in other times.

Mitch Hughes

Mohit Deopujari — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Mohit Deopujari Affiliation: May 31, 2026 My name is Mohit Deopujari and I am an AI Software Engineer. I am writing to oppose the semiannual reporting proposal. Quarterly reports are a check on management accountability.

Neha Garg — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Neha Garg Affiliation: May 31, 2026
Reporting needs to be kept quarterly otherwise you may see a total market crash!

Neha

Nick McCally — May 31, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Nick McCally Affiliation: May 31, 2026
I write in opposition to the move to semiannual reporting. This is extremely concerning for our economy and as an investor that we could easily be defrauded.

Nickolas D McCally

(202) 262-2077

nickmccally.com

Sent from Proton Mail for iOS.

Nicole Arnold — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Nicole Arnold Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I oppose the semiannual reporting proposal. Quarterly reporting protects retail investors. This will only benefit insiders.

Nicole - Merchandising Strategist

Pramod Hansdak — May 31, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Pramod Hansdak Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Please continue to have public companies publish their financial results every three months as at present. Thank you.
From a Federal Retiree.

Sent from my iPad

Rachel E. Hanson — May 31, 2026
Subject: My comment on S7-2026-15 From: Rachel E. Hanson Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I urge you to reject the proposed semiannual reporting rule. Public capital is a privilege, and quarterly disclosure is the price of that privilege. This proposal is deceptive!

Rich Rasulis Jr. — May 31, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Rich Rasulis Jr Affiliation: May 31, 2026 This is an absurd proposal for protecting the investor and is counter to mission objectives of the SEC of insuring a secure environment for prudent investing. A six month window for reporting requirements is as reckless as allowing companies to self-regulate their own derivatives.

Sent from my iPhone

Rodrigo Valiente — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment - semiannual for insiders to sell shares then From: Rodrigo Valiente Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Please do not adopt this proposal. I believe it will benefit insiders more than anyone else. Very unfair to us investors. And if you do indeed apply it, then in parallel, enforce that insiders can only sell company stock twice a year, same with politicians, after earnings are out. If we are blind for that long, they should too be locked-in as well. Fair game to everyone.

Roy Johnaon — May 31, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Roy Johnaon I oppose changing the reporting requirement from quarterly. Having timely, accurate information for investors is key to keeping US markets the most competitive in the world. I'm retired and carefully select stocks based on fundamentals and the quarterly reports.

S — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment for S7-2026-15 From: S Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am asking you to reject the proposed Form 10-S. The SEC was created to ensure full and fair disclosure.

Sara Brantley — May 31, 2026
Subject: RE: S7-2026-15 From: Sara Brantley Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Sounds cool

---

Shane & Jamie Trez — May 31, 2026
Subject: RE: S7-2026-15 From: Shane & Jamie Trez Affiliation: May 31, 2026 In taking action upon the proposed Rule S7-2026-15. This day resides 05-30-2026 @07:13 p.m. CST. Is it NOT the idea to be as transparent as possible! Why wouldn't the SEC want to CYA? They set the rules for everyone!
Does the SEC need money?

Are they trying to use the Walmart strategy?
Making their everyday customers into convicted felons! I mean are they for-profit prisons or does this have to do with the empty abandoned buildings that were recently purchased by ICE

HAPPENED TO BE SENATE SEATS PROPERTIES PURCHASED $148 MILLION TIMES WHAT THEY VALUE OF THE BUILDING WAS.

Oops sorry about the caps!Ol

I bet the number is down on people that are proud to be an American. If it was ever up? Ty for your attention, JT

Shawn Grona — May 31, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Shawn Grona I oppose the proposal for semi annual reporting this reduces transparency and may increase volatility

---

Sherif Bates — May 31, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Sherif Bates Affiliation: May 31, 2026 How will know if my investments match my risk appetite? This is no longer an efficient mark and is now moving towards corruption. It’s a further shift in wealth towards the ultra wealthy.

Thank you,

Sherif

Sent from my iPhone. Please excuse any typps

Sophie Latterno — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on file no. S7-2026-15 From: Sophie Latterno Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am about to retire, and my primary source of income will be my 401k. I'm already worried about the viability of my retirement income. This change will benefit criminals and unethical insiders at the expense of regular investors.

Tim Bianchi — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment for S7-2026-15 From: Tbianchi Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Tim Bianchi
As a semi retired person I rely on my investments. This would hurt private investors and promote insider trading.Please stop this abomination!

Thank you Tim Bianchi

Tim Klein — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Tim Klein Affiliation: May 31, 2026 This proposed rule will only allow more insider trading. This cannot happen. We need more fair rules for regular investors.

Sent from my iPhone

Tom Bargsley — May 31, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: Tom Bargsley Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am opposed to the SEC proposal to end quarterly filings for public companies. Investors need requent, accurate information to make decisions. The speed of change in the world demands more not less financial disclosure. As a former employee of public companies and consult to public companies, non-insiders should be provided protection that only SEC oversight brings. Respectfully,

Tom Bargsley, CPA
Tommy J Bargsley CPA LLC

Tom Bromaeus — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Tom Bromaeus Affiliation: May 31, 2026 This is another move to punish retail investors. Voters will not approve of this

Sent from my iPhone

Troy Winfrey — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on file no. S7-2026-15 From: Troy Winfrey Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Quarterly reporting is one of the shared principles that makes the market worth the risk of participation. Risk is OK. Rigged is not.

Troy Winfrey
Founder, Sarissa Consulting

Vern Horstman — May 31, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: Vern Horstman Affiliation: May 31, 2026 Keep it as transparent
As possible. Do let the crooks hide.

Sent from my iPad

Virginia R. Stark — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 public comment From: Virginia R. Stark Affiliation: May 31, 2026 To Whom it may concern,
Please continue quarterly reporting by public companies; every six months is just too infrequent for investors to be able to react, in a timely fashion, to trends in the market. In addition, any kind of illegal activity can go unnoticed for far too long given a six month spacing. Please leave the system as is; we like it this way. - Virginia Stark Retired R.N.

Sent from my Galaxy

VJ Rife — May 31, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: VJ Rife Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I do not support a 6 month investor reporting structure for the following reasons. (1) Data changes too frequently as it is. I rely on quarterly information to make decisions, (2) longer gaps create an unfair advantage for corporate insiders, (3) "optional" doesn't fix the problem because companies that opt in are often the ones whose investors most need frequent updates, (4) the savings to companies aren't worth the cost to me.

Sent from my Galaxy

William Lopez — May 31, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: William Lopez Affiliation: May 31, 2026 William Alfred Lopez Here.
I'm a Semi Retired Chaplen living on a very small income. Please do not close my accessibility to all that is happening on Wall Street.

Zackery Alvarez — May 31, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Zackery Alvarez Affiliation: May 31, 2026 I am for rejecting Rule S7-2026-15. As well as large companies and investors should mention their trades weekly not months after it-s been done. They already have insider trading information.

Sent from my iPhone

Anonymous — May 30, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 30, 2026 There no world in which this will be a good thing. This is not a world standard and everywhere you see biannual reporting you will find fraud but hey thats the United States way, right. Well at least under a republican administration.

Anonymous — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Are you all out of your minds?? Why is this terrible idea even being proposed? NO!!!

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Anonymous — May 30, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 30, 2026 As an equity compensation expert, I appreciate SEC filing obligations, as they protect American investors and demand some accountability and clarity for public company leaders. Reducing visibility will surely hurt the American investing public. You simply cannot assume individuals will act in the best interest of their countrymen with their personal compensation on the line, as it often is with public company leaders and SEC filings. Thank you for protecting Americans by keeping the reporting quarterly.

_____
Scott Miller

Anonymous — May 30, 2026
Subject: Feedback on S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I am against the semiannual reporting proposal. Quarterly reporting has the purpose of informing shareholders of the health of a public company and in today's fast moving world delaying reporting can devastate shareholders investment assets of investors of all ages.
Thank you for the opportunity given to comment on this detrimental for investors proposal

---

Anonymous — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Please reject Rule S7-2026-15. The SEC was created to ensure full and fair disclosure. A 3 month requirement is not too burdensome. 6 months would allow longer grifts.

Archer Petersen — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Archer Petersen Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I am writing in opposition to the proposed Form 10-S. Accountability and transparency should be a priority. Do not inadvertently weaken our economy in favor of institutional bad actors.

Bob Patton — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Bob Patton I believe that the SEC should continue to require quarterly reports. Investors depend on them to know how their company is doing and a lot can change in 6 months.

Charles Dignazio — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Charles Dignazio Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I am not using the quarterly reports at the moment but when I was investing the reports kept me knowing what was happening to the stocks and bonds I had invested in and if I had to make changes I could make the changes sooner than six months later. Please continue to release the reports every three months if you allow longer reporting times it will seem like the stocks and bonds companies are hiding their losses and their profits and any mistakes they may have made and it will be harder to hold the companies accountable for their actions.

Charles Nestell — May 30, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Charles Nestell Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I urge you to reject the proposed reduction in reporting frequency. Less reporting means more insider trading opportunities.

Cherry Nichols — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment for S7-2026-15 From: Cherry Nichols Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Keep the quarterly oversight. It is not appropriate to stop oversight to satisfy executives that want to hide illegal or inappropriate behavior.

Clayton Braden — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on file no. S7-2026-15 From: Clayton Braden Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Hello,

I urge you to please KEEP quarterly earnings and am AGAINST this new policy of semi-annual earnings. As a retail trader, transparency is key. We don't get enough of it compared to insiders and large investors, and therefore are at a disadvantage. This rule simply provides less transparency and accountability for a company.

Thanks,
Clayton

Get Outlook for iOS

Cody Cole — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Cody Cole Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I oppose S7-2026-15. Allowing corporations to reduce reporting could allow malfeasance to go undetected for longer periods of time and hide problems within the business. Oppose this. Cody
Cole Engineer

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Dave Potter — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: Dave Potter Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Small investors managing our own retirement accounts continue to need historically furnished quarterly financial reports from companies. This provides us minimal company knowledge and protection from losing our money, and keeping cap gains taxes flowing to US Treasury.

Elizabeth Haines — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Haines I would like to voice my objection to S7-2026-15. My investment information is much more current if the SEC reports are quarterly . I would like the SEC to continue it's current quarterly system of reporting company information.

Ethel Brown, Better Investing — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ethel Brown As an individual invested the quarterly reports are very important to me. I watch my holdings carefully and would hate to only get reports twice a year. Some companies I hold very large investments in.

James R Windgassen, Consulting Engineer, Norrhrop Grumman — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: James R Windgassen Quarterly reporting is essential for investors. Removing quarterly reporting requirements will discourage individual investors from investing in publicly traded securities and drive them towards alternative assets. This will damage publicly traded markets.

Janki McDermott — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Janki McDermott I am opposed to the proposal to drop Form 10-Q. This is unethical, sketchy, and should be illegal. The fact that it's being considered is a huge cause for concern for the ordinary investor.

Joe Y — May 30, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Joe Y Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I oppose this rule because it will put retail investors at a significant disadvantage.

Sent from my iPhone

John Chu — May 30, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: John Chu Affiliation: May 30, 2026 More information for investors is critical. Less timely information is BAD.

John Greco — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: John Greco Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I am writing to express my opposition to S7-2026-15. Less disclosure means slower price discovery.

Sent from my iPhone

John Yopps — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: John Yopps Affiliation: May 30, 2026 RETIRED!, This is a terrible idea. I'm retired and cannot afford to wait 6 months for information to make portfolio changes. Why on earth would anyone want to do this? Has Enron taught us nothing?

- john

Kem Patterson — May 30, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Kem Patterson Affiliation: May 30, 2026 How is only semi-annual reporting a good thing?? Keep the quarterly reporting!!

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer

Ken Berg — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: ken berg Affiliation: May 30, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission:

I am submitting this comment regarding File No. S7-2026-15, the Commission's proposal concerning semiannual reporting by public companies.
I respectfully oppose any rule change that would allow public companies to replace quarterly reporting with semiannual reporting.

Regular quarterly reporting is an important part of the transparency that makes U.S. public markets trustworthy. Investors rely on Form 10-Q reports to understand a company's financial condition, operating results, liquidity, risks, and business trends throughout the year. Reducing required reporting from four times per year to two times per year would leave investors with less timely information and longer periods of uncertainty.
This change would especially harm ordinary retail investors. Large institutions may have greater access to management, private research, alternative data, and market intelligence. Retail investors, by contrast, rely heavily on public disclosures filed with the SEC. If companies are allowed to report less often, the information gap between sophisticated market participants and the general investing public will grow.
Form 8-K filings are not an adequate substitute for quarterly reports. Current reports may disclose certain material events, but they do not provide the full financial statements, management discussion, liquidity analysis, and broader context that investors receive in a Form 10-Q. Investors need consistent, standardized reporting, not a patchwork of event-based disclosures.
Optional semiannual reporting would also make it harder to compare companies. If some companies continue to report quarterly while others report only twice a year, investors will have less consistent information across industries and peer groups. This would reduce comparability and could make markets less efficient.
I understand concerns that quarterly reporting can contribute to short-term thinking. However, reducing transparency is not the right solution. Long-term investing is supported by better information, not less information. Investors can evaluate long-term strategy more effectively when they have regular, reliable updates about a company's actual performance.
The SEC's mission includes protecting investors, maintaining fair and efficient markets, and facilitating capital formation. Mandatory quarterly reporting supports those goals. Allowing companies to provide less frequent financial disclosure would weaken investor protection and reduce confidence in the fairness of the market.
For these reasons, I urge the Commission not to adopt the proposed semiannual reporting rule. Public companies should continue to be required to file quarterly reports so that all investors have timely, consistent, and comparable information.

Respectfully submitted,

Ken

Mark Halverson — May 30, 2026
Subject: Re: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Mark Halverson Affiliation: May 30, 2026 We need sufficient time to ensure a (supposed) level field.

Sent from Mark's i14

Michael George, Engineer — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael George To the Securities and Exchange Commission: I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposal allowing public companies to transition from quarterly to semiannual financial reporting. Reducing mandatory disclosures to a six-month cadence severely harms retail investors by exacerbating information asymmetry and increasing market volatility. While institutional firms possess the resources to procure alternative data and conduct private channel checks, everyday investors rely entirely on the standardized, verified data found in Form 10-Q filings. Without these 90-day updates, public market data will become rapidly stale, leaving retail investors blind to operational shifts and vulnerable to severe, unpriced stock shocks when semiannual reports are finally released. Furthermore, stretching the reporting window to 180 days creates a dangerous information vacuum that exponentially increases the risk of insider trading. History, including the high-profile controversies during the Trump administration where individuals used private pandemic briefings to restructure portfolios ahead of the public, demonstrates that individuals with asymmetric access to non-public data will exploit it. Moving to a semiannual schedule lengthens the timeline during which corporate insiders hold material, non-public information, undermining decades of progress in market transparency. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal and maintain the quarterly reporting framework that ensures a fair and level playing field for all market participants.

Michael H Kane — May 30, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: michael h kane Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Not interested

---

Omar Ziadeh — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment for S7-2026-15 From: omar ziadeh Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I write in opposition to the semiannual reporting proposal. The SEC was created to ensure full and fair disclosure. Reducing reporting is a net negative for all investors.

Omar Ziadeh - Software Engineer

Sent from my Galaxy

Paul Knife — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Paul Knife Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I oppose S7-2026-15. Average investors should not be kept in the dark. We need transparency.

Portia Catania — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Portia Catania I want quarterly reports! Twice a year is not enough.

Richard Biffl — May 30, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Richard Biffl As an individual investor, I do not have a staff of analysts informing me about corporations. I get my info from a variety of sources, but the PRIMARY SOURCES of information are the corporation's public filings with the SEC. The more recent a financial report, the more confident I can feel about investing in the business. Quarterly filing is not excessively burdensome. It's routine. A company's accountant can produce the spreadsheets with a few mouse clicks. With boilerplate or generated text, a narrative is simple to add. It's clear to me that the supposed "burden" of quarterly reports is a pretext for the real motive behind this initiative, which is to increase INFORMATION DISPARITY and the edge that insiders hold over public investors like me. Public corporations should maximize their disclosures. In this era of routine automation, any change in the required report schedule should make reports more frequent, such as monthly. A fair and efficient market needs frequent and timely disclosures to the public. Remember, we OWN those corporations, and we deserve to know how they're doing!

Richard Leonard, Two Rivers Investment Group — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Richard Leonard Individual investors make decisions about the performance of public companies for investment purposes. The loss of quarterly reporting raises the risk threshold for me as an investor. I urge you to disapprove the proposal to reduce the frequency of quarterly reporting.

Robert Shaw, Retired — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robert Shaw I rely on the quarterly reports to track and confirm the companies I invest in are staying on track. A lot can happen in 3 months and keeping track of how well management is doing is very important. A lot can go wrong in 3 months and even more could go wrong in 6 months. Please do not change the reporting period as my ability to track management performance will be impaired. Robert Shaw

---

Robert Ulm — May 30, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 feedback From: Robert Ulm Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I’m I am writing in opposition to the new SEC rule. Information asymmetry harms ordinary investors most. Less reporting means more insider trading opportunities. Don't weaken our markets.

Sent from my iPhone

S R — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: S R Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Please continue to require quarterly reporting, as has been done for half a century. Every six months is way too long. Situations and competition makes major changes faster and faster these days.

Saul Rosenberg, retired.

Samuel Neves — May 30, 2026
Subject: RE: S7-2026-15 From: Samuel Neves Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Quarterly reporting is essential for investors to understand the health and direction of publicly traded companies, now more than ever.

Sent from my iPhone

Susan Bahr, BetterInvesting — May 30, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Susan Bahr For the ability to effectively monitor public companies, Quarterly reporting is the best tool. With AI tools this should present a hardship to these companies.

Todd Mathews — May 30, 2026
Subject: Feedback on S7-2026-15 From: Todd Mathews Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I oppose S7-2026-15. Removing quarterly reports tilts the playing field toward institutions. I personally feel the SEC should increase the reporting to once every two months. From a small investor.

Will Lyons — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Will Lyons Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Don't reduce the amount of information companies regularly make public. That will make investment decisions harder for honest investors to make and increase pressure for certain types of professional investors to get information through unofficial/illegal channels.

William Michael Cunningham — May 30, 2026
Subject: Comment on file no. S7-2026-15 From: William Michael Cunningham Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Will lead to another financial crisis.

Thriving As a Minority-Owned Business in Corporate America. https://link.springer.com/book/10.1007/978-1-4842-7240-4

The JOBS Act: Crowdfunding for Small Businesses and Startups
https://link.springer.com/book/10.1007/978-1-4842-2409-0
LinkedIn: https://www.linkedin.com/company/creativeinvestmentresearch/

202-455-0430

"Evil is not driven out, but crowded out...through the expulsive power of something good. " MLK

This communication (including all pages in this email and any attached document) are for the sole use of the intended recipient and may contain confidential information. Unauthorized use, distribution, disclosure or any action taken or omitted to be taken in reliance on this document is prohibited, and may be unlawful. By inadvertent disclosure of this document Creative Investment Research and William Michael Cunningham do not waive confidentiality privilege with respect hereto. This writing/publication is a creative work fully protected by all applicable copyright laws, as well as by misappropriation, trade secret, unfair competition and other applicable laws. No copyright is claimed in the text of statutes, regulations, and any excerpts from others' reports or articles quoted within this work. Copyright©2026 by William Michael Cunningham and Creative Investment Research. All rights reserved – including the right to reproduce in whole or in part in any form.

Alejandro Perez — May 29, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Alejandro Perez Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Dear SEC Staff,
I urge the Commission to withdraw S7-2026-15. Ko

Alexandra Harmon-Threatt — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Alexandra Harmon-Threatt I am deeply concerned about reducing the reporting requirements to the SEC. This could increase risk to investors by not getting timely updates on financial decisions and actions and standings in companies. I strongly oppose this action.

Angela Correa — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Angela Correa Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Dear Chairman and Commissioners,
Quarterly reports are essential to market integrity.

Angelo Genco — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Angelo Genco I use the 10-Q filings to determine the current value of investing in a company and compare other quarterly data verses their peers. I want them retained as without this type of financial information it will be difficult to make these decisions to buy or sell my stocks. Providing less data to investors when AI companies are broadly collecting more data is counter intuitive. Reporting should rather increase to every sixty days to provide investor more timely financial data.

Anonymous — May 29, 2026
Subject: Please consider: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Good afternoon: Please do not adopt the elimination of quarterly reporting. Optional reporting frequency means the strongest companies stay quarterly and the weakest opt out.

Anonymous — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Retired Eliminating quarterly statements is a crazy idea. It would eliminate half the data points from curves we use to evaluate our investments and make the analysis of companies much less accurate, thus increasing the risk of investing. Financial statements are essential to understand a company; its business model, its consistency, its risks, the ability to recognize and solve the problems it faces, its financial strength and many more issues. It is the most reliable method we have for determining the risks of investing in stocks. Quarterly statements are especially important when studying new investments and young companies. Eliminating Quarterly statements would make investing riskier and more difficult to follow companies, especially those companies owned for a short time.

Benigno Leon — May 29, 2026
Subject: Opposition to S7-2026-15 From: Benigno Leon Affiliation: May 29, 2026 To the SEC Rulemaking Office,
I am against this reduction in disclosure frequency.

Enviado desde mi iPhone

Beulah — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment letter on S7-2026-15 From: Beulah Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Dear Chairman and Commissioners,
The proposed rule weakens investor protection.

Bubba Trammell — May 29, 2026
Subject: comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Bubba Trammell Affiliation: May 29, 2026
This proposal would harm retail investors. Hey

ChanSaimei — May 29, 2026
Subject: RE: S7-2026-15 From: ChanSaimei Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Dear Commissioners, Semiannual reporting reduces transparency.

Cindy L. Meier — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: CINDY L MEIER Are you serious...we are dealing with the worst corruption ever and SEC wants to protect itself and other corrupt entities...stop stop stop...you can't take the money with you and you taint your family forever with greed and excess...it's just unbelievable

---

Dan Gray — May 29, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: Dan Gray Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I respectfully oppose the proposed Form 10-S. Quarterly reporting protects retail investors.

Dan T. — May 29, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Dan T Affiliation: May 30, 2026 I am against the proposed Form 10-S. Quarterly reporting preserves timely transparency, giving investors and regulators a frequent, unfiltered view of a company's operational health before small problems become large ones. It also strengthens market discipline by reducing the information gaps that can lead to volatility, speculation, or mispricing. Finally, quarterly cadence enforces consistent management accountability, ensuring leadership decisions are evaluated in real time rather than hidden within six-month reporting windows.

Daniel M. Brunk — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Daniel M Brunk Should keep reporting with no 6 month backout.

Diland Funez — May 29, 2026
Subject: Submission regarding S7-2026-15 From: Diland Funez Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Please vote against the proposed rule.

Dondrick Hooks — May 29, 2026
Subject: Vote against S7-2026-15 From: Dondrick Hooks Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Quarterly reports are essential to market integrity.

Donna Wakano - Valley Womens Investment Club, Better Investing — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Donna Wakano - Valley Womens Investment Club I have recently become aware of the SEC's intent to cut quarterly reports in half. Quarterly reports are vital to members of my investment club. We depend on standardized and accurate quarterly information to make informed group decisions. Many members are also individual investors who deem these reports as vital. Additionally, members assigned to monitor individual stocks held within our portfolio find the quarterly reports a necessary tool for club decisions. Thank you for your attention in this matter.

Drishtant Gupta — May 29, 2026
Subject: Input on S7-2026-15 From: Drishtant Gupta Affiliation: May 29, 2026 To the SEC,
I respectfully oppose Rule S7-2026-15... An information vacuum causes investors to overreact to peer-firm news as a proxy for silent firms. Thank you for considering this.

Drishtant

Eduardo Hernandez Tula — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - keep quarterly reporting From: Eduardo Hernandez Tula Affiliation: May 29, 2026 This proposal would harm retail investors.

Sent from my iPhone

Edward Dinel — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Edward Dinel UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES should corporations be permitted to release LESS data about how they are operating. The transparency of the US financial system is WHY the dollar is the reserve currency of the world, it is WHY we have the ability to recover from major disruptive events, and it is why we are where the world invests. DO NOT destroy this!!!

Eleanor K Bomar — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Eleanor K Bomar Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Dear SEC Commissioners,
This rule benefits insiders at the expense of ordinary investors.
Sincerely,
Eleanor Bomar

Eleanor K Bomar

Elizabeth Bolint — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: ELIZABETH BOLINT Working as in house counsel over many years, in several different major corporations, I have seen the human temptation of number manipulation to be very strong - because bonuses, salary and promotions are conditional on meeting certain numbers... not quality or customer satisfaction, which are harder factors to evaluate. It is a human weakness. Quarterly reporting discourages this weakness. It is better to have mechanisms that support honesty for the public, and investors, and help corporations stay fair and honest. Like traffic laws... the SEC Quarterly reporting is a mechanism that unconsciously keep life orderly and fair.

Ellen Harvey, Investment professional — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ellen Harvey Reducing the number of times public companies report earnings reduces the transparency investors have into those companies. Companies move fast and changes in their earnings and strategies needs to be visible. For example, Allbirds sold their shoe brand and pivoted from sustainable shoes to artificial intelligence. Without quarterly information investors will have no idea what is going on.

Emilia Kilpatrick — May 29, 2026
Subject: Vote against S7-2026-15 From: Emilia Kilpatrick Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Semiannual reporting reduces transparency.

Erin McBrien — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Erin McBrien I am independent investor who uses the quarterly reports to guide my investing decisions. As a successful, independent investor, I do not have access to all of the information that an institutional investment firm such as Fidelity might be able to access, so I rely on these SEC filings. I regularly use the 10-Q to provide a complete picture of the financial health of a company. Moving to semi-annual requirement will unfairly penalize individual investors as we will not have access to the same timely information as institutional investors.

Fardin Chowdhury — May 29, 2026
Subject: SEC comment: S7-2026-15 From: Fardin Chowdhury Affiliation: May 29, 2026 We need quarterly reporting, this is going to cause the next mark crash

- Banker at JPM ECM

Farryn Walker — May 29, 2026
Subject: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 - comment From: Farryn Walker Affiliation: May 29, 2026 To the Honorable Commissioners,
I am against this reduction in disclosure frequency.

Filiberto Barragan — May 29, 2026
Subject: Withdraw S7-2026-15 From: Filiberto Barragan Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Quarterly reporting must be preserved.

Enviado desde mi iPhone

Freddie Simmons — May 29, 2026
Subject: My input on S7-2026-15 From: FREDDIE SIMMONS Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Yuyyuyyyyuyjzbdjxbjxjxjxxhcjfhjfhdjxxjxjdjxjnxnxjdndkdmi write in opposition to the proposed reduction in reporting frequency.

Gary Peterson, Curizen — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Gary Peterson If it is a public company, the public needs to know legal detail about any company traded publicly to make a reason investment decision

---

George Schrems — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: George Schrems Please do not allow semiannual reporting. Make company report every 3 months. I need more current company information for investments. Also, a semiannual report allows insiders to act with a greater advantage than if reports were submitted every 3 months. Please do not allow insiders to get a greater advantage. Thank you.

Hayward Cole — May 29, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Hayward Cole Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I've been miseducated, lied to, defrauded, misrepresented; weeks to years after conception! Control & Manipulation is your only intent! I don't consent to your unfavorable change or Rule. I feel it should all be dispersed to the people, God's money is for the people not person(s) : Hayward Cole jr

Paul Atkins please contact my agent I want to speak on (The Security) I will be brief.

H.Cole

Henry Copeland — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Henry Copeland Public companies should have to continue to report their financial state every 3 months

---

Homer Hill — May 29, 2026
Subject: Concerns about S7-2026-15 From: homer hill Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Keep quarterly reporting !

Jacob Wiebe — May 29, 2026
Subject: Regarding S7-2026-15 From: Jacob Wiebe Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Please reconsider the proposed rule, and this rule directly affects the retirement security of ordinary Americans. Side with Main Street.

James Jetlife — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: James Jetlife Affiliation: May 30, 2026 To much over site.

Jeffrey Marrero — May 29, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Jeffrey Marrero Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Members of the Commission,
I am vehemently opposed to S7-2026-15. Markets thrive on information, not obscurity. Has anyone asked retail investors?

Jesus Gomez — May 29, 2026
Subject: Letter on S7-2026-15 From: Jesus Gomez Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I am vehemently opposed to the rule. Quarterly disclosure deters securities fraud. More disclosure, not less.

Jesus Olmeda — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jesus Olmeda I am submitting on behalf of My Own Household! The corrupt corporation that is America had BETTER remember the 99% REAL SOON!!!!!

Jilian Sipes — May 29, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Jilian Sipes Affiliation: May 29, 2026 https://keepitquarterly.orgMore time for fraud to grow.
Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year? Enron. WorldCom. Madoff.

Jilian Sipes, Technology Information and Web Security — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jilian Sipes https : / / keepitquarterly . orgMoreEnron . WorldCom. Madoff. More time for fraud to grow. Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year?https : / / keepitquarterly . orgMore time for fraud to grow. Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year?

JoAnna Bradley-Winchester — May 29, 2026
Subject: RE: S7-2026-15 From: JoAnna Bradley-Winchester Affiliation: May 30, 2026 Please allow transparency to continue as it is.

José Pérez Leon — May 29, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: José Pérez Leon Affiliation: May 29, 2026 To the SEC,
The proposed rule weakens investor protection.

Joseph Wagner — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Joseph Wagner I am writing to express my opposition to the Commission's proposed rule S7-2026-15, which would allow public companies to opt into semi-annual reporting in place of the current quarterly 10-Q framework. Between SEC filings, companies are free to spin facts in a way that is most advantageous for the company and its management. Quarterly reporting is one of the few mechanisms that ensures standardized, timely, and accurate financial information, according to US GAAP, is presented to all investors—large and small. Semi-annual reporting, on the other hand, would allow press releases, spin, and false narratives to drive valuations much longer, and corrections would be much steeper. Additionally, the proposed rule treats all companies equally - from a longstanding, trillion dollar brand to a new, million dollar startup. Treating such disparity equally is a fundamental flaw in approach. A better approach would have been to make this rule available for smaller companies, such as those traded Over-The-Counter (like OTCQX and OTCQB), but unavailable for larger companies, such as those traded on a centralized, formal exchange. Lastly, the proposal conflicts with global trends toward more transparency. Major capital markets – including the EU and UK – are moving toward enhanced disclosure requirements, particularly around risk, liquidity, and sustainability. Those markets might restrict capital investments into the US if reporting was not required quarterly. In conclusion, while I understand the intent to reduce compliance burdens, this proposal would materially weaken the transparency, comparability, and timeliness of information available to investors and the broader market. I urge you to rework or abandon the proposal.

Josephine Laki — May 29, 2026
Subject: My position on S7-2026-15 From: Josephine Laki Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Hello Commissioners, Hard no.
i strongly disagree with the new SEC rule. Underwriters require quarterly data to issue comfort letters for capital market transactions. Choose transparency over opacity.

Sent from my iPhone

Justin Murray — May 29, 2026
Subject: Objection to S7-2026-15 From: Justin Murray Affiliation: May 29, 2026 My name is Justin Murray and I am a carpenter. It is critical that we have transparency at a time when the financial market is as volatile and anticipatory as it is today. Keep quarterly reporting.

Sent from my iPhone

Kenneth A. Adams — May 29, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kenneth A. Adams Affiliation: May 29, 2026 To: rule-comments@sec.gov
Subject: S7-2026-15

I understand the SEC has proposed allowing the public companies to file financial reports twice a year instead of quarterly. I have been a member of an Investment Club for 31 years and we update our stock reports quarterly, based on the quarterly reports. We use these reports to decide which stock/stocks we want to invest in or which stocks we may want to sell. By dropping our information down to twice a year, you would really impact our decision making when we purchase and or sell stocks. We need current information to make informed decisions. We would loose over half of the reviewed, certified financial filings annually if this is approved. It is my understanding that currently, the 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. As I said before, we need good, current information to make good investing decisions, as a small investor, I request that you DO NOT approve this proposal.

Thank you,

Kenneth A. Adams
[REDACTED]

Kim Pansini — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kim Pansini Stop hiding from the public. That's what is wrong with this country. Lack of transparency is corruption.

Kwok Wong — May 29, 2026
Subject: submission regarding S7-2026-15 From: Kwok Wong Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Dear SEC Commissioners, Please vote against the proposed rule.

La Tortuga Moreno — May 29, 2026
Subject: Feedback on S7-2026-15 From: La Tortuga Moreno Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I strongly disagree with the proposed semiannual reporting requirement.

Citadel, Fidelity, Two Sigma, and D.E. Shaw have all warned the SEC against this rule. Who does this rule actually help?

Enviado desde mi iPhone

Leopoldo Alvarez — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment opposing S7-2026-15 From: Leopoldo Alvarez Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Quarterly disclosure has worked for decades and should remain.

Sent from my iPhone

Luciano Flores — May 29, 2026
Subject: Response to S7-2026-15 From: Luciano Flores Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Dear Securities and Exchange Commission:
i am against the rule. The argument that quarterly reporting is too expensive ignores its benefits. Information lag favors institutions over individuals. Please reject this proposal.

Marina Cruz — May 29, 2026
Subject: Public comment on S7-2026-15 From: Marina Cruz Affiliation: May 29, 2026 This rule benefits insiders at the expense of ordinary investor sober people .

Marion Michel — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Marion Michel Please do NOT change the reporting requirements for public companies from quarterly to semi-annually. I rely on information from companies in deciding how to update my portfolio. In addition, many sources of unbiased investor information rely on company reports, such as Value Line and Morningstar and increasingly, AI. Investors need factual information on a timely basis to make informed decisions. By now, all public companies are used to this, and I doubt they find it onerous. If they do, they probably aren't paying enough attention to running their business. When important metrics decline, we need to know as soon as possible and vice versa. Any action that reduces the "public" part of publicly traded companies reduces public trust, in them and in the SEC.

Martha Cain — May 29, 2026
Subject: SEC Comment - S7-2026-15 From: martha cain Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Esteemed Commissioners,
I am writing to oppose the semiannual reporting proposal.

Michele Peters — May 29, 2026
Subject: Please reject S7-2026-15 From: Michele Peters Affiliation: May 29, 2026 To the SEC Rulemaking Office,
The proposed rule weakens investor protection.

Sent from my Mobile Device

Miguel Torres — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment: S7-2026-15 From: Miguel Torres Affiliation: May 29, 2026 To the Commissioners,
I oppose S7-2026-15.

Mike Pechacek — May 29, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Mike Pechacek Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I understand the SEC has proposed allowing the public companies to file financial reports twice a year instead of quarterly. I have been a member of an Investment Club for 31 years and we update our stock reports quarterly, based on the quarterly reports. We use these reports to decide which stock/stocks we want to invest in or which stocks we may want to sell. By dropping our information down to twice a year, you would really impact our decision making when we purchase and or sell stocks. We need current information to make informed decisions. We would loose over half of the reviewed, certified financial filings annually if this is approved. It is my understanding that currently, the 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. As I said before, we need good, current information to make good investing decisions, as a small investor, I request that you DO NOT approve this proposal.

Thank you,

Mike Pechacek
Omaha, Nebraska 68157

MK Leeds — May 29, 2026
Subject: RE: S7-2026-15 From: MK Leeds Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I am against this reduction in disclosure frequency.

Sent from my iPhone

MK Leeds — May 29, 2026
Subject: Please reject S7-2026-15 From: MK Leeds Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Keep the reports to SEC at 3 months intervals!!!

Muthanna Almesri — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Muthanna Almesri Affiliation: May 29, 2026 To the SEC, So, i strongly disagree with this rulemaking.

Nancy Fritz, Retired Business Owner — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Fritz It is my opinion that the reporting requirement timeline should not change for business reporting. Investors need to see current information in order to make informed decisions. Without this information investors will be less likely to invest in a timely manner. The figures are needed, but maybe the process and paperwork could be streamlined. But to do away with the reporting will not be beneficial in the long run.

Osmel Suarez — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: Osmel Suarez Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Don't adopt the proposed semiannual reporting rule. Higher required returns means higher cost of capital for US companies.

Pedro Gómez — May 29, 2026
Subject: Vote against S7-2026-15 From: Pedro Gómez Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Please reject this proposal.

Raymundo — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment: S7-2026-15 From: raymundo Affiliation: May 29, 2026 The proposed rule weakens investor protection.

Enviado desde mi iPhone

Rob Jarecki — May 29, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Rob Jarecki Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I do not support semiannual reporting. For the retail investor, company information is limited, and market behavior opaque. Moving away from quarterly reporting is absolutely the wrong direction. If anything, company financial information is more obfuscated and less scrutinized than ever, contributing to market manipulation, corruption, and bubbles. We need more transparency and reporting, not less!!! The supposed benefits of this current proposal seem utterly trivial compared with what would be lost. This is a bad and unnecessary idea. Please do not implement this.

Sincerely,

Dr. Robert L. Jarecki, Jr.

Robert Richard, Private Investor — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: robert richard I cannot think of a worse idea than reducing the info available to investors by public corporations from which power is grated by their state's charter. This rule change opens the doors to outside influence and pilfering by insiders and well connected friends. Id companies want to keep their financial info under wraps they should not incorporate and take the public's money

---

Ryan Breneisen — May 29, 2026
Subject: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 - comment From: Ryan Breneisen Affiliation: May 29, 2026 The public access to information should not be diminished or limited by design. This is bad legislation that does not help the citizens of this country.

Sandra Bean, Individual Invester — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sandra Bean Bad idea! If you can't see how a company is doing quarterly it makes it differcult to see what is happening in the company and if they are having problems. As an individual invester you want to see quarterly information in order to making buy and sell decisions.

Scott Abbott — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: scott abbott I am against this idea. As an individual investor, quarterly reports are my only method of tracking my investments. I don't have professional advisors or AI helping me. Keeping up with news is hard enough, but waiting 6 months to get an audited report is too long. Companies are making enough money with the existing quarterly reports.

Scott James — May 29, 2026
Subject: RE: S7-2026-15 From: Scott James Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I'm interested

---

Shem Alhassan — May 29, 2026
Subject: INVESTOR OPPOSITION TO S7-2026-15 From: Shem Alhassan Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I'm interested

---

Steven Bolster — May 29, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - keep quarterly reporting From: Steven Bolster Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I am against this proposal. It will cause rampant fraud and will hurt everyday investors. Inside trading will be much harder to track and convict. Please do not approve this proposal.

Steve Bolster

Wade Granger — May 29, 2026
Subject: WITHDRAW S7-2026-15 From: Wade Granger Affiliation: May 29, 2026 I am in support of keeping reporting on a quarterly basis. With all of the noise coming from social, traditional media, finance, politicians etc. It is all the more comforting to have actual reports issued quarterly. NOT less often. These are volatile times, and I do not support the change to semi annual. I have a large amount invested for my age, and value transparency.

W, small business owner

Willie Jones — May 29, 2026
Subject: Public comment: S7-2026-15 From: WILLIE JONES Affiliation: May 29, 2026 Dear Office of the Secretary,
I rely on quarterly disclosures to make informed decisions.

Wilmer Murillo — May 29, 2026
Subject: My comment on S7-2026-15 From: Wilmer Murillo Affiliation: May 29, 2026 i refuse to support this regulation.

Youth Benefit Corp. 129/ Joseph R Kaiser, Sec/Treasurer — May 29, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Youth Benefit Corp. 129/ Joseph R Kaiser All people should have equal access to financial information. Delaying reporting will only lead to further financial inequity.

Aaron Becker — May 28, 2026
Subject: Submission regarding S7-2026-15 From: Aaron Becker Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Quarterly reporting is the lifeblood of small and medium scale investor intelligence services as well as a lifeline for individual investors. Keep reports quarterly!

All the best,
Aaron Becker
TopDown.AI

Andrey F. — May 28, 2026
Subject: Comment - S7-2026-15 From: Andrey F. Affiliation: May 28, 2026 We need more transparency, not less. Less fraud, not more. Don't mess with quarterly reporting.

Ann Bucheck, Individual Investor — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ann Bucheck Please do not suggest, allow, encourage, standardize or legalize the cutting down of the financial reports of companies. As an individual investor I , like others depend on that information to make decisions on our investing and financial well being. I, like others, are not big institutions who get insider information. We need that quarterly information. It has been given and should continue to be given.

Ann Johnson — May 28, 2026
Subject: Public comment: S7-2026-15 From: Ann Johnson Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Quarterly reporting is necessary for stakeholders to evaluate investments and assets.

Anonymous — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous as an individual investor i prefer quarterly reporting to avoid losses to my retirement account

---

Anonymous — May 28, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 28, 2026 It's important to have transparency. Every 3 months is fair. Every 6 months keeps $ in the dark. Who initiated this S7-2026-15?What do they want to hide?

Sent from AOL on Android

Anonymous — May 28, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 28, 2026 To the Commissioners,
This proposal would harm retail investors.
Sincerely,

Anthony Calime Jr. — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anthony Calime Jr. I am an individual, self-directed investor who manages my own retirement and education investment accounts, including two 401(k) accounts and a 529 college savings account. I am concerned that allowing public companies to move from quarterly reporting to semiannual reporting would negatively affect my ability to make informed investment decisions. As an individual investor, I rely on timely, standardized, and comparable company information to evaluate risks, track business performance, rebalance my accounts, and make responsible long-term investment choices. Reducing required reporting from quarterly to semiannual would create longer periods where investors like me have less reliable information about a company's financial condition. Background Quarterly reports help individual investors monitor company performance throughout the year. These reports provide important updates on revenue, earnings, cash flow, debt, margins, business risks, management discussion, and other financial information. While large institutions may have access to professional analysts, private research, management meetings, and advanced data tools, individual investors typically rely heavily on public filings. My investment decisions affect long-term family goals, including retirement security and education funding. Because I self-manage my accounts, I need consistent and timely public information to evaluate whether companies remain suitable for my portfolio. Semiannual reporting may reduce administrative burden for companies, but it may also reduce transparency for investors. A six-month reporting gap can allow material changes in business performance, debt levels, liquidity, competitive position, or operational risk to build up before ordinary investors receive a complete update. Assessment Moving to semiannual reporting would likely disadvantage individual investors in several ways. First, it would reduce transparency. A lot can change in six months, especially in volatile sectors such as technology, banking, healthcare, energy, consumer discretionary, and small or mid-cap companies. Without quarterly reports, I would have fewer reliable checkpoints to assess whether a company's fundamentals are improving or deteriorating. Second, it may increase information inequality. Large institutional investors often have more resources to interpret market signals, access expert research, and react quickly to partial information. Individual investors may be left relying on rumors, headlines, analyst opinions, or stock price movements instead of standardized public filings. Third, it could increase market volatility. If investors receive fewer formal updates, each semiannual report could carry more surprise risk. That could lead to sharper stock price reactions when information is finally released, making it harder for individual investors to manage risk. Fourth, it could make portfolio management harder. I use company information to decide whether to hold, buy, reduce, or sell positions across retirement and education accounts. Semiannual reporting would make it more difficult to identify changes in earnings quality, cash flow, debt, business outlook, and risk exposure in a timely manner. Fifth, it could reduce accountability. Quarterly reporting creates regular discipline for management teams and boards. Less frequent reporting may make it easier for problems to remain hidden longer, which could harm shareholders who depend on timely disclosure. I understand the concern that quarterly reporting can encourage short-term thinking. However, I believe the better solution is to discourage excessive short-term earnings guidance, not reduce the frequency of historical financial reporting. Investors need actual financial results more often than twice per year. Recommendation I recommend that regulators preserve quarterly reporting requirements for public companies. If semiannual reporting is allowed, it should include strong investor protections, such as: Companies should still be required to provide timely quarterly financial updates or key performance data. Any company choosing semiannual reporting should clearly explain why the change benefits shareholders. Companies should be required to disclose material changes promptly and in a format that is easy for retail investors to understand. Investor protections should prioritize equal access to information for individual investors, not just institutions. Regulators should distinguish between quarterly earnings guidance and quarterly financial reporting. Reducing unnecessary short-term guidance may be reasonable, but reducing historical financial reporting would harm transparency. As a self-directed individual investor managing retirement and education accounts, I believe quarterly reporting is essential to fair, informed, and responsible investing. Moving to semiannual reporting would reduce the quality and timeliness of information available to ordinary investors and would make it harder for me to protect my family's long-term financial goals.

Armando Nieves — May 28, 2026
Subject: Comment opposing S7-2026-15 From: Armando Nieves Affiliation: May 28, 2026 To the Members of the Securities and Exchange Commission,
This rule benefits insiders at the expense of ordinary investors.

B. Ruttenberg — May 28, 2026
Subject: COMMENT ON PROPOSED RULE S7-2026-15 From: B. Ruttenberg Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Keep it quarterly. No one asked for this and passing it will undermine confidence in public markets.

Instead, focus on congressional insider trading and reporting rules.

-- Benjamin Ruttenberg
Sent from my iPhone, please excuse typos.

Barbara Garrison — May 28, 2026
Subject: Proposed changes by the SEC: File Number s7-2026-15 From: Barbara Garrison Affiliation: May 28, 2026 To the SEC regarding File # S7-2026-15:

Colleagues and I are members of an investment club that is part of the National Association of Investment Clubs (NAIC). We are opposed to the SEC proposal to reduce the number of certified financial filings each year by half. That is not what we want as investors. The importance of having these filings reviewed by independent auditors and then signed by the CEO and CFO of our holdings cannot be understated. These quarterly filings are critical to our ability to make better decisions in choosing which companies we invest in, and even more importantly, the timing of our purchase decisions and sales decisions during each and every quarter of the year. We value and trust these quarterly filings and along with our own research and analyses, they form the basis/ guidelines for those decisions.

Our club meets monthly for three hours to review the stocks in our portfolio. Waiting six months for every financial filing would be cumbersome and make our investment decisions extremely difficult to complete in a timely manner. We have "been in business" as an investment club for over 30 years, and we know the value of making purchases and sales decisions in a timely manner. Without quarterly certified filings, how can we make the most thoughtful and decisive decisions with any confidence?

This proposed change not only impacts our club, but many of our club members are also private investors. We are funding our retirements and the education of our children and grandchildren with our investments. Why would the SEC want to make this more difficult for us? We truly believe in the companies we support; please reject this proposed change and support the timely and accurate quarterly reporting of every company's efforts.

Sincerely yours,
Barbara Garrison
Financial Analyst
Abundance Strategist Investment Club
Member NAIC

Barbara Immonen — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Barbara Immonen I asked that you oppose this action to require companies to only file twice a year. As a small investor, I use these verified reports and signed by the CFOs and CEOs to make informed decisions when buying and/or selling stocks. As I mentioned, as a small investor I need all the information I can gather before making a decision on an investment. Please DO NOT approve this change to the filings. Continue the way we are currently doing things. Thank you for listening,

---

Better Investing — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Better Investing Investors want/need quarterly reports to help them manage their investments. Most financial information comes monthly (banking, etc)..... .investments are the exception. Making them only twice a year will make it more difficult for investors to track important financial information.

Beverly Hansen — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Beverly Hansen Keep reporting to quartely.

Carlton McLain — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Carlton McLain Please do NOT change from quarterly reports, I need the information to make timely decisions with my investments. This is a BAD idea. Thanks C.R. McLain

---

Chris McCarron — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Chris McCarron Regarding File Number S7-2026-15: I vehemently oppose your proposal to allow public companies to choose not to file quarterly reports. These reports are vital to investors wishing to make informed decisions and for holding companies appropriately accountable to their shareholders.

Colene Walden, National Academy of Science Retiree — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Colene Walden As a longtime member of an NAIC investment club, I am opposed to any change in company reporting regulations. Without the transparancy of regular company reports, retail investors are at a disadvantage in making investment decisions. The experience I have gained from my club membership has contributed to a comfortable financial retirement. I believe that all should have access to the learning opportunity that club participation affords; to that end government should continue to mandate quarterly company disclosure.

Daniel — May 28, 2026
Subject: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Affiliation: May 28, 2026 To the Members of the Securities and Exchange Commission,
I urge you to reject S7-2026-15. I depend on quarterly filings to help me make decisions. Filing twice a year gives corporate investors an unfair atvantage.
Thank you,
Daniel Zelazny

Devon Grodkiewicz — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Devon Grodkiewicz Quarterly reporting requirements are critical for investor knowledge when making evaluations of a public equity. When conducting analysis, feature development requires robust longitudinal time series data. This decision would reduce the number of records available for analysis by 50% and is a terrible idea. I repeat: this is a terrible idea and our governance and data access structures need to be more robust, not less robust. Please don't do this.

Donald Darbonne — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Donald Darbonne I use certified quarterly information from 10-Q filings in my investing process.

Eileen Sickler, Stock Club Member, CPA, Retired — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Eileen SIckler, Stock Club member As an interested and long time investor of stocks, both individually and with my stock club, I hope that companies will continue to file quarterly financial information. When potentially investing in a company or updating my knowledge of a company's financial picture, I use the 10-Qs. I believe quarterly required disclosure of this information makes the company more transparent and provides information that investors use. Please continue to require this important quarterly financial information to the public.

Eugene Bailey — May 28, 2026
Subject: Submission regarding S7-2026-15 From: EUGENE BAILEY Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Please stop messing with regular people's money. We are screwed as regular money goes less far. Give us a break, PLEASE!!

Felipe — May 28, 2026
Subject: in re: S7-2026-15 From: Felipe Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Quarterly reporting must be preserved.

Enviado desde mi iPhone

Gestalt Fund — May 28, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 comments From: Gestalt Fund Affiliation: May 28, 2026 I think this proposal of 10-S reporting is not good policy with regards to trust in corporate financial disclosures. The US stock market is a shining example for the world, it runs on up to date information about listed companies and accurate, timely reports of business activities, with forecasts/guidance often updated during these quarterly reports.

The quarterly reporting system has worked for decades and isn't broken. The pace of new financially relevant information in the era of AI is only getting faster, all while the burden of reporting isn't more onerous. We have seen the markets react with volatile surprise to delayed economic information release by days or weeks on the part of government, one can only imagine the double surprise from an extra quarter of delay by listed companies.

Not every change is good and necessary - including this one. To change a working system in order to allow a few potentially unscrupulous entities to take advantage only makes it difficult for the investing public to understand the status of listed firm activities, or make an apples to apples assessment of these firms, by time horizon.

Even if SEC is persuaded a small group of investment fund companies and perhaps others anticipate this semiannual report model works for them, it could do a trial run of it for this group to see how stock markets react to it, and then roll it out broadly. But making the option available to the entire market without a careful experimental dry run carries more risks than rewards - less transparency, less inter/intra sector comparability, more potential for fraud, and malfeasance. These are concerns for the regulatory oversight and a trusted reporting system.

Heather Scheer — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Heather Scheer I am commenting to strongly oppose the semi-annual reporting proposal being considered by the SEC. Half the reviewed, certified financial filings I receive each year would disappear. I feel it is important that companies must file a 10-Q which is reviewed by independent auditors, and personally signed by the CEO and CFO holding them legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications suggested as part of the proposal that would replace them carry no such accountability to shareholders and the public. The Commission's own data show that individual investors own the majority of shares in smaller public companies, the ones most likely to take the new option. Individual shareholders like myself would lose the most information about exactly the companies we own. When the SEC considered this in 2018-2019, the CFA Institute, the Council of Institutional Investors representing about $4 trillion in long-term assets, and the empirical research record all opposed it. Rightly, the Commission declined to act. The UK ran the experiment in 2014, and more than 90 percent of UK public companies continued to file quarterly reports on their own when they had the choice. This semi-annual reporting proposal is detrimental to transparency and accountability and should be rejected. Thank you for your consideration.

Hugh V. Blanchard — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Hugh V Blanchard I strongly oppose the proposal to reduce SEC reporting to only twice a year. My family's investment portfolio depends on timely and accurate information regarding the financial health of a company as a potential investment. Cutting the SEC filing to only twice annually leaves investors with untimely information that could be several months out of date. This could result in bad decision being made as to the possible performance of an investment. This is unacceptable. Please retain the quarterly reporting requirement and take care of U.S. citizens who depend on these reports for timely and accurate information.

Jackelyn Ortega — May 28, 2026
Subject: File no. S7-2026-15 comment From: Jackelyn Ortega Affiliation: May 28, 2026 keep querterly reports. we the people should what is going.sharing is caring

---

James Young Jr. — May 28, 2026
Subject: Public comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: James Young Jr. Affiliation: May 28, 2026 To the Commissioners, Quarterly reporting must be preserved.
Sincerely,

Sent from my iPhone

Janet Linle — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Janet Linle I am an 82 year old woman who has been investing since my 20's. Currently I am the treasurer for my investment club, which will soon have 3 generations of members. I take investing seriously both thru the club and my personal accounts. I want to have up to date financial information on the companies I am looking at. Please keep quarterly reporting.

Jay Richardson — May 28, 2026
Subject: Comment regarding S7-2026-15 From: Jay Richardson Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Earnings should be quarterly.

Jessica Bear — May 28, 2026
Subject: Retail investor comment on S7-2026-15 From: Jessica Bear Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Dear Secretary Countryman,
I urge you to reject S7-2026-15.
Jessica Bear

Sent from my iPhone

JL — May 28, 2026
Subject: Investor comment on S7-2026-15 From: JL Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Keep quarterly reporting for all SEC companies.

JL

Joe Scarlett — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: joe scarlett I am an individual investor and use the quarterly reports to stay current with my investments. I believe that publishing semi-annual reports versus quarterly will not allow me to stay current sufficiently to trade on latest financial information.

Joel Adelman — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Joel Adelman I am an individual investor. I am strongly opposed to the proposed rule changes because they would eliminate or restrict information vital to the investing public. I, and my fellow individual investors, rely on the information in 10Q filings to make informed investment decisions. I urge you not to adopt the proposed changes.

John & Lynn Ingewrsen — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John & Lynn Ingewrsen My wife and I feel strongly that the discontinuation of quarterly reports will be a disservice to those of us who have been investing for years and owe our comfortable retirement to being able to see what a company is doing on an ongoing basis. I feel this so strongly that I have spent the last 35 years teaching (at no cost to the student) classes on how to invest without a broker, how to understand and read the quarterly report, how interpret it to avoid mistakes. Value Line is an invaluable resource that depends heavily on the quarterly report as I do. Please continue the reports requirement as it now exists!

Jorge Lemus — May 28, 2026
Subject: In re: S7-2026-15 From: Jorge Lemus Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Dear Sir/Madam, Please reject this proposal.
❤

Josephine Foote, Investor — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Josephine Foote Eliminating quaterly reports is penny-wise-and -pound -foolish! Investors and businesses need timely information!

Kamal Passa — May 28, 2026
Subject: objection to S7-2026-15 From: Kamal Passa Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Dear Secretary Countryman, Semiannual reporting reduces transparency.
Sincerely,
Passa Md

Karen Markley — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Karen Markley As an individual investor, I highly rely on the quarterly report information to make informed decisions regarding my investments. Please do not eliminate the quarterly reporting this would essentially eliminate half of the timely information I receive. Thank you.

Kory Hill — May 28, 2026
Subject: SEC From: Kory Hill Affiliation: May 28, 2026 I understand the SEC has proposed allowing the public companies to file financial reports twice a year instead of quarterly. I have been a member of an Investment Club for 31 years and we update our stock reports quarterly, based on the quarterly reports. We use these reports to decide which stock/stocks we want to invest in or which stocks we may want to sell. By dropping our information down to twice a year, you would really impact our decision making when we purchase and or sell stocks. We need current information to make informed decisions. We would loose over half of the reviewed, certified financial filings annually if this is approved. It is my understanding that currently, the 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. As I said before, we need good, current information to make good investing decisions, as a small investor, I request that you DO NOT approve this proposal.

Thank you,

Kory Hill

Sent from AOL on Android

Leeann Obanion — May 28, 2026
Subject: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Leeann Obanion Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Keep it quarterly

---

Leslie — May 28, 2026
Subject: please reject S7-2026-15 From: Leslie Affiliation: May 28, 2026 CONSUMERS AND SMALL INVESTORS NEED QUARTERLY BUSINESS REPORTING TO OPTIMIZE THEIR INVESTMENT PORTFOLIOS!!! I OPPOSE THE THREATENED CHANGE TO "BI-ANNUAL REPORTING"!!!-LESLIE C. MOORE/INVESTOR

Lexi Leon — May 28, 2026
Subject: File no. S7-2026-15 comment From: Lexi Leon Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Look
Dear SEC Officials,
This proposal would harm retail investors.

Sent from my iPhone

Lynda Morgan — May 28, 2026
Subject: Opposition to S7-2026-15 From: Lynda MORGAN Affiliation: May 28, 2026 To the Commissioners,
Please keep quarterly reporting requirements in place.

Margarito Aca — May 28, 2026
Subject: Individual investor comment on S7-2026-15 From: Margarito Aca Affiliation: May 28, 2026
Dear Office of the Secretary,
I urge you to reject S7-2026-15.
Margarito Aca

Enviado desde mi iPhone

Marie Mohn — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: MARIE MOHN Quarterly reporting is necessary for stakeholders to evaluate investments and assets. This is vital to the integrity and transparency of publicly traded companies.

Mark Murray — May 28, 2026
Subject: Comments on S7-2026-15 From: Mark Murray Affiliation: May 28, 2026 My retirement accounts are heavily invested into companies and having this information provided quarterly is a requirement.

-mark

Mary Patten — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mary Patten, Individual investor I usse quarterly reports to find companies that are increasing sales and earnings growth and to follow them for at lest 2 quarters to see if growth is continuing and use to make a decision to buy a stock. Likewise, if a stock I own or am following has a decrease in growth or sales or in margin, I consider the reason and may decide to sell based on the first quarter results or minimally, keep a close watch on stock news to decide if I should sell. Decision usually made before third quarter. These quarterly reports provide me as much information as most professional investors. If we go to semiannual/annual reports, professionals will have more timely information than me because they have access/contact with companies that I don't have available to me. Don't take away the individual investor's data that is used to make timely decisions. Deleting the quarterly report helps no one and hurts individual investors by hiding/concealing actionable data for the individual investor

---

Memorandum from the Division of Corporation Finance regarding a May 27, 2026 meeting with representatives of NCACPA — May 28, 2026
MEMORANDUM
To: File No. S7-2026-15 and File No. S7-2026-18
From: Division of Corporation Finance
Re: Meeting with NCACPA
Date: May 28, 2026
On May 27, 2026, staff from the Division of Corporation Finance (Ryan Milne and Joshua Gorsky) met with representatives of the North Carolina Association of Certified Public Accountants (including Michael Scott, Robert Broome, and Will Edmondson), representatives of PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP (Kyle Moffatt and John Vanosdall), and Representative Tim Moore to discuss, among other things, the proposed rulemakings Semiannual Reporting (Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; 39-2563; IC-36140; File No. S7-2026-15) and Enhancement of Emerging Growth Company Accommodations and Simplification of Filer Status for Reporting Companies (Release Nos. 33-11419; 34-105515; File No. S7-2026-18).

Nancy Lee Stewart — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Lee Stewart Reports should remain quarterly. This is the only way to keep companies accountable.

Paul R. Keith — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Paul R Keith, MD As an investor of more than 50 years, I rely on the quarterly financial reports from companies I invest in or are considering. Delaying such reports to every 6 months reduces the crucial financial data I rely on to make investment decisions. It puts my investment decisions in peril for unwarranted reasons. Remember: if it an't broken, don't fix it!

Pedro Cejudo — May 28, 2026
Subject: Re: S7-2026-15 From: Pedro Cejudo Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Bueno

---

Rama Rajesh — May 28, 2026
Subject: Comment on semiannual reporting (S7-2026-15) From: Rama Rajesh Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Active quarterly reporting is good.

Ramón Amaro Lopez — May 28, 2026
Subject: Vote against S7-2026-15 From: Ramón Amaro Lopez Affiliation: May 28, 2026 Dear SEC Commissioners, Semiannual reporting reduces transparency.
Ramón Amaro Lopez

Ruth — May 28, 2026
Subject: please reject S7-2026-15 From: Ruth Affiliation: May 28, 2026 To the SEC, Quarterly reports are essential to market integrity.
Sincerely,
Ruth M Peterson

Ryan Schaefer — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ryan Schaefer Dear Secretary, I am writing to express my strong opposition to the Commission's proposal to allow public registrants the option to switch from a quarterly to a semi-annual reporting framework (Form 10-S). As an active market participant who relies on timely data for risk management and financial evaluation, I believe extending the disclosure cycle to six months will severely degrade the structural integrity, transparency, and efficiency of our capital markets. My primary concerns regarding the transition to semi-annual reporting include: Amplification of Gap Risk and Idiosyncratic Volatility: A six-month reporting cycle introduces a dangerous information vacuum. Under a semi-annual model, material changes in operational health, supply chain stability, and inventory velocity will remain obscured from the public for up to half a year. This lack of continuous disclosure will inevitably lead to massive, violent asset price gapping on earnings release dates. The market will see an increase in overnight capital destruction as investors are forced to absorb six months of accumulated operational surprises in a single trading session. Delayed Price Discovery and Stale Trends: Efficient markets require continuous, incremental data to price assets accurately. Allowing companies to report semi-annually means equity prices will trend for months on entirely obsolete narratives. This creates an unlevel playing field where asymmetric information risk thrives, directly disadvantaging retail investors who do not have access to alternative data pipelines. The Critical Function of Frequent Cadences: Regular, predictable, quarterly touchpoints ensure that public companies behave with consistent transparency. While a three-month cadence requires discipline, it ensures that management remains accountable to its baseline operating targets in real-time. In contrast, a six-month cycle represents an eternity in modern, algorithmic markets, completely breaking the historical baseline of corporate accountability. While proponents argue that quarterly reporting places an administrative burden on companies, the infrastructure for modern corporate accounting is highly automated. The compliance cost of compiling quarterly data is a minor, necessary premium paid to maintain public investor trust and market liquidity. Frequent, structured transparency is fundamental to a well-functioning market. I strongly urge the Commission to reject the proposed Form 10-S and maintain the current mandatory quarterly reporting framework to protect investors and maintain orderly, transparent markets. Sincerely, Ryan Schaefer Individual Investor

---

Scott Miller — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Scott Miller As an equity compensation expert, I appreciate SEC filing obligations, as they protect American investors and demand some accountability and clarity from public company leaders. Reducing visibility will surely hurt the American investing public. You simply cannot assume individuals will act in the best interest of their countrymen with their personal compensation on the line, as it often is with public company leaders and SEC filings. Thank you for protecting Americans by keeping the reporting quarterly.

Steven Casabona — May 28, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steven Casabona If the SEC makes these changes, the retail investor AGAIN comes up with the short stick. I personally would not invest in a company that does not report quarterly.

Vicki Kroc — May 28, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Vicki Kroc Affiliation: May 28, 2026 To the SEC regarding File # S7-2026-15:

I am a member of an investment club that is part of the National Association of Investment Clubs (NAIC). The proposal to reduce the number of certified financial filing each year by half is NOT what we want as investors. Having these filings reviewed by independent auditors and then signed by the CEO and CFO of our holdings is critical to our ability to make better decisions on what companies we invest in and even more importantly to time our purchase decisions and sales decisions during each and every quarter of the year. We place our trust in these filings and along with our own research and analyses are the guidelines for those decisions.

Our club meets monthly and most of the stocks in our portfolio are reviewed each month. Waiting 6 months for every financial filing would make our investment decisions extremely difficult to do in a timely manner. Over the more than 30 years our investment club has been "in business" we know the value of making purchase and sales decisions in a timely manner. Without these certified filings how can we do that with any confidence?

Each of our members invest regularly within the club, but we are also private investors. We are funding our retirements and the education of our children and grandchildren with our investments. Why would you make this more difficult for us? If it is in the effort of saving money, consider taking a small pay cut before hindering investors who support these companies. We truly believe in the companies we support, please help us by providing timely and accurate reporting of their efforts.

Vicki

Vicki Kroc
Financial Analyst
Abundance Strategist Investment Club
Member NAIC

Alexandre J Vautrin — May 27, 2026
Subject: Comment - S7-2026-15 From: Alexandre J Vautrin Affiliation: May 27, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission,
If you do this, you will destroy a democratizing aspect of the free market. It will be another step towards the downfall of the United States, and you will all be remembered as cowards who let the greatest nation on earth die.
Anon

Get Outlook for iOS

Anonymous — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Please do not make the mistake of removing quarterly filings and the protections they provide for individual investors.

Arnold Bass — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Arnold Bass I am writing as an individual investor to express my strong opposition to any proposal that would reduce the frequency of corporate earnings reporting from quarterly to twice a year. I believe such a change would meaningfully weaken market transparency, reduce investor confidence, and ultimately harm both retail investors and the broader financial system. Quarterly reporting is one of the most important mechanisms we have for maintaining timely, accurate insight into a company's financial health. These reports allow investors to evaluate performance trends, assess management decisions, and make informed investment choices based on current information rather than outdated data. Moving to semiannual reporting would create longer periods of uncertainty, widen information gaps, and increase the likelihood of market volatility driven by speculation rather than facts. Less frequent reporting would also disadvantage individual investors compared to institutional investors who have greater access to alternative data sources. Quarterly disclosures help level the playing field by ensuring that all market participants receive standardized, regulated information at predictable intervals. Furthermore, quarterly reporting promotes accountability. Companies are more likely to maintain disciplined financial practices when they know their performance will be reviewed and disclosed every three months. Reducing this cadence risks weakening oversight and could allow emerging problems to go unnoticed for longer periods. While I understand the desire to reduce regulatory burdens on public companies, I believe the benefits of quarterly reporting far outweigh the costs. Transparency is the foundation of healthy markets, and any step that reduces it would be a step backward for investors and the public. Thank you for considering my perspective on this important issue. I urge the Commission to preserve quarterly earnings reporting requirements in the interest of fairness, transparency, and market stability.

Barbara Stanley — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Barbara Stanley I disagree with these changes. Financial decisions are based on these quarterly reports. I do not want to see changes.

Bart Gardner — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Bart Gardner I vehemently oppose this change to reporting requirements

---

Bill Kraynak — May 27, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Bill Kraynak Affiliation: May 27, 2026 I understand the SEC has proposed allowing the public companies to file financial reports twice a year instead of quarterly. I have been a member of an Investment Club for 31 years and we update our stock reports quarterly, based on the quarterly reports. We use these reports to decide which stock/stocks we want to invest in or which stocks we may want to sell. By dropping our information down to twice a year, you would really impact our decision making when we purchase and or sell stocks. We need current information to make informed decisions. We would lose over half of the reviewed, certified financial filings annually if this is approved. It is my understanding that currently, the 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. As I said before, we need good, current information to make good investing decisions. As a small investor, I request that you DO NOT approve this proposal.

Thank you,

Bill Kraynak
[REDACTED]

Bobby Hill — May 27, 2026
Subject: Vote against S7-2026-15 From: Bobby Hill Affiliation: May 27, 2026 To the Commissioners, I rely on quarterly disclosures to make informed decisions.
Respectfully, Bobby Hill

Bradley Lawson, (Retail) Retirement Investor — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Bradley Lawson Cutting in half the number of financial quarterly filings we have available to make investment decisions would put us at a greater disadvantage than we already experience. I, and some other investors I have spoken to are vehemently opposed to this.

Carl Williams — May 27, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 From: Carl Williams Affiliation: May 27, 2026 To the Commissioners,
I urge the Commission to withdraw S7-2026-15.
Sincerely, Carl m Williams

Cheryl Shaw, Personal Stock investor — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Cheryl Shaw Many of us private investors rely on 10K reporting and other public disclosures to make informed decisions. I oppose semi-annual reporting. Quarterly reporting does not interfere with investment decisions and I hope that decision makers would understand the friction and barriers (like AI and algorithm-driven trading) that are currently reducing, if not blocking, private, unsophisticated investors ability to achieve profits. Restricting to semi-annual reporting would only make it impossible for a personal investor to make intelligent decisions. In the age of AI, why would we not move toward MORE reporting instead of less?

Chris Parisi — May 27, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Chris Parisi Affiliation: May 27, 2026 Please do not change SEC requirements that corporations file quarterly reports. The current scheme is extremely beneficial to independent investors like me. Requiring corporations to submit audited, personally signed filings on a quarterly basis allows me to stay on top of corporate earnings and identify both solid investments, and also to identify when those investments are turning sour. Major investment firms can weather losses caused by gaps - but an individual investor like me needs the extra data obtained from quarterly reports to stay on top of my investments.

In 2018 and 2019, the SEC considered this change. For good reasons then it was abandoned. Those same reasons exist today. Please reconsider this short sighted decision - it only benefits the top 1% and will hurt individual investors, and voters, like me.
Thank you.
Chris Parisi

Christi Powell, CFP, IAR,Perissos PWM DBA Falcon Financial of Oklahoma, LLC — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christi Powell, CFP I strongly oppose the idea of semi-annual reporting without requiring audit certification and the inclusion of legal jeopardy attached to management. It would be rife with obfuscations, making it impossible for investment managers to accurately assess the company. Surely AI will streamline the creation of 10-Qs and the analysis of same for all parties. Thank you for your consideration of these concerns. Sincerely, Christi Powell, CFP

Christopher Craft, Sales Director and Financial Literacy Coach — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Craft Here is a draft of the comment paragraphs for your SEC submission, written from the perspective of an active individual investor and financial literacy coach who relies heavily on quarterly data to maintain transparency and trust in the market. --- ### Why Individual Comments Matter to the SEC The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) explicitly states that public comments from individual investors are a vital part of the rulemaking process. While institutional investors have massive legal teams to voice their concerns, the SEC's primary mandate is to protect regular investors and maintain fair, orderly, and efficient markets. Hearing directly from individuals provides the Commission with real-world insights into how regulatory changes impact everyday market participants, ensuring that policy decisions are not shaped solely by corporate interests. --- ### Draft Comment for [Submit Comments on S7-2026-15](https : / / www . sec . gov / comments / s7-2026-15 / semiannual-reporting#no-back) As a Sales Director, financial literacy coach, and active individual investor, I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposal to shift from quarterly to semiannual reporting. In my role coaching others on financial literacy, I constantly emphasize that timely data is the bedrock of smart, confident investing. Personally, I rely extensively on Form 10-Q filings every single quarter to evaluate company performance, track operational health, and cross-reference financial statements against management's stated goals. Waiting six months for a single update severely diminishes an individual investor's ability to make agile, informed decisions. Moving to a semiannual reporting structure significantly degrades corporate transparency and weakens our ability to keep tabs on C-suite behavior. A six-month window creates a dangerous information vacuum where corporate mismanagement, shifting risk profiles, or poor strategic decisions can be obscured for far too long. Reducing the frequency of these disclosures opens the door to unethical corporate behavior, as executives would face far less immediate accountability to the public. Ultimately, eroding the frequency of these vital public filings will only breed widespread doubt in the integrity of the stock market. Transparency is what builds investor confidence; withholding information for longer periods will inevitably lead to market volatility and a erosion of trust. To protect the retail investing public and ensure market integrity, the SEC must maintain the current quarterly reporting framework.

Christopher Reynolds — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christopher Reynolds I oppose such proposal and vote to keep earning calls quarterly. Heck, I would want to suggest monthly given all the efficiency gains AI provided.

Dan Gordner, Retired — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dan Gordner Being of retirement age, I need to make financial decisions quickly, based on timely information. 6 months is NOT timely.

Daniel Krzysiak — May 27, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting comment From: Daniel Krzysiak Affiliation: May 27, 2026 To the Commission, Bruh wtf every 6 months yo this can't be real cuh. Need my financial reports quarterly ya heard.
Sincerely,
Daniel crypto guru

Sent from my iPhone

David A Miller — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David A Miller As an individual interester I rely very heavily on the quarter reporting of the public companies I invest in. My investing in the USA economy is a very important way of me supprtig my retirement with out any reliance on any charities. It is very important that the free, full and timely disclosure of information on companies be maintained. I support that the sytem not be changed.

David Hayden — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Hayden As technology gets better and cheaper, there's no reason to permit less frequent financial reporting. Heck, companies could provide MORE frequent reporting with the same or less effort than 10 years ago. There is no reason to allow companies to report every 6 months. As an individual investor, I rely strongly on the SEC filings to get "real" data instead of the spin that so many companies give in their press releases. Please hold corporations to the standards that we've used for decades.

Dene M Alden — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dene M Alden As a fundamental retail investor, quarterly reporting is vital to my retirement. This quarterly data shows me the directions of each of the companies I invest in for income and growth. Weaking the SEC requirements doesn't assist the day-by-day investor which I am. The SEC is vital in securing data for the retail investor and changing from every three months to twice a year and lowering the standards to cover this process does not help the shareholders.

Diane Wheeler — May 27, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Diane Wheeler Affiliation: May 27, 2026 Changing the rules to get rid of the quarterly reporting rule is a disastrous idea! Companies will hide behind the lack of accountability! We, as investors will be uninformed and much more at risk as investors.

Also, employees will be more vulnerable. Sometimes the only way employees can find out how their employer is doing is by the financials.

PLEASE DO NOT CHANGE THE QUARTERLY REPORTING RULE!

Donna Wong — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Donna Wong I oppose the proposal to stop the quarterly reports. I am an investor and have been one for more than 25 years. I rely on the reports for information and investing strategy. I'm a long term investor and need to know how each company I own is progressing on their growth. DO NOT STOP the QUARTERLY REPORTS!

Ed. Brill, Individual Investor — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ed. Brill As an individual investor I believe for the SEC to reduce the frequency of public reporting requirements for businesses would be a huge step backward. I and other individual investors use those reports to make informed investment decisions. Investors need more and better information upon which to make investment decisions not less. If anything the frequency of today's quarterly reporting should be increased to every 2 months or even monthly. Businesses have (or should have) the data for today's quarterly reporting available to them on a daily or weekly basis. Why not share it immediately with investors? Why report twice a year? For which half years would be required? Spring and fall, i.e. first and last calendar halves? Or winter and summer? Many, perhaps most, manufacturing and service businesses have calendar cycles peculiar to each industry. Information on these seasonal variations is essential for making informed investment decisions. Why not just once a year? Require annual reporting only without any interim reporting. At least information for calendar cyclic businesses would be directly comparable. Better yet, let's go back a hundred years to the good old days, without reporting requirements and abolish the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) altogether and simply promote saving money "in a mattress"!

Elizabeth Hill — May 27, 2026
Subject: Comment on proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Elizabeth Hill Affiliation: May 27, 2026 To whom it may concern, I strongly oppose moving to semiannual reporting. Thank you, Elizabeth Hill

---

Elke Doddridge — May 27, 2026
Subject: in re: S7-2026-15 From: Elke Doddridge Affiliation: May 27, 2026 Dear SEC Staff, Please Keep 3 month reporting.
Sincerely,
Elke Doddridge

Ellen Burgeson — May 27, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: ELLEN BURGESON Affiliation: May 27, 2026
I understand the SEC has proposed allowing public companies to file financial reports twice a year instead of quarterly. This doesn't seem fair for the investors of public companies! I have been a member of an Investment Club for over 30 years, and we use those quarterly reports as a basis for our buy/sell decisions. By dropping our information down to twice a year our decision making would be severely affected concerning buys and sells. We need current information to make informed decisions. We would loose over half of the reviewed, certified financial filings annually if this is approved. It is my understanding that currently the 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. As I said before, we need sound, up to date information to make good investing decisions. As a small investor, I request that you DO NOT approve this proposal.

Sincerely,

Ellen Burgeson

Sent from my iPad

Ginger Riddle, Retired Teacher — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ginger Riddle I am opposed to the proposed changes to quarterly filings. Half the reviewed, certified financial filings we get each year would disappear. Accountability would be decreased since a 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. The Commission's own data show that individual investors like me own the majority of shares in smaller public companies, the ones most likely to take the new option. We would lose the most information about exactly the companies we own. The SEC has been here before. When the Commission considered this in 2018-2019, the CFA Institute, the Council of Institutional Investors representing about $4 trillion in long-term assets, and the empirical research record all opposed it. I want to go on record as saying that I oppose it this time as well.

Gloria Gunn — May 27, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Gloria Gunn Affiliation: May 27, 2026 I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposal of changing the 10-Q reporting requirement from a quarterly to a semi-annual basis.

As an individual investor with a portfolio of over 50 companies, I rely heavily on the data provided in quarterly filings to make informed decisions on whether to hold, buy, or sell my positions. Frequent financial reporting is essential to ensuring that the numbers remain reliable and transparent. Reducing the frequency of these reports would significantly limit my ability to monitor my investments and react to financial changes in a timely manner.

I believe that maintaining quarterly 10-Q filings is vital for investor protection and market integrity. Thank you for your time and for considering my perspective on this matter.

Best regards,

Gloria Gunn
750

Gregory Pittman — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Gregory Pittman Half the reviewed, certified financial filings we as investors get each year would disappear. A 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. The action, if approved dramatically impacts the ones most likely to take the new option. Investors would lose the most information about exactly the companies we own. I'm against reducing quarterly reporting in half.

H Michael Bradley, Retired Personal Investor — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: H Michael Bradley I consider quarterly reports for the companies I own stock in or am considering owning as important oin timely decisions. Please do not remove this required reporting.

Harold Hoffman — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Harold Hoffman As an investor I need and rely on frequent, reports of financial performance. Reducing reporting requirements to semi-annual is not acceptable to me. If this bill psses and is signed into law, those companies who reduce their reporting frequncy will also reduce the chance that I will invest in said company.

Homer Hill — May 27, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 comment From: Homer Hill Affiliation: May 27, 2026 Keep it quarterly ! The big corporations need to be held accountable!

J9nes — May 27, 2026
Subject: proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: J9nes Affiliation: May 27, 2026 To the Commissioners,
The proposed rule weakens investor protection.
Thanks,
J9nes

Jacques Laufer, Retiree — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jacques Laufer The is crazy proposal. Who do you think this would help? Another Trump directed cop-out to the rich and influential!

Jacques Nguema — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jacques Nguema Please let's keep providing Quaterly reports for transparency and accountability. It helps in analyzing companies regularly and make financial decisions.

Jeff Gorman — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Gorman I think quarterly reports are essential for analyzing potential investments. They are also essential to spot problems with an investment thanks to current SEC reporting requirements. Management should be focused on the best long term decisions for the health of the company, not stock prices.

Jeffrey Aaronson — May 27, 2026
Subject: Comment on S7-2026-15 - semiannual reporting From: Jeffrey Aaronson Affiliation: May 27, 2026 Dear Members of the Commission,
I do not support semiannual reporting.
Sincerely yours,
Jeff Aaronson

Jennifer Adair — May 27, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Jennifer Adair Affiliation: May 27, 2026 As a long-term Investor I use Form 10-Q filings to monitor a company's financial health, short-term performance, and emerging risks between annual reports. I read the reports to understand management's perspective on sales growth, profit margins, and shifting market demand. Also to compare the current quarter's balance sheet, income statement, and cash flow statement against the same period from the previous year to spot trends.

I am asking to please consider not changing quarterly reports to twice a year.

Thank you for your consideration.

Jennifer Adair

Jeremy Smith — May 27, 2026
Subject: Opposition to S7-2026-15 From: Jeremy Smith Affiliation: May 27, 2026 I believe quarterly reports are necessary to ensure accountability and transparency. Six months is too long to wait for an update. And given the power of technology, it should be easy for companies to comply with quarterly requirements. Frankly, it's their job and they need to do it.

There is danger in a bad actor being able to use a longer reporting period to conceal fundamental problems.

Jim Lohbeck — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jim Lohbeck Keep filings quartely

---

John Beck, Retired CPA Inactive — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Beck Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 I am an individual investor. I rely heavily on the quarterly reported information from the public companies in which I have holdings or about which I am studying to determine if I should acquire their stock. Getting that information only twice a year would severely limit my knowledge of those companies. Many small and medium size companies do not have analyst coverage by any of the major financial data organizations such as Value Line and Morningstar. Please consider the smaller individual investor and our limited access to information about company performance upon which we rely to make solid investment decisions.

Julia Hartfelder — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Julia Hartfelder I do not think it would be wise to drop quarterly reporting of financial information for companies. Investors need this information to make sound decisions on companies. Half the reviewed, certified financial filings we get each year would disappear. A 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. It would not be a wise decision to not require these filings. I am against dropping the quarterly reporting for public companies. I would like quarterly reporting to be required of all public companies now and in the future.

Julie Meador — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Julie Meador - File Number S7-2026-15 I have been a member of BetterInvesting for over 20 years and am an individual investor. I use company 10-Q reports and other quarterly reports to make investment decisions every quarter. I do not believe we should let companies off from reporting on a quarterly basis. We need transparency. File Number S7-2026-15

Justin — May 27, 2026
Subject: Investor opposition to S7-2026-15 From: Justin Affiliation: May 27, 2026 Hello whoever reads this.

I am Justin,
A middle aged working professional that is almost exclusively invested in US companies and index funds.
If this proposal goes through I will have to reallocate a large percent or all of my retirement savings from US based companies and index funds to international ones. I will not be investing in companies that can go quiet on reports for half a year at a time and leave me in the dark in regards to latest information. There is no profit percent that is worth the risk of 6 months of no news.
Every month I currently put a large section of income into US stocks and if I have so little visibility In the companies then I can not trust the information I have in such a rapidly changing environment that currently exists.

Thank you for your time and hope this does prevent this horrible proposal.

Sincerely,
Justin

Kali Lawson — May 27, 2026

Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Kali Lawson Affiliation: May 27, 2026 Dear SEC,

This rule benefits insiders at the expense of ordinary investors.
Sincerely yours,
Kali Lawdragon

Karen Steige — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Karen Steige As an individual investor, I utilize these reports to make decisions for my investment portfolio. A lot can happen in a 3 month period that affects these decisions. Obviously it is up to the individual companies to determine their reporting periods, but I would expect that any business that is publicly traded has the automation and resources to continue quarterly SEC reporting. I can't imagine they get a huge lift from removing two reports per year.

Karl Lawrence — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Karl Lawrence I urge the SEC to leave well-enough alone. Quarterly reports are good for transparency. Besides, the "increased regulatory flexibility" that supposedly justifies the change is not borne out by research on the subject.

Ken Heil, Personal Investor — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ken Heil As an individual investor I also work with investment clubs and I oppose the SEC’s proposal to replace quarterly reporting with semiannual reporting. Quarterly reports are important for tracking portfolio holdings, evaluating new opportunities, and making informed decisions throughout the year. Waiting six months for updated financial information I would be using old information. For investment clubs, these reports also support group analysis, investor education, and more thoughtful discussion about company performance and risk. If reporting is reduced to twice a year retail investors like myself and clubs will have less timely public information while the institutional investors will not loose much due to their deeper and more connected resources and access to the companies. This proposal would weaken transparency and make it harder to identify problems early, so the Commission should reject it and preserve quarterly reporting.

Kevin D. Carey — May 27, 2026
Subject: Proposed rule S7-2026-15 From: Kevin D. Carey Affiliation: May 27, 2026 CaryDear SEC Staff,
I urge the Commission to withdraw S7-2026-15.
Willa

L. Catherine Sisk — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: L. Catherine Sisk It is critical to continue to require companies to file quarterly reports, for investors and interested parties to analyze company's data - twice a year is not adequate =

Latoya Edwards — May 27, 2026
Subject: Comment: S7-2026-15 From: Latoya Edwards Affiliation: May 27, 2026 To the Members of the Securities and Exchange Commission,
The proposed rule weakens investor protection.
Sincerely yours,
Latoya Edwards

Sent from my iPhone

Lauren Gaunt, Private Investor — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lauren Gaunt I am a private, individual investor and, if this proposal is enacted, half of the required, reviewed and certified financial filings I get each year would disappear. This is unacceptable! I understand a 10-Q filing is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. However, any voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. Further, I understand the SEC's own data show that individual investors own the majority of shares in smaller public companies. And these smaller companies seem to me most likely to take the new option herein proposed. I would lose the most information about exactly most of the companies I own. This is unacceptable! Lastly, I understand when the SEC previously reviewed this in 2018-2019 the empirical research record all opposed it and the SEC declined to act. Please decline to act again on this proposal. Thank you.

Leigh Vaughan — May 27, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Leigh Vaughan Affiliation: May 27, 2026 Hi SEC,
As a long term 80 year old, American citizen, and investor, I want to add my comment and objection to the recent consideration of only allowing USA public companies to file quarterly updates only every 6 months instead of every 3 month!

Long-term and short-term investors rely on the continued, every 3 month transparency of public companies' requirement to update their quarterly accounting data, and future outlooks. Six months is too long without the required release of pertinent and trade-sensitive information!

Please do not change the current requirement for Quarterly Reporting! Thank you,

Leigh Vaughan
[REDACTED]

Lori Carroll — May 27, 2026
Subject: Opposition to S7-2026-15 From: Lori Carroll Affiliation: May 27, 2026 Stop this vote,you will be screwing your investors...

Lori Carroll — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: lori carroll Stop this vote,you will be screwing your investors...

Mark Metzing — May 27, 2026
Subject: RE: PROPOSED RULE S7-2026-15 From: Mark Metzing Affiliation: May 27, 2026 To whom it may concern,
Please keep statements on a quarterly basis. It is the only window that a small investor has into the current state of any particular company.
Thank you for protecting the average investor as well as other corporations.

Sincerely, Mark Metzing

Marshall McDade Jr. — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Marshall McDade Jr. Quarterly reporting requirement should remain. Changing to semi-annual or even annual reporting does not provide the investing public with timely and relevant information for making investment decisions. It would further lessen the information available to the small investor compared to professional investors that have greater access to SEC corporations.

Michael Fleming — May 27, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Michael Fleming Affiliation: May 27, 2026 I am a middle class, private investor, who does not pay investment advisors for their opinion because I want to keep more of the money I earn. When I invest in a company, I do so because I research the company myself and I am able to tell you exactly why I invested in it. I don't invest in a company just because an investment advisor tells me it's "hot".

The only way I have of learning about a company is through their QUARTERLY, audited and certified financial filings. If the SEC allows companies to reduce their filing to two a year, private investors will be kept in the dark. That leaves the companies and brokerage house more latitude to game the system by releasing misleading or totally false information to the financial press without any real way of checking their financials to see if what they say is plausible.

Please do not reduce the number of filings.

Respectfully,

Gabriele Fleming
[REDACTED]

Michael Maglothin — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael Maglothin Keep it quarterly... I'm sure the boards of those companies are not letting management report semi yearly. Also, a 6 month cadence gives a huge advantage to institutions and insiders. It also gives companies more opportunity to wait on bad news, which is another advantage to institutions and insiders because they can react faster than individuals

---

Michael Zawitkowski, NAIC — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael Zawitkowski I strongly oppose the move to only collect information from companies on a half year basis instead of quarterly. It is hard enough to get information about the companies. In the private market no responsible investor and fiduciary would check in on their investments only twice yearly, in fact there are institutional investors that expect monthly updates. Companies are not required to put themselves on the public market to allow outsiders to speculate, but if they do they should honor the responsibility to provide more information, not less. Furthermore, we are living in a world where markets and trends are fluctuating more quickly, not slowing down. In the words of the late Donella Meadows: “If I could, I would add an Eleventh Commandment: Thou shalt not distort, delay, or sequester information. You can drive a system crazy by muddying its information streams. You can make a system work better with surprising ease if you can give it more timely, more accurate, more complete information.“ and in the words of the great Edward Deming: “In God we trust; all others bring data.” Please do not create a world where information is delayed, untimely, and untrustworthy. If you do, I will be forced to move my investments off the public stock exchanges to other vehicles that provide more timely reporting for key decision making.

Michelle Lewis — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michelle Lewis Commissioners, I am writing to oppose the proposal to allow public companies to reduce financial reporting from quarterly to semiannual filings. As an individual investor and someone who works with investors, I rely heavily on quarterly financial data to evaluate companies, monitor performance, assess risk, and make informed investment decisions. Quarterly reports provide timely, reviewed, and certified information that helps maintain transparency and confidence in the markets. A Form 10-Q is not simply a voluntary corporate update. It is reviewed by independent auditors, signed personally by the CEO and CFO, and subject to legal accountability. Replacing these filings with less formal communications would reduce the quality, reliability, and consistency of information available to investors. This change would especially harm individual investors, who often own shares in the smaller public companies most likely to stop quarterly reporting. Less frequent reporting means less transparency precisely where investors need it most. The SEC previously considered and declined similar changes, and major investor organizations and research strongly opposed reducing reporting frequency. Those concerns remain valid today. Transparent and timely disclosure is essential to fair and efficient markets. I respectfully urge the Commission to reject this proposal and preserve quarterly reporting requirements for public companies. Sincerely, Michelle Lewis

---

Mutual Fun Investment — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mutual Fun Investment Quarterly reports, independently audited should remain firmly in place to maintain the proper accountability that is a minimal standard for the industry. A strong NO to eliminating these and going to a voluntary reporting system.

Nancy Ambrose — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Nancy Ambrose Why do you want to give us less important information to work with? Are you siding with the big companies? That will make them happy.

Pamela Pappas — May 27, 2026
Subject: Comment letter on S7-2026-15 From: Pamela Pappas Affiliation: May 27, 2026 To the Honorable Commissioners, Please STOP.
It seems like the biggest money always gets the biggest opportunities to change the rules.
If a new law, or change of any kind does not protect and keep every investor current on all happenings within the company, don't do it. Are you really considering opening a door that will allow corruption by rule and law?
Honorable Commissioners? By your deeds you shall be known.
Pamela Pappas

Sent from my iPhone

Patricia A McGarrity — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Patricia A McGarrity As an individual investor for many, many years, I have relied on quarterly reports for timely news about the companies I invest in. Semiannual repots just do not cut it. It gives the company or its officers six months to hide their shenanigans!!!!

Patricia Ann Murray, Assistant Professor of Management/Marketing, Retired — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Ann Murray I oppose the SEC allowing public companies to file financial reports twice a year instead of quarterly. In doing so we would lose the most information about exactly the companies we own, thus, hampering decision making.

Philly Fofo — May 27, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Philly Fofo Affiliation: May 27, 2026 I am firmly against changing the SEC quarterly reporting requirement. It would cause financial hardship to all investors. Quarterly information provides the investor with current information; if that is changed to semi-annual, the investor does not have time to react. Please do not allow this proposed change to occur.

Best Regards,
Phil Fodera CPA

Port Engineering Consultants — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Port Engineering Consultants Please reject this proposal.

Raymond Mendoa — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Raymond Mendoa I would like to see quarterly reports as we have seen on a regular basis.

Richard Rinvelt — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Richard Rinvelt I am an individual investor and use the quarterly reports extensively. My concern is that many smaller companies will not report quarterly because of this proposed change in reporting. This will put many of the individual investors at a disadvantage. We use these quarterly reports as a means to see the progress of the small and medium size companies that we invest in. If I don't have current information (Quarterly reports) I will not be investing as much as I am now because I will not have current and up to date information on the company.

Robert Hec — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robert Hec As an investor quarterly reporting is critical to my keeping up to date with the developments within companies. Keeping management accountable is critical to assessing turnarounds, strategic developments, and acquisitions in a timely factor. Already reporting is 30 to 60 days delayed from actual quarter dates. This would delay updates to 7 months. Justifying the daily actions in the market will suffer with this delay. Thank you for accepting my comments.

Roger Scott, Registered Investment Advisor and CFP — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Roger Scott I and other professionals and the public rely on mandated quarterly reports to keep our analysis up to date. Please do not change existing policy.

Ronald Axler, Individual Investor — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ronald Axler Quarterly statements have been required for decades without the world coming to an end. Originally, much of the work producing them was done manually. Today we have super fast computers to help the process, so the burden have been greatly diminished. To eliminate such requirements only serves to help those who want to deceive keep others i the dark longer. If anything, stronger demands should be taken to make officers of companies personally liable for misrepresentations. Fining companies doesn't affect those who cause the misdeeds.

Sheryl R Carter — May 27, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sheryl R Carter Quarterly reports gives me an ideal of how the company is doing sooner than later.

Stephen Koch, Individual Investor — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: stephen koch As an individual investor I rely on quarterly company reports for accurate and up to date financial information. Making these reports available only two times per year will reduce the timeliness of these financial reports and therefore reduce accuracy of investment decisions on my part. Please keep things the way they currently are. Thank you.

Stephen Soffron — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Stephen Soffron I want quarterly reporting of financial performance to stay as it is. With the sped the economy is changing I think 6 month intervals are not enough to keep on top of things

---

Steve Anderson — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steve Anderson As a long-term investor, this idea for reform misses the mark. I often review specific quarter to quarter changes in business operations to guide long-term investment decisions. Rolling back modern quarterly reports to some perceived older ideal reduces the timeliness of available information and materially impairs the quality of available information. If, after several decades of quarterly reports, we find pieces of quarterly reports to be burdensome and repetitive (a premise which is hard to dispute), the Commission serves my interests as an investor by pursuing initiatives to make quarterly reporting both less burdensome to the business and more useful to the investor, not by eliminating them. In my opinion, the Commission should leverage modern abilities to process information to seek ways to make more and better information available more quickly and more streamlined for investors, rather than reverting to older eras in which less information was available. After receiving public comments, the Commission should not go backwards to a semiannual reporting structure.

Steve Satterlee — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steve Satterlee I am a retired individual and I manage a significant portion of my investment portfolio. I am opposed to modifying the current system of quarterly financial reports from publicly traded corporations. The information in this system is critical to me in my investment decisions. I don’t have other resources that I can use and trust to made sound judgement for my retirement income. Please do not change the current system of verified, accurate, quarterly reports.

Susan Kelty, Investment Club Treasurer — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Susan Kelty I believe quarterly reports are crucial in looking up potential stocks or managing currently held stocks. It's good for the companies and good for investors. Mistakes or bad decisions can be more evident and any correction that needs to be made can be accomplished more quickly. Quarterly reports increases transparency.

Tariq Qari — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Tariq Qari We need the surly reports

---

Teresa Martinez — May 27, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: SEMIANNUAL REPORTING PROPOSAL From: Teresa Martinez Affiliation: May 27, 2026 No de y infusesTo the Honorable Commissioners,
Please keep quarterly reporting requirements in place.
Sincerely, Teresa Martinez

Thelma — May 27, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Thelma Affiliation: May 27, 2026 As an investor, I want to be able to read quarterly reports on my investments. Financial markets & trends can be read more accurately with quarterly reporting. These companies have investor's money, & they (companies) have an obligation to inform their investors on the company's performance frequently (quarterly).
Thank you. T. Meltzer
Sent from my iPad

Vernon Ramsey — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Vernon Ramsey The elimination of Semi-Annual A 10-Q Reporting is a blatant ploy to put individual investors at a disadvantage. Use of quarterly provided data is critical for timely of investment trends, (positive/negative); limits timely generation and review of TTM. In addition, these documents, signed by the CEOs and CFOs eliminates plausible deniability of financial position. Quarterly A 10-Q Reports highlights trends, (the Canary-in-the-Coal Mine, that indicate changes in business performance; financial strength; company management direction/concerns/changes; risk factors the business face or has solved; litigation (ongoing or anticipated). All of these factors decide whether additional investment is made; taken under advisement; or shares are sold. With potentially trillions of dollars held in: Stock Funds (EFT/ETF); 401(k); 457(b); Thrift Savings; Roth Accounts; 529 Funds; Individual Portfolios, much of this managed by Fund Managers (whom we are left to trust) Clear, concise information is essential for reasonable investor and investing safety. Families, individuals, Trusts are relying on these investments for potential future income, retirement; education costs; charitable gifting; living costs; principle home purchase; legacy sources. Removal of reporting requirements that help these entities assess risk, diversify assets, and build financial potential in their households and communities does not and will not engender confidence or trust in our Nation's financial strength, stability and corporate information. Prior efforts, in 2018-2019, where the Commission declined to follow through on the submission and a United Kingdom 2014 study, (where 90% of companies continued Reporting by choice), are examples of the confidence and informational valueinvestors place in these mandatory reporting forms.

William J. R. Cole, Better Investing — May 27, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: WILLIAM J. R. COLE File Number S7-2026-15 Gentlemen: I encourage you to keep the current quarterly SEC filing requirements for all publicly traded companies, and NOT to reduce such filing requirements to a semi-annual basis. Protecting the public's interests in audited, fairly-stated financial reports on a quarterly basis allows for discovery of any fraudulent financial activities more quickly and gives myriad individual investors the opportunity to review a company's financial health more often. Thank you for considering my comments. William J. R. Cole, Individual Investor and Lifetime Member of Better Investing.

Adam Hesseltine — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Adam Hesseltine Please maintain quarterly reporting. As a small investor semi annual will ensure I do not have the information I need to make investment choices. Global semi annual reporting is not showing well and has hid major frauds

---

Anne Milliken — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anne Milliken I oppose allowing companies to opt out of quarterly reporting. There is no benefit to investors or stakeholders who are not corporate insiders. The savings to companies come at too high a cost to this country as it will enable fraud annd encourage insider trading. Be responsible to the public, not corporate lobbyists.

Anonymous — May 26, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 26, 2026 I understand the SEC has proposed allowing the public companies to file financial reports twice a year instead of quarterly. I have been a member of an Investment Club for 31 years and we update our stock reports quarterly, based on the quarterly reports. We use these reports to decide which stock/stocks we want to invest in or which stocks we may want to sell. By dropping our information down to twice a year, you would really impact our decision making when we purchase and or sell stocks. We need current information to make informed decisions. We would loose over half of the reviewed, certified financial filings annually if this is approved. It is my understanding that currently, the 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. As I said before, we need good, current information to make good investing decisions, as a small investor, I request that you DO NOT approve this proposal.

Thank you,

Anonymous — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous As a citizen of this great country and an investor having even less visibility on companies in an environment that is already under heavy scrutiny from corruption is a terrible idea that seeks only to harm those not in the know. In my personal life I am a cost analyst for an oil and gas company and quarterly reporting is extremely important to help catch issues before they bloom out of control. Having semi-annual reporting means issues that could have serious negative effects on companies could fester and spread like rot without anyone being none the wiser. It is far more likely that this shift to a semi-annual reporting would have a grander negative effect on this great country than any of the proposed upsides being presented by its supporters. I would even go so far as to say I would strongly recommend that we move in the opposite direction going so far as to call for monthly reporting. This is of course a rather extreme change and simply my personal opinion, but not that much more extreme than what is being suggested here. I submit this comment with my full support against amendment: S7-2026-15, Semiannual Reporting and pray that it does not come to fruition. Sincerely, A citizen of the United States of America

---

Barbara Geistwhite — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Barbara Geistwhite I am against reducing the number of SEC filings to two per year. Please continue quarterly filings.

Claude Hudson — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Claude Hudson I'm a "BUY and HOLD" investor. I'm opposed to semiannual reporting. I've owned stocks that report semiannually, Roche, European banks, et. al., and it puts stock investors at a disadvantage. If the company has a problem, the investor might wait 6 to 7 months before learning about it! Meanwhile insiders start to SELL! If you want to promote stock ownership, quarterly TRANSPARENCY is CRITICAL!

Common Sense Investors of Southern California — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Common sense investors of Southern California As an investment club having the most recent data is essential in helping the club members determine which stocks to invest in.

Daniel Guidos — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Guidos United States of America. Transparency of impact to society needs to grow and not deminish. That which is done in obscurity leads to tyranny.

Dave Larsen — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dave Larsen As an individual investor I rely on quarterly reports to make investment decisions. Cutting this information in half is not helpful. I strongly urge you to continue with quarterly reports.

David Tucker — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Tucker Quarterly reports are currently the only opportunity to "talk" to your company in an official capacity. Four times a year should be a minimum obligation from companies and their directors. The six month plan is a bad idea and will make citizens less likely to invest.

Edward Schipp — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Edward Schipp Please retain the current practice of quarterly reporting. Especially given the current economic climate, more frequent reporting is essential. The proposed rule will leave investors too long in the dark between reporting periods.

Eric Bonner — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Eric Bonner Please keep the reporting period for every quarter.

Eric G. Brass — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Eric G. Brass Please do not reduce quarterly reports to two times a year. We, as investment club members, rely on this data to make the best possible decisions, in time, on when to purchase and sell shares of stock. Quarterly reports help keep corporate management on course when making investment decisions that impact shareholders, employees, and the public in general.

Evan Trager — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Evan Trager I've worked in finance and am an individual investor; quarterly reporting is critical for transparency and investor due diligence, especially for smaller companies to ensure small investors are not left at a disadvantage; for instance an emerging biotech could increase (or decrease) in value 10x over a quarter, let alone in a longer time period. While non scheduled events would not be directly impacted, more casual investors may only become aware of them during earnings.

George Craig — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: George Craig I use the quarterly SEC reports to determine my investment portfolio purchases & sales. These SEC filings hold the Companies Top Executives to be accountable so we do not have another Enron. I vote NO to reducing the SEC quarterly filings requirements. Thank you,

---

Glenn Kewley — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Glenn Kewley To Whom It May Concern at the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission: I am writing as an individual retail investor to express my strong opposition to any proposed rule that would reduce the frequency of public company financial reporting from quarterly to semi-annual. Quarterly reporting has long served as a cornerstone of market transparency and investor protection. Reducing this cadence to twice per year would leave investors without timely insight into a company’s financial health for extended periods - six months or more - during which material changes in revenue, earnings, debt levels, and operational performance could go undisclosed. For individual investors who lack access to the proprietary research and private management channels available to institutional players, quarterly filings are often the primary source of reliable, audited information on which investment decisions are made. This change would disproportionately harm retail investors. Large institutional investors, hedge funds, and analysts have the resources and relationships to gather informal intelligence between reporting periods. Everyday investors do not. Reducing disclosure frequency would widen this information asymmetry and undermine the Commission-s core mission to protect investors and maintain fair, orderly, and efficient markets. Furthermore, quarterly reporting serves as a meaningful check on management accountability. More frequent disclosure discourages earnings manipulation, provides earlier warning of financial distress, and gives investors the data needed to hold company leadership responsible for stated strategies and guidance. I respectfully urge the Commission to reject any proposal that diminishes the frequency of financial reporting and to preserve the quarterly reporting standard that has served investors and markets well for decades. Thank you for considering my comments.

Gordon Stangler — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Gordon Stangler This change only benefits corporations, it does not allow investors to look into the company financials. This is a bad idea

---

Gregory Hopkins — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Gregory Hopkins I wish to state my concerns about the proposed semiannual reporting. I feel it is vitally important that public companies continue to report quarterly. This transparency is needed.

Jack Jacob — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jack Jacob I think the proposed decrease in financial reporting would put individual investors like myself at a disadvantage. I invest in small companies that would become less transparent.

James Cornell — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: James Cornell As an individual investor for 50 years and member of an investment club for 20 years, I depended heavily on quarterly financial reports both for the financial data as well as for the comments from management about their business and industry. Semi-annual and annual data does not always show the seasonal trends or early indicators of trouble ahead. At one time our investment club held shares in a company headquartered in France where only semi-annual financial data was required. Eventually, we felt the lack of transparency was not worth the risk of holding that investment. Please do not place that handicap on investors in US stocks. Keep our public companies as transparent as possible. It will ensure that their shares are regarded in the best possible light - quarterly light.

John Suvari — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Suvari Do not permit the passing of the rule which will allow for bi annual reporting.

Jordan Brandt — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jordan Brandt The fact that this has even been proposed is a shameful commentary on America in 2026. The SEC should not take any action that increases corruption and leaves investors in the dark. Any corporation that doesn't want to report every three months shouldn't have the privilege of being listed.

Julia Sawabini — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Julia Sawabini, Individual This is a terrible proposal. Every investment club in America counts on quarterly reports to review and analyze companies in their portfolios. We are individual investors who count on companies having to be accountable.

Karen Mariani-Mondala — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Karen Mariani-Mondala Please reconsider your plan to require companies to file financial reports to you only twice a year. This would undermine the financial transparency we rely on when deciding whether to add to our current stock holdings or whether to invest at all. Every quarter we review the SEC financial fillings for the companies in our stock club portfolio which we began in 1998. We have managed to grow that self managed portfolio to over a million dollars! It would not have been possible without having access to good financial records that were submitted to the SEC. We count on these for accuracy and transparency! Please, do not weaken the financial oversight for our country by removing the requirement that companies report quarterly earnings to The Security and Exchange Commission!!! We small retired investors are relying on you!!! Thank you for the fine financial oversight service you have provided for years. Please continue your important contribution to our country's financial integrity and its citizens wealth building opportunity!!!

Katherine Philiipp — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Katherine Philiipp I've been buying individual stocks for more than 45 years. Most of my $1m+ retirement account is in individual stocks. I research companies for investment and update the data quarterly. I really on quarterly reports for analysis and STRONGLY OBJECT to this proposal to go to semiannual reporting.

Keith DeSonier — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Keith DeSonier I review my Bank accounts monthly. I review my Finacial info monthly I review my stock companies every 3 months Please, don,t take that info away from me. Half the reviewed, certified financial filings we get each year would disappear. A 10-Q is reviewed by independent auditors, and the CEO and CFO sign it personally and can be held legally accountable for its contents. The voluntary corporate communications that would replace them carry none of that. The Commission's own data show that individual investors own the majority of shares in smaller public companies, the ones most likely to take the new option. We would lose the most information about exactly the companies we own. The SEC has been here before. When the Commission considered this in 2018-2019, the CFA Institute, the Council of Institutional Investors representing about $4 trillion in long-term assets, and the empirical research record all opposed it. The Commission declined to act. The UK ran the experiment in 2014, and more than 90 percent of UK public companies continued to file quarterly reports on their own when they had the choice.

Ken Black — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ken Black This half year reporting concept is absurd and harmful to individual investors. There is not a true global standard and countries that have implemented it have had poor results to the point where some are thinking of restoring the quarterly reporting rules. The SEC is supposed to be representing the individual investors' rights, not enabling corporations to hide potentially upsetting news from us.

LeRoy Kester — May 26, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: LeRoy Kester Affiliation: May 26, 2026 I respectfully urge you to continue to require that a companies file their 10-Q reports quarterly. Too many variables can more often than quarterly significantly change the financial results of organizations. Individual investors like me greatly rely on the quarterly reports of every publicly traded investment.
LeRoy Kester
Story City, Iowa

Sent from my iPad

Linda McMahon — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Linda McMahon I urge you not to change corporate financial reporting to twice year. Please keep it quarterly so I can study the companies I invest in! This is vital to my investing.

Lou M. — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lou M. Quarterly reporting has been the way it's done for decades and there's no good reason to change that other than to keep regular investors in the dark and allow institutions and corporations to perpetrate all kinds of fraud. PLEASE KEEP QUARTERLY REPORTING!!!!

Margery L. Melvin, Golden West Chapter of Better Investing — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Margery L. Melvin I do not support changing corporate reporting requirements from quarterly to biannual reporting. Biannual reporting is not often enough for individual investors to be fully apprised of a company's financial health. Not being fully apprised of a company's financial health would seriously limit opportunities for investors like me to invest. I do not support this and ask the SEC to maintain quarterly reporting requirements for all companies on the exchange.

Mark Logan — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mark Logan Do NOT allow companies to go to semi annual reporting. Keep the quarterlies!

Max Dornfest — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Max Dornfest I would like to submit a longer writeup. For now, while on my phone, I will say: please keep quarterly reporting. I invest, so as an investor and physicist, please recognize that more data is better and confidence in the marketplace having correct information is a key component of why US markets have been successful.

Michael L. Smith — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael L Smith Please keep it the way it is, having companies file quarterly.

Mukul Kumar, Investor — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: MUKUL KUMAR We need more visibility, not less. Please keep the quarterly three-month reporting period as it is very important for transparency.

Nannette Steele — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Nannette Steele I don't make enough on SSI to get in the market. I think the big wigs need to be held accountable to the public for their stocks and if quarterly monitoring is the way it has to be then I say so be it!!

Patrick Klune — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Patrick Klune Id like to continue quarterly reporting

---

Ram Medavarapu — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ram Medavarapu It is not a good decision to let companies report every 6 months. A lot of things can happen in a 6-month period and small investors don't get to hear from company management thereby missing out on valuable information. You could argue that less reporting requirements will make companies think long term but I am highly skeptical of that proposition. Quarterly reporting helps companies get instant feedback via market price signals and not engage in dubious activities. It is understandable from a company's perspective where management would like less reporting regulations but individual investors can be the losers because of the gap in communication. Also, companies could loose too because they might not be able to attract knowledgeable and long-term investors. All said, leave the reporting requirements as they are and lessen the burdens on the amount of documentation they have to report. For example, annual reports have gone from 80 pages to 170 pages or longer in the recent 10 years.

Roberto Hernadez — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Roberto Hernadez I as an American Citizen and Investor am 100% against this proposal. This dramatic reduction in transparency gives company insiders a massive informational advantage over ordinary shareholders, who would have far fewer data points to detect deteriorating financials, accounting irregularities, or strategic missteps before they cause serious losses. Far from reducing meaningful compliance burden, since the heavy lifting of auditing, internal controls, and financial statement preparation happens on a rolling basis regardless of reporting frequency. The rule primarily serves to obscure corporate performance, undermining the core investor protection mission the SEC was created to fulfill.

Steven Johnson — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steven Johnson NO! Good investing requires continuous monitoring of the financial health of a business. Quarterly reports are the LEAST a publicly traded company can do to facilitate this evaluation. Shouldn't good managers be using computer technologies to reduce the cost of compliance? Companies, such as Oracle, brag about that on their earning conference calls... Don't change the requirement!

Steven Lester — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steven Lester In a time when corporate and political corruption is at its highest and you want to give major corporations more of a chance to lie and cheat and cover up malfeasance? That is total horse hockey!!

Steven Siegel — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steven Siegel We should continue with quarterly reporting, twice a year reporting leaves the investor in the dark.

Tim Hegstrom — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Tim Hegstrom Quarterly reports are important to shareholders, especially with respect to small companies.

Wes Bratton — May 26, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Wes Bratton Please do not stop quarterly Reporting by Companies. They are very helpful to me and our stock club in evaluating how the company and more importantly management is doing. IF reported only 6 month there would be too long a period between reports and not enough timely responsiveness on how well the company is being managed.

Amy Sommers — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Amy Sommers Keep the QUARTERLY REPORTING requirements NO Seminannual reporting

---

Anonymous — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous I am a retail investor and I rely upon quarterly reporting to make decisions regarding my retirement savings and investments. I am concerned that changing this cadence of reporting will open up the possibility of fraud or abuse.

Anthony Ventriglia — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Clifton Hosmer I do not think this is beneficial or a wise move, this is going to destroy peoples ability to make informed decisions. This also is not good for accountability of management and is just a generally bad idea. Companies need to report four times a year to keep them honest.

Carol Schlund — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Carol Schlund I don't think semiannual reporting would be in the best interest of the smaller investors. It would be asking them to blindly trust that their investment is going to be worth more than the previous period. When in reality they will have to bear the weight of a decrease that quarterly reports would have let them escape with minimal risk. Bad, bad idea!

Chris Locallo — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Chris Locallo I appreciate the opportunity to comment on the Commission's proposal to transition from quarterly to semiannual reporting. While I understand the intent to reduce compliance burdens, I believe the change would introduce significant risks to market transparency and investor protection. Quarterly reporting provides a consistent flow of information that allows the public to monitor performance trends, identify emerging risks, and evaluate management decisions with reasonable continuity. Extending the interval to six months increases the opacity of corporate operations and heightens the likelihood that material issues will go undetected for extended periods. This information gap would not be experienced equally. Insiders and sophisticated market participants often have access to alternative channels of insight - industry data, supply-chain signals, private communications, and other non-public indicators - that allow them to anticipate developments well before the public disclosures. As a result, semiannual reporting would widen information asymmetries and increase the probability of abrupt, outsized market reactions when disclosures finally occur. These dynamics undermine the Commission's longstanding commitment to fair, orderly, and efficient markets. For these reasons, I respectfully urge the Commission to retain the quarterly reporting framework to ensure that all investors have timely access to material information.

Clifton Hosmer — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Clifton Hosmer I do not think this is beneficial or a wise move, this is going to destroy peoples ability to make informed decisions. This also is not good for accountability of management and is just a generally bad idea. Companies need to report four times a year to keep them honest.

Cyrus James Stombaugh — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Cyrus James Stombaugh I oppose the proposal to switch from quarterly to semiannual reporting. Six months is too long for investors to go without updated financial information, especially when a company's situation can change quickly. Reducing paperwork for companies shouldn't come at the cost of transparency. Keeping quarterly reports helps protect everyday investors and keeps markets informed.

David Moore — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Moore Keep quarterly reporting

---

Giuseppe Sindoni — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Giuseppe Sindoni I do not support S7-2026-15 nor the intention to change currently quarter reporting via Form 10-Q. Any changes to elongate or alter quarterly reporting requirements undermine the very investor the SEC was built to protect. It is imperative quarterly reporting remains unaltered.

Jackie Cohen — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jackie Cohen Require quarterly reporting

---

KEH — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: KEH I'm a retail investor and I rely on quarterly reports to make decisions about my retirement savings. If the big primes have access to early reporting then keep the quarterly report schedule. It also appears the semi-annual is not working well where it has been tried

---

Ozan Tuncer, Software engineer at Google — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ozan Tuncer Allowing corporate financial reporting under a semiannual schedule instead of a quarterly schedule would significantly reduce market transparency. Similar shifts in Europe showed that cutting quarterly reports does not actually improve long-term corporate investment or save meaningful costs. Instead, it simply creates a six-month information gap. Institutional investors and hedge funds have the resources to buy alternative data and estimate earnings nearly in real time. On the other hand, retail investors rely entirely on quarterly reports for their investments. Eliminating mandatory quarterly reports would increase the Wall Street's unfair informational advantage over retail investors. The SEC’s role is to ensure a fair and transparent market for all participants. I urge the SEC commission to reject this proposal and maintain the current quarterly reporting standard.

Peter Smith — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Peter Smith Please keep existing reporting schedule

---

Sarah Walker — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sarah Walker Keep the current requirement for public filings to occur quarterly. The current requirement protects the retail investor

---

Tianlang Ouyang — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Tianlang Ouyang I am writing to express my strong opposition to the SEC’s proposal to make quarterly reporting optional. As a market participant, I rely heavily on the regular cadence of quarterly disclosures to evaluate corporate performance, assess risk, and make informed investment decisions. Extending the reporting window to six months creates a massive information vacuum. This long gap inherently favors corporate insiders, who will maintain real-time visibility into operations, while leaving public investors to trade on stale, outdated information-creating an uneven playing field that undermines market fairness. Furthermore, making this rule "optional" does not mitigate its risks. The companies most likely to opt out of quarterly reporting are often the ones facing operational challenges or undergoing transitions-precisely the issuers whose investors need frequent, transparent updates the most. While reducing regulatory burdens is a notable goal, any administrative savings a company might achieve by moving to a semiannual schedule are negligible compared to the increased cost of capital, heightened volatility, and loss of investor confidence that will result. The minimal savings to corporations are simply not worth the substantial risk and cost imposed on the investing public. I urge the Commission to withdraw this proposal and maintain the quarterly reporting framework that forms the bedrock of our market's integrity.

Tiffany Bowman — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Tiffany Bowman I oppose any effort to reduce public company reporting from quarterly to twice a year. As a member of the public investing in public markets, I deserve timely access to information about the companies I invest in. Executives, institutional investors, and large financial firms will always have more access and resources than ordinary investors. Reducing required reporting would only widen that gap. Quarterly reporting helps create accountability and transparency. It gives everyday investors the ability to track performance, understand risks, and make informed decisions with reasonably current information. Going six months without mandatory reporting would make markets less fair and less transparent for the average person. Public companies benefit from public capital. In return, the public deserves regular disclosure and visibility into how those companies are performing. Please protect transparency and maintain quarterly reporting requirements.

Walter Sysak — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Walter Sysak I am writing as a retail investor to oppose the proposal allowing companies to file semiannual reports on Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q. Markets move faster every year, not slower. Cutting public reporting in half does not reduce the information a company generates. Books will still be closed monthly. This only widens the knowledge gap between insiders and retail investors. Disclosure rules exist to narrow that gap. Longer gaps between filings also concentrate price-moving information into fewer events, resulting in increased volatility. Retail investors, who depend almost entirely on public filings, will bear the brunt of that volatility. The Commission's investor-protection mandate should weigh more heavily than the filing-cost relief this proposal offers. To preserve market stability and the confidence of everyday investors, I urge the Commission to maintain the mandatory quarterly reporting schedule.

Willie Daniels — May 25, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Willie Daniels Keep it quarterly!

Anonymous — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous I feel deeply uncomfortable with this proposal as a retail investor and will greatly reduce my investments into the market more broadly should it be approved. I rely on quarterly earnings being a requirement and all companies adhering to it to determine my investment decisions and a reduction in data increases the likelihood of abuse and makes decisions on where to put my retirement and personal savings more risky to a degree I would shift away from investing in our currently known to be successful and innovative industries.

Daniel Ojeda — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Ojeda As an investor information about publicly traded companies must be provided transparently so normal investors have a window into the companies in which they invest. This modified ruling servers to obscure information, allow for more insider trading and erode trust in institutions. Entities that do not wish to be beholden to investors should remain private.

Doug Henry — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jeremiah Scepaniak Keep quarterly reporting! transparency is key to accountability and healthy markets.

Jason Brunsell, Personal Investor — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jason Brunsell I am heavily against any movement in the reporting timeline away from quarterly. As an individual investor, I will be at a severe disadvantage to institutional investors with access to more resources.

Jeremiah Scepaniak — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jeremiah Scepaniak Keep quarterly reporting! transparency is key to accountability and healthy markets.

John Hancock — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Hancock To the SEC Commissioners: I am an attorney employed by a large insurance company and asset management firm. Our organization sponsors offerings registered on Forms S-1, S-3, N-1A, N-2, and N-4. Please accept the following comments regarding the proposal to transition from quarterly Exchange Act reports to semiannual reporting. While I recognize that certain reporting obligations impose unnecessary burdens on issuers, I do not believe that reducing the frequency of transparency is the appropriate solution. Instead, I recommend requiring issuers to prepare their management discussion and analysis and provide key performance indicators, including earnings, on a quarterly basis. More comprehensive disclosures could then be provided on a semi-annual schedule. This approach would reduce burdens while preserving timely insight for investors. I would also like to address the broader discussion around revitalizing the initial public offering market. Although efforts to reduce regulatory burdens are helpful, the most impactful step to make IPOs more attractive would be to raise the accredited investor standard. Because inflation has significantly eroded the value of that threshold over more than forty years, there is now ample private capital available. As a result, many issuers no longer need to access the public markets. Additionally, permitting retail oriented investment funds to hold substantial private assets further reduces the necessity of going public. Today, companies are driven to pursue IPOs primarily by elevated valuations fueled by the scarcity of offerings and favorable market conditions and mostly as a windfall to those private market investors. Thank you for your consideration. Sincerely, John Hancock P.S. I am not affiliated with John Hancock/ManuLife.

Jonathan Hains, Retired — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jonathan Hains This is a very bad idea. This rule change will make US capital markets nearly 50% less efficient. Market efficiency derives from the amount of information that is publicly known to investors. Those with access to management (bankers, institutional investors, and other forms of private capital) will now benefit even MORE from the unequal access they enjoy to management teams, even after taking into account Reg FD. With less information, and less efficient markets, equity prices will need to discount a larger risk premium, which translates to lower stock valuations. That makes businesses less able to invest in productivity-enhancing investments and innovation. In a world where everything goes faster, its a very bad idea to have the flow of financial and market information go slower. Please vote to reject the proposal.

Larry D Rodgers, Private Investor — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Larry D Rodgers This is nothing more than cutting the private investors to a financial advisor. Rich keep getting richer. What about a government for the common people and not the 1%.

Matthew Namendorf, Quality Control Analyst Reverse Mortgages — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Namendorf Part of keeping a company accountable is frequency. If we allow a company to not report it's finances every quarter, we increase our risk and susceptibility to fraud.

Ravi Shah — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ravi Shah I am writing to oppose the Commission’s proposal to allow public companies to replace quarterly reporting on Form 10-Q with semiannual reporting on new Form 10-S. I respectfully urge the Commission to retain mandatory quarterly reporting for public companies. The U.S. public markets are the deepest and most trusted in the world largely because investors receive regular, standardized, comparable, and reliable information. Quarterly reporting is not just a compliance exercise but a core component of market transparency that allows investors, analysts, lenders, employees, regulators, and the public to evaluate business performance in a timely and consistent manner. The proposed semiannual option would reduce transparency at the exact moments when investors most need information. Reporting on a semiannual basis is too long in modern markets. Business conditions can change rapidly because of interest rates, tariffs, supply-chain disruptions, consumer weakness, credit conditions, litigation, cybersecurity incidents, accounting issues, customer concentration, or management execution problems. Investors should not have to wait half a year to receive standardized financial statements and management discussion from companies whose securities trade daily in public markets. The proposal also risks creating an uneven information environment. If some companies continue to report quarterly while others report semiannually, investors will have less ability to compare peer companies during the year. A company reporting only twice annually could appear less volatile or less scrutinized simply because less information is available. That does not make the company stronger; it only makes the market less informed. The SEC's own proposing release recognizes this comparability concern by asking whether investors can reasonably compare a quarterly filer to a semiannual filer when first- or third-quarter information is not available. A voluntary semiannual regime may also disadvantage retail investors. Large institutions, insiders, sophisticated funds, private lenders, and well-connected analysts may still obtain information through management access, industry data, alternative data, private conversations, or selective corporate updates. Ordinary investors are more dependent on formal SEC filings. Reducing required reporting could widen the information gap between professional and retail market participants. The likely substitute for quarterly reports would not be silence; it would be less standardized disclosure. Companies would still face market pressure to provide updates, issue press releases, hold investor calls, or selectively discuss business trends. But those communications may not provide the same level of consistency, liability discipline, financial-statement structure, MD&A, risk-factor updates, or comparability as Form 10-Q. In practice, the proposal could shift the market from standardized reporting to more fragmented, company-controlled messaging. I understand the concern that quarterly reporting may contribute to short-term thinking. But eliminating or weakening quarterly reporting is not the right solution. The better distinction is between quarterly reporting and quarterly earnings guidance. The SEC can discourage excessive short-term earnings guidance without reducing the required financial disclosures that investors rely on. Long-term business planning and quarterly transparency are not mutually exclusive. A well-run company should be able to pursue long-term strategy while still providing investors with timely quarterly financial information. The compliance cost argument should also be weighed carefully. Public companies receive significant benefits from access to public capital markets, including liquidity, valuation, credibility, and broad investor participation. In return, they should meet a baseline level of public transparency. For many investors, quarterly reporting is part of the bargain of investing in public securities rather than private businesses. If the Commission is concerned about smaller companies or newly public companies, it could consider targeted relief rather than a broad semiannual option available to all reporting companies. For example, the SEC could simplify certain disclosure requirements, reduce duplicative items, or provide scaled reporting relief for smaller issuers while preserving the quarterly cadence. That would address compliance burdens without materially weakening market transparency. For these reasons, I respectfully request that the Commission retain mandatory quarterly reporting on Form 10-Q. At minimum, if the Commission adopts any semiannual reporting option, it should be limited, carefully phased, and subject to investor-protection safeguards, including enhanced notice, shareholder approval or opt-out rights, clear risk disclosure, and restrictions for companies with elevated risk profiles. Public markets work best when information is timely, standardized, comparable, and broadly available to all investors. Quarterly reporting supports those goals. Semiannual reporting would move the market in the wrong direction. Thank you!

Shane Short — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Shane Short Twice a year instead of quarterly will make scam companies have plenty more time to forge, quarterly is sometimes the factor which gets them delisted. The amount of Chinese and outright fake companies and scam stocks which exist to dilute american investors is astounding, yet allowed, and now you're trying to make it even easier?

Steve Thurston, Investor — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steve Thurston Semi annual reporting means that it is much easier to manipulate and hide issues, leaving investors with less information about performance. That is exactly what the companies want - less accountability. They don't want investors to hold the execs accountable. Executives will love that policy. Investors hate it. It also makes it easier for insiders to execute manipulation strategies (check out my big new bonus), and also strategies to profit off outside betting for/against the company (which is out of control). I have been in two different national CPA firms over my career (retired now). This is giving the fox the henhouse. If you feel you must do this then I recommend scaling reporting requirements up. The smaller companies can have more leeway that the bigger ones don't get. Also, don't kid yourselves, many large companies have very advanced systems for financial tracking and they can soft close the books at any time. If anything, with modern systems, big companies should have to report top line revenues monthly. Believe me, they have the numbers already. This is the same kind of whining that car companies do when they say they can't put catalytic converters in cars or they will go broke. Just more "whine" for the regulators. Don't be suckers. Pay attention to the investors. Recognize that modern systems are basically near real time. That means there are less excuses than ever, for more excuses. Do your job.

Vikram Pillai, Retail Investor — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Vikram Pillai Please keep the reporting requirements to be quarterly to keep the existing transparency into company health. It allows investors to be better informed when making decisions.

W. Smith, Engineer — May 24, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: W. Smith Public disclosure prevents fraud from becoming systemic. As we have seen with First Brands, and the private creditors that funded it, a lack of transparency allows fraud to reach levels that threaten the entire automotive industry. Reducing reporting requirements would create a huge vulnerability in our economy.

Aaron — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Aaron This is a terrible idea. As a private investor, i depend on the quarterly financial calls to determine if it is a stock that inshould keep holding or sale. A lot can happen on 6 months, and at that point by the time i find out a stock is starting to flounder it will likely be to late. Keep reporting quarterly

---

Anonymous — May 23, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Affiliation: May 23, 2026 I have been investing as an individual since 1997 and my focus is on investing, not trading. I try to hold companies in my portfolio that are run efficiently and effectively by strong management teams, making them quality investments. I hold them for the long term and replace them when their quality erodes.

The quarterly SEC filings currently required are critical to my success. The company's financial results are the most important factor that allows me to ensure they continue to meet my expectations or that it is time to either trim or eliminate the holding in my portfolio. Moving that review to 6 months from the current 3-month time frame adds unnecessary risk in that my decisions to buy/sell/hold will take longer to reach because I must wait longer for the key financial measures important to my process.

Please keep the time frame for filing earnings reports with the SEC to 3 months.
Thank you,

Anonymous — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Your gonna lose half the investment in stocks and a lot will find a way around it and if companies comply well America info companies will lose fiat because the people will go straight crypto or ag commodity

---

Brad — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brad Keep quarterly reporting. The public needs as much of a window as possible into corporate finance. More transparency!

Dave — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dave I strongly oppose reducing public company reporting requirements from quarterly to semi-annual disclosures. Public markets function on transparency, accountability, and equal access to information. Reducing the frequency of required reporting weakens all three. Quarterly reporting provides investors with regular insight into a company's financial condition, operational performance, risks, and management decisions. Moving from disclosures every ~90 days to every ~180 days would cut formal transparency in half and leave investors operating with significantly less verified information for longer periods of time. This change would disproportionately harm individual investors. Large institutional firms can rely on analyst networks, proprietary research, and direct management access to fill information gaps. Retail investors depend far more heavily on public filings to make informed decisions. Fewer required disclosures would widen the informational advantage already held by institutions. Reduced oversight also increases the risk of problems remaining hidden longer — including deteriorating finances, governance failures, aggressive accounting practices, or material business risks. Strong reporting standards are not merely administrative burdens; they are a core investor protection mechanism. Public companies benefit enormously from access to public capital markets. In exchange, they should accept robust and frequent disclosure obligations. Accountability should increase with public ownership, not decrease. If the concern is excessive short-term market pressure, the solution is not less transparency. The solution is encouraging long-term corporate governance while maintaining strong disclosure standards that protect investors and preserve confidence in public markets.

David Desnoyers — May 23, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Desnoyers As an individual investor I want to continue to see quarterly reports. Semiannual reporting does not provide enough transparency.

David Westwater — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Westwater Do not change the reporting time periods. For corporations

---

Deone Roberts — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Deone Roberts I review stocks, both for my partnership club of investors and for my own portfolio. If you make it possible to remove company quarterly results reporting, you bind my hands from analysis that is vital to my future security. I am investing in these companies. I request that you do not remove my ability to see results on a quarterly basis. You would render me blind in my own future, which I doubt you would appreciate for yourselves.

Howard D. Tetrault — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Howard D. Tetrault I am an individual investor. I depend on quarterly company reports for timely data to assess a company's financial health and make buy-sell-hold decisions on the company's stock. Standardized quarterly reporting allows me to track a company's earnings and debt along with other financial data to determine the health of the company. It is essential as part of my decision making process as an individual investor. Semi-annual reporting will not provide me with data in time to allow me to know if the company is making poor financial decisions and will not allow me to spot red flags in time to sell the stock. Quarterly reports provide immediate insights into revenue, profit, losses, and expenses, showing if a company is meeting its goals or experiencing issues. Quarterly tracking allows me to see trends that can identify if the company is having any financial issues. Please do not change the reporting period of company financial data to semi-annual from the current quarterly reporting period.

Jeff Dyke — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Dyke DO THE RIGHT THING AND HOLD THESE COMPANIES ACCOUNTABLE TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC. TRANSPARENCY IS THE STRENGTH OF THE AMERICAN MARKET.

Jeffrey VanScyoc — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jeffrey VanScyoc Please keep the reporting quarterly, I rely on this information as I believe many others do as well. In a world that is moving faster every day the smart move would be to require reporting every other month as opposed to twice a year.

Paula Snowden, Retired — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Paula Snowden Businesses must continue to provide quarterly reports to ensure investors can assess the operations and financial status of their investments and future business opportunities.

Richard Bormett — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Richard Bormett I am opposed to this rule change. However, eliminating or replacing full quarterly reporting to just an update to the yearly revenue and earnings would be acceptable. We need timely updates to these numbers, if not quarterly then within 30 of any internal update within the organization.

Seth Adamd — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Seth Adamd Please keep quarterly reporting.

Sheri Harris — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sheri Harris Please retain the current required reporting periodicity at QUARTERLY to provide adequate visibility into businesses' health and operations. This quarterly snapshot, while already providing stale data, gives an opportunity to observe trends, both positive and negative, to influence investor decisions. Reducing the periodicity to semiannual increases investor risk with investor decisions being based on very stale performance data because out of date performance information would permit significant trends to be obscured. Certainly, reduced periodicity beyond quarterly (e.g., monthly/bimonthly) could also be beneficial, but may impose additional administrative burden upon the submitter. The current quarterly reporting period is adequate and provides no additional administrative burden upon the submitter since mechanisms are currently in place. Please retain this current quarterly reporting periodicity so as not to increase investor risk.

Stephen MacMinn — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Stephen MacMinn Six months is too long to go with no information on how the company is doing.

Zachary Viscidi, Educator — May 23, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Zachary Viscidi US equities demand a premium because of our enhanced regulatory regime. Quarterly reports are strenuous, but they also provide ample clarity and information for retail and professional investors. Moving away from a system of transparency is not in the best interest of individuals nor institutions who risk their capital.

Anonymous — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Thanks

Anonymous — May 22, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous I am opposed to the semiannual reporting. Don't change the current rules!

Brian Zee — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brian Zee Reducing the reporting requirements is reckless at best, and flat out corrupt at worst. Every single person who has worked in financial oversight, or white collar crime investigation, knows full well that this will have devastating results. I'm certain that whoever is reading this knows that as well. I emplore you to do your job and stand up for the American people instead of paving the way for financial malfeasance at a frightening scale.

Cherian — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Cherian As an investor of public companies, quarterly statement and commentaries provide better insight of how a company is doing. AI capabilities are increasing every month so having semi annual reporting is too late.

David — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Terrible terrible idea. Don't do this

---

David Schulte, Adjunct Professor, University of Missouri Kansas City Law School, Corporate Governance Class — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Corporate Governance Class, David Schulte Adjunct Professor We have studied governance principles this semester and submit the following considerations for the Commission: 1. Capital formation efficiency is based on trust. We believe that mandatory reporting engenders trust due to (a) assurance that `board oversight activities are being conducted regularly, (b) verification processes inspire confidence in the interim reports, including completeness required by a Form 10-Q, (c) the negative assurance that there is no material change is valuable, else the vacuum of information leads to uncertainty. We believe these factors among others would lead to lower trust, therefore less capital formation efficiency. 2. The necessity of boards to conduct meaningful oversight and satisfy Caremark duties requires frequent board and management engagement and enterprise risk assessment. Internal and external auditors tend to be engaged regularly in testing. The cost savings may not be as great as hypothesized, and not worth the system cost of lower trust.

Eduardo Cardenas — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Eduardo Cardenas Does no one in the government get tired of rampant corruption or is it because there are no good faith actors left? It seems that all politicians are greedy monsters like Trump. He’s a symptom of this toxic system and I wish this wasn’t so. The fact that this compliance has become more lax even after all the fraud we have seen in the past few years shows that those in charge of protecting us from bad actors, are receiving kickbacks from these same criminals while they point out new targets and shield them from the law. White collar crime should face capital punishment unless they are able to pay back the entirety of what they stole. If it’s just money, they it’s just money and they can pay it back. If not, the system has been lying to protect the predator class from any real consequences to their problem. And history has shown us that this is how the USA operates, that once you are rich enough the laws don't apply. Thank you for turning the beacon of progress and fairness in this world into another shit hold country with political violence and a delusional president. May you all rot from the wrong you've done in the world

---

James Prevo — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: James Prevo It seems to me that one of the rather important aspects of a public company is that it is required to share information about its operation honestly and "publicly". Though quarterly reporting is a lot of work, I think requiring a "uniform" set of reporting requirements is valuable in service of providing relevant, important and "timely" information to investors in companies participating in the public marketplace. In theory, this should make the public marketplace more fair and promote stability. Investors (like all humans) abhor an information vacuum and tend to make up the information to which they lack access. Conjured information is rife with inaccuracy and prone to manipulation both of which lead to instability. If a company wishes to avoid such transparency, it can always stay (or return to being) privately funded. It seems to me that the mission of the SEC is to enact rules that promote transparency and honesty in service of a stable market on which investors may rely. In my opinion, making quarterly reports optional would be counter to this mission.

Joan — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Joan Every single big corporation or company should have to file every month. Any CEO, COO, board members, government officials and any member with a political government position, affiliation, organization (privately funded or not) should also have to file separately as an individual as well, EVERY MONTH!

Judith Stanton — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Judith Stanton Keep the quarterly reporting. As a retiree living on a fixed income, quarterly reporting allows me to keep a very close eye on my investments.

Lyle Downing, Individual Investor — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lyle Downing Allowing companies 6 months between disclosures is wrong and will only increase insider trading cutting out individual investors resulting in greater risk for the have nots. This change cannot be allowed to proceed.

Matt Norris — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Matt Norris I am submitting this comment to declare my absolute opposition to the S7-2026-15 Semiannual Reporting proposal. Frankly, this is a disgusting attempt to strip away market transparency and hand even more unchecked power to corporate insiders. Reducing public company reporting from three months to six months is not a matter of streamlining or cutting red tape. It is a deliberate move to create a massive information vacuum. While retail investors, regulatory watchdogs, and the general public are left completely in the dark for half the year, corporate executives and well-connected insiders will have free rein to exploit the system. They know exactly what is going on behind closed doors, and this rule gives them a six-month runway to maneuver, trade on non-public knowledge, and shield themselves from immediate accountability. This is a total betrayal of the public trust. The market is already heavily skewed to favor the wealthy and the well-connected. We need to be demanding more transparency, tighter oversight, and greater corporate accountability. Instead, this proposal gives massive corporations a pass to hide financial mismanagement, internal crises, labor abuses, or environmental liabilities for twice as long. The SEC's core mandate is to protect everyday investors and ensure fair markets, not to act as a shield for the corporate elite who want to operate in the shadows. Rolling back transparency to benefit insiders at the expense of the public is completely unacceptable. This proposal must be rejected immediately, and quarterly reporting must remain the absolute minimum standard.

Nasser Habeeb — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Nasser Habeeb The public should have access to timely information. Do not allow semiannual reporting.

Robert Kirkpatrick — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robert Kirkpatrick Please vote NO on the S7 change from quarterly reporting to every six months. Investors deserve more information not less. This change opens the door for more corruption. If you are going to make a change increase the frequency of reporting to every month. You were hired to drain the swamp not facilitate it.

S Rosenberg — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: S Rosenberg Keep quarterly accounting. Timely financial reporting is key to a healthy stock market, where investors shape the economy to more productive outcomes. By contrast, reducing financial reporting makes it easier (thus more likely) for insider manipulations and outright deceptions that waste cash resources.

William Oldright — May 22, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: William Oldright Leave well enough alone , it is bad enough that it is three months now.

Alan Maloney, Investor — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Alan Maloney Keep reporting quarterly - lack of transparency is bad for investors AND bad for democracy!

Alejandro, Attorney — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Alejandro I oppose SEC Rule S7-2026-15. Semiannual reporting would leave retail investors blind for long stretches while institutional investors and insiders who have regular management access, paid research, alternative-data tools, and the ability to demand ad-hoc disclosures continue to receive timely information. That informational asymmetry increases the risk insiders can trade ahead of bad news, allows fraud to grow undetected longer, and shifts the modest compliance savings to executives, not the people whose retirement and college savings depend on reliable disclosure. We do not need further corruption to infiltrate our institutions of justice; weakening transparency would make accountability harder, not easier. Please keep quarterly reporting.

Amber Koel — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Amber Koel Keep reporting quarterly, 6 months only benefits those who seek to hide information from investors. Nothing about this helps investors.

Charles D — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Charles D I am vigorously opposed to the proposed Rule S7-2026-15 and any other proposal that would diminish in any way the sacred obligation of a publicly traded company to communicate with its investors on a regular basis, in good faith, with the utmost transparency. We investors rely heavily on frequent updates concerning the performance of our investments in order to make meaningful, timely decisions that impact the financial health of ourselves and our children. We have many bills to pay: rent or home mortgages, utilities, groceries, school tuition, clothing, transportation, taxes, to name but a few. As a retired physician I have no sympathy for the complaints of corporate compliance officers who decry the onerous burdens of regulatory obligations. Yes, they take time and extra effort, but they were put in place to ensure the safety of the public, especially from unscrupulous, malicious third parties. When critical decisions need to be made, more information is always better than less. During surgical procedures, the patient's vital signs are continuously monitored. Not once at the beginning and once at the end. As long as the trend of frequently reported data is acceptable, this frequency of reporting does not deter the surgeon from the initial objective or force the surgeon to concentrate on short-term goals. On the contrary, a constant awareness of the patient's condition, which if stable or improving, reassures the surgeon to continue the operation as planned and see it through to completion. What pilot would say, "I need to look at the altimeter and fuel gauge less."? A dead one. Patients, passengers, people, investors included, need to be protected by those whom we have entrusted to do it. Please do not abrogate your solemn duty to protect investors.

Dilan Paranagama — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dilan Paranagama I strongly oppose any proposal to reduce public company reporting from quarterly to semiannual reporting. Quarterly reporting provides individual and small investors with timely, consistent access to material financial information. Moving to a six-month reporting cycle would create a significant information gap. Large institutional investors, board members, insiders, and others with closer access to company management may still have greater visibility into company performance, while ordinary investors would be left waiting months for basic financial updates. This would weaken market transparency, reduce investor protection, and make it harder for small investors to make informed decisions. Public markets depend on confidence that all investors have fair and timely access to important information. Less frequent reporting could increase information asymmetry, volatility, and the risk that individual investors are disadvantaged. While reducing compliance burdens may be a valid goal, it should not come at the expense of transparency and investor protection. The SEC’s mission includes protecting investors and maintaining fair, orderly, and efficient markets. Quarterly reporting supports that mission. I urge the SEC to preserve quarterly reporting requirements for public companies.

Jeff Zehner — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jeff Zehner Please do not allow this rule to be passed. Regular transparency is why the US stock market is appealing to the world. If/when it appears as though the US stock market is too difficult to analyze, investors the world over will look to other markets. Keep it transparent quarterly!

Levonnie Hunter — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Levonnie Hunter I am very excited

---

Lewanda Walker, Laylay 75 — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lewanda Walker When is the money is coming in

---

Mayra Rodriguez Valladares, MRV Associates, Managing Principal — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mayra Rodriguez Valladares I respectfully submit my comments about the semiannual reporting proposal with a focus on banks. https : / / www . forbes . com / sites / mayrarodriguezvalladares / 2026 / 05 / 06 / the-hidden-risk-of-less-disclosure-why-banks-need-quarterly-reporting / Best regards, Mayra Rodriguez Valladares

---

Memorandum from the Division of Corporation Finance regarding a May 21, 2026 meeting with Cooley LLP — May 21, 2026
MEMORANDUM
To: File No. S7-2026-15
From: Division of Corporation Finance
Re: Meeting with Cooley LLP
Date: May 21, 2026
On May 21, 2026, staff from the Division of Corporation Finance (including Jim Moloney, Michael Seaman, Heather Rosenberger, Sebastian Gomez Abero, Duc Dang, Ted Yu, Gabriel Eckstein, Luna Bloom, Michael Arnold, Jessica Kane, Valian Afshar, Tiffany Posil, Adam Turk, Matt McNair, Ryan Milne, Jessica Ansart, Dillon Hagius, Isabel Rivera, and Joshua Gorsky) and the Office of the Chairman (Charles Lee) met with representatives of Cooley LLP (including Reid Hooper, Beth Sasfai, Justin Kisner, Madison Jones, Mark Ballantyne, Jaime Chase, Luci Altman, Katherine Denby, Camille Awono, Brenna McGuire, Heather McShea, and Shujun Tian) to discuss, among other things, the proposed rulemaking Semiannual Reporting (Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; 39-2563; IC-36140; File No. S7-2026-15).

Rebecca Lank — May 21, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Rebecca Lank This would allow a lot more corruptness if they only have to file twice a year. Not a good idea. Filing 4 times a year keeps accountability much more contained.

Robert Reed — May 21, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robert Reed Less regulation will mean more fraud, plain and simple. Quarterly reporting is better for accountability to stakeholders. Removing this requirement will mean some bad actors will get away with their bad acts for longer, with investors holding the bag.

Bonnie Sears — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Bonnie Sears No changes to government oversight. Checks and balances are essential.

Dan Jamieson — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dan Jamieson Dear SEC: I am against this rule. I am a retired investor and rely on periodic reports to stay abreast of company financial reports. Many market participants rely on 10Qs as well. Do not change the reporting requirements. Thank you.

David N. Abernathy, Jr. — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David N Abernathy, Jr. Do not undermine the public's access to information. Investors need as much information as possible. Do not put investors in the dark!

Fred Scialabba — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Fred Scialabba I would like to see reporting on a quarterly basis

---

Hayden Ramsey — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Hayden Ramsey I am writing in support of the Commission's proposed optional semiannual reporting framework. I believe the proposal represents a thoughtful modernization of the public company reporting system and could meaningfully improve operational efficiency, reduce unnecessary compliance burdens, and encourage additional companies to access the public markets. First, the current quarterly reporting structure imposes substantial administrative and financial burdens on public companies, particularly smaller issuers and emerging growth companies. Public company finance and accounting teams spend significant time each quarter preparing Form 10-Q filings, coordinating external auditors and legal counsel, drafting disclosures, reviewing internal controls, and responding to evolving regulatory expectations. While transparency remains critically important, much of this process is repetitive and resource-intensive relative to the incremental informational value provided every ninety days. Allowing companies the option to report semiannually would create meaningful efficiencies by enabling management teams to devote more time toward long-term operational execution, strategic planning, capital allocation, and innovation rather than continuous short-cycle reporting preparation. This would be especially impactful for smaller public companies that often operate with lean finance organizations and disproportionately high compliance costs relative to their market capitalization. Second, the proposal could help reduce barriers to entry for private companies considering becoming publicly listed. The cost and complexity associated with maintaining public company reporting requirements is frequently cited as a deterrent to entering the public markets. Quarterly reporting requirements contribute significantly to those costs through legal fees, accounting fees, audit review procedures, disclosure preparation, investor relations support, and internal staffing demands. An optional semiannual framework could make public market participation more accessible to growth-stage companies by lowering recurring compliance expenditures and reducing the operational strain associated with quarterly reporting cycles. Over time, this may encourage a broader and healthier public company ecosystem by making the public markets more attractive to innovative companies that might otherwise remain private. Third, the proposal recognizes that modern markets already operate within an environment of continuous disclosure. Material developments would still require timely reporting through Form 8-K filings, earnings releases, investor presentations, and other public communications. As a result, investors would continue to receive prompt disclosure regarding material events while companies gain flexibility around formal periodic reporting requirements. Importantly, the proposal is optional rather than mandatory. This preserves market-driven decision-making by allowing companies and investors to determine whether quarterly or semiannual reporting best fits a company's specific circumstances, investor base, and industry dynamics. Companies that believe quarterly reporting provides competitive advantages or better aligns with shareholder expectations would remain free to continue that practice. In my view, the proposal appropriately balances investor protection with regulatory efficiency and reflects an overdue reassessment of whether the current quarterly reporting structure remains optimally calibrated for today's public markets. Thank you for considering these comments.

James Parker — May 20, 2026
May 20, 2026
Vanessa A. Countryman
Secretary
Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street NE
Washington, DC 20549-1090
Re: S7-2026-15
Dear Ms. Countryman,
I am writing to express my strong opposition to the Commission’s proposal to transition mandatory financial reporting for public companies from a quarterly (3-month) to a semiannual (6-month) cadence. While the stated goal of this change is to reduce "short-termism" and compliance costs, the proposal fails to account for the severe informational disadvantages it imposes on retail investors and the broader risks to market stability. My opposition is based on the following points.
First, this rule change ignores the fundamental structural gap between institutional and retail investors. Small investors rely heavily on standardized, frequent quarterly reports because, unlike large institutional firms, they lack direct access to senior management. Without the 90-day pulse of Form 10-Q filings, retail investors are essentially locked out of the information loop for half the year, while large funds continue to leverage their size to gain private insights.
Second, reducing the frequency of reporting provides management with an unacceptable window to delay the disclosure of negative material news. The history of the markets shows that when companies are allowed longer gaps between public filings, bad news is often buried until it can no longer be hidden, resulting in "information dumps" that trigger extreme price volatility. This undermines the SEC's mission to maintain orderly markets.

Third, the Commission has not adequately addressed the unknown impact this change will have on derivative markets, particularly the options market. Options are vital tools for investors seeking to hedge their positions and manage risk. Option pricing and liquidity are deeply tied to the regular arrival of quarterly financial data. Extending the reporting cycle could drastically increase the cost of hedging and reduce liquidity in these essential markets.
Furthermore, I am deeply concerned that a 6-month cycle will exacerbate the exchange of material non-public information. Management frequently holds private meetings with large investors and sell-side analysts between public reporting periods. Doubling the time between public disclosures creates a dangerous six-month "blackout" for the public, during which management can provide private "color" or guidance to favored parties. This creates an environment of asymmetrical information where retail investors are systematically traded against by those with better access.
In conclusion, the proposed shift to semiannual reporting prioritizes corporate convenience over investor protection. It erodes transparency, invites market volatility, and tilts the playing field even further toward institutional players. I urge the Commission to withdraw this proposal and maintain the quarterly reporting standards that have made U.S. capital markets the most transparent in the world.
Sincerely,
James A Parker
Charlotte, North Carolina

John DiCintio — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John DiCintio I feel this is not good for the average person It shifts more power to the corrupt

---

John Horne — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Horne Report quarterly

---

John Woodriff — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Woodriff Keep companies reporting quarterly. Shareholders need to know what's happening.

M.A. — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: M.A. This is a HORRIBLE idea, will only make the market more volatile and encourage even more bad acting, while the retail investor suffers. The public doesn't want this. This does not make the US markets better. The US has already suffered irreplaceable harm on the world stage, due to this administration. This rotten idea will discourage foreign investment. Just more self-serving from the con man in the WH.

Memorandum from the Division of Corporation Finance and Division of Investment Management regarding a May 19, 2026 meeting with AIMA — May 20, 2026
MEMORANDUM
To: File No. S7-2026-15 and File No. S7-2026-13
From: Division of Corporation Finance and Division of Investment Management
Re: Meeting with AIMA
Date: May 20, 2026
On May 19, 2026, staff from the Division of Corporation Finance (including Sebastian Gomez Abero, Ted Yu, Jessica Ansart, and Joshua Gorsky), the Office of the Chief Accountant (Ryan Milne), and the Division of Investment Management (including Brian Daly, Sarah ten Siethoff, Robert Holowka, and Adele Kittredge Murray) met with representatives of the Alternative Investment Management Association (including Jiří Król, Daniel Austin, Joe Engelhard, Jennifer Wood, and Sarah Gaynor), and representatives from Citadel Securities, Carlyle, and Tiger Hill Partners to discuss, among other things, the proposed rulemakings Semiannual Reporting (Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; 39-2563; IC-36140; File No. S7-2026-15) and Form PF; Reporting Requirements for All Filers (Release No. IA-6959; File No. S7-2026-13).

Michael Castleberry — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael Castleberry As an active investor, I would prefer companies continue to submit quaterly earnings report. As a former CAO, it is my opinion that the traditional 10-Q could be greatly streamlined as follows: Eliminate note on Significant Accounting Policy, expect for changes adopted since the prior 10-K / 10-Q. Fair Value Measurement - eliminate all the boiler plate definition - refer reader to most current 10-K. Committments and Contingencies - refer reader to most recent 10-K and only discuss changes that ocurred during the current quarter. Controls and Procedures - eliminate need to say anything if there have been no changes since the last 10-K

Michael F Holmes — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael F Holmes 6 month reporting instead of the current 3 month period is a negative for us 98 percenters. It gives the 2% with inside access unfair, unequal info to "jump" the market while the rest of us are blind. It also gives troubled companies too much time to "adjust" the public picture.

Mike Scherer — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mike Scherer Keep small guy having a chance.

Shawn Lyon — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Shawn Lyon Quarterly reports create volume trading most. This creates volatility and confidence to invest in dividend based stocks. Reports that bolster discounted stocks between $10 to $20 a share could also boost a dividend increase.

Steve Carman, Individual Investor — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steve Carman This is an incredibly bad idea. The market is already manipulated and operating like the wild west. Lowering reporting to twice a year will just create more fraud and losses for the little guy. If this passes I will be inclined to close my accounts and leave the casino.

Taylor King, Retail — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Taylor king Keeping quarterly reporting is crucial in an already speculative and volatile market. Quarterly earnings reports give investors and the public a chance to see how companies are truly performing. Reducing or removing these reports would increase uncertainty, speculation, and misinformation, which could cause many investors to lose significant amounts of money. The last thing the markets need right now is less financial clarity. Quarterly reports help create accountability and allow investors to make informed decisions instead of relying on rumors or delayed information. I am 17 years old, and quarterly reports have been one of the main tools helping me understand businesses, financial performance, and the stock market as a whole. They have helped educate me as an investor and will continue to do so in the future. I ask the SEC to continue enforcing transparency and clarity in the markets by maintaining quarterly reporting requirements. Please consider the importance these reports have for investors, market stability, and financial education.

Todd Gloria — May 20, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Todd Gloria Please KEEP QUARTERLY reporting. Please do not delete investors ability to see or learn how investments are doing -- Please do NOT change to semi-annual reporting. Please deny, vote down, do not approve SEC S7-2026-15.

Andrew Dempsey — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Andrew Dempsey Investors deserve more transparency, not less. Requiring companies to report quarterly results allows investors to monitor patterns and keep a pulse on how the company is performing. Extending the reporting period will just erode investor confidence and lead to even more share price volatility on announcement days.

Anonymous — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Individual We need more accountability and controls into large corporations, not less. Reporting every 6 months is insane.

Anthony Langenstein, Individual Investor — May 19, 2026
Date: May 19, 2026
Vanessa A. Countryman, Secretary
Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street, NE
Washington, DC 20549-1090

Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 — Technical Assessment and Opposition to Proposed Semiannual Reporting Framework

Dear Secretary Countryman,

I am writing to formally log my opposition to the Commission's rule proposal to permit public issuers the option to transition from quarterly financial reporting to a semiannual reporting framework on Form 10-S. While acknowledging the Commission's intent to mitigate short-termism and lower corporate compliance costs, empirical evidence and economic principles suggest this framework will degrade market efficiency, elevate cost of capital, and exacerbate information asymmetry.

The introduction of a semiannual reporting cycle creates systemic risks across several critical vectors:

●

●

●

Erosion of the U.S. Market Gold Standard and Foreign Investment: The U.S. capital markets are globally recognized as the gold standard precisely because of our rigorous, transparent, and frequent disclosure regimes. Investors worldwide allocate capital to U.S. equities because they trust the integrity and timeliness of the data. Lowering our standards to match the less frequent reporting cycles of international markets will homogenize our ecosystem, strip away our competitive advantage, and ultimately diminish the attractiveness of U.S. markets to vital foreign direct investment.

Compounding Operational and Supply Chain Risks: In a highly interconnected global economy, operational disruptions—such as severe supply chain bottlenecks, inflationary pressures, or sudden macroeconomic shifts—develop rapidly. A six-month reporting gap ensures that these material risks will compound entirely hidden from public view. Instead of the market making orderly, continuous price discoveries based on quarterly updates, investors will be exposed to severe, delayed material shocks that disrupt portfolio risk management.

Information Asymmetry and Bid-Ask Spreads: In the fields of financial economics and market microstructure, reducing reporting frequency directly increases information asymmetry.

●

●

●

Institutional market participants possess the capital to acquire proprietary, alternative data streams to bridge a six-month information vacuum, whereas individual retail investors do not. Consequently, market makers will likely widen bid-ask spreads to protect against adverse selection, increasing transaction costs and reducing liquidity for the broader market.

Delayed Price Discovery and Volatility Clustering: Quarterly reporting facilitates continuous, incremental price discovery. Extending the reporting interval to six months will cause material structural data to compound behind a curtain of corporate confidentiality. Consequently, when earnings are finally disclosed, the price adjustment process will be discrete rather than continuous. This will result in heightened idiosyncratic volatility and severe price gaps upon announcement, destabilizing secondary market trading.

Insufficiency of Form 8-K as an Interim Substitute: The proposal relies on voluntary, interim financial disclosures furnished via Form 8-K to maintain market communication. This mechanism is structurally flawed. Disclosures under Item 2.02 or 7.01 lack the standardized presentation, mandatory GAAP reconciliations, and strict disclosure controls and procedures (DCP) inherent to Form 10-Q. Relying on fragmented, unstandardized updates diminishes comparability across peers and increases the cognitive processing burden on market analysts.

Agency Costs and Corporate Governance: Quarterly reporting acts as a vital commitment mechanism that aligns manager and shareholder incentives. Extending the reporting window increases the duration of unmonitored management discretion. This lag delays the market's ability to identify capital misallocation, operational drift, or deteriorating internal controls, thereby elevating agency costs and eroding governance discipline.

The proposed reduction in regulatory costs is heavily outweighed by the negative externalities imposed on capital allocation efficiency, market transparency, and global competitiveness. I strongly encourage the Commission to preserve the current mandated quarterly disclosure regime under Exchange Act Rules 13a-13 and 15d-13.
Thank you for analyzing these technical considerations.
Sincerely,
Anthony Langenstein
Individual Investor

Benjamin Wynne — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Benjamin Wynne Corporations shouldn't be able to hide how they're doing for six months at a time. Companies rule too much of our lives as it is. How's an investor supposed to make good decisions if they don't know how their investment is doing?

Brad Deaner — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brad Deaner This is clearly another attempt at growing the wealth gap. This only hurts normal Americans while helping businesses and private investors

---

Daniel Flatley, Retired Managing Director DLJ and Credit Suisse, Retired Partner Masthead Investment Partners, Retired Chairman, Lumeta Holdings — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Flatley I am absolutely against discontinuing quarterly reports, believing that investors should have as much information as is reasonably possible to provide without overburdening reporting companies. In that vein, I would suggest optional, significantly abbreviated, interim monthly reports combined with Congressionally approved shareholder strike suit immunization to encourage disclosure.

Dr. Fahim Mazumdar, Professor of Accounting, Yavapai College — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dr. Fahim Mazumdar Dear Members of the Commission, I unequivocally oppose any proposal to weaken mandatory quarterly reporting by replacing it with semiannual reporting. Such a change would weaken the U.S. disclosure regime, undermining investor protection, market transparency, and corporate accountability. Timely, recurring financial reporting is a cornerstone of capital market integrity-not an administrative burden. As a professor of accounting holding bachelor’s, master’s, and doctoral degrees with a concentration in accounting, and as a Certified Fraud Examiner with experience in financial reporting, forensic accounting, and corporate governance, I believe this proposal would materially increase systemic risk. It would impair the ability of investors and regulators to detect performance deterioration, liquidity stress, and fraudulent activity in a timely manner. Quarterly reporting ensures that capital allocation decisions are based on current, reliable information. Extending reporting intervals to six months would expand informational blind spots, heighten information asymmetry, and allow misstatements and governance failures to persist longer before detection. From a fraud and governance perspective, reduced reporting frequency weakens scrutiny, diminishes deterrence, and increases the opportunity to conceal adverse financial conditions. Reducing transparency does not ease reporting pressure-it simply delays when problems are uncovered and allows the consequences to become more severe. Public companies benefit from access to capital markets; in return, they owe timely and transparent disclosure. Weakening this obligation shifts risk to investors and erodes trust in market integrity. The SEC's mandate is to protect investors and ensure fair, efficient markets. Semiannual reporting is incompatible with that mandate. For these reasons, the Commission must reject this proposal. Any move to reduce reporting frequency would be a step backward for U.S. capital markets-weakening transparency, diminishing accountability, and undermining investor trust. Respectfully submitted, Dr. Fahim Mazumdar, DBA, MSA, CFE

Jermiah Dockery — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jermiah Dockery I feel like we are retail investor are going to be the last to know about a company if this law pass.

Josh Miller — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Josh Miller I oppose this. This will lead to me having less accurate information on companies that I have invested my money in. That is unacceptable. And for what? A few extra dollars for the C level. This country going in the wrong direction. Make a good decision here for once. Don't let your fellow citizens down.

Kenneth Fahndrick — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kenneth Fahndrick What a monumental DISGRACE, to even consider abandoning investors (the "OWNERS") needs for CURRENT, timely, and accurate corporate information! ...Especially, in this modern age of instant information processing/ transmission and the need for quicker decisions. Are you also considering changing your name from Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) to something else like Corporate Non-transparency Commission (CNC)?

Lance Graven — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lance Graven Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 - Opposition to Proposed Rule Change for Semiannual Reporting Dear Secretary Countryman, I am writing to express my strong opposition to the Securities and Exchange Commission's proposal to permit public companies to transition from quarterly financial reporting to semiannual reporting. While I understand the stated goal is to reduce corporate compliance costs and alleviate short-term market pressures, I believe this change will severely harm individual investors, degrade market transparency, and increase financial volatility. Quarterly reporting is a cornerstone of the modern, transparent U.S. capital markets. Moving to a six-month reporting cycle introduces several significant risks: Increased Information Asymmetry: Individual retail investors rely heavily on timely, standardized financial disclosures to make informed investment decisions. Extending the reporting window to six months creates a massive information vacuum. This gap will disproportionately benefit institutional investors who have the resources to utilize alternative data streams, leaving retail investors at a severe disadvantage. Heightened Market Volatility: Waiting six months to receive audited financial updates means that unexpected operational shifts, supply chain disruptions, or macroeconomic impacts will build up behind closed doors. When these results are finally released, the market reactions are likely to be far more volatile and disruptive than the gradual adjustments seen under a quarterly system. Reduced Management Accountability: Quarterly oversight forces corporate executives to maintain strict financial discipline and operational accountability throughout the fiscal year. A semiannual framework reduces this regular check-and-balance, potentially allowing corporate inefficiencies or strategic missteps to go unnoticed by the public for too long. Ineffectiveness of Voluntary Updates: Allowing companies to provide informal interim updates via Form 8-K is an inadequate substitute for standardized Form 10-Q filings. Fragmented, non-standardized disclosures make it difficult for investors to accurately compare performance across companies or sectors. For these reasons, I urge the Commission to withdraw this proposal and maintain the current quarterly reporting framework. Protecting the integrity, transparency, and fairness of our markets for all participants must remain the SEC's highest priority. Thank you for your time and consideration of my comments. Sincerely, Lance Graven

---

Marshal Shichtman, Esq., Attorney — May 19, 2026
P.O. BOX 94, HUNTINGTON STATION, NY 11746 • TEL (516) 741-5222 • FAX (800) 616-0959
MARSHAL@LAWMSA.COM
Tuesday, May 19, 2026
Securities and Exchange Commission
100F Street, NE
Washington, D.C. 20549
RE: Comments on proposal for Form 10-S
Gentlepersons:
I would like to make a few comments on the proposal for proposed Form 10-S.
In an age when everything is moving faster, I am stunned that the Commission is proposing rules to slow down the process. We have virtually real time trading and next day settlements. Today's market operates practically in real time. However, effectively all transactions are premised upon information. Information the issuer disseminates primarily. I fail to see how that makes the markets more efficient, more orderly, or builds investor confidence. Those are the foundational items upon which the American capital markets are built and upon which it's reputation stands. I believe this proposal may have the opposite effect. Moreover, it gives foreign markets a competitive advantage, at a time when new U.S. issuers are at a low point. That is the overview.
I am skeptical that issuers will see an aggregate material savings by reducing two Form 10-Qs. All the PCAOB auditors are still going to go through the same amount of material for the year. However, they have two less looks by not reviewing the Form 10-Qs allowing items to take root or fester. It is the old proverb of an ounce of prevention is equal to a pound of cure. Or in modern parlance, maintenance is cheaper than breakdowns.
One of the subline benefits of all issuers doing quarterly reports, is all issuers are doing quarterly reports. The uniformity creates an apples-to-apples effect. It is not simply an issue of dividing by two, it is the regularity of the information provided. All issuers reporting quarterly creates a momentum of consumer confidence.
I also have concerns with market mechanics and collateral effects. Quarterly reporting is baked into a variety of market mechanics such as: provisions in financing agreements for defaults based upon regular reporting (and I have doubts that creditors are going to enjoy getting financial information less regularly, which creates an asymmetric non-public information issue); Rule 144 adequate public information (although entitlement holders are availing themselves less frequently of Rule 144 exemptions, I believe the Commission will face definitional encounters with the timeliness of adequate public information); delayed listing determinations (e.g. shareholders equity for minimum listing or delisting determinations), etc. The more you look at the market mechanics the more potential issues you see. Admittedly, it probably is not insurmountable, but you can also drive a car on three wheels. I do not see the cost benefit of making life easier for American Issuers at the expense of operating American markets on three wheels.

Lastly, I would respectfully request that the Commission reduce the size of their own proposals. This proposal was 279 pages. I sincerely doubt everyone read the whole proposal, let alone could digest the 279 pages.
I fully understand the need to be thorough and the magnitude of the Commission's proposals that will have a systemic effect on orderly markets, investor confidence, and valuations. However, the sheer volume of pages generated makes things less clear rather than more clear due to the indigestibility of the magnitude of pages.
Please consider reducing the page count.
Yours, etc.,
MARSHAL SHICHTMAN & ASSOCIATES, P.C. s/ Marshal Shichtman, Esq.
By: Marshal Shichtman, Esq.1, MBA, LLM
P.O. Box 94
Huntington Station, New York 11746
Tel (516) 741-5222
Fax (800) 616-0959
marshal@lawmsa.com
1 Admitted to practice in the United States, State of New York; Solicitor in England & Wales.

Michael S. Cook — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael S. Cook Continuing the requirement for quarterly financial reporting for publicly traded securities/companies (registrants) is CRITICAL to maintain an informed investor community and reduce the potential for securities fraud.

Owen Murphy, Data Analyst — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Owen Murphy Is this a [REDACTED] joke? Full blown corruption in broad daylight and you're considering cutting the window the general public has into Wall Street in half? Absolutely disgusting and hurtful to 99% of Americans.

Rei Takashi — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Rei Takashi Dear Secretary, I am writing to formally log my opposition to the Commission's rule proposal to permit public issuers the option to transition from quarterly financial reporting to a semiannual reporting framework on Form 10-S. While acknowledging the Commission's intent to mitigate short-termism and lower corporate compliance costs, empirical evidence and economic principles suggest this framework will degrade market efficiency, elevate cost of capital, and exacerbate information asymmetry. The introduction of a semiannual reporting cycle creates systemic risks across several critical vectors: Information Asymmetry and Bid-Ask Spreads: In the fields of financial economics and market microstructure, reducing reporting frequency directly increases information asymmetry. A six-month reporting gap creates an information vacuum. Institutional market participants possess the capital to acquire proprietary, alternative data streams to bridge this gap, whereas retail investors do not. Consequently, market makers will likely widen bid-ask spreads to protect against adverse selection, increasing transaction costs and reducing liquidity for the broader market. Delayed Price Discovery and Volatility Clustering: Quarterly reporting facilitates continuous, incremental price discovery. Extending the reporting interval to six months will cause material structural data to compound behind a curtain of corporate confidentiality. Consequently, when earnings are finally disclosed, the price adjustment process will be discrete rather than continuous. This will result in heightened idiosyncratic volatility and severe price gaps upon announcement, destabilizing secondary market trading. Insufficiency of Form 8-K as an Interim Substitute: The proposal relies on voluntary, interim financial disclosures furnished via Form 8-K to maintain market communication. This mechanism is structurally flawed. Disclosures under Item 2.02 or 7.01 lack the standardized presentation, mandatory GAAP reconciliations, and strict disclosure controls and procedures (DCP) inherent to Form 10-Q. Relying on fragmented, unstandardized updates diminishes comparability across peers and increases the cognitive processing burden on market analysts. Agency Costs and Corporate Governance: Quarterly reporting acts as a vital commitment mechanism that aligns manager and shareholder incentives. Extending the reporting window increases the duration of unmonitored management discretion. This lag delays the market's ability to identify capital misallocation, operational drift, or deteriorating internal controls, thereby elevating agency costs and eroding governance discipline. The proposed reduction in regulatory costs is heavily outweighed by the negative externalities imposed on capital allocation efficiency and market transparency. I strongly encourage the Commission to preserve the current mandated quarterly disclosure regime under Exchange Act Rules 13a-13 and 15d-13. Thank you for analyzing these technical considerations.

Richard Norelli — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Richard Norelli Do NOT reduce corporate filing requirements to semi-annually. As an individual who needs information to protect my retirement funds, our family benefits from access to current information about the fiscal health of the firms involved in our invested savings. Reducing that period only benefits corporate manipulation and privileged executives. Speaking as the "small guy" this rule revision reflects corporate/government cronyism and does very little to reduce costs. I don't have powerful attorneys or lobbyists at my disposal. I rely on the fairness of the SEC.

Robert Dunning — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robert Dunning The proposal for required quarterly financial statements to be changed to semi-annual should be rejected. The potential for inside dealing will substantially increase due to insufficient exposure. Fair market trading will be severely harmed as smaller investors will be making decisions with much less information. The potential for abuse, subsequent turmoil and scandal is far too high.

Robin Moylan — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robin moylan If the sec attempts to do this, it proves how corrupt this country really is! I state NO! We are working in the time of being open n honest. Start doing it!!!

Russ Nickel — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Russ Nickel Please keep quarterly reporting.

Walter — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Walter Reporting requirements are going the wrong direction. The internet and technology should allow investors to get live reporting information daily (we should be able to see what's underneath a stock price immediately (and for free)). This would allow for greater performance transparency, efficient markets, price stability and investment democratization, and increased healthy competition between companies. Companies already have live data reporting dashboards. Loosen the legal requirements and allow companies to publish easy to understand metrics. Hiding information feels very third world, and antiquated. It feels like regressing from AI to the printing press.

William Martin — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: William Martin Quarterly reporting is essential for efficient markets, transparency, and accounting controls. Please do not allow companies to utilize semiannual reporting.

William T. McKinzie — May 19, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: William T. McKinzie Semi-annual reporting is adequate for the long-term investor, and data from foreign markets supports this assertion. It would be a step in the right direction to reduce the burden of being a public company with the hoped for salutary effect of increasing the number of public companies available to ordinary investors.

Anonymous — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Please keep the quarterly reporting as it is now !

Barbara Myers — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Barbara Myers This is really bad idea!

Daniel Platt, Retired AT&T — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Platt I would like to voice my deep concern & opposition to any attempt to weaken existing rules & regulations concerning businesses & corporations reporting their financial reports from quarterly to semiannually. My life savings are tied up in investments & I base my portfolio partly on those quarterly reports! Come on this makes no sense at all

---

Donnie Eckhoff — May 18, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Donnie Eckhoff Thank you for all the education I've received about crypto and Bitcoin and the rest very interesting

---

Gregory Valentine — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Gregory Valentine It's important that companies provide investors with regular quarterly reports. The access to this information should be required and easily accessible for all investors, no matter the size of the investment. I have personally used this information in the past to decide whether or not to buy, sell, or hold a financial product and allowing companies to delay these reports would negatively affect my ability to participate in the stock market. Also, I have never worked for a company where providing this information to investors was a burden, and if it was it would be an indication of financial negligence.

Justin Schultz — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Justin Schultz It's not fair to regular people for companies to be able to hide all their shady business dealings from the pathetically little amount of government oversight that's left and hasn't as of yet been dismantled or effectively nullified of any real power or any real care left in their commitment to protect the lower to middle classes of American people

---

K. Webster — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: K. Webster I oppose this rule change that will allow public companies to essentially hide bad news, stock buybacks and more from investors and analysts for twice as long as they can now. Public means transparency for everyone, not just insiders.

Kevin Montalti — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kevin Montalti Removing the quarterly reporting requirement would allow external auditors to spend more time on the actual year-end audit. As an external auditor, the quarterly reporting requirement acts as a disruption to our overall audit procedures as they stop the team from performing audit procedures for often a month at a time (and thus removing the requirement gives back audit teams two additional months to focus on the audit). More time to focus on the audit will allow for better audit quality, and overall, better less crazy busy seasons for external auditors as year-end work can be pushed up to the interim period - especially in October and November for companies that are a 12/31 filer.

Kevin W. Alexander — May 18, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 (Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368) From: Kevin W. Alexander Affiliation: May 18, 2026 The SEC's proposed plan to provide public companies the option to NOT file quarterly reports, and instead to file only semi-annual reports, is a terrible idea.

Public investors absolutely need the information published quarterly in order to make informed investment decisions. Visibility 4 times a year allows for necessary price / value adjustments and is highly efficient.

The time commitment of quarterly reporting for public companies is minimal, when compared to the vast benefits companies gain when they can access the world's leading public markets in the US.

Most importantly, investors in US markets deeply depend on quarterly financial reporting, which is one of the main reasons our markets are far and away the largest, most liquid and most attractive in the world. If the US converts to semi-annual reporting, expect to see US markets become weaker, smaller and less liquid like those that report semi-annually. Look at European markets for the results that will follow if the SEC converts to this proposed rule change.

Finally, keep in mind that financial markets are a competitive business. Other lower tier markets (London, Hong Kong, etc.) will certainly gain and become more attractive alternatives if the US moves to semi-annual reporting. If the concern is that US markets need more of our private companies graduating to public companies (something I agree with), then focus on promoting other incentives and benefits for these private companies -- not on reduced financial reporting. No one seriously believes that the litany of private tech (and other) companies are choosing to stay private longer b/c they don't want to report quarterly.

Please don't adopt this ill-informed rule change.

Sincerely,

Kevin W. Alexander

Larry Overman — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Larry Overman Please keep 3 months not 6. We have internet, should be quicker not longer.

Margaret Rosenfeld, Founder, Zukunft Advisory, LLC — May 18, 2026
ZUKUNFT ADVISORY
Governance / Capital Markets / Digital Asset Strategy
May 18, 2026
Vanessa A. Countryman
Secretary
U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street, NE
Washington, DC 20549-1090
Re: Semiannual Reporting; File No. S7-2026-15; Release Nos. 33-11414; 34-105368; 39-2563; IC-36140
Dear Ms. Countryman:
I write in response to the Commission’s request for comment on the proposed amendments to Exchange

Act Rules 13a-13 and 15d-13 that would permit domestic reporting companies to file a semiannual report on new Form 10-S in lieu of two of three quarterly reports on Form 10-Q. I have practiced as a corporate and securities lawyer for more than twenty-seven years, including as a partner at Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer, Paul Weiss Rifkind Wharton & Garrison, K&L Gates, and Smith Anderson, and in senior in-house roles as chief legal officer building legal functions for public market readiness. The perspective I bring to this comment letter is shaped by having advised, and served as de facto general counsel to, public companies across the full range of the reporting company population. That has included large accelerated filers with deep institutional ownership, established analyst coverage, active capital markets programs, and the full institutional disclosure architecture that mature public company status requires. It has also included smaller reporting companies, emerging growth companies, and recently public issuers operating in earlier stages of that institutional progression, where the quarterly reporting cadence often feels disproportionate to the operational tempo of the business. The disclosure liability gap and on-ramp questions I address in this letter come from running quarterly reporting cycles at both ends of that range, not from one end. I submit this letter in my capacity as Founder of Zukunft Advisory.
I do not oppose the proposal. The Commission's policy rationale for offering reporting companies an alternative to the existing quarterly cadence is defensible, and the cost-reduction objective is real for the subset of issuers for whom quarterly reporting has always been disproportionate to the operational tempo of the business. My concern with the proposal as currently drafted is narrower and, I believe, addressable. The proposing release does not adequately engage with what replaces the quarterly cadence for companies that elect semiannual reporting and continue to communicate with the market on a quarterly basis, which the release itself contemplates and which I believe will be the majority of electing issuers in practice. The institutional scaffolding that has historically made quarterly market communications defensible is anchored in the existence of the Form 10-Q. Removing the formal filing without addressing what supports the continuing communications creates a disclosure liability gap that the proposing release does not name and that the comment file to date has not addressed in operational terms.
The comment file to date is informative on what it does include, and equally so on what it does not. The early commenters have approached the proposal from academic, retail investor, market-function, and technology-infrastructure standpoints. These are useful perspectives, and the Commission will benefit from them. What the comment file does not yet contain in meaningful volume is commentary from practitioners who have run public company quarterly reporting cycles from the inside, who have negotiated the institutional architecture that supports those filings, and who have advised boards and management teams through the disclosure liability exposure that quarterly market communications generate. This letter is offered to address that gap. The arguments that follow are operational rather than theoretical, and the recommendations are calibrated to what the Commission would need to do in the final release to make the proposed framework workable for the issuers most likely to elect into it.

This letter offers five contributions. First, it identifies the disclosure liability gap created by the hybrid approach the proposing release contemplates. Second, it surfaces the audit committee, disclosure committee, and auditor review questions that follow from removing the formal quarterly filing while continuing quarterly market communications. Third, it proposes a four-component framework that semiannual filers should be expected to implement on top of the election to preserve the institutional discipline that has historically protected quarterly communications. Fourth, it addresses who the election actually fits and raises the on-ramp question that follows from the bifurcation the proposal will create between large accelerated filers (who will overwhelmingly not elect) and smaller, newer, and development-stage issuers (who will). Fifth, it responds directly to several of the Commission's numbered requests for comment and offers three specific recommendations for what the final release should contain.

I. The disclosure liability gap created by the hybrid approach

The proposing release explicitly contemplates that semiannual filers may continue to provide voluntary quarterly information, including through earnings releases, conference calls, and voluntary inclusion of quarterly financial information within the Form 10-S filing itself. The release describes this as a hybrid approach that may represent a middle ground for companies seeking to balance cost savings with market expectations. The Commission's description is accurate so far as it goes. What the release does not engage with is that the hybrid approach, in practice, will be the operating posture of the substantial majority of electing issuers, not a middle ground reserved for those with specific institutional ownership profiles or capital markets needs.

The reasons are structural. Analyst coverage of U.S. public companies is built around quarterly models. Institutional investors maintain valuation frameworks that require quarterly revenue, earnings, and guidance updates. Lenders incorporate financial covenant certification and reporting requirements into credit agreements that often track the Form 10-Q schedule by default. Boards have organized their meeting calendars and audit committee cadences around the quarterly filing cycle for decades. Investor relations functions have built their annual programs around four earnings cycles. The semiannual election does not change any of those expectations on day one. It removes one structural rationale for meeting them, but the underlying demand for quarterly information from analysts, institutional investors, lenders, and the broader market remains.

Most issuers that elect semiannual reporting will therefore continue to communicate with the market on a quarterly cadence. They will issue earnings releases. They will hold earnings calls. They will provide guidance and update it. They will respond to analyst questions. They will hold one-on-one investor meetings. What changes is not the existence of those communications. What changes is the institutional scaffolding that historically sat behind them.

The Form 10-Q is a Section 18 filed document. It carries CEO and CFO certifications under Sections 302 and 906 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. It is reviewed by the independent auditor under PCAOB AS 4105 (or the analogous interim review standard applicable to the relevant filer). It runs through a disclosure committee process required by Item 307 and Item 308 of Regulation S-K. It is approved by the audit committee. Item 4 of Form 10-Q requires an express attestation regarding the effectiveness of disclosure controls and procedures and any changes in internal control over financial reporting. The Form 10-Q is the artifact produced at the end of that process, but the process itself is the institutional discipline that makes the quarterly communications surrounding the filing defensible.
When a company communicates quarterly without producing a Form 10-Q, that scaffolding is not automatically present. The earnings release is furnished under Item 2.02 of Form 8-K, not filed under Section 18. The auditor has performed no interim review because there is no periodic report to review.
The disclosure committee may or may not have run a full process, because there is no statutory filing deadline driving it. The audit committee may or may not have completed a substantive review of the underlying financial statements, because the only quarterly artifact is a furnished press release rather than a certified filing. The CEO and CFO sign off on the release, but they make no certifications under Sections 302 or 906 because no underlying periodic report exists to certify. The forward-looking statements in the prepared remarks rest on a cautionary statement framework that, in the absence of a contemporaneous Form 10-Q, has no reaffirmed risk factor universe to anchor to. The earnings call proceeds with the same Q&A, the same guidance discussion, and the same competitive and operational commentary that a quarterly earnings call has always included, but the institutional record sitting behind those communications is materially thinner than it would be if a Form 10-Q were filed contemporaneously.
This gap is not theoretical. It is exactly the fact pattern that the plaintiffs' securities class action bar will construct cases around. The defense of a Rule 10b-5 case predicated on quarterly forward-looking statements, guidance, or operational commentary has historically relied substantially on the architecture of the periodic reporting process. The certifications, the auditor involvement, the disclosure committee discipline, the audit committee review, the Item 4 attestation. That architecture, taken as a whole, is what permits the issuer to argue at the pleading stage and beyond that the challenged statements were the product of a deliberate and supervised disclosure process rather than ad hoc executive judgment. The Form 10-S, filed twice a year, does not anchor the quarterly off-cycle communications in the same way.

Plaintiffs' counsel will identify the gap. The Commission should anticipate it.

II. The audit committee, disclosure committee, and auditor review questions

Three operational questions follow directly from the disclosure liability gap and warrant the Commission's attention before the proposal is finalized.

A. The auditor review question

The auditing profession has not yet articulated publicly how it will approach interim review of quarterly financial information for semiannual filers that continue to issue quarterly earnings releases. Under AU-C 930 / AS 4105, an interim review is generally requested in connection with a periodic report containing reviewed interim financial information. Whether and on what terms a registered public accounting firm will perform interim review work outside the context of a Form 10-Q filing, and at what fee level, is unresolved. For most issuers electing semiannual reporting, particularly those with active capital markets activity, meaningful institutional ownership, or any material disclosure events expected during the off-cycle quarter, an interim review of the quarterly financial information that underlies the earnings release will continue to be necessary as a matter of disclosure prudence regardless of what the Commission formally requires. If the auditor will not perform that review without a Form 10-Q, the issuer will be communicating quarterly without the auditor scaffolding that has historically supported quarterly communications. If the auditor will perform the review, the cost savings the proposing release contemplates are at least partly illusory.

The Commission should consider directly engaging with the PCAOB and the AICPA in advance of adoption to clarify the auditor's posture on interim review work for semiannual filers, and should consider whether companion staff guidance or PCAOB rulemaking is needed to ensure a consistent profession-wide approach. Without that clarification, the proposal as adopted will leave electing issuers and their boards to negotiate auditor involvement on a case-by-case basis, with predictable variability in cost, scope, and rigor across the issuer population.

B. The audit committee oversight question

Audit committees of public companies have organized their oversight cadence around the quarterly Form 10-Q cycle for decades. The agenda items, the meeting frequency, the auditor interactions, the financial statement review, the disclosure committee report-out, the sub-certifications, the internal audit reporting, the management representation letters, and the documented sign-off processes are all built around four cycles per fiscal year with a defined statutory artifact at the conclusion of each. Moving to two formal cycles per fiscal year does not reduce the audit committee's oversight responsibility. It removes the rhythm that has historically structured how that responsibility is discharged.

An audit committee that elects to maintain quarterly review discipline despite the move to semiannual filings will be doing more work, not less, because it will be running its full process without the external statutory deadline that has historically driven it. An audit committee that permits the off-cycle quarters to become lighter-touch reviews will be accepting a material reduction in oversight at exactly the moments when the company is still communicating quarterly to the market. Neither outcome is what the cost-savings framing of the proposal anticipates. The Commission should consider whether the final release should include express guidance to audit committees of electing companies regarding the level of off-cycle quarter oversight expected, and should consider whether stock exchange listing standards governing audit committee responsibilities require corresponding amendment to address the semiannual filer context.

C. The disclosure committee question

Item 307 of Regulation S-K requires an express attestation by the principal executive and principal financial officers regarding the effectiveness of disclosure controls and procedures, made in each Form 10-Q and Form 10-K. The disclosure committee process that supports that attestation has, in practice, become a quarterly institutional discipline at most public companies. For semiannual filers, the Item 307 attestation will be made only in the Form 10-S and Form 10-K. The off-cycle quarter earnings release and conference call will not be supported by a contemporaneous Item 307 attestation, because no periodic report is being filed. The question whether the off-cycle quarter receives the same disclosure committee discipline as the on-cycle quarter is left entirely to issuer judgment under the proposal as drafted.
The Commission should consider whether semiannual filers should be required to disclose, in their Form 10-S or Form 10-K, whether the disclosure committee has reviewed any voluntary quarterly information released during the off-cycle period to a standard substantially equivalent to the standard applied to a Form 10-Q. A disclosure of this kind would not require the disclosure committee process to be applied. It would require the issuer to state whether it was applied, which is itself a meaningful disclosure to investors and a meaningful protection against the disclosure liability gap I have described.

III. A proposed framework for semiannual filers that continue quarterly market communications

If a company elects semiannual reporting and continues to engage the market on a quarterly cadence, which I expect will be the operating posture of the substantial majority of electing issuers, the institutional scaffolding that has historically made quarterly communications defensible should be preserved deliberately rather than allowed to erode by inattention. I propose four components, which I respectfully suggest the Commission consider either as elements of the final rule, as elements of companion staff guidance, or as expectations articulated in the adopting release's discussion of the hybrid approach.

Component 1: A voluntary quarterly business update document, treated as a deliberate disclosure artifact

Semiannual filers that issue quarterly earnings releases should be expected to treat those releases as deliberate disclosure artifacts subject to substantially the same internal review and approval process applied to a Form 10-Q. The document should contain the financial information, MD&A discussion, material developments, and forward-looking statement framework the market actually expects. It may be furnished under Item 2.02 or filed under Item 8.01 of Form 8-K depending on the issuer's circumstances and counsel's judgment regarding the litigation calculus. The Commission should consider clarifying in the adopting release that the institutional record sitting behind a voluntary quarterly release is a relevant factor in any subsequent Rule 10b-5 analysis, and that issuers that elect semiannual reporting do not thereby reduce the standard of care expected in connection with their continuing quarterly communications.
Component 2: Auditor involvement calibrated to the issuer's risk profile
As described above, the Commission should engage with the PCAOB and the AICPA to clarify the profession's posture on interim review work for semiannual filers. In the absence of profession-wide clarification, electing issuers should be expected to obtain interim review work in connection with quarterly financial information released to the market wherever the issuer's circumstances make such review prudent. The Commission should consider whether the final release should include a discussion of the factors relevant to that determination, including institutional ownership profile, capital markets activity, expected material disclosure events during the off-cycle period, and the issuer's history of restatements or material weakness disclosures.
Component 3: A preserved disclosure committee and audit committee process operating on a quarterly cadence Audit committee charters, disclosure committee charters, and internal disclosure controls policies of electing issuers should be updated to reflect the semiannual reporting cadence and to make clear that off-cycle quarters receive substantially the same governance treatment as on-cycle quarters even though the artifact at the conclusion of the off-cycle quarter is a furnished release rather than a filed periodic report. The Commission should consider whether the adopting release should articulate the expectation that electing issuers maintain a documented disclosure and audit committee process for off-cycle quarter communications, and whether disclosure of the existence of that process should be required in the Form 10-S or Form 10-K.
Component 4: A redesigned investor relations cadence
Removing two formal quarterly earnings cycles from the issuer's annual disclosure calendar does not reduce the underlying demand for institutional engagement. It diffuses that engagement across a larger number of less structured touchpoints. Investor day presentations, conference appearances, sell-side analyst meetings, one-on-one investor calls, and mid-period management road shows will be the vehicles through which institutional engagement continues, and each of those touchpoints carries its own

Regulation FD exposure. Regulation FD does not turn on the cadence of formal periodic reporting. It turns on whether material non-public information is disclosed selectively. Spreading the same engagement demand across a larger surface area, without the concentrated discipline of four well-rehearsed earnings cycles per year, increases Regulation FD risk for electing issuers, and most issuers' Regulation FD processes are not currently designed to manage the larger surface area. The Commission should consider whether the adopting release should articulate the expectation that electing issuers conduct a deliberate review of their investor relations protocols and Regulation FD procedures in connection with the election.

IV. Who the election actually fits, and the on-ramp question

The proposing release identifies smaller reporting companies, emerging growth companies, and companies in industries where investors focus on business and regulatory developments rather than interim financial results as the natural beneficiaries of the election. I agree with that identification as far as it goes. The election will be genuinely well-suited to a specific subset of the public company population.

Development-stage companies whose investors track milestones rather than revenue trajectories. Companies without active capital markets activity. Companies without bank financing structured around quarterly covenant certifications. Companies without meaningful sell-side analyst coverage. Companies whose institutional ownership profile does not generate quarterly engagement demand. For issuers in this category, the quarterly cadence has often been disproportionate to the operational tempo of the business, and the cost savings the proposing release contemplates will be more fully realized because the underlying market demand for quarterly information is genuinely lower.

The question the proposing release does not engage with, and the question I respectfully submit the Commission should address in the final release, is what happens to these issuers when they outgrow the conditions that made the election attractive in the first place. The natural arc of a public company that goes public as a smaller reporting company or an emerging growth company is one in which, over time, the company grows revenues, attracts analyst coverage, develops capital markets ambitions, takes on bank financing, accumulates institutional ownership, and eventually graduates to accelerated or large accelerated filer status. The on-ramp from early-stage public company to mature public company is a real institutional progression, and the disclosure cadence the company runs on during that progression is part of the institutional infrastructure that supports it. The question is whether the semiannual election helps issuers traverse that on-ramp or whether it institutionalizes a lighter-touch disclosure posture that becomes a structural impediment when the company is ready to graduate.

The case for the election as an on-ramp aid is straightforward. Lower reporting cost during the early public years lets the company conserve capital for business growth, which is precisely the Commission's stated policy objective. Less management distraction during the early public years lets the executive team focus on operational execution at the moment when execution matters most. Fewer Sunday nights spent on the Form 10-Q cycle is not a trivial benefit for a thinly-resourced management team running a recently public company. For issuers whose early public years are genuinely about building the business rather than engaging the capital markets, the election may be exactly the kind of regulatory flexibility that supports the on-ramp.

The case against the election as an on-ramp aid is also straightforward. The disclosure cadence a company runs on shapes the institutional discipline the company builds around its public reporting. A company that has filed Form 10-Q quarterly from the date of its initial public offering has, by the time it is ready for accelerated filer status, developed a disclosure committee process, an audit committee oversight cadence, an investor relations function, an internal audit posture, and an executive team comfortable with the quarterly reporting rhythm. A company that has filed Form 10-S semiannually for the same period has not necessarily developed any of those institutional muscles, because the statutory cadence has not required them to be exercised. When the company is ready to access the capital markets in size, to attract sell-side analyst coverage, to take on bank financing structured around quarterly covenants, or to be acquired by or acquire another public company, the institutional infrastructure that supports those activities is not necessarily in place. Building that infrastructure under deadline pressure, while simultaneously executing the transaction or relationship that requires it, is materially harder than building it organically over the course of the public company life cycle.

The honest answer is that the on-ramp question is bidirectional. The election will help some smaller reporting companies and emerging growth companies that would otherwise be unable to bear the cost of being public at all. It will also box in some smaller reporting companies and emerging growth companies that elect in early and then find themselves underprepared for the institutional demands of mature public company status when they reach it. The Commission should be candid about that tradeoff in the final release rather than presenting the election as an unqualified benefit to the smaller issuer population.

Two structural consequences follow from this analysis. First, larger issuers will overwhelmingly not elect semiannual reporting. The institutional ownership, analyst coverage, capital markets activity, and lender expectations that characterize the large-cap public company population make the election operationally unworkable for those issuers regardless of its cost-savings appeal. The Commission should expect the elected population to be concentrated almost entirely in smaller reporting companies, emerging growth companies, and development-stage issuers. Second, the resulting bifurcation between quarterly filers (predominantly mature, larger-cap, institutionally-owned) and semiannual filers (predominantly smaller, newer, development-stage) is a structural change to the public company population that the proposing release does not address as such. Whether that bifurcation is consistent with the Commission's broader investor protection objectives, and whether it supports or undermines the policy goal of encouraging more companies to go and remain public, is a question the Commission should engage with in the final release.

The on-ramp question matters most for the companies the proposing release is most focused on supporting. The Commission should consider, in the final release, articulating the expectation that issuers electing semiannual reporting maintain a deliberate institutional posture that preserves the option to graduate to quarterly reporting cleanly when business circumstances warrant. The four-component framework set forth in Section III above is one way to operationalize that expectation. Without it, the election risks producing a class of public companies that has captured the early-stage cost savings but lost the institutional discipline needed to make the on-ramp work.

V. Responses to specific requests for comment

I respond below to several of the Commission's numbered requests for comment that bear directly on the issues raised in this letter.

On voluntary quarterly disclosures and the hybrid approach

The Commission asks whether companies that elect semiannual reporting will continue to provide voluntary quarterly information and, if so, what form that information will take and whether the Commission should provide guidance. My view, based on twenty-seven years of practice advising public companies, is that the substantial majority of electing issuers will continue to provide quarterly information in some form because the underlying market demand for that information will not change.

The Commission should provide guidance, ideally in the adopting release, on the standard of care expected in connection with voluntary quarterly disclosures, including the expectation that disclosure committee and audit committee discipline will be applied substantially as it would be in connection with a Form 10-Q. Without that guidance, the proposal effectively creates a class of quarterly market communications that fall outside the institutional discipline that has historically supported quarterly disclosure in the United States, and that result is inconsistent with the investor protection objectives the Commission has articulated as central to its mission.

On internal controls and quarterly review

The Commission asks whether the proposal would affect internal controls or quarterly accountant reviews. My view is that the proposal materially affects both. Internal control over financial reporting is operationally a continuous function, but the Section 302 and 906 certifications, the Item 4 attestation, and the disclosure controls and procedures evaluation that accompany each Form 10-Q create discrete points at which internal control evaluation is documented, attested to, and made part of the institutional record. Removing two of those points per fiscal year does not change the underlying control environment, but it removes two of the formal occasions on which the control environment is evaluated and documented. For accountant reviews, as discussed in Section II.A above, the profession's posture is unresolved, and the Commission should engage with the PCAOB and the AICPA to clarify it in advance of adoption.

On insider trading policies and trading window practices

The Commission asks whether the proposal would affect insider trading policies and trading window practices. My view is that semiannual reporting will significantly complicate trading window administration for electing issuers and will require careful redesign of Rule 10b5-1 plan practices. Most public company insider trading policies define blackout periods by reference to the quarterly earnings cycle and the Form 10-Q filing. For semiannual filers, the absence of two of those quarterly anchors will require either an extension of blackout periods (effectively reducing trading windows substantially) or a redesign of the blackout framework around the voluntary quarterly disclosure cadence. Rule 10b5-1 plans entered into under the December 2022 amendments contain cooling-off periods, certifications, and other architecture predicated on the existence of a regular periodic reporting cadence. The Commission should consider whether companion guidance on Rule 10b5-1 plan administration for semiannual filers is appropriate.

On capital markets activity and registered offerings

The Commission asks how the proposal will affect the ability of electing issuers to conduct registered offerings, including the staleness of financial statements for registration statement purposes. My view is that the Regulation S-X staleness amendments included in the proposal address the technical question but do not address the practical market question, which is whether underwriters, investors, and rating agencies will be willing to participate in offerings supported only by semiannual financial information. In my experience advising issuers in registered offerings, the comfort letter framework under SAS 100 and the underwriter due diligence framework under Section 11 both rely heavily on the availability of reviewed interim financial information that is reasonably current. The 135-day rule under existing PCAOB standards for negative assurance in comfort letters, which the Commission has acknowledged in the proposing release, is the most concrete example of this dependency. The Commission should consider whether final adoption should be coordinated with PCAOB action to ensure that semiannual filers have a workable path to access the capital markets between Form 10-S filings. Absent such coordination, electing issuers may find that the cost savings from semiannual reporting are offset by reduced flexibility in accessing the capital markets, which would frustrate the proposal's policy objective of reducing the burden of public company status.

VI. Specific recommendations for the final release

I respectfully offer three specific recommendations for the Commission's consideration in connection with final adoption of the proposed amendments.

First, the adopting release should articulate the expectation that semiannual filers that continue to provide voluntary quarterly information apply substantially the same disclosure committee and audit committee discipline to that information as they would apply to a Form 10-Q. The adopting release should make clear that the election of semiannual reporting does not reduce the standard of care expected in connection with quarterly market communications, and that the institutional record supporting voluntary quarterly disclosures is a relevant factor in any subsequent enforcement or private action analysis.

Second, the Commission should coordinate with the PCAOB and the AICPA to clarify the auditing profession's posture on interim review work for semiannual filers in advance of final adoption. Without such coordination, electing issuers and their boards will be required to negotiate auditor involvement on a case-by-case basis, with predictable variability in cost, scope, and rigor that will undermine both the cost-savings rationale of the proposal and the disclosure integrity of the resulting periodic reporting framework.

Third, the Commission should require electing issuers to disclose, in their Form 10-S and Form 10-K, the issuer's practice with respect to off-cycle quarterly market communications, including whether the issuer issues quarterly earnings releases, whether disclosure committee and audit committee review processes are applied to those communications, and whether interim review work is performed by the issuer's independent registered public accounting firm in connection with those communications. A disclosure requirement of this kind would not mandate any particular practice. It would require the issuer to state its practice, which is itself a meaningful disclosure to investors and a meaningful safeguard against the disclosure liability gap I have described.

VII. Conclusion

The Commission's objective in proposing optional semiannual reporting is defensible. The proposal would offer real relief to a subset of reporting companies for whom the quarterly cadence has always been disproportionate to the operational tempo of the business, and the election structure preserves the existing quarterly framework as the default for issuers for whom it remains appropriate. My concern is not with the election. It is with the operational consequences of the hybrid approach the proposing release contemplates, with the disclosure liability gap that follows from removing the formal quarterly filing without addressing what supports the continuing quarterly market communications that will, in practice, accompany the election for most electing issuers, and with the on-ramp question that follows from the bifurcation the proposal will produce within the public company population.

The framework and recommendations set forth above are intended to be constructive. They accept the policy choice the Commission has made and address the operational architecture that needs to accompany it. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss any of the issues raised in this letter with the staff. I can be reached at the contact information below.

Respectfully submitted,
ZUKUNFT ADVISORY, LLC
Margaret Rosenfeld
Founder
mrosenfeld@zukunftadvisory.com

Memorandum from the Office of Commissioner Mark T. Uyeda regarding a May 18, 2026 meeting with representatives of PIMCO — May 18, 2026
MEMORANDUM
To: File Nos. S7-2026-07; S7-2026-15
From: Elizabeth Blase, Counsel to Commissioner Mark T. Uyeda
Re: Meeting with Representatives of PIMCO
On May 18, 2026, Commissioner Mark T. Uyeda and his counsels Ryan Hinson, Nati Kim, and Elizabeth Blase met with representatives of PIMCO (the "PIMCO Participants"), including:
• Tim Crowley, Executive Vice President, Portfolio Manager;
• Jerry Woytash, Vice President, Portfolio Manager;
• Blair Greber-Raines, Senior Vice President, Senior Counsel;
• Josh Ratner, Executive Vice President, Head of Americas Operations;
• William Martinez, Executive Vice President, Portfolio Manager;
• Ryan LeShaw, Executive Vice President, Deputy General Counsel; and
• Libby Cantrill, Managing Director, Head of Public Policy.
Among other topics, the PIMCO Participants discussed matters related to U.S. Treasury Clearing and extraterritorial issues. The discussion touched on the notice published by the Commission in File No.
S7-2026-07, as well as the PIMCO Participants' concerns regarding the same. The PIMCO Participants also discussed the Commission's proposed amendments to allow companies to file semiannual reports on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q to meet their interim reporting obligations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (i.e., File No. S7-2026-15).

Sami Aji, Software Engineer — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sami Aji Moving reporting from quarterly to semi annual is not a good idea. It will help fraud and insider trading grow because there is more time to hide things

---

Shirley Williams — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Shirley Williams I suggest making the first report of the year for four months which gives companies an extra month to recover from annual and year end audits. Then do a report after 7 months instead of semi-annual reports. Then another report after 10 months. This will give them only two months to add for annual reports and to calculate yearly taxes or remaining taxes due, and this should make everything easier at year-end.

Tyler Dirks — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Tyler Dirks As a retail investor, quarterly earnings are my only real data point as to how a company is currently doing. The dramatic change in company Fortune quarter to quarter during the AI boom almost asks for more data, not less

---

William Irvine — May 18, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: William Irvine The SEC should maintain quarterly reporting to maintain accountability and transparency to shareholders such as myself. There is too much potential for abuse with only reporting every 6 months.

A. D. — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: A. D. SEC should stick to quarterly reporting.

Alan LePage — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Alan LePage As a small investor, I need you to maintain the status quo. Quarterly reports are Needed for me to keep up to date. Anything less leaves me disadvantaged. I'm already In a constant battle to stay ahead. Market influencers and trading algorithms leave me in a situation where it's hard to stay in front of my investments. Please help…..

Alexander — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Alexander SEC must keep quarterly earnings release. Changing to 6 months will keep the companies in dark not creating transparency.

Beth Carnegie-Kent — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Beth Carnegie-Kent semi-annual vs quarterly reporting: another way to keep insider advantages to insiders.

Charles Labianco — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Charles Labianco It would violate the logic of the rule that it is trying to replace. Yes, gov insiders would have more of an advantage than they alteady gave and become more corrupted than they already are. I am against the change.

Denise Orton — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Denise Orton Actions PROTECTING Executives & Politicians who are able to knowingly hide financial moves to defraud investors & contractors. As a single mother working diligently to put a roof over my head and food on the table, having my commissions held before a 90 day wait time, An intended execution timing they never intended to pay any of us.

My commissions lost, expenses never covered. $41,743.00 NOT ONE SINGLE AGENCY STOOD UP FOR "WE THE CONTRACTORS" hired by Enron to get signed energy contracts. It was devastating. All the employees who's 401k stolen to hide their theft. A company who's top tier employees, politicians in the know, as well as other elite billionaires knew they company was going bust, all given the heads up to sell off all their soon to be totally worthless stocks. This Law, allowed that corruption to flourish and bankrupt thousands of employees and contractors. Families lost homes, marriages disolved, lives of people close to retireme t or in retirement with empty 401k. Yet the money trail never lead back to VP Cheney heavy investor, good buddy to Kenneth Lay. Only 2 people were prosecuted with OBSCENELY short prison time, and zero assets to seize, they were all liquidated prior. Kenneth confidently passed of cancer the same day his sentencing was announced. None of us believe he died, just like Jeffrey Epstien. STOP THE ABILITY FOR THIS KIND OF CORRUPTION TO FLORISH, OR MAKE A LAW THAT THE LAWMAKER WILL BE HELD RESPONSIBLE TO SIT IN JAIL AND HAVE THEIR OWN ASSESTS AND ACCOUNTS SEIZED TO LIVE IN OUR SHOES.

Frederick Brown, Jr. — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Frederick Brown, Jr Six months is way too long to keep an eye on what corporations are doing with my investment monies. Fraud can easily be hidden from shareholders for a long time allowing for too little, too late scenarios. The real beneficiaries in changing to a six month reporting are going to be the fraudsters.

Jaime P. Protacio — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jaime P. Protacio Keep the quarterly report to avoid fraud

---

Jarek Erznoznik — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jarek Erznoznik I think semi annuall reporting is a poor idea. It keeps companies less responsible to the public retail investors that also are included on the market. More opportunity for fraud and corruption to take place when there is more time and less pressure from the public on large public corporations. These are public companies and their numbers should be PUBLIC accordingly. Public reporting is not an afterthought. This is a bad excuse to do less work and be less responsible to the public.

Jim Perkins — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jim Perkins Being sold as a cost savings, any perceived savings are actually minimal and only benefit the company and the executives, not the shareholders or the public. It's a matter of transparency. This proposal was initiated by a corrupt lying president and his dishonest cabinet . NO GOOD CAN COME OF IT. Leave it quarterly please.

John Koloen — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Koloen I am opposed to S7-2026-15 because retail investors such as myself would have access to less timely information about the business of corporations that I invest in. With semiannual reporting corporations would be free to provide only the information they wish to provide via press releases during the six month non-reporting period with no way for investors to verify the information via quarterly financial statements. Six months can be a very long time to have no access to corporate financial information with no notion of whether to buy or sell while opening the door to rumors to fill in the information gap. This appears to be a policy designed to benefit companies and insiders at the expense of investors and it is naive to believe that making this policy “optional” is nothing more than a smokescreen as is the notion that it will generate significant savings for the coroporation. The only reason to supoprt this policy is to close the information window on investors.

John Ranyard — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Ranyard Once again a change in policy that helps big business operate in the dark, hiding from the small investors. "Deregulation" efforts by this administration is adding up to "permission to grift"!

John Toupalik — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Toupalik Quarterly filing should be monthly. Going to every 6 months just creates more chance for manipulation . Us little guys are getting smoked now . There truly is little savings by going every six months. With today’s technology going to monthly would bring more transparency and accountability at very little cost. The real bitch here is the people who have to actually tell the truth and sign there name leaves less wiggle room then there is today. Less chance of fraud and deception.

Kirby Wells, Owner, Southwest Missouri OPE LLC — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kirby Wells This creates a further competitive advantage for large public companies, reduces transparency and is contrary to the purpose of the SEC. It would be a harmful change.

Olivia Gunter — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Olivia Gunter Keep it quarterly. A lot can go wrong if report are made on a six month basis. Companies should checked in more often and not less.

Paul R. Dittrich — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Paul R. Dittrich Leave the current reporting requirements untouched. They serve everyone very well.

Robin Moylan — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robin Moylan Americans are asking for you to do the right, loyal and fair honest thing. Do the job with integrity. But the rules. Stop making them up as you go along. These rules/laws are in place for a reason, abide by them. Stop showing favoritism. Thank you. R.m. in pa.

Russell Edward Watrous — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Russell Edward Watrous Allowing public company financial reporting twice a year is a really, really bad idea.

Susanna Maria Harper — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Susanna Maria Harper Quarterly reports should remain. Those reports are a bellweather of the economic health of the business sector. This looks like an attempt to hide activities from the public's eye and do not (and will not) reflect well upon the SEC and the champions of this move. For optics alone, the SEC needs to keep it quartery. Past bad acts would have taken much, much longer to discover and prosecute. Enron did not help the economic downturn in the 2000s, and the housing bubble burst in 2008 would have been much worse and harder to trouble shoot had reports been semi annual.

Theresa Winbush — May 17, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Theresa winbush Stop letting big companies of the hook completely against this

---

Thomas Bourveau — May 17, 2026
Thomas Bourveau
Sa¨ıd Business School, University of Oxford
Park End Street, Oxford, OX1 1HP
May 17, 2026
Re: Proposal to Allow Optional Semiannual Reporting - File S7-2026-15
Dear Chairman Atkins,
I submit this letter in response to the Commission proposed amendments to Exchange Act Rules 13a-13 and 15d-13, which would permit issuers registered with the SEC to elect to file semiannual reports on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q. I am a Professor of Accounting at the University of Oxford. I write as a scholar who has extensively studied mandatory and voluntary disclosure and auditing in U.S. capital markets. In this letter, I offer insights drawn from academic research to help inform the economic analysis of the proposed amendment.
Unlike many comments in the public debate, the question at stake is not whether investors in public companies should receive financial statements every quarter, but rather whether the Commission should impose a fixed reporting frequency on issuers. There is a longstanding scholarly debate concerning the necessity of mandatory disclosure in capital markets. Although this debate extends beyond the specific questions raised by the proposed amendment to the Exchange Act Rules, it remains relevant to the present inquiry. The central argument to justify a disclosure mandate is the presence of a market failure. Two types of market failure are often cited: (1) market forces may be insufficient to resolve the information asymmetry between public issuers and investors; and (2) information disclosure generates externalities, such that the amount of disclosure produced through market forces falls below the level that would be optimal for the market (or society) as a whole.
Below, I provide some observations about the limited evidence to support these two sources of market failure and discuss them in the context of the proposed amendments. I conclude my letter with some comments on the potential benefits of this proposed amendment to make quarterly reporting optional.

1

(1) Disclosure mandates are necessary to resolve the information asymmetry between the issuers and their investors so the Commission should maintain the universal quarterly reporting frequency for issuers registered with the SEC.

This argument rests on two pillars: (i) insiders possess private information about a company's economic performance that is relevant to investors; and (ii) insiders fail to disclose this information voluntarily and in a timely manner to investors. While the first point is widely accepted, the second is far more debatable. In fact, several theoretical studies in information economics from the 1980s suggest that, under certain assumptions, economic agents will eventually reveal their private information.1 The intuition is straightforward: if an agent withholds information, market participants may interpret this nondisclosure as a negative signal, leading them to revise their beliefs about the agent's prospects downward. This process leads all but the worst agents to disclose their information. This theory is difficult to test in the real world because the disclosure of financial statements has been mandated at the federal level for nearly a century in U.S. capital markets. Moreover, state-level "blue sky laws" predated federal regulation and often required financial disclosure from issuers seeking to sell securities to the public in order to protect investors. The pervasiveness of disclosure mandates in capital markets should not be interpreted as evidence that unregulated markets are unable to resolve information asymmetry between issuers and investors.

In a recent paper, my co-authors and I test whether information unravel in capital markets.2 To do so, we leverage the technological disruption caused by the electrification boom in the late 19th century that allowed the emergence of streetcar companies as the default urban transportation mode. Newly established streetcar companies required a large amount of capital to finance miles of tracks and cars, which created significant investment opportunities. To satisfy investor demand for information on these opportunities, business newspapers started issuing regular supplements dedicated to reporting company-specific information on almost all existing streetcar companies. Using a comprehensive sample of streetcar companies in the North East of the United States, we find that 72% of companies disclose their financial statements voluntarily in the first specialized supplement of a prominent business media, and that this rate increases rapidly to reach 95% within two years. Our findings suggest that an almost full disclosure equilibrium is reached over a short period of time. Evidence from the 1890s streetcar industry shows that, even without mandatory disclosure requirements, public issuers facing investor demand voluntarily disclosed their financial performance. In other words, market forces can often resolve information asymmetry between issuers and investors through voluntary disclosure. Applied to the current policy debate, these findings suggest that if quarterly reporting were made optional, issuers would likely continue to provide quarterly earnings information if investors demand it, arguing that it constitutes first-order sources of information for their capital allocation decisions.

1See notably Sanford Grossman, The Informational Role of Warranties and Private Disclosure about Product Quality, Journal of Law and Economics (1981) and Paul Milgrom, Good News and Bad News:
Representation Theorems and Applications, Bell Journal of Economics (1981).

2See Thomas Bourveau, Matthias Breuer & Robert Stoumbos, Learning to Disclose: Disclosure Dynamics in the 1890s Streetcar Industry, Review of Financial Studies (2025).

2

(2) Earnings information generate externalities in capital markets so the Commission should maintain quarterly reporting for all SEC-registered issuers

The argument holds that market forces lead companies to provide investors with the optimal amount of information on an individual basis. However, the total amount of disclosure produced by market forces may be insufficient, because information disclosure generates externalities that companies do not internalize. As a result, the overall level of financial disclosure is likely to be too low.

This argument appears quite weak for several reasons:

• It is admittedly very challenging to provide rigorous evidence that disclosure mandates correct a market failure due to the presence of market-wide externalities. However, studies based on European private companies fails to find evidence that reporting mandates unambiguously improve the efficiency of resource allocation in the economy.3

• The market-wide information loss will be a function of the portion of issuers that will switch to semi-annual reporting along with their relative importance for systemic risk in capital markets. This information loss will likely remain limited:

– Disclosure choices are known to be sticky, suggesting that most issuers will continue to file 10-Q filings or become hybrid reporters that provide some voluntary financial information during the first and third quarter.4

– Issuers that would choose to report semi-annually are likely those for whom the benefits of quarterly reporting are minimal. Capital market benefits tend to be lower for issuers operating mature businesses with stable economic performance, where more frequent updates provide little new information to market participants. As a result, the market-wide information loss from these issuers would likely be limited.

– Issuers that would choose to report semi-annually are likely those for whom the costs of quarterly reporting are highest. Preparation costs are proportionally greater for smaller issuers, and the opportunity costs of preparing reports are higher for high-growth companies.5 However, smaller high-growth issuers represent only a small portion of the value-weighted capital market, further limiting any potential market-wide information loss.

3See notably Matthias Breuer, How Does Financial-Reporting Regulation Affect Industry-Wide Resource Allocation?, Journal of Accounting Research (2021).

4On the stickiness of reporting choices, see for example Shane Heitzman, Charles Wasley, and Jerold Zimmerman, The joint effects of materiality thresholds and voluntary disclosure incentives on firms' disclosure decisions, Journal of Accounting and Economics (2010).

5Proprietary costs constitute another form of reporting cost. However, it is unclear whether delaying the release of a company's overall profitability by three months would significantly reduce the extent to which competitors can learn from that information. This would unlikely be the case for issuers with very stable business model but could happen for early-stage companies at the time when their revenues start growing exponentially.

(3) The potential benefits of a flexible reporting regime

I would like to highlight two potential benefits from the proposed amendment to make quarterly reporting optional:

• Carefully quantifying the compliance costs of reporting and auditing regulations for SEC-registered public issuers has proven challenging. By introducing a flexible reporting regime, the Commission would allow issuers to reveal their preferences, making it possible to observe how many view the switch to semi-annual reporting as beneficial (i.e., when the costs of quarterly reporting outweigh the benefits). Tracking the number of issuers that switch and analyzing their economic characteristics could provide valuable insights for the Commission in considering further efforts to simplify the reporting regime for SEC registrants.

• The Commission must balance investor protection with the goal of facilitating capital formation. The economic analysis of the proposed amendment indicates that, relative to the overall size of U.S. capital markets, the aggregate cost savings from reduced reporting frequency would be modest, suggesting only a limited impact on capital formation at the market level. However, these cost savings could be much more significant for smaller, high-growth issuers, for whom compliance costs represent a larger burden. Allowing such firms to opt out of quarterly reporting may enable them to better focus on their core business activities. A reduction in reporting frequency for some issuers does not necessarily mean diminished investor protection. Investor protection is achieved through both reporting requirements and the SEC's direct oversight activities. To maintain robust investor safeguards while easing the burden on issuers for whom quarterly reporting is especially costly, the Commission could reallocate its oversight resources to focus more closely on those issuers that choose to report less frequently. In other words, the Commission could incorporate issuers' chosen reporting frequency into its risk-based oversight framework, ensuring that limited resources are targeted where the potential risks to investors are greatest.6

Sincerely,

Thomas Bourveau

6This point echoes recent findings from Chinese capital markets, where the financial regulator allowed issuers to choose between increasing dividend payouts to protect minority investors or providing additional communication. The regulator then intensified its direct monitoring of issuers that opted for increased communication rather than higher dividends. See Thomas Bourveau, Xingchao Gao, Rongchen Li and Frank Zhou, Comply-or-explain regulation and investor protection, Journal of Accounting and Economics (2025).

Thomas Kelley — May 17, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Thomas Kelley Please keep the current rules in place. This rule change is ripe for allowing fraud to fester. It is terrible for everyday investors who have little insight into their investments beyond the quarterly reporting. Cutting it half is kneecapping American investors. Corporations aren't even asking for this. It's unnecessary and creates more confusion and in already uncertain time thanks to current policy ambiguity in trade and needless wars.

Zachary Luzier — May 17, 2026

Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Zachary Luzier We must keep Quarterly Reports available for traders. We have daily reports available to our State and Federal Representatives, we MUST keep this available at the very least.

Adam Clark Andrews — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Adam Clark Andrews Keep quarterly reporting.

Allen Raevsky & Company LLC CPAS, Certified Public Accountant — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Allen Raevsky & Company LLC CPAS In my opinion Quarterly Statements should remain in effect to secure that investors are obtaining up to date financial information rather than having the option to have semi-annual statements. Accountability is paramount to transparency for investors concerns. Allen Raevsky, CPA, ABV, CVA, CFE

Andrew Wager — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Andrew Wager There is no reason whatsoever to do away with quarterly reporting. Six months in the dark is unacceptable for investors. Who could this benefit but people who seek to deceive or mislead shareholders?

Ashley Ramirez — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ashley Ramirez Why would insiders need one more advantage? Their already doing great. Don't change this rule.

Ashr Khan — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ashr Khan Removing our main window into the financial health of the US is extremely negligent and co-opts insider selling and buying, encouraging more insider trading than what is already going on, keep reporting quarterly

---

Charles J. Gallo, CPA, Gallo & Battle LLC — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Charles J Gallo, CPA As a CPA & a small investor, I oppose this change, which creates an uneven playing field among investors.

Clay Tezel — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Clay Tezel Publicly traded companies should have to report every quarter.

Craig Cutler — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Craig Cutler The purpose of quarterly reporting is not for the company benefit, it is for the investors. Proving the investor less information so the company can save money or remove pressure is the opposite of beneficial governance. We have had many examples of companies misrepresenting their financial performance. It will be much easier to mislead and much harder for an investor to compare companies with half the information. Thiis would be an undeserving gift to corporations at investor expense

---

Douglas Duncan — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Douglas Duncan Whose idea is this? If anything the time frame should be shorter not longer. We have enough corruption as it is.

Fevered Fisherman — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Fevered Fisherman More transparentcy. Not less. More accountability. Not less. Now is a time for reckoning for the ruling class. Loosening the rules would be a step in the opposite direction. The middle class has been abused for far to long.

James Silva — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: James Silva It is important that consumers are able to retain access to as much information relating to their stock and bond trades as possible. The same applies for their ownership in these products and other financial instruments. As a democratic society, we owe it to the consumer to put them and their welfare first. It is not good for anyone when we give more rights to businesses, especially to large businesses, than individual American citizens and small investors. The reality is that large financial institutions constantly lobby the government for fewer regulations to protect consumers. We have seen the damaging effects of this in 2008, 2000, and in many other instances in recent history. These efforts influenced Bernie Madoff's behavior and other massive scams as well. Even Jeffrey Epstein's horrible deeds were in some respects, hidden from public view due to fraudulent and immoral reporting by banks. It is possible that more transparency could have led to his arrest by law enforcement earlier. I hope that we DO NOT switch to semi-annual reporting being legal in any instance. I hope that quarterly reporting remains the law in order to protect Americans. I do realize that I am referring to some different areas of finance in this letter. My point is that strong transparency measures should be mandatory for all areas of finance. The reality is, that in a democracy, the people should come first!! Thank you.

Jan Charvat — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jan Charvat Don't allow another way how corporations and the rich can out maneuver us, the average/small investors!

Jaret Holden — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jaret Holden As investors, quarterly reports are our window into making smart financial decisions and planning where to best allocate our money. Semiannual reporting is not a win for retail investors and puts us at a disadvantage. Please consider not taking transparency away.

Jennifer Simpson — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jennifer Simpson Hello SEC: Here are four reasons why Form

10-s is bad for every investor: 1. You'd be flying blind for six months -- A lot can go wrong in half a year. Failed product launches, ballooning debt, lawsuits, vanishing customers. Today the law forces companies to surface that information every quarter. Under the new rule, they can sit on it for six months at a stretch. Plenty of time for insiders to quietly sell their shares to you (or your ETF) before the bad news tanks the stock. 2. It allows more time for fraud to grow -- Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year? 3. Be not fooled, "Optional" is a trick -- The framing is voluntary, but the dynamics aren't. Once large companies start filing twice a year, smaller competitors face pressure to follow. They can't justify "more compliance than the bigger guy."" Investor expectations adjust downward. What started as a choice quietly becomes the new normal. Almost no rule like this stays optional for long. 4. The supposed savings are a miniscule, and they don't go to you -- Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on you, the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad trade for ordinary investors. Remember, it's "We the People" in America, not "We the Corporations".

Lee Lin — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lee Lin This does not benefit the American public, nor serve the interests of anyone except those who have to file. Transparency is important to outside investors.

Mark Simpson — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mark Simpson Hello SEC: Here are our reasons Form 10-s is bad for every investor. 1. You'd be flying blind for six months -- A lot can go wrong in half a year. Failed product launches, ballooning debt, lawsuits, vanishing customers. Today the law forces companies to surface that information every quarter. Under the new rule, they can sit on it for six months at a stretch. Plenty of time for insiders to quietly sell their shares to you (or your ETF) before the bad news tanks the stock. 2. It allows more time for fraud to grow -- Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year? 3. Be not fooled, "Optional" is a trick -- The framing is voluntary, but the dynamics aren't. Once large companies start filing twice a year, smaller competitors face pressure to follow. They can't justify "more compliance than the bigger guy."" Investor expectations adjust downward. What started as a choice quietly becomes the new normal. Almost no rule like this stays optional for long. 4. The supposed savings are a 'nothing burger', and they don't go to you -- Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on you, the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad trade for ordinary investors. Thank you for your consideration, Mark Simpson Arcadia, CA

Michelle Phelps — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michelle Phelps Please keep these reports coming quarterly!

These new changes do not benefit regular American investors. This is not good for us!!

Neal Cohen — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Neal Cohen It should be easy for companies to report quarterly and no reason to make it a longer period. This change will make insider trading and fraud easier. Make reporting monthly

---

Philip Birsh — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Philip Birsh This change is a terrible idea. Corporations must act as responsible organizations and inform the public of its results and must explain their results. Investors will be damaged by this terrible idea of semi annual reporting. It will promote more insiders having advantages over normal individuals. It cannot serve the public's interests when a company is allowed to financially spiral downward for half of a year under this cloak of non-reporting. How do we guardians of pension funds protect our people's retirement funds when we have no idea what is happening in the companies we invest in for this amount of time? No one with any financial oversight responsibilities would ever think this new change is intelligent. It will damage investors and only serve the irresponsible. The Chinese stock market does not require GAAP accounting. This terrible idea is similar in practice. Do not make this change. It will hurt the majority of investors in our capital markets who are not in the top tiers of the investment community. Thank you for reading my position.

Philip-Michael Enix — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Philip-Michael Enix Reduced frequency of information disclosure reduces transparency and increases risk for individual or retail investors who do not have access to the same tools or resources as institutional investors to seek validation of their investment or thesis on the company outlook. I am against allowing any opt-in to an alternative reporting. Companies should be focused on long term strategy regardless.

Sandra K. — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sandra K. Keep the filings quarterly please. Retail investors are already at a huge disadvantage compared to institutional investors and this proposal will make things worse for the American middle class.

William Bishop — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: William Bishop Removing the quarterly reporting requirement hurts individual investors, and reduces transparency at a time when it's needed more than ever

---

William Keisler — May 16, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: William Keisler I believe that changing the mandatory corporate filings from 3 months to 6 months will be a mistake. Such a move will reduce corporate transparency at a time when such a thing already feels low. Less frequent updates will erode investor confidence, and will outweigh the marginal savings companies may find from this proposed change.

Colleen Wold — May 15, 2026
To the Commissioners:
I appreciate the opportunity to comment on the SEC's proposed amendments related to optional semiannual reporting.
As a finance and governance executive with experience in public-company reporting, IPO readiness, SOX/internal controls, Audit Committee engagement, and operational finance leadership, I believe the proposal raises important considerations around balancing regulatory burden, investor transparency, and long-term value creation.
I support the Commission's effort to provide flexibility in reporting cadence rather than mandating a single reporting structure for all issuers. Public companies operate with very different business models, investor bases, operational cycles, and resource constraints, and a more principles-based framework may better align reporting obligations with company-specific circumstances.
From an operational perspective, quarterly reporting can create significant organizational burden beyond the direct filing process itself. Management attention, finance resources, auditor coordination, and board governance activities often become heavily concentrated around quarterly cycles. In some organizations, this cadence can unintentionally reinforce short-term decision-making and near-term performance management at the expense of longer-term strategic execution and investment.
At the same time, I do not believe the conversation should simply be framed as "less reporting." Financial statements are inherently backward-looking, and reducing reporting frequency may further widen the information gap between institutional and non-institutional investors.
Large institutional investors often have greater access to management teams, industry data, research resources, and alternative information channels outside of standardized SEC reporting. By contrast, many retail and non-institutional investors rely more heavily on periodic SEC disclosures as a primary source of transparent, comparable, and decision-useful information.
For that reason, quarterly reporting serves an important governance and market-discipline function beyond simply communicating financial results. It creates regular accountability, standardized disclosure cadence, and broader market transparency that may be more difficult to replicate through voluntary or less structured communications.
One area I believe deserves particular consideration is the increasing importance of enterprise risk integration and governance visibility. Boards today are overseeing significantly more interconnected operational, technology, cybersecurity, AI, compliance, workforce, and financial risks than they were when quarterly reporting requirements were originally established decades ago. In many organizations, the issue is not necessarily lack of information, but fragmented information and difficulty connecting operational developments back to enterprise strategy, risk oversight, and measurable value creation.
For that reason, I believe optional semiannual reporting should be limited to issuers that demonstrate sustained governance and reporting maturity. Reporting flexibility should be earned through demonstrated controls discipline, transparency, and governance reliability.
Potential eligibility criteria could include objective governance and reporting indicators such as:
• no material weaknesses in internal control over financial reporting for a specified multi-year period
• no significant financial restatements within a specified multi-year period
• consistent timely SEC filing history

• independent Audit Committee oversight, including designated financial expertise consistent with existing SEC requirements
• absence of recurring significant deficiencies or disclosure-related enforcement matters

In my view, companies with established governance maturity and strong controls environments may be better positioned to operate effectively with less frequent interim reporting while still maintaining investor confidence and transparency. Conversely, companies with weaker controls environments or recurring deficiencies may benefit from maintaining the discipline and accountability created through quarterly reporting cycles.

I also believe the Commission should carefully consider potential unintended consequences related to:

• reduced comparability between issuers
• varying voluntary disclosure practices
• impacts on smaller investors who rely more heavily on standardized SEC reporting
• potential increases in information asymmetry
• implications for internal controls and disclosure governance processes

In practice, many larger or more mature issuers may continue quarterly reporting due to investor expectations, debt covenants, analyst coverage, or market discipline. However, providing conditional optionality may particularly benefit issuers with demonstrated governance maturity and stable reporting environments.

Finally, I would encourage the Commission to continue emphasizing that governance quality, operational accountability, and long-term value creation are not solely functions of reporting frequency. Strong boards and management teams should remain focused on transparency, risk oversight, capital allocation discipline, and sustainable enterprise performance regardless of whether interim reporting occurs quarterly or semiannually.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the proposal.

Respectfully submitted,
Colleen Wold

Cynthia Foster — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Cynthia Foster Keep it quarterly

---

Damon Schwartz — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Damon Schwartz I rely on quarterly information to make decisions, longer gaps create an unfair advantage for corporate insiders and would increase the presence and likelihood of insider trading. The "optional" statement doesn't fix the problem because companies that opt in are often the ones whose investors most need frequent updates, the savings to companies aren't worth the cost to me as an individual. Please announce 6 benefits of such changes from a perspective of 5-10 years down the line, and provide the direct benefits to investors, and the potential benefits that will be present as a byproduct of such a change. This does not affect my viewpoint, what it does is provide clarity for such a decision to be made.

David Lesh — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Lesh As an investor I am opposed to semi annual reporting. Keep quarterly reporting as the standard. Investors need transparency so as to make wise decisions in maintaining their portfolios. Keep quatreporting the standard.

Dennis Newell — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dennis Newell Quarterly is barely frequent enough. Please don't move it to semi-annually.

Desiree — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Desiree Four reasons this is bad for every investor. 01 You'd be flying blind for six months. A lot can go wrong in half a year. Failed product launches, ballooning debt, lawsuits, vanishing customers. Today the law forces companies to surface that information every quarter. Under the new rule, they can sit on it for six months at a stretch. Plenty of time for insiders to quietly sell their shares to you (or your ETF) before the bad news tanks the stock. 02 More time for fraud to grow. Enron. WorldCom. Madoff. The run-up to 2008. Every major modern accounting scandal was enabled by gaps and opacity in financial disclosure. Quarterly filings don't prevent fraud, but they dramatically shorten the window in which it can fester before someone outside the company can see it. What if Enron only had to cook their books twice a year? 03 "Optional" is a trick. The framing is voluntary, but the dynamics aren't. Once large companies start filing twice a year, smaller competitors face pressure to follow. They can't justify "more compliance than the bigger guy." Investor expectations adjust downward. What started as a choice quietly becomes the new normal. Almost no rule like this stays optional for long. 04 The supposed savings are tiny, and they don't go to you. Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on you, the person whose 401(k), IRA, or college fund holds the stock. That's a bad trade for ordinary investors.

Garen Sarafian, Vice President, Investor Relations, Bausch Health (BHC) — May 15, 2026
400 Somerset Corporate Boulevard
Bridgewater, New Jersey 08807
908 927 1400
Bauschhealth.com
May 15, 2026
Vanessa A. Countryman
Secretary
U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street, N.E.
Washington, D.C. 20549
Re: Optional Semiannual Reporting for Public Companies
Dear Ms. Countryman:
Bausch Health Companies Inc. (NYSE:BHC)(TSX:BHC) ("Bausch Health") appreciates the opportunity to comment on the Securities and Exchange Commission’s proposed amendments to permit optional semiannual reporting on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reporting on Form 10-Q.
We support the Commission’s effort to provide greater flexibility in the public company reporting framework and recognize the value of revisiting long-standing requirements as investor and issuer needs evolve.

That said, we believe that a change in reporting frequency alone would be unlikely to materially reduce overall reporting effort, staffing levels, or compliance costs. At best, the proposal would result in a modest reduction in resource demands.

Potential Benefits

We acknowledge several incremental benefits associated with the proposal. Eliminating the Form 10-Q filing process for two fiscal quarters per year could reduce administrative burden and modestly lower external auditor quarterly review procedures and related fees. Registrants electing semiannual reporting may also experience some reduction in legal and disclosure drafting work tied specifically to non-filed quarters, along with limited simplification of certain SEC reporting processes.

Practical Constraints Limiting Resource Reduction

In practice, we would expect to continue a quarterly financial close, earnings, and disclosure cadence regardless of an election to file semi-annual reports. Investor expectations, lender requirements, Board oversight, and internal operational needs continue to drive quarterly reporting discipline. Internal quarterly reports, presentations, review meetings, external-ready talking points, possible related Forms 8-Ks, and other supporting materials would therefore likely remain necessary. In addition, the associated legal, finance, and disclosure review would continue.

400 Somerset Corporate Boulevard
Bridgewater, New Jersey 08807
908 927 1400
Bauschhealth.com

As a result, the core finance, accounting, internal controls, and reporting infrastructure required to produce timely and reliable quarterly information would remain largely unchanged. Within the pharmaceutical industry, peer companies may also elect to continue quarterly reporting practices, reinforcing market expectations for quarterly transparency and comparability.

Implications for Staffing and Cost

Given these dynamics, we believe the proposal would translate into no more than a modest reduction in reporting effort or cost. The change in filing frequency alone would not meaningfully alter staffing requirements across finance, accounting, legal, or investor relations functions.

For semiannual reporting to have a more significant impact on resources, broader structural changes would likely be necessary, such as extended filing deadlines and/or streamlined reporting requirements similar to certain European reporting frameworks. Absent such changes, the practical demands of quarterly financial communication are likely to persist.

Conclusion

We appreciate the Commission's efforts to consider greater flexibility for registrants through this proposal. However, we believe that the proposed amendments, as currently designed, are unlikely to result in meaningful reductions in reporting resources or costs. Any material impact would likely require a more comprehensive reengineering of interim reporting requirements.

We thank the Commission for its consideration of our views and for the opportunity to comment.

Respectfully submitted,

Garen Sarafian

Vice President, Investor Relations
Bausch Health Companies Inc

Gary Kirian — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Gary Kirian It would be wrong to allow a longer time before the financial condition is reported. In fact there would be more time for corruption to flourish. Please good sirs/mams do not make the change to the rules, we do not want more corruption in this beautiful country. Thank you hearing me.

Gavin Barrett-Hayes — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Gavin Barrett-Hayes Moving reporting to a longer timeline will be bad for investors, allow greater amounts of insider trading, and make accurately valuing companies harder.

GEM — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: GEM The Mice play when the Cat is away. Without Responsibility we the People will be the ones bailing them out again. Can’t be a Public Company selling Stocks/etc: and hide what they are Doing.

Grandpa Trades — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Grandpa Trades Please, do not lengthen the reporting time. If anything, modern technology allows for near immediate reporting at lower costs than ever before! Thank you for reading this old grandpa's concerns.

J R Merrill — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: J R Merrill Absolutely not! The SEC doesn't not need to be able go for 6 months without reporting their goings on!

James Medici — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: James Medici Information should be free and open to all people. That's the only way a democracy thrives

---

Jay Cai, Associate Professor of Finance, Drexel University, Elizabeth Demers, Deloitte Professor of Accounting and Tu Nguyen, Associate Professor of Finance, University of Waterloo — May 15, 2026
May 15, 2026
Vanessa A. Countryman
Secretary
Securities and Exchange Commission

100 F Street NE
Washington, DC 20549-1090
Re: File No. S7-2026-15 — Semiannual Reporting
Dear Ms. Countryman:
We appreciate the opportunity to comment on the Securities and Exchange Commission's proposed rule regarding optional semiannual reporting for Exchange Act reporting companies. We write as finance and accounting researchers whose recent work examines the existence and magnitude of information externalities associated with quarterly earnings announcements. An executive summary of our comments is provided below for brevity.
Executive Summary
Our research demonstrates that while the correlations between announcing firms and their peers have declined, the absolute amount of information produced during quarterly earnings announcements has increased so significantly that net information spillovers to peer firms are 70–99% higher on earnings announcement dates than on non-announcement dates. These findings suggest that quarterly disclosures function as a "semi-public good" whose market-wide benefits for price discovery and efficiency are not fully internalized by individual firms. Consequently, we encourage the Commission to consider that moving to an optional reporting regime may result in the underproduction of socially valuable information that is currently essential for capital market efficiency.
The comments that follow speak to the Economic Analysis section of the SEC's release regarding the proposal to allow semiannual reporting. We specifically address the issue as to whether quarterly financial reporting generates information externalities that would potentially justify the ongoing mandatory disclosure of quarterly earnings. We understand that the existence of significant information externalities is central to any economic justification of reporting mandates that would move registrants away from making their own value-optimizing earnings reporting decisions (i.e., decisions that are strictly in the best interest of the firm and its own shareholders). To the extent that information spillovers exist and improve price discovery, comparability, capital allocation, and market efficiency beyond the reporting firm, moving to a voluntary disclosure regime may result in the underproduction of information that is valuable to all market participants.
The proposal appropriately recognizes that disclosure regulation may generate positive externalities for "investors, other issuers, and the economy (that should be considered)" (p. 77), while noting that empirical evidence on such market-wide effects remains limited. We are happy to report that our recent study speaks directly to this issue by providing robust evidence of the existence of significant information externalities stemming from quarterly earnings releases. We hope that the Commission will therefore find our work to be relevant to its ongoing deliberations about the proposed rule.
Our study entitled, "Earnings Announcements and Information Transfer: A Reconciliation of the Literature" (Cai, Demers, and Nguyen, 2026), examines whether quarterly earnings announcements generate economically meaningful information spillovers to peer firms and to financial markets more broadly.
We develop a general framework to separately quantify:
• The total absolute amount of information produced on earnings announcement dates; and
• The proportion of information released by announcing firms that is relevant to industry peer firms.
In our empirical analyses, we confirm that focal-peer return correlations decline significantly on earnings announcement dates, indicating that a smaller fraction of disclosed information is industry-relevant (i.e., consistent with recent evidence provided by Frankel, Godigbe, and Rabier, 2025). We also document that the absolute amount of information produced on earnings announcement dates increases dramatically, consistent with the findings of Beaver, McNichols, and Wang (2018, 2020). When these two effects are jointly considered through our framework, we show that the net information spillover to peer firms on earnings announcement dates is both economically and statistically significant.

Specifically, our evidence indicates that:

• Focal-peer correlations decline on average by approximately 27-39% on earnings announcement dates;

• Total information production on earnings announcement dates increases on average by roughly 193-200%; and

• The combined effect results in a statistically and economically significant increase in net peer-relevant information spillovers.

In our main specification, we estimate that net information spillovers to peer firms are on average approximately 70-99% higher on earnings announcement dates than on non-announcement dates.

Our results are highly robust across alternative industry classifications, return models, event windows, multiple cross-sectional specifications, and to using trading volume rather than returns as the measure of market activity.

We further document that these spillovers are particularly strong for industry leaders and for firms releasing positive news, indicating that both types of announcements carry relatively more systemic information that is relevant for the broader economy.

We believe these findings are directly relevant to several aspects of the Commission's economic analysis, as follows:

First, the evidence suggests that quarterly earnings announcements generate economically meaningful information externalities. Such spillovers are presumed to contribute to the informational richness and thus the efficiency of the capital markets as a whole, which is to say well beyond the announcing firm's own share price dynamics. .

Second, the findings support the Commission's recognition that disclosure choices made by individual firms may not internalize broader market-wide effects. Firms choosing a reduced reporting frequency may rationally focus on their private compliance and proprietary costs while underweighting the positive informational spillovers that their earnings announcements contribute to overall market efficiency.

Third, the evidence is consistent with the view that quarterly earnings disclosures are a "semi-public good." To the extent that information spillovers improve price discovery, comparability, capital allocation, and market efficiency beyond the focal issuer itself, moving to a voluntary disclosure regime may result in the underproduction of socially valuable information.

In summary, we believe the proposal understates the empirical evidence supporting the existence of meaningful, positive information externalities associated with quarterly earnings reporting.

Accordingly, we encourage the Commission to:

1. Incorporate our empirical evidence on information spillovers and disclosure externalities into its final economic analysis;
2. More fully consider the possibility that optional semiannual reporting could reduce socially valuable information production; and
3. Consider whether any transition toward reduced mandatory reporting frequency should be accompanied by additional analysis regarding its effects on market-wide liquidity, comparability, and price discovery.
4. Consider allowing optional semi-annual reporting only for smaller firms, given that the informational externalities from the earnings reports by these firm are significantly more modest compared to those of industry leaders, and recognizing that the cost of quarterly reporting is also likely to be more burdensome for smaller firms.

We appreciate the Commission's thoughtful engagement with these important issues and we would be pleased to discuss our research further if it would be helpful to the Commission's deliberations. In closing, we attach our full study for your reference.

Sincerely,

Jay Cai
Associate Professor of Finance
Lebow College of Business
Drexel University
Elizabeth Demers
Deloitte Professor of Accounting
School of Accounting and Finance
University of Waterloo
Tu Nguyen
Associate Professor of Finance
School of Accounting and Finance
University of Waterloo

Earnings Announcements and Information Transfer: A Reconciliation of the Literature

Jay Cai*, Elizabeth Demers, and Tu Nguyen

ABSTRACT

Extensive prior literature documents information spillovers from focal firms' earnings announcements to peer firms. A recent study by Frankel, Godigbe, and Rabier (2025) questions this inference by documenting reduced return correlations between announcing firms and their peers, raising significant doubt about the extent of information externality deriving from financial report releases, a surprising inference given that other studies document an increasing absolute amount of information production at earnings announcements (Beaver, McNichols, and Wang, 2018, 2020). We reconcile these seemingly contradictory perspectives by dichotomizing the peer response to focal firms' earnings announcements into a (declining) correlation with the focal firm combined with (increasing) absolute information production during the event window. We show that the net effect of these countervailing forces is an economically and statistically significant positive information spillover to peer firms. Our study clarifies the mechanism behind spillovers, confirms the information externality associated with earnings announcements, and resolves a key tension in the literature. Furthermore, our results offer robust evidence of the information externalities that are required to justify reporting mandates at a time when the SEC is revisiting the quarterly earnings reporting requirement.

First draft: October 27, 2025
This draft: April 23, 2026
JEL codes: D80, D82, G12, G14, M41
Keywords: earnings announcements; information production; information spillovers; information externality; return correlations

* Lebow College of Business, Drexel University, 3141 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, PA 19104, US. Email: jc468@drexel.edu
 Corresponding author. School of Accounting and Finance, University of Waterloo, 200 University Ave W, Waterloo, ON N2L 3G1, Canada. Email: elizabeth.demers@uwaterloo.ca
 School of Accounting and Finance, University of Waterloo, 200 University Ave W, Waterloo, ON N2L 3G1, Canada. Email: tu.nguyen@uwaterloo.ca

We thank seminar participants at the University of Waterloo for helpful comments. Demers gratefully acknowledges the funding provided by SSHRC Insight Grant # 435-2021-0875.

Earnings Announcements and Information Transfer: A Reconciliation of the Literature

ABSTRACT
Extensive prior literature documents information spillovers from focal firms' earnings announcements to peer firms. A recent study by Frankel, Godigbe, and Rabier (2025) questions this inference by documenting reduced return correlations between announcing firms and their peers, raising significant doubt about the extent of information externality deriving from financial report releases, a surprising inference given that other studies document an increasing absolute amount of information production at earnings announcements (Beaver, McNichols, and Wang, 2018, 2020). We reconcile these seemingly contradictory perspectives by dichotomizing the peer response to focal firms' earnings announcements into a (declining) correlation with the focal firm combined with (increasing) absolute information production during the event window. We show that the net effect of these countervailing forces is an economically and statistically significant positive information spillover to peer firms. Our study clarifies the mechanism behind spillovers, confirms the information externality associated with earnings announcements, and resolves a key tension in the literature. Furthermore, our results offer robust evidence of the information externalities that are required to justify reporting mandates at a time when the SEC is revisiting the quarterly earnings reporting requirement.

1. Introduction
Beginning with Foster (1981), a large body of literature concludes that there are significant information spillovers from announcing firms at the time of earnings announcements (e.g., Clinch and Sinclair, 1987; Han and Wild 1990; Pandit, Wasley, and Zach, 2011; Ogneva, Xia, and Ye, 2021). The implication of these findings is that focal firm announcements convey information about shared economic fundamentals that investors extrapolate to other firms. A recent study by Frankel, Godigbe, and Rabier (2025) challenges this long-held view by documenting that return correlations between announcing firms and their industry peers decline on earnings announcement days (EADs). The authors interpret this pattern as evidence that a larger fraction of the information released on these days is firm-specific rather than industry-wide and conclude that earnings announcements may not be a significant information event for industry peers. Their conclusion is particularly surprising in light of recent evidence provided by Beaver, McNichols and Wang (2018, 2020) that EADs contain significantly more information (for announcing firms) than non-EADs, and that this is due to greater information bundling with earnings announcements in recent years. Resolving these seemingly contradictory views regarding the potential information externality associated with earnings releases is critical to the current SEC policy debate about whether to abolish quarterly earnings reporting requirements. Our study reconciles the results from the prior literature and robustly confirms the policy-relevant existence of information externalities on EADs.
We develop a general framework that dichotomizes the peer response on focal firms' EADs into two components, the peer firm's correlation with the focal firm and the absolute amount of information produced on the EAD. We first confirm the results of Frankel et al. (2025) that industry peer firm returns correlations are declining on EADs by documenting a decline of 43%-51% for the firms in our sample depending upon the specification. Consistent with Frankel et al. (2025), these results confirm that the fraction of industry-relevant information out of the total information produced on EADs is significantly lower than on non-EADs. In other words, the relevance of the signal is reduced on EADs. We also confirm the findings of Beaver et al. (2018) that the absolute amount of information released on the EAD is substantially larger, increasing to nearly three times the amount of information on non-EADs, for the focal firms in our sample. Combining the effects of these two countervailing forces (i.e., a lower relevance but higher quantity signal), we provide robust evidence that there are economically and statistically significant net information spillovers to peer firms on focal firm EADs. That is, while a smaller fraction of information released on focal firm EADs is relevant for peers, the greater total amount of information released leads to 36-56% higher net peer-relevant information. Our results and conclusion that there is a net spillover effect are robust to alternatively using volume rather than returns as the measure of market activity. In addition to reconciling seemingly diverse views in the literature, our findings are practically important as well as timely because the SEC is preparing a new proposal to remove the 50-year quarterly earnings reporting mandate for U.S.-listed firms (Driebusch 2026), allowing companies to report semi-annually. Responding to the call of Leuz and Wysocki (2016) for academics to provide evidence of market-driven externalities to economically justify reporting mandates, our study provides evidence of economically and statistically significant information externalities that may be reduced under the proposed change to semi-annual reporting.1

1 Our study is different from, but complementary to, Arif and De George (2020). They show that lower reporting frequency leads to heightened sensitivity and overreaction to bellwether peer announcements, concluding that lower reporting frequency adversely affects the quality of financial markets. We reconcile seemingly contrasting views in the literature about whether focal firm earnings announcements contain peer relevant information, concluding that despite significantly declining focal-peer firm correlations on EADs, the net information spillover to peers is economically and statistically significant because of the substantial increase in total information production on EADs.

In other words, we confirm the existence of information externalities resulting from earnings releases, externalities that would potentially be reduced with a move to a voluntary quarterly reporting regime.

We perform several tests to confirm the robustness of our findings. First, we utilize alternative industry classifications to define focal and peer firms, including the text-based industry classification (TNIC3) (Hoberg and Phillips 2010, 2016), NAICS, GICS, and three-digit SIC codes. Second, we employ alternative estimates of the decline in focal-peer correlation on EADs, incorporating coefficient estimates from Frankel et al. (2025) as well as those derived from our own regressions using several alternative specifications. Third, we use the median absolute idiosyncratic return, rather than the average, to measure the increase in information production on earnings announcement dates. Finally, we repeat our analysis using a three-day window [-1, +1] instead of a one-day window centered on the earnings announcement day. Our findings remain robust across all alternative specifications.

To provide a comprehensive view of the mechanisms affecting information spillover, we perform several cross-sectional analyses. First, we find that the nature of the earnings news is an important determinant of the extent of spillover, with "good news" (positive idiosyncratic returns) generating higher net information spillovers than "bad news." Consistent with Baginski (1987), this evidence suggests that positive shocks serve as systemic signals while negative shocks are more likely to be idiosyncratic. Second, we examine industry leadership and find that when the focal firm holds a dominant market position, defined as a market share exceeding 20%, net spillovers are significantly higher. This reinforces the role of leaders as "bellwethers" whose production functions serve as a macro proxy for the sector (Foster, 1981; Hou, 2007; Ogneva et al., 2021). Finally, we demonstrate that the magnitude of the earnings surprise matters; while large absolute surprises increase information production, they simultaneously cause a decoupling in return correlations, resulting in lower net spillovers. This implies that extreme surprises are generally perceived as firm-specific information rather than an industry trend. Overall, the cross-sectional results indicate that information spillovers are not uniform, and that the information externalities associated with earnings announcements are dependent upon the source and content of the news.

Our paper offers several important contributions. First, we provide a general framework that can be used in other research contexts to separately examine the impact of declining correlations between focal and peer firms and increased total information production on announcement days. Second, we use this framework to provide a unified interpretation of two seemingly incongruous empirical patterns documented in prior studies related to the potential for information spillover on EADs. Specifically, we confirm both a significant increase in total information production at the EAD (Beaver et al., 2018, 2020) and a significant reduction in the proportion of information that is industry-relevant on EADs (Frankel et al., 2025), and we show that the combined effect of these offsetting forces is a significant net increase in information spillover to industry peers on EADs. Our results thus reaffirm the inferences in the long-standing prior literature (e.g., Foster 2018; Clinch and Sinclair, 1987; Han and Wild 1990; Pandit et al., 2011; Ogneva et al., 2021) and confirm the existence of material information externalities at the release of earnings announcements. Finally, our robust evidence of information spillovers at quarterly EADs informs the ongoing policy debate over the SEC's pending proposal to abandon the very long-standing quarterly earnings reporting requirement by allowing firms to choose their own quarterly disclosure policy. From a public policy perspective, a lack of significant information spillover on EADs would call into question the regulatory mandate to report. In the absence of externalities, firms should arguably be allowed to choose their own optimal disclosure policy, being one that balances the firm's marginal benefits with their marginal costs of disclosure. In the case where significant information externalities are associated with quarterly announcements, however, these disclosures may be considered a semi-public good, potentially justifying some form of regulation to arrive at a more socially optimal level of disclosure (i.e., one that would enhance the quality of financial markets). Our study contributes to the understanding of market-wide externalities and causal "real effects" associated with mandatory earnings disclosures by providing robust evidence of the existence of information externalities that is essential for the economic justification of reporting mandates (Leuz and Wysock, 2016).

2. Related Literature

The conceptual foundation for spillover effects lies in the premise that one firm's earnings announcement conveys information about shared economic fundamentals that investors extrapolate to other firms. Early empirical studies document robust evidence of intra-industry information transfers. Foster (1981) and Clinch and Sinclair (1987) find that the stock returns of non-announcing firms move in tandem with those of announcing firms within the same industry. Baginski (1987) provides complementary evidence using management forecasts, showing that voluntary disclosures transmit industry-level signals that investors use to infer peer performance. Subsequent research identifies factors that amplify or attenuate these spillover effects. Brochet, Kolev, and Lerman (2018) document that shared analyst coverage, coverage by analysts issuing industry recommendations, overlapping institutional ownership, and joint media mentions are associated with stronger information spillovers around earnings announcements. Kraft, Vasvari, and Wittenberg-Moerman (2011) provide evidence of information transfers in credit markets: firms' earnings announcements influence the credit spreads of non-announcing peers, particularly when disclosures reveal industry-wide news and when peers are financially constrained by syndicated loans or covenant restrictions. These findings suggest that earnings disclosures also transmit industry information affecting debt pricing.

The timing of announcements also shapes the extent of spillovers. Thomas and Zhang (2007) show that late announcers' stock price reactions to early announcers' earnings news are negatively related to their subsequent reactions to their own reports. Using more recent data, Chung, Hrazdil, and Trottier (2015) find that this overreaction has weakened over time, consistent with improvements in market efficiency and evolving market microstructure. Das, King, and Pandit (2025) find that delayed earnings announcements, provided they remain among the first in an industry, attenuate information transfer to peer firms by 24%, an effect driven by information leakage and reduced industry relevance rather than investor inattention or poor earnings quality.

Recent work also investigates how reporting frequency affects spillovers. Arif and George (2020) show that firms reporting semiannually exhibit stronger stock price reactions to peers' earnings announcements, followed by reversals when their own results are released, consistent with temporary overreactions in low-disclosure environments. Stoumbos (2023) documents that information asymmetry widens steadily between earnings announcements – reflected in a 3.1% increase in bid-ask spreads – and that switching from semiannual to quarterly reporting mitigates this buildup, reducing spreads by about 1.6% on average. Analyzing both historical U.S. data and the 2007 EU Transparency Directive, Hillegeist, Kausar, Kraft, and Park (2026) find that increased mandatory reporting frequency improves corporate investment efficiency by enhancing the informational quality of stock prices, which allows managers to better "learn" from market signals.
Other studies identify spillover channels beyond industry peers. Pandit et al. (2011) document information externalities along supply chains: suppliers' stock prices react to their customers' earnings announcements, particularly when economic ties are strong (e.g., when the customer constitutes a large share of the supplier's sales). Ogneva et al. (2021) show that S&P 500 firms' earnings announcements generate market-wide reactions comparable in magnitude to major macroeconomic news releases, underscoring the role of index-level spillovers. These findings indicate that quarterly earnings announcements generate broader information externalities that are relevant beyond product-market competitors.

Collectively, the literature provides extensive evidence that earnings-related announcements generate economically significant spillovers to peer firms, with their magnitude shaped by economic linkages, disclosure environments, and institutional factors. These results underscore that spillovers are a fundamental feature of how markets process information, while reinforcing the central role of earnings announcements in information transmission.
A recent reassessment by Frankel et al. (2025) challenges this conventional view. They find that both the signed and absolute return correlations between focal and peer firms are significantly weaker on earnings announcement dates than on non-announcement days. Their analytical framework attributes this pattern to variations in the relative proportions of firm-specific versus industry relevant information contained in earnings announcements, casting "doubt about the extent of the information externality attributable to financial report releases" (pp. 319-320).
Taken together, the findings in Frankel et al. (2025) and the broader spillover literature seem to offer conflicting perspectives on the information spillovers associated with earnings announcements. Our analysis reconciles these views by providing a unified framework through which to assess earnings disclosure spillover effects. We separately examine the simultaneous increase in information production by focal firms on EADs and the changes in the stock return correlations with peer firms. While EADs are characterized by greater firm-specific information, and therefore a reduction in the fraction of news that is relevant to peer firms, we conjecture that the overall rise in total information production (Beaver et al., 2018, 2020) may still result in net information transfer to peers. Our results are consistent with this and thereby reconcile the extensive prior spillover evidence with more recent findings of declining correlations on EADs.

3. Data and Sample

3.1 SAMPLE CONSTRUCTION

We start with all firms in Compustat that have non-missing four-digit SIC industry classifications between 1999 and 2024. We further require that, at the time of announcement, firms have (i) a closing stock price above $1 and (ii) a market capitalization exceeding $5 million. Using data filters similar to that of Frankel et al. (2025), we require that each firm has at least one quarterly earnings announcement per year. We retain announcements for which Compustat and I/B/E/S earnings announcement dates differ by no more than five calendar days, assigning the earlier of the two dates as the earnings announcement date (EAD). These restrictions yield 406,130 firm-quarter earnings announcements for 14,026 unique firms across 441 four-digit SIC industries. Following Frankel et al. (2025), we define focal firms as the first firms within a four-digit SIC industry to announce quarterly earnings. This process produces 39,896 industry-quarters with one focal firm each. Peer firms are defined as other firms in the same industry that announce earnings at least 10 calendar days after the focal firm. We retain only industry-quarters with at least one peer, resulting in 29,307 industry-quarters and 2,676 unique focal firms across 405 industries. Matching each focal firm to each of its peers for each calendar quarter yields 288,001 industry-quarter-firm pairs.

9

Daily stock returns are obtained from CRSP. We restrict the sample to common shares (share codes 10 or 11) and require that daily return data be available for both the focal and peer firms. Fama-French factor returns are from Compustat. The final regression sample comprises 11,989,848 daily returns for 199,517 industry-quarter-firm pairs. The subsample restricted to earnings announcement days contains 199,517 daily returns. Appendix B describes the sample collection process in detail.

3.2 DESCRIPTIVE STATISTICS

Table 1 reports descriptive statistics for focal and peer firm returns. Panel A summarizes several stock return measures on focal firms' quarterly EADs. To be consistent with subsequent tables, we average the returns at the firm-year level before summarizing them for the sample.

2 On average, focal firms exhibit signed (absolute) raw returns of 0.4% (4.1%) on EADs, compared with 0.03% (2.4%) for peer firms.

Panel B summarizes variables measured on all trading days, including both announcement and non-announcement days. Consistent with Frankel et al. (2025), focal-firm EADs occur on only 1.6% of trading days. On all days, focal firms' signed (absolute) raw returns average 0.06% (1.8%), roughly two to six times smaller than those on EADs. Interestingly, peer firms exhibit higher absolute returns than focal firms, suggesting greater volatility. In addition, focal firms have mean total assets (market capitalization) of $15.2 billion ($12.5 billion), compared with $3.8 billion ($3.2 billion) for peers. This suggests that focal firms may be industry leaders. This size pattern aligns with prior evidence that larger firms tend to make earlier earnings announcements (Ramnath, 2002).

2 Appendix C reports daily returns measured on the focal firms' quarterly EADs (Panel A) and across all trading days (Panel B).

10

4. Is there information spillover on EADs?

4.1 REPLICATION OF PRIOR STUDIES

We first confirm the findings of prior studies on the spillover effects by examining how peer firms' stock returns respond to focal firms' announcements. Following Foster (1981) and Hann, Kim, and Zheng (2019), we estimate:

$$ReturnPEER = a + b1\ ReturnFOCAL \quad (1)$$

where ReturnPEER and ReturnFOCAL are the contemporaneous daily returns of peer and focal firms, respectively, measured on focal-firm EADs.

Panel A of Table 2 reports results for the idiosyncratic returns from one-factor, four-factor, and six-factor models.3 Across all specifications, b1 is positive and significant at the 1% level. These results confirm for our sample the positive net information spillovers from focal firms to peers on EADs documented in the extensive prior information transfer literature.

In Panel B of Table 2, we follow Frankel et al. (2025) to estimate the return correlations between peer firms and focal firms on all trading days. The test variable of interest is the interaction between alternative measures of idiosyncratic returns and an indicator for focal firm EADs. Consistent with the findings in Frankel et al. (2025), the coefficient on the interaction term is negative and significant at the 1% level for all specifications, confirming their result for our sample that there is a significant reduction in the proportion of industry-relevant information spillovers on focal EADs.

3 The results using raw returns and simple market adjusted returns are similar.

4.2 ECONOMETRIC MODEL OF INFORMATION SPILLOVER METRIC

In this section, we formally derive the net information spillover metric (Z) for the empirical framework used in subsequent sections. We model the information spillover from a focal firm to a peer firm as a function of the focal firm's total information production and the correlation between the two firms using the following regression equation:4

AbsRet$_{PPPPPPPP}$ = $\alpha\alpha$ + bb1$\hat{}$AbsRet$_{FFFFFFFFFF}$$\hat{}$ + bb2$\hat{}$AbsRet$_{FFFFFFFFFF}$$\hat{}$ $*$ $_{EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF}$ + bb3$_{EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF}$ (2)

where AbsRet denotes absolute idiosyncratic returns of the focal or peer firms and $_{EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF}$ is a binary variable that takes the value of one on focal firm earnings announcement dates.

4.2.1. Baseline Relationship on Non-Earnings-Announcement Days

On non-announcement days (EADFOCAl = 0), the relationship between the absolute idiosyncratic returns of a peer firm and a focal firm is captured by the b1 coefficient from Equation (2):

AbsRet$_{PPPPPPPP}$
$_{NNFFNN-PPFFEE}$ = $\alpha\alpha$ + bb1(AbsRet$_{FFFFFFFFFF}$
$_{NNFFNN-PPFFEE}$) (3)

In other words, b1 represents the baseline rate of information transfer (co-movement) between the focal firm and its peer in the absence of an earnings announcement.

4.2.2. Earnings Announcement Days (EADs)

4 This is the same regression model as in Section 3.2 of Frankel et al. (2025). We use absolute returns of the focal and peer firms as our main return measure because the spillover effect can be positive or negative. In a subsequent specification check in Table 9, we separate the sample according to whether focal firm EAD abnormal returns are positive or negative and find stronger spillover effects for the subsample with positive returns.

On an earnings announcement day ($_{EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF}$ = 1), two distinct structural shifts occur in the information environment:

• Shift A: Change in relative informational relevance (Y). The regression equation introduces the interaction term bb2 . The effective slope on EADs becomes (bb1 + bb2) . Defining the correlation change YY = bb2/bb1, the effective slope can be rewritten as:

Slope$_{PPFFEE}$ = bb1 + bb2 = bb1 $\hat{}$1 + bb2
bb1$\hat{}$ = bb1 (1 + YY) (4)

• Shift B: Increase in information production (X). Prior studies have measured the information content of earnings announcements with idiosyncratic stock returns on the announcement dates.5 Accordingly, we define X as the percentage increase in focal firm absolute idiosyncratic returns on EADs relative to non-EADs:

AbsRet$_{FFFFFFFFFF}$
$_{PPFFEE}$ = AbsRet$_{FFFFFFFFFF}$
$_{NNFFNN-PPFFEE}$(1 + XX) (5)

4.2.3. Net Information Spillover (Z)

To quantify the total spillover effect, we substitute the adjusted slope (Shift A) and the increased information production (Shift B) into the spillover equation for EADs. Using Equation (2), we have

AbsRet$_{PPPPPPPP}$
$_{PPFFEE}$ = $\alpha\alpha$ + bb3 + Slope$_{PPFFEE}$ × AbsRet$_{FFFFFFFFFF}$

$PPFFEE$ (6)

5 See, for example, Foster, 1981; Clinch and Sinclair, 1987; Han, Wild, and Ramesh, 1988; Han and Wild 1990.

While $\alpha\alpha$ is the baseline peer absolute return unrelated to spillover, as in equation (3), $bb3$ represents any shift in the peer firm's average absolute idiosyncratic returns on focal EADs that is unrelated to the focal firm spillover. Substituting the terms from equations (4) and (5):

$PPFFEE$
AbsRet$PPPPPPPP$
$- \alpha\alpha - bb3 = [bb1(1 + YY)] \times [$AbsRet$FFFFFFFFFF$
$NNFFNN{-}PPFFEE(1 + XX)]$ (7)

Rearranging the terms allows us to compare the EAD spillover against the expected baseline spillover ($bb1 \times$ AbsRet$FFFFFFFFFF$ $NNFFNN{-}PPFFEE$):

$PPFFEE$
AbsRet$PPPPPPPP$
(8)
$- \alpha\alpha - bb3 = (bb1 \times$ AbsRet$FFFFFFFFFF$ $NNFFNN{-}PPFFEE)$
Baseline Spillover
$\times [(1 + XX)(1 + YY)]$
Total Multiplier

The left-hand-side of equation (8) represents the net focal firm induced spillover on peer firms on EAD, net of both the baseline peer returns ($\alpha\alpha$) and any shocks on focal EAD unrelated to spillover (b3). The term [(1+X)(1+Y)] therefore represents the total multiplier of the peer's excess focal-induced spillover on EADs relative to the baseline state spillover. The net information spillover (Z) is defined as the percentage increase in this multiplier on EADs:

Z = (1 + X)(1 + Y) - 1

Thus, Z captures the net percentage change in peer information arrival on focal firm EADs, accounting for the simultaneous effects of a change in correlation (Y) and an increase in total information production (X).

4.3 EMPIRICAL RECONCILIATION OF PRIOR STUDIES

To reconcile the findings of Frankel et al. (2025) and prior studies, we follow the model above to construct the following three measures: i) increase in focal firm information production on their EADs (X); ii) correlation change between focal and peer firms on EADs (Y); and iii) net information spillover from focal to peer firms on EADs (Z).

4.3.1. Focal Firm Information Production on EADs

A slight transformation of Equation (5) gives X, the increase in information production by focal firms on EADs, as

$XX =$ $EEFFEE$
AbsRet$FFFFFFFFFF$
$NNNNNN{-}EEFFEE - 1$ (9)
AbsRet$FFFFFFFFFF$

where idiosyncratic returns are estimated from a number of alternative factor models to ensure robustness.

6 The increase in information production is heterogeneous across firms and time so we estimate this variable at the firm-year level.

Table 3, Panel A reports summary statistics for the average absolute idiosyncratic returns of focal firms estimated with alternative factor models on earnings announcement dates and on non-announcement dates. The statistics reveal that the extent of firm-specific information production is markedly higher on announcement dates. For example, based on the 1-factor market model, the average absolute idiosyncratic return on earnings announcement dates is 3.9%, which is about 2.6 times larger than the corresponding 1.5% on non-announcement dates. Taken together, the change in information production (X) is positive and significant. Under the 1-factor market model, information production increases by 193% for the average firm. Idiosyncratic returns estimated under the Fama-French 4-factor or 6-factor models yield similar results. Collectively, the shift in information production is both positive and statistically significant, with about 83% of focal firm-years exhibiting increased absolute idiosyncratic returns. Non-parametric Wilcoxon signed-rank tests further confirm the robustness of this effect. Our findings are consistent with 6 We acknowledge that X and Y are ratio-based variables that may follow a Cauchy-like distribution characterized by high skewness and heavy tails. Given that such distributions can bias standard parametric tests, we interpret the t-statistics with caution and supplement our analysis with the non-parametric Wilcoxon signed-rank test to ensure the robustness of our inferences.

those of recent studies by Beaver et al. (2018, 2020), who document a significant increase in a firm's own price and volume responses to earnings announcements over time. Overall, these results suggest that earnings announcements are associated with a pronounced increase in idiosyncratic information production relative to other trading days. While the direction of this finding is not surprising, the magnitude is important to our efforts to answer the question as to whether any of the new information is relevant for industry peers.

4.3.2. Correlation Shift between Focal and Peer Firms on EADs

Frankel et al. (2025) document a significant reduction in return correlation between the focal and peer firms on focal firm EADs using a panel regression as in Equation (2). To account for potential time-series variation in these correlation shifts, we adopt their empirical framework and estimate the Equation (2) on an annual basis and use the derived coefficients to define:

Correlation change Y = b2 / b1. (10)

This variable represents the percentage change in correlation between focal and peer firm idiosyncratic returns on EADs relative to non-EADs. When b2 is negative, Y represents a reduction in the correlation between the focal and peer firm returns on EADs relative to other days.

As with the variable X, the value of Y is also likely to have time-series and cross-sectional variation. That is, every focal-peer pair may have a different value of Y for every focal earnings announcement. Unfortunately, because there are at most four earnings announcement days per year, it is not possible to estimate Equation (2), which has 3 parameters, reliably at such a granular level.7 The most granular level at which we can reliably estimate Y is yearly, which we adopt as our main specification while presenting several alternative specifications as sensitivity tests in Table 6.

7 When we estimate the regressions by firm-year, 44% of the regressions are unidentified.

Table 3, Panel B reports summary statistics for b1, b2 and Y , estimated using alternative factor models. Under the market model, for example, the average value of b1 is 0.1332, whereas the average value of b2 is –0.0684. Taken together, the average Y (=b2/b1) is –0.3851 and is statistically significant at the 1% level based upon both t-tests and non-parametric Wilcoxon signed-rank tests. The Fama-French 4-factor and 6-factor models also yield negative Y values. Collectively, these results corroborate Frankel et al. (2025)'s finding that the correlation between focal and peer firm returns declines on earnings announcement dates relative to non-announcement trading days - i.e., the fraction of industry-relevant information out of the total amount of information produced is significantly lower on EADs.

4.3.3. Net Information Spillover on EADs

As in the model, we define Z as follows to capture the aggregate effect of information spillover on EADs:

$$Z = (1+X) * (1+Y) - 1. \quad (11)$$

The variable Z captures the overall change in information spillover on EADs from the combined effects of the increased information production by the focal firm and the reduced fraction of industry-relevant information on EADs.

Table 4 reports X, Y, and Z estimates for one-factor, four-factor, and six-factor models. Combining the previously reported positive X (indicating a substantial increase in overall information production on EADs) with the negative Y (representing the reduced focal-peer correlation on EADs) results in an average Z that is positive and significant in all specifications.

17

This positive Z indicates that the net industry-relevant information spillover is meaningfully higher on EADs (e.g., 70% higher on average under the market model) relative to non-EADs. The average values of Z estimated with the Fama-French 4-factor and 6-factor models are 97% and 99%, respectively. In all three specifications, both the mean and median values of Z are positive, with t-test and signed-rank tests statistically significant at the $p < 0.0001$ level. These results confirm that there are statistically and economically significant net information spillovers from focal to peer firms on EADs.

In summary, the combined results in Tables 3 and 4 confirm the findings from the prior literature that there is both a substantial increase in the total information produced by focal firms on their EADs (Beaver et al., 2020) and a reduction in the fraction of that information that is relevant to peer firms (Frankel et al., 2025), while showing that the net effect is a significant amount of information spillover to peer firms. Our results therefore serve to reconcile the seeming contradiction in these earlier studies while confirming the long-held result that earnings announcements are associated with information externalities (Foster, 1981; Clinch and Sinclair, 1987; Han et al., 1988; amongst others).

4.4 ROBUSTNESS TESTS

To ensure that our findings are not driven by the particular empirical specification that we employ, we perform a number of sensitivity tests to confirm the robustness of our findings. First, we use alternative industry classifications to define focal firms and peer firms. In our main specification, we follow Frankel et al. (2025) and use the four-digit SIC codes to define focal and peer firms. In Panel A of Table 5, we define peer and focal firms using the text-based industry classification (TNIC3) developed by Hoberg and Phillips (2010, 2016). In Panel B, we employ 6-digit NAICS industry classification, while in Panels C and D we use GIC and three-digit SIC codes, respectively, to define focal and peer firms. In all four panels, we document positive X, negative Y, and positive Z values with idiosyncratic returns estimated under one-factor, 4-factor, or 6-factor models, and the estimated values of the variables are generally of a similar magnitude across specifications. More importantly, both the mean and median values of Z are positive, with t-tests and signed-rank tests that are significant at the $p < 0.0001$ level in all specifications. The results in Table 5 show that our main findings are robust to alternative industry classifications.

18

Next, we report our results using alternative definitions for Y. In our main specification, we estimate Y from Equation (2) with annual regressions. In Panel A of Table 6, we employ the coefficient estimate of Y from Frankel et al. (2025, Table 4, Column 2). Panel B uses the coefficient estimate of one single Y derived from Equation (2) with a pooled regression. In Panel C, we average the annual coefficient estimates of Y from our main specification and use this single average value of Y . In all three panels, our main results remain robust, with positive X, negative Y, and positive Z values. Both the mean and median values of Z are positive with the t-tests and signed-rank tests statistically significant at the $p < 0.0001$ level in all specifications. Table 6 confirms that our main finding is robust to alternative specifications of Y, the change in correlation between focal and peer firms around focal EADs.

In Table 7, we repeat our analysis using a three-day window ([-1, +1]) centered on the focal EAD as the earnings announcement window. Under this specification, the designated earnings announcement windows constitute 4.98% of the total trading days for the average firm in the sample, compared to 1.62% when we use the one-day EAD as the event window. As expected, the value of X, the average daily information production in the earnings announcement window, is lower than the corresponding numbers in Table 4, since the earnings announcement window includes two non-EADs. For the same reason, the value of Y, the change in correlation between focal and peer firms during the earnings announcement window, is also less negative than the corresponding numbers in Table 4. However, both the mean and median values of Z remain positive, with the t-tests and Wilcoxon signed-rank tests remaining statistically significant at the $p < 0.0001$ level across specifications. We conclude that our main findings are robust to the adoption of a three-day earnings announcement window.
19
We recognize the potential for skewness to impact the inference of our primary tests. In this regard, we note that the mean and median values of X, Y, and Z are closer to each other in Table 7 than in Table 4, indicating that their distribution is less skewed when estimated using the longer window. The findings from Table 7 thus provide some assurance that our main findings are not driven by the skewness of the variables. To further address the effect of potential skewness of focal firm information production on EADs, we use the median absolute idiosyncratic return, rather than the average, in calculating X in Table 8. As shown, this results in even higher values of X and Z, confirming that our main findings are not driven by the skewed distribution of focal firm information production on EADs.
The additional tests in this section confirm that our results are robust to alternative definitions of peer industry membership, estimates of the correlation between focal and peer firms, and event windows, and that the results are unlikely to be driven by skewness in the data.
4.5 CROSS-SECTIONAL ANALYSIS
We next perform several cross-sectional analyses to examine whether our baseline estimates vary across distinct subsamples. First, we investigate whether information transfer differs according to the nature of the news released by focal firms on their EADs. Table 9 reports the results of estimating X, Y, and Z across two subsamples based on the sign of the focal firm's idiosyncratic returns on the earnings announcement date. Panel A presents results for the "good news" subsample (i.e., those with positive idiosyncratic returns), while Panel B presents results for the "bad news" subsample (i.e., those with negative idiosyncratic returns). This classification is performed independently for each of the three factor models employed, which leads to slightly different numbers of observations across the factor models.
20
8
Comparing the two panels in Table 9, we note that there is a greater increase in information production (X) and a higher level of net information spillover (Z) on good news EADs. The evidence on the reduction in return correlation (Y) is somewhat mixed, with more reduction on bad news EADs using the 1-factor model but less reduction in correlation when estimated using the 4- or 6-factor models. Taken together, these findings suggest that there is some level of asymmetry in information production depending upon the sign of the news: good news appears to be associated with a higher degree of total information production and industry-relevant information, on average, whereas bad news appears to contain more focal-firm-specific information. This result is consistent with the findings from the information transfer literature that "bad news" is more idiosyncratic (i.e., firm-specific) while "good news" is more systemic (i.e., industry-relevant) (e.g., Baginski (1987)).
Next, we investigate the role of industry leadership in the information transfer process. We estimate X, Y , and Z across two subsamples partitioned by the focal firm's industry leadership status during the quarter. Following Frankel et al. (2025), we define a focal firm as an industry leader if its quarterly sales exceed 20% of the total aggregate sales within its industry. Table 10 reports the results for these subsamples. The findings indicate that when the focal firm is an industry leader, the increase in information production (X) on EADs is more pronounced and the 8 The numbers of observations in the two panels in Table 9 do not add up to the corresponding numbers in Table 4 because, in a given year, a firm may appear in Panel A of Table 9 in some quarters but in Panel B in others, leading to higher observation counts. The same reasoning also applies to Tables 10 and 11.

reduction in return correlation (Y) is less substantial, which when taken together leads to a higher net information spillover (Z). These results highlight the critical role of market leadership in facilitating industry-wide information spillovers, and is consistent with the well-documented phenomenon that leaders have more representative production functions and broader market reach, making their earnings reports a "macro" signal for the entire sector (Foster, 1981; Hou, 2007; Hertzel et al.. 2008; Beaver et al., 2018).

Finally, we investigate whether the magnitude of the earnings surprise affects the intensity of the information spillover. In Table 11, we estimate X, Y, and Z across two subsamples partitioned by the magnitude of the focal firm's earnings surprise on the EAD. Following Frankel et al. (2025), we define the earnings surprise as the actual announced earnings minus the median analyst forecast, scaled by the share price at the beginning of the period. To ensure data integrity and avoid split-adjustment biases, we utilize unadjusted quarterly analyst forecasts on the same basis as the actual earnings to calculate the surprise. We categorize an observation as a "high earnings surprise" if the absolute value of the surprise exceeds the median for all Compustat firms within the same industry and quarter.

Table 11 documents the intuitive result that, when the focal firm reports a higher absolute earnings surprise, information production (X) increases. However, the change in return correlation (Y) becomes significantly more negative, ultimately leading to a lower but still significantly positive net average information spillover (Z).9 The more pronounced decrease in Y suggests that 9 We note that while approximately 51–52% of the observations for Z are negative in Panel A, the Wilcoxon signed-rank test remains positive and statistically significant. This suggests that while the directional impact of the spillover is nearly evenly split in terms of frequency, the positive realizations of Z are sufficiently larger in magnitude relative to the negative ones that they shift the overall distribution. This skewness implies that when information transfer occurs, its positive effect on net informativeness is economically meaningful, even if a slight majority of individual observations show a marginal reduction in net spillover.

large earnings surprises predominantly convey firm-specific information rather than industry-wide signals, a result that is broadly consistent with the findings of Frankel et al. (2025).

The results of these cross-sectional analyses indicate that information spillovers are not uniform, but rather that the information externalities associated with earnings announcements are dependent upon the source and content of the news. Good news announcements and those made by industry leaders are associated with greater information spillovers whereas bad news announcements and those containing earnings surprises of greater magnitudes tend to contain relatively more idiosyncratic information.

4.6 TRADING VOLUME

In our final set of analyses, we examine whether there is spillover in trading volume from focal firms to peer firms on focal firm EADs. Kim and Verrecchia (1994) provide a seminal theoretical model demonstrating that disclosure influences both price and trading volume by altering investors' uncertainty about firm value and common market factors. Empirical work (Beaver, 1968; Beaver et al., 2020) establishes that investor responses to new information are significantly reflected in trading volume surrounding announcement dates. If a systematic spillover effect exists, we expect to observe a positive correlation between the abnormal trading volume of peer firms and that of the focal firm during the focal firm's announcement window.

We present our analysis of trading volume spillovers in Tables 12 and 13. Table 12 adopts the methodology from Table 2 to examine the contemporaneous correlation between peer and focal firm trading activity on focal firm EADs. We scale the firm's total trading volume by its total number of shares outstanding. The abnormal trading volume is calculated as the ratio of a (peer) firm's trading volume on the focal firm's EAD to its average volume on days that are neither the focal firm's EADs nor its own EADs, minus one.

23

In Columns (1) and (2), we report OLS regression results where the sample includes only focal firm EADs. The dependent variable is the peer firm's trading volume (or abnormal trading volume). Our primary independent variable is the contemporaneous trading volume (or abnormal trading volume) of the focal firm. In Column (1), the coefficient on the focal firm's trading volume is positive and statistically significant at the 1% level, indicating a strong contemporaneous correlation between the trading activities of focal and peer firms during focal firm announcement windows. We observe consistent results in Column (2) when using abnormal trading volume as the dependent variable. The abnormal trading volume is net of the non-EAD trading activities and isolates the volume spillover on EADs. While the coefficient on the focal firm's abnormal trading volume is smaller in magnitude than in the raw volume specification, it remains statistically significant at the 1% level. These findings are consistent with the results of return correlations in Table 2, Panel A, providing robust evidence of information-driven volume spillovers.

Column (3) reports the results when the dependent variable is the peer firm's trading volume across all trading days. The test variables of interest are the contemporaneous trading volume of the focal firm and its interaction with an indicator for the focal firm's EAD. Consistent with the return correlation results in Table 2 (Panel B), Column (3) shows a positive and statistically significant coefficient on the focal firm's volume, but a negative and statistically significant coefficient on the interaction term (both at the 1% level). Our findings are thus consistent with those of Frankel et al. (2025), documenting that there is a reduction in the fraction of industry-relevant information on focal firms' earnings announcement days.

In Table 13, we apply our empirical framework (detailed in Section 4.2) using trading volume as the primary metric of information spillover. This table reports the estimated volume spillover to peer firms on focal-firm EADs, once again measuring net information spillover as:

24

Z = (1+X) * (1+Y) – 1

where X is the increase in information production on EADs at the focal firm-year level:

$FFaaaaaaFFaaaa\ FFoo\ ooFFFFFFFF\ ooffaaff\ ttaaFFttffNNaa\ aaFFFFvvffaa\ FFNN\ PPFFEE$

X =

– 1

$FFaaaaaaFFaaaa\ FFoo\ ooFFFFFFFF\ ooffaaff\ ttaaFFttffNNaa\ aaFFFFvvffaa\ FFNN\ NNFFNN-PPFFEE$

To measure Y, we estimate equation (2) using trading volume:

$VVVVVVVVVVVVPPPPPPPP = \alpha\alpha + bb1$ Volume$FFFFFFFFFF$ + $bb2$ Volume$FFFFFFFFFF$ $* EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF + bb3EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF$

Y (the change in volume correlation on EADs) is then defined:

Y = b2 / b1

where b1 and b2 are coefficients from the above OLS regression estimated at the yearly level.

As reported in Table 13, the coefficient for X is positive and statistically significant, indicating a substantial increase in overall information production on EADs, as reflected in heightened trading activity. We also find that Y is negative, which is consistent with a reduction in the contemporaneous correlation between focal and peer firms on EADs. Notably, when these two components are combined, the average Z remains positive and significant, indicating that the net industry-relevant information spillover is meaningfully higher on EADs (e.g., 38% higher on average). Both the mean and median values of Z are positive, with t-tests and Wilcoxon signed-rank tests confirming statistical significance at the $p < 0.0001$ level. Collectively, the results in Table 13 demonstrate the robustness of our primary finding to alternative measures of market activity and support the conclusion that focal firm earnings announcements are associated with both a significant increase in total information production and a relative reduction in focal-peer correlation, netting to a significant overall increase in information spillover to peer firms.

5. Conclusion

A central issue in the ongoing policy debate about mandatory quarterly earnings disclosure concerns the existence and magnitude of informational spillovers from earnings announcements. If such spillovers are negligible, then firms might reasonably be allowed to set their own optimal disclosure policies, whereas the existence of information externalities may suggest that these disclosures are a semi-public good, potentially justifying some form of reporting mandate to enhance the overall informational quality of financial markets.

Our study reconciles seemingly contrasting perspectives in the extant literature by providing a general framework that allows us to confirm the existence of both absolute increases in information production as well as declining correlations between focal and peer firms. We provide robust results that these two countervailing forces net to an economically and statistically significant information spillover from focal to peer firms on earnings announcement days. Our framework should be useful to researchers investigating information spillovers in other contexts and our empirical results should be informative to current regulatory debates related to the abolishment of quarterly reporting requirements.

REFERENCES

ARIF, S., and E. T. DE GEORGE. “The Dark Side of Low Financial Reporting Frequency: Investors' Reliance on Alternative Sources of Earnings News and Excessive Information Spillovers.” The Accounting Review 95 (2020): 23–49.

BAGINSKI, S. P. “Intraindustry Information Transfers Associated with Management Forecasts of Earnings.” Journal of Accounting Research 25 (1987): 196–216.

BEAVER, W. H. “The Information Content of Annual Earnings Announcements.” Journal of Accounting Research 6 (1968): 67–92.

BEAVER, W. H.; M. F. MCNICHOLS; and Z. Z. WANG. “The Information Content of Earnings Announcements: New Insights from Intertemporal and Cross-Sectional Behavior.” Review of Accounting Studies 23 (2018): 95–135.

BEAVER, W. H.; M. F. MCNICHOLS; and Z. Z. WANG. “Increased Market Response to Earnings Announcements in the 21st Century: An Empirical Investigation.” Journal of Accounting and Economics 69 (2020): 101244.

BREUER, M.; K. HOMBACH; and M. MÜLLER. “When You Talk, I Remain Silent: Spillover Effects of Peers' Mandatory Disclosures on Firms' Voluntary Disclosures.” The Accounting Review 97 (2022): 155–186.

BROCHET, F.; K. KOLEV; and A. LERMAN. “Information Transfer and Conference Calls.” Review of Accounting Studies 23 (2018): 907–957.

CHUNG, D. Y.; K. HRAZDIL; and K. TROTTIER. “On the Efficiency of Intra-Industry Information Transfers: The Dilution of the Overreaction Anomaly.” Journal of Banking & Finance 60 (2015): 153–167.

CLINCH, G., and N. SINCLAIR. “Intra-Industry Information Releases: A Recursive Systems Approach.” Journal of Accounting and Economics 9 (1987): 89–106.

DAS, S.; A. Z. KING; and S. PANDIT. “Are Delayed Earnings Announcements Informative for Peer Firms?” Journal of Business Finance & Accounting 53 (2026): 435–464.

DRIEBUSCH, C. “SEC Prepares Proposal to Eliminate Quarterly Reporting Requirement.” The Wall Street Journal, March 17, 2026. https://www.wsj.com/finance/regulation/sec-prepares-proposal-to-eliminate-quarterly-reporting-requirement-1d700bbb
FOSTER, G. “Intra-Industry Information Transfers Associated with Earnings Releases.” Journal of Accounting and Economics 3 (1981): 201–232.
FRANKEL, R.; R. GODIGBE; and M. RABIER. “Information Spillovers at Earnings Announcements.” Journal of Accounting Research 63 (2025): 319–362.
HAN, J. C. Y., and J. J. WILD. “Unexpected Earnings and Intra-Industry Information Transfers: Further Evidence.” Journal of Accounting Research 28 (1990): 211–219.
HAN, J. C. Y.; J. J. WILD; and K. RAMESH. “Unexpected Earnings and Intra-Industry Information Transfers.” Journal of Accounting Research 26 (1988): 211–226.
HANN, R.; Y. KIM; and X. ZHENG. “Peer Effects in Disclosure Decisions: Evidence from Mandatory IFRS Adoption.” The Accounting Review 94 (2019): 163–189.
HERTZEL, M. G.; Z. LI; M. S. OFFICER; and K. J. RODGERS. “Inter-Firm Linkages and the Wealth Effects of Financial Distress Along the Supply Chain.” Journal of Financial Economics 87 (2008): 374–387.
HILLEGEIST, S. A.; A. KAUSAR; A. KRAFT; and Y. I. C. PARK. “More Frequent Financial Reporting and Market Feedback Effect: Evidence from US and EU Regulatory Changes.” Journal of Accounting and Public Policy 56 (2026): 107421.
HOBERG, G., and G. PHILLIPS. “Product Market Synergies and Competition in Mergers and Acquisitions: A Text-Based Analysis.” The Review of Financial Studies 23 (2010): 3773–3811.
HOBERG, G., and G. PHILLIPS. “Text-Based Network Industries and Endogenous Product Differentiation.” Journal of Political Economy 124 (2016): 1423–1465.
HOU, K. “Industry Information Diffusion and the Lead-Lag Effect in stock returns.” The Review of Financial Studies 20 (2007): 1113–1138.
KIM, O., and R. E. VERRECCHIA. “Market Liquidity and Volume Around Earnings Announcements.” Journal of Accounting and Economics 17 (1994): 41–67.

KRAFT, P.; F. P. VASVARI; and R. WITTENBERG-MOERMAN. “The Information Spillover Effect of Earnings Announcements in the Credit Market.” Working paper, University of Chicago (2011).
LEUZ, C., and P. D. WYSOCKI. “The Economics of Disclosure and Financial Reporting Regulation: Evidence and Suggestions for Future Research.” Journal of Accounting Research 54 (2016): 525–622.
OGNEVA, M.; J. XIA; and T. YE. “Market-Wide Spillovers from Individual Firms’ Earnings Announcements.” Working paper, SSRN 3837800 (2021).
PANDIT, S.; C. E. WASLEY; and T. ZACH. “Information Externalities Along the Supply Chain: The Economic Determinants of Suppliers’ Stock Price Reaction to Their Customers’ Earnings Announcements.” Contemporary Accounting Research 28 (2011): 1304–1343.
RAMNATH, S. “Investor and Analyst Reactions to Earnings Announcements of Related Firms: An Empirical Analysis.” Journal of Accounting Research 40 (2002): 1351–1376.
STOUMBOS, R. “The Growth of Information Asymmetry Between Earnings Announcements and Its Implications for Reporting Frequency.” Management Science 69 (2023): 1901–1928.
THOMAS, J., and F. ZHANG. “Overreaction to Intra-Industry Information Transfers?” Journal of Accounting Research 46 (2008): 909–940.

TABLE 1
Summary Statistics
Variable N Mean SD 25th Median 75th
Panel A: Variables measured on EADs of focal firms

Focal firms
Signed return 11,261 0.00393 0.04132 -0.01902 0.00310 0.02647
Signed MktAdj return 11,261 0.00368 0.03728 -0.01768 0.00297 0.02522
Signed idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 11,261 0.00329 0.03604 -0.01721 0.00257 0.02378
Signed idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 11,261 0.00304 0.03395 -0.01646 0.00232 0.02303
Signed idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 11,261 0.00295 0.03305 -0.01614 0.00236 0.02259
Absolute return 11,261 0.04140 0.02656 0.01964 0.03738 0.05986
Absolute MktAdj return 11,261 0.03968 0.02503 0.01894 0.03595 0.05715
Absolute idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 11,261 0.03847 0.02452 0.01826 0.03472 0.05575
Absolute idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 11,261 0.03673 0.02330 0.01751 0.03336 0.05309
Absolute idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 11,261 0.03583 0.02264 0.01725 0.03266 0.05192
Peer firms
Signed return 69,998 0.00033 0.02468 -0.01050 0.00000 0.01082
Signed MktAdj return 69,998 -0.00006 0.02279 -0.01015 -0.00011 0.00966
Signed idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 69,998 -0.00014 0.02194 -0.00967 -0.00032 0.00900
Signed idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 69,998 0.00021 0.02068 -0.00889 -0.00012 0.00877
Signed idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 69,998 0.00016 0.02026 -0.00882 -0.00011 0.00863
Absolute return 69,998 0.02379 0.01944 0.01044 0.01848 0.03155
Absolute MktAdj return 69,998 0.02237 0.01835 0.00970 0.01717 0.02949
Absolute idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 69,998 0.02144 0.01792 0.00906 0.01633 0.02838
Absolute idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 69,998 0.02032 0.01697 0.00864 0.01551 0.02677
Absolute idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 69,998 0.02005 0.01663 0.00857 0.01536 0.02647

TABLE 1 – (Continued)
Panel B: Variables measured across all trading days
Focal firms
Signed return 11,261 0.00066 0.00258 -0.00051 0.00069 0.00188
Signed MktAdj return 11,261 0.00028 0.00227 -0.00080 0.00024 0.00135
Signed idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 11,261 0.00000 0.00023 -0.00002 0.00000 0.00002
Signed idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 11,261 -0.00001 0.00024 -0.00002 0.00000 0.00001
Signed idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 11,261 -0.00001 0.00024 -0.00002 0.00000 0.00001
Absolute return 11,261 0.01832 0.00879 0.01191 0.01628 0.02255
Absolute MktAdj return 11,261 0.01634 0.00833 0.01015 0.01431 0.02053
Absolute idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 11,261 0.01562 0.00803 0.00970 0.01364 0.01954
Absolute idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 11,261 0.01475 0.00767 0.00913 0.01281 0.01844
Absolute idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 11,261 0.01453 0.00756 0.00898 0.01261 0.01816
Peer firms
Signed return 69,998 0.00047 0.00342 -0.00078 0.00055 0.00186
Signed MktAdj return 69,998 0.00006 0.00316 -0.00112 0.00010 0.00136
Signed idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 69,998 -0.00001 0.00025 -0.00004 0.00000 0.00003
Signed idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 69,998 -0.00002 0.00026 -0.00005 0.00000 0.00002
Signed idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 69,998 -0.00002 0.00026 -0.00005 0.00000 0.00002
Absolute return 69,998 0.02346 0.01167 0.01448 0.02099 0.03033
Absolute MktAdj return 69,998 0.02198 0.01121 0.01325 0.01950 0.02868
Absolute idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 69,998 0.02109 0.01098 0.01254 0.01863 0.02777
Absolute idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 69,998 0.02014 0.01068 0.01181 0.01773 0.02661
Absolute idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 69,998 0.01989 0.01053 0.01168 0.01752 0.02630
This table provides summary statistics for firms that announced quarterly earnings during the 1999-2024 period.
For each calendar quarter, we define focal firms as the first firms that announce their quarterly earnings among firms in the same four-digit SIC industry. For each focal firm, we identify industry peers (peer firms) as firms in the same industry that announce quarterly earnings at least 10 days after the focal firm. All return variables are averaged at firm/year level to be consistent with subsequent tables. Panel A reports statistics for annually averaged variables for focal- and peer-firms on quarterly earnings announcement days (EAD) of the focal firms; Panel B reports statistics for annually averaged variables for focal- and peer-firms across all trading days. All variables are defined in Appendix A.

TABLE 2
Peer- and focal-firm earnings correlation
Panel A: Peer reaction on focal-firm earnings announcement day (EAD)
(1) (2) (3) (4) (5) (6)
Peer-Firm
Focal-Firm
Idio. return
(1-factor)
Signed Idio. return
(4-factor)
Idio. return
(6-factor)
Idio. return
(1-factor)
Absolute
Idio. return
(4-factor)
Idio. return
(6-factor)
0.0706 * * *
(6.37)
0.0602 * * *
(5.91)
0.0590 * * *
(6.32)
0.0776 * * *
(4.89)
Signed Idio. return
(1-factor)
Signed Idio. return
(4-factor)
Signed Idio. return
(6-factor)
Absolute Idio. return
(1-factor)
Absolute Idio. return
(4-factor)
Absolute Idio. return
(6-factor)
Constant -0.0004 * *
-0.0002 -0.0002 (-2.19) (-0.92) (-1.46) Observations 199,517 199,517 199,517 Clustering Industry-

Industry-
Industry-
Quarter
Quarter
Quarter
0.0791 * * *
(5.73)
0.0164 * * * 0.0155 * * * 0.0154 * * *
(16.38) (18.19) (17.67)
199,517 199,517 199,517
Industry-
Industry-
Industry-
Quarter
Quarter
Quarter
Adjusted R-squared 0.0070 0.0052 0.0049 0.0045 0.0049 0.0045
0.0818 * * *
(6.49)
32
TABLE 2 – (Continued)
Panel B: Peer- and focal-firm correlation on all days
(1) (2) (3) (4) (5) (6)
Peer-Firm
Focal-Firm
Idio. return
(1-factor)
Signed Idio. return
(4-factor)
Idio. return
(6-factor)
Idio. return
(1-factor)
Absolute
Idio. return
(4-factor)
Idio. return
(6-factor)
0.1921 * * *
(14.03)
-0.1145 * * *
(-5.72)
Signed Idio. return
(1-factor)
Signed Idio. return
(1-factor) x EAD
Signed Idio. return
(4-factor)
Signed Idio. Return
(4-factor) x EAD
Signed Idio. return
(6-factor)

Signed Idio. return
(6-factor) x EAD
Absolute Idio. return
(1-factor)
Absolute Idio. return
(1-factor) x EAD
Absolute Idio. return
(4-factor)
Absolute Idio. return
(4-factor) x EAD
Absolute Idio. return
(6-factor)
0.1339 * * *
(9.84)
-0.0633 * * *
(-6.55)
0.0819 * * *
(7.20)
-0.0217 * * *
(-2.97)
0.0730 * * *
(7.22)
-0.0140 * *
(-2.35)
0.1771 * * *
(12.62)
-0.0980 * *
*
Absolute Idio. return
(6-factor) x EAD
EAD -0.0001 0.0002 0.0001 (-0.58) (0.90) (0.78) Constant -0.0003 * * *
-0.0003 * * *
-0.0003 * * * (-6.02) (-7.82) (-8.04) Observations 11,989,848 11,989,848 11,989,848 Clustering Industry-
Industry-
Industry-
Quarter
Quarter
Quarter
(-6.45)
0.0008 * 0.0005 0.0005
(1.91) (1.63) (1.57)
0.0156 * * * 0.0151 * * * 0.0150 * * *
(23.36) (22.43) (22.49)
11,989,848 11,989,848 11,989,848
Industry-
Industry-
Industry-
Quarter
Quarter
Quarter
Adjusted R-squared 0.0099 0.0037 0.0029 0.0198 0.0172 0.0164

0.1808 * * *
(13.01)
-0.0990 * * *
(-6.80)
Panel A reports OLS regressions where the dependent variable is the return of peer firms on focal-firm earning announcement days. Panel B reports OLS regressions where the dependent variable is the return of peer firms across all trading days. The main independent variables are contemporaneous focal firm returns. All variables are defined in Appendix A. Standard errors are clustered at the industry by quarter level. The t-values are reported in parentheses.
*
,
* *, and * * * denote statistical significance at the 10%, 5% and 1% level, respectively.
33
TABLE 3
Increase in information production and reduction in return correlation on EAD Variable N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Panel A: Increase in information production on EAD Average focal firm's absolute idiosyncratic return on EAD
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model Average focal firm's absolute idiosyncratic return on non-EAD
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model 11,261 0.0391 0.0350 (166.55)
11,261 0.0374 0.0335 (166.87)
11,261 0.0365 0.0329 (168.00)
11,261 0.0151 0.0132 (219.24)
11,261 0.0142 0.0124 (216.41)
11,261 0.0140 0.0122 (216.15)
Increase in information
production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 11,261 1.9350 1.5132 (103.57) 82.77% (<.0001)
4-factor model 11,261 1.9984 1.5634 (104.01) 83.12% (<.0001)
6-factor model 11,261 1.9640 1.5404 (103.86) 82.89% (<.0001)
Panel B: Reduction in return correlation on EAD
b1
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model b2
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model Change in return correlation on
EADs (Y)
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model 26 0.1332 0.1291 (12.37)
26 0.1178 0.1095 (12.90)
26 0.1129 0.1065 (12.76)
26 -0.0684 -0.0631 (-4.37)
26 -0.0474 -0.0472 (-3.62)
26 -0.0447 -0.0457 (-3.45)
26 -0.3851 -0.5458 (-4.07) 19.23% (<.0001)
26 -0.2920 -0.4250 (-2.95) 23.08% (<.0001)
26 -0.2709 -0.4645 (-2.61) 23.08% (<.0001)

Panel A reports the increase in information production on earnings announcement days (X) at the focal firm – year level. We measure X as follows:
Increase in information production on EADs at the focal firm-year level:
average of focal ⍰irm absolute idiosyncratic return on EAD
X =
– 1
average of focal ⍰irm absolute idiosyncratic return on non–EAD Panel B reports the average change in return correlation on earnings announcement days (Y). We estimate equation (2):
AbsRet$PPPPPPPP$ = $\alpha\alpha$ + bb1⍰AbsRet$FFFFFFFFFF$⍰ + bb2⍰AbsRet$FFFFFFFFFF$⍰ $*$ $EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF$ + bb3$EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF$
We measure Y (the Change in return correlation on EADs) as follows:
Y = b2 / b1 where b1 and b2 are coefficients from the above OLS regression at the yearly level.
34
TABLE 4
Idiosyncratic return spillover effect
Variable N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Increase in information
production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 11,261 1.9350 1.5132 (103.57) 82.77% (<.0001)
4-factor model 11,261 1.9984 1.5634 (104.01) 83.12% (<.0001)
6-factor model 11,261 1.9640 1.5404 (103.86) 82.89% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation
on EADs (Y)
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model 26 -0.3851 -0.5458 (-4.07) 19.23% (0.0004)
26 -0.2920 -0.4250 (-2.95) 23.08% (0.0054)
26 -0.2709 -0.4645 (-2.61) 23.08% (0.0214)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model 11,261 0.6971 0.2023 (47.52) 56.42% (<.0001)
11,261 0.9671 0.4216 (58.27) 60.91% (<.0001)
11,261 0.9919 0.4812 (59.62) 63.37% (<.0001)
This table reports the idiosyncratic spillover effect of focal-firm earnings announcements to peer firms, by focal firm-year. We measure Net information spillover as:
Z = (1+X) * (1+Y) – 1
Where X and Y are defined in Table 3 35
Variable TABLE 5
Alternative Industry Definitions for Peer Firms and Focal Firms N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Panel A: Industry defined as TNIC3 (Hoberg and Phillips) Increase in information production on
EADs (X)
1-factor model 11,448 2.2364 1.5379 (96.21) 80.97% (<.0001)
4-factor model 11,448 2.2726 1.6011 (97.11) 80.91% (<.0001)

6-factor model 11,448 2.2193 1.5733 (97.25) 80.56% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation on EADs
(Y)
1-factor model 4-factor model 25 -0.4475 -0.5305 (-4.98) 16.00% (<.0001)
25 -0.4381 -0.4785 (-5.14) 20.00% (<.0001)
6-factor model 25 -0.4230 -0.4929 (-4.86) 20.00% (0.0002)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 11,448 0.6896 0.1382 (40.68) 53.80% (<.0001)
4-factor model 11,448 0.7258 0.2504 (44.02) 56.94% (<.0001)
6-factor model 11,448 0.7334 0.2599 (44.68) 57.37% (<.0001)
Panel B: Industry defined as NAICS
Increase in information
production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 12,334 2.2854 1.6022 (101.61) 81.48% (<.0001)
4-factor model 12,334 2.3349 1.6459 (102.60) 81.81% (<.0001)
6-factor model 12,334 2.2895 1.6313 (103.03) 81.81% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation on
EADs (Y)
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model 26 -0.4759 -0.5413 (-6.38) 15.38% (<.0001)
26 -0.4375 -0.4919 (-5.92) 11.54% (<.0001)
26 -0.4190 -0.4471 (-5.07) 11.54% (0.0002)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 12,334 0.5738 0.1179 (44.63) 53.92% (<.0001)
4-factor model 12,334 0.7235 0.2543 (53.84) 58.04% (<.0001)
6-factor model 12,334 0.7437 0.2413 (53.95) 58.06% (<.0001)

TABLE 5 – (Continued)
Variable N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Panel C: Industry defined as GICS
Increase in information production
on EADs (X)
1-factor model 3,014 2.2366 1.5513 (50.25) 81.65% (<.0001)
4-factor model 3,014 2.2958 1.6247 (50.72) 81.65% (<.0001)
6-factor model 3,014 2.2601 1.6266 (50.92) 81.59% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation on
EADs (Y)
1-factor model 26 -0.4972 -0.5364 (-5.15) 15.38% (<.0001)
4-factor model 26 -0.4318 -0.4646 (-4.27) 19.23% (0.0003)
6-factor model 26 -0.4159 -0.4151 (-3.59) 19.23% (0.0011)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 3,014 0.4524 0.0978 (14.81) 51.99% (<.0001)
4-factor model 3,014 0.6413 0.2154 (19.69) 55.41% (<.0001)
6-factor model 3,014 0.6417 0.1561 (18.93) 53.09% (<.0001)
Panel D: Industry defined as 3-digit SIC
Increase in information
production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 8,152 2.2954 1.6224 (83.79) 82.46% (<.0001)
4-factor model 8,152 2.3545 1.6806 (84.27) 82.70% (<.0001)
6-factor model 8,152 2.3062 1.6397 (84.48) 82.25% (<.0001)

Change in return correlation on
EADs (Y)
1-factor model 26 -0.3666 -0.4946 (-3.73) 19.23% (0.0005)
4-factor model 26 -0.3222 -0.4511 (-3.34) 23.08% (0.0012)
6-factor model 26 -0.2965 -0.4274 (-2.68) 23.08% (0.0011)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 8,152 0.8789 0.3140 (44.25) 57.92% (<.0001)
4-factor model 8,152 1.0792 0.5132 (50.02) 62.10% (<.0001)
6-factor model 8,152 1.1038 0.5418 (50.44) 63.05% (<.0001)
This table presents robustness tests for the results in Table 4 using alternative industry classifications. Panel A defines focal and peer firms using the TNIC3 classification (Hoberg and Phillips 2010, 2016). Panel B employs the NAICS classification, while Panel C and Panel D use GICS and three-digit SIC codes, respectively.
37
TABLE 6
Alternative estimation of Y
Variable N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Panel A: Y estimated from Frankel et al. (Y = -.3828)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 11,261 0.8115 0.5512 (70.37) 68.75% (<.0001)
4-factor model 11,261 0.8506 0.5821 (71.73) 69.24% (<.0001)
6-factor model 11,261 0.8294 0.5679 (71.06) 68.87% (<.0001)
Panel B: Y estimated from Table 2, Panel B
(1-factor model: -.5962; 4-factor model: -.5477; 6-factor model: -.5536)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 11,261 0.1851 0.0148 (24.54) 50.66% (<.0001)
4-factor model 11,261 0.3562 0.1594 (40.98) 56.70% (<.0001)
6-factor model 11,261 0.3231 0.1340 (38.28) 55.77% (<.0001)
Panel C: Y is yearly average (Table 3, Panel B)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 11,261 0.8047 0.5454 (70.05) 68.64% (<.0001)
4-factor model 11,261 1.1229 0.8149 (82.54) 73.71% (<.0001)
6-factor model 11,261 1.1610 0.8522 (84.21) 74.60% (<.0001)
This table presents robustness tests for the results in Table 4 using alternative assumptions for the estimation of Y.
Panel A utilizes the coefficient estimate of Y from Frankel et al. (2025, Table 4, Column 2). Panel B uses the coefficient estimate of Y derived from our regressions in Table 2, Panel B. Panel C employs the average coefficient estimate of Y from our Table 3, Panel B.
38
TABLE 7
Alternative window for EAD
Variable N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Increase in information production on

EADs (X)
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model Change in return correlation on EADs
(Y)
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 4-factor model 6-factor model 11,261 0.9038 0.7688 (112.02) 85.02% (<.0001)
11,261 0.9338 0.7981 (113.09) 85.19% (<.0001)
11,261 0.9156 0.7845 (112.91) 85.16% (<.0001)
26 -0.2615 -0.3505 (-5.00) 3.85% (<.0001)
26 -0.2295 -0.2642 (-4.10) 23.08% (0.0004)
26 -0.2157 -0.2071 (-4.00) 26.92% (0.0006)
11,261 0.3777 0.2441 (58.19) 64.96% (<.0001)
11,261 0.4527 0.3243 (65.29) 67.73% (<.0001)
11,261 0.4656 0.3464 (68.89) 69.48% (<.0001)
This table presents robustness tests for the main results in Table 4 using a three-day window ([-1, +1]) centered on focal EAD as the earnings announcement window.
39
TABLE 8
Use median absolute idiosyncratic returns to estimate X
Variable N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Increase in information production
on EADs (X)
1-factor model 11,261 2.7502 2.0933 (108.16) 85.21% (<.0001)
4-factor model 11,261 2.7953 2.1209 (108.41) 85.42% (<.0001)
6-factor model 11,261 2.7308 2.0773 (108.34) 85.13% (<.0001)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 11,261 1.1617 0.4847 (59.81) 62.88% (<.0001)
4-factor model 11,261 1.4828 0.7084 (68.27) 66.35% (<.0001)
6-factor model 11,261 1.5006 0.7958 (69.47) 68.40% (<.0001)
This table presents robustness tests for the main results in Table 4, using the median absolute idiosyncratic return, rather than the average, to measure the increase in information production (X) on earnings announcement dates.
40
TABLE 9
Information Transfer by the Sign of the Focal Firm's Earnings News Variable N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Panel A: Good News on Focal Firm EADs
Increase in information
production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 8,061 2.1412 1.6735 (86.11) 81.49% (<.0001)
4-factor model 8,038 2.2215 1.7132 (86.56) 82.16% (<.0001)
6-factor model 8,045 2.1926 1.6918 (86.55) 81.59% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation on
EADs (Y)
1-factor model 26 -0.3300 -0.4372 (-2.84) 23.08% (0.0054)

4-factor model 26 -0.3305 -0.3386 (-2.91) 19.23% (0.0094)
6-factor model 26 -0.3133 -0.3309 (-3.08) 23.08% (0.0033)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 8,061 0.9671 0.3964 (42.25) 59.50% (<.0001)
4-factor model 8,038 1.0567 0.4098 (44.10) 58.98% (<.0001)
6-factor model 8,045 1.1484 0.5702 (47.87) 57.45% (<.0001)
Panel B: Bad News on Focal Firm EADs
Increase in information
production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 7,576 1.8621 1.3234 (74.63) 78.13% (<.0001)
4-factor model 7,582 1.9228 1.3483 (74.86) 78.30% (<.0001)
6-factor model 7,585 1.8920 1.3152 (74.67) 78.00% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation on
EADs (Y)
1-factor model 26 -0.4108 -0.5453 (-3.54) 19.23% (0.0015)
4-factor model 26 -0.2269 -0.1388 (-1.77) 38.46% (0.0967)
6-factor model 26 -0.1762 -0.1613 (-1.17) 50.00% (0.2556)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 7,576 0.5599 -0.2108 (24.78) 44.64% (<.0001)
4-factor model 7,582 1.0134 0.0915 (38.93) 52.43% (<.0001)
6-factor model 7,585 1.1209 0.2944 (41.13) 50.06% (<.0001)
This analysis estimates X, Y, and Z across two subsamples based on the nature of the news released by focal firms on their earnings announcement dates (EADs). We categorize observations as “good news” if the focal firm’s idiosyncratic returns calculated using each respective factor model are positive on the EAD; otherwise, the observations are classified as “bad news.”

TABLE 10
The Role of Industry Leadership in Information Transfer Variable N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Panel A: Industry leader
Increase in information
production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 3,473 2.4249 2.0984 (69.35) 88.19% (<.0001)
4-factor model 3,473 2.5059 2.1802 (69.70) 88.31% (<.0001)
6-factor model 3,473 2.4754 2.1589 (69.83) 88.37% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation on
EADs (Y)
1-factor model 26 -0.2669 -0.4512 (-1.73) 26.92% (0.0144)
4-factor model 26 -0.2502 -0.3568 (-1.32) 23.08% (0.0102)
6-factor model 26 -0.1780 -0.2263 (-0.88) 38.46% (0.0467)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 3,473 1.2438 0.6251 (33.68) 61.73% (<.0001)
4-factor model 3,473 1.4068 0.6306 (34.53) 60.73% (<.0001)
6-factor model 3,473 1.6023 1.0279 (37.40) 66.60% (<.0001)
Panel B: Non-leader
Increase in information

production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 8,102 1.7290 1.2670 (80.37) 80.05% (<.0001)
4-factor model 8,102 1.7860 1.2960 (80.63) 80.47% (<.0001)
6-factor model 8,102 1.7485 1.2837 (80.45) 80.10% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation on
EADs (Y)
1-factor model 26 -0.3941 -0.5686 (-3.90) 19.23% (0.0005)
4-factor model 26 -0.2950 -0.4568 (-2.77) 26.92% (0.0102)
6-factor model 26 -0.2773 -0.4439 (-2.47) 26.92% (0.0288)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 8,102 0.6299 0.0775 (33.98) 52.72% (<.0001)
4-factor model 8,102 0.8857 0.2893 (42.86) 58.11% (<.0001)
6-factor model 8,102 0.9093 0.3479 (43.44) 59.90% (<.0001)
This analysis estimates X, Y, and Z across two subsamples partitioned by the focal firm's industry leadership status during the quarter. We define a focal firm as an industry leader if its quarterly sales exceed 20% of the total aggregate sales within its industry.

TABLE 11
Information Transfer and the Magnitude of Earnings Surprise
Variable N Mean Median t-value %
positive
Signed Rank
(p-value)
Panel A: High Absolute Earnings Surprise
Increase in information
production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 5,607 2.1410 1.6314 (70.42) 80.06% (<.0001)
4-factor model 5,607 2.2127 1.6785 (70.86) 80.35% (<.0001)
6-factor model 5,607 2.1849 1.6602 (70.75) 80.22% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation
on EADs (Y)
1-factor model 26 -0.5005 -0.5394 (-3.57) 26.92% (0.0012)
4-factor model 26 -0.4133 -0.4778 (-2.77) 23.08% (0.0102)
6-factor model 26 -0.3895 -0.4639 (-2.37) 26.92% (0.0183)
Net information spillover (Z)
1-factor model 5,607 0.4783 -0.1032 (17.36) 47.67% (<.0001)
4-factor model 5,607 0.7176 -0.0354 (24.25) 49.33% (<.0001)
6-factor model 5,607 0.7537 -0.0525 (25.08) 49.17% (<.0001)
Panel B: Low Absolute Earnings Surprise
Increase in information
production on EADs (X)
1-factor model 9,010 1.9299 1.4379 (87.07) 80.91% (<.0001)
4-factor model 9,010 1.9986 1.4711 (87.56) 81.48% (<.0001)
6-factor model 9,010 1.9680 1.4468 (87.45) 81.28% (<.0001)
Change in return correlation
on EADs (Y)
1-factor model 26 -0.3223 -0.3781 (-3.28) 19.23% (0.0036)
4-factor model 26 -0.2331 -0.2275 (-2.38) 26.92% (0.0169)
6-factor model 26 -0.2042 -0.2250 (-2.03) 34.62% (0.0499)
Net information spillover (Z)

1-factor model 9,010 0.8991 0.2753 (46.08) 56.29% (<.0001)
4-factor model 9,010 1.2010 0.5105 (55.63) 61.94% (<.0001)
6-factor model 9,010 1.2679 0.6061 (56.72) 62.72% (<.0001)
This analysis estimates X, Y, and Z across two subsamples partitioned by the magnitude of the focal firm's earnings surprise on the EAD. We define an observation as a "high earnings surprise" if the absolute earnings surprise exceeds the median value of all Compustat firms within the same industry and quarter. Following Frankel et al. (2025), we calculate earnings surprise as the actual announced earnings minus the median analyst forecast, scaled by the share price. To ensure consistency, we use unadjusted quarterly analyst forecasts on the same basis as the actual earnings before calculating the surprise.

TABLE 12
Peer- and Focal-firm Earnings Correlation: Trading Volume

	(1)	(2)	(3)
	Peer firm's volume	Peer firm's abnormal volume	Peer firm's volume
Focal firm's volume	0.0648	0.2143
	(4.66)	(6.84)
Focal firm's abnormal volume			0.0179
			(5.02)
Focal firm's volume x EAD			-0.0995
			(-9.57)
EAD			-0.2875*
			(-1.71)
Peer firm's total assets	0.5052	0.2572	0.4100
	(2.71)	(5.29)	(2.40)
Constant	3.8565	-2.1046	4.0061
	(3.57)	(-5.37)	(4.00)
Observations	198,948	190,453	11,956,705
Clustering	Industry-Quarter	Industry-Quarter	Industry-Quarter
Adjusted R-squared	0.0273	0.0070	0.0304

The sample in Models (1) and (2) includes all EADs of the focal firms, while the sample in Column (3) includes all trading days. The dependent variable is the peer firm’s trading volume in Models (1) and (3) and the peer firm’s abnormal trading volume in Column (2), respectively. OLS regressions are reported in all specifications. The primary independent variables are the contemporaneous trading volume (or abnormal trading volume) of the focal firm. We define these variables as follows:
• Trading Volume: Total trading volume scaled by the total number of shares outstanding.
• Abnormal Trading Volume: Calculated as the ratio of trading volume on the focal firm’s EAD to its average volume on non-EADs, minus one:

Volume on EAD
Abnormal trading volume =
– 1
Volume on non–EAD
To ensure the results capture pure spillover effects, we exclude the peer firm's trading volume on its own EADs from the denominator. All variables are defined in Appendix A. Standard errors are clustered at the industry by quarter level. The t-values are reported in parentheses. *
,
* *, and * * * denote statistical significance at the 10%, 5% and 1% level, respectively.

Table 13
Spillover Effect: Trading Volume

Variable	N	Mean	Median	t-value	% positive	Signed Rank (p-value)
Increase in information production on EADs (X)	11,261	1.5424	1.1248	(94.27)	87.87%	(<.0001)
Change in volume correlation on EADs (Y)	26	-0.4558	-0.4760	(-24.33)	0.00%	(<.0001)
Net information spillover (Z)	11,261	0.3756	0.1372	(41.19)	58.03%	(<.0001)

This table reports the spillover effect of focal-firm earnings announcements to peer firms, by focal firm-year, using trading volume. We measure Net information spillover as:
Z = (1+X) * (1+Y) – 1
Where X and Y are defined similar to those in Table 3.
We measure X as follows:
Increase in information production on EADs at the focal firm-year level:
average of focal firm trading volume on EAD
X =
– 1
average of focal firm trading volume on non–EAD
To measure Y, we estimate Column (3) of Table 12 by year as follows::
$VVVVVVVVVVVVPPPPPPPP = \alpha\alpha + bb1$Volume$FFFFFFFFFF$ + $bb2$Volume$FFFFFFFFFF$ $*$ $EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF + bb3EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF$
Y (the Change in volume correlation on EADs) is then defined as: Y = b2 / b1 where b1 and b2 are coefficients from the above OLS regression at the yearly level.

APPENDIX A: VARIABLE DEFINITIONS

Variable	Definitions	Data Source
EAD	An indicator equal to one for earning announcement day at the focal firms and zero otherwise.	Compustat; IBES
Signed (absolute) value

Raw (absolute) value of returns CRSP
Return Daily stock return CRSP
MktAdj return Idiosyncratic return
(1-factor)
Idiosyncratic return
(4-factor)
Idiosyncratic return
(6-factor)
Increase in information production by focal firm on EADs (X)
Change in return correlation on EAD
(Y)
Daily stock return minus value-weighted market return CRSP
The residuals from the regression of daily stock returns for each firm on the CRSP market factor.
The residuals from the regression of daily stock returns for each firm on the 4 factors (market, size, value, and momentum).
CRSP
The residual from the regression of daily stock returns for each firm on the 6 factors (market, size, value, momentum, investment, and profitability).
CRSP
CRSP; IBES;
Compustat
X =
CRSP; IBES;
Compustat
average of focal firm absolute idiosyncratic return on EAD average of focal firm absolute idiosyncratic return on non−EAD
− 1
Y = b2 / b1
where b1 and b2 are coefficients from the following OLS regression as in Equation (2) at the year level:
AbsRet$_{PPPPPPPP}$ = $\alpha\alpha$ + $bb1$AbsRet$_{FFFFFFFFFF}$ + $bb2$AbsRet$_{FFFFFFFFFF}$ $*$ $EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF$ +
$bb3EEEEEEFFFFFFFFFF$ (2)
Z = (1+X) * (1+Y) − 1 Net information spillover on EADs
(Z)
Good news (bad news)
Industry leader CRSP; IBES;
Compustat
CRSP; IBES;
Earning surprise Trading volume Abnormal trading volume
An observation is categorized as as “good news” if the focal firm’s idiosyncratic returns calculated using each respective factor model are positive on the EAD; otherwise, the observation is classified as “bad news.”

A focal firm is defined as an industry leader if its quarterly sales exceed 20% of the total aggregate sales within its industry.
Calculated as the actual announced earnings minus the median analyst forecast, scaled by the share price. To ensure consistency, we use unadjusted quarterly analyst forecasts on the same basis as the actual earnings before calculating the surprise.
Total trading volume scaled by the total number of shares outstanding. Calculated as the ratio of trading volume on the focal firm's EAD to its av volume on non-EADs, minus one:
Volume on EAD
Abnormal trading volume =
− 1
Volume on non−EAD
To ensure the results capture pure spillover effects, we exclude the peer firm's t volume on its own EADs from the denominator.
Compustat
CRSP; IBES;
CRSP

APPENDIX B: SAMPLE SELECTION
Industries Firms Firm-Quarters
All Compustat firms with non-missing 4-digit SIC, a closing stock price above $1 and a market capitalization exceeding
$5 million 445 20,227 619,022
Announcements for which Compustat and I/B/E/S earning announcements dates differ by no more than 5 calendar days, correcting for after hour announcements 441 14,026 406,130 Focal firms as the first firms within a four-digit SIC industry to announce earnings. 441 3,052 39,896
Focal firms with at least one peer firms as firms in the same industry that announce earnings at least 10 calendar days after the focal firm 405 2,676 29,307
Peers announcing at least 10 days away from focal-firm announcement 405 13,399 288,001
Focal-peer firm pair 405 59,374 288,001
Focal-peer firm pair with available CRSP daily returns 389 36,635 199,517

APPENDIX C: SUMMARY STATISTICS - DAILY RETURNS
This table provides summary statistics for firms that announced quarterly earnings during the 1999-2024 period. For each calendar quarter, we define focal firms as the first firms that announce their quarterly earnings among firms in the same four-digit SIC industry in a year. For each focal firm, we identify industry peers (peer firms) as firms in the same industry that announce quarterly earnings at least 10 days after the focal firm. Panel A reports statistics for variables measured at quarterly earnings announcements by focal firms; Panel B provides statistics for variables measured on all trading days, including days with and without earnings announcements. All variables are defined in Appendix A.
Variable N Mean SD 25th Median 75th

Panel A: Variables measured at quarterly earnings announcements by focal firms
Focal firms
Number of peers 24050 8.2959 22.2609 1.0000 3.0000 7.0000
Signed return 24050 0.0040 0.0514 -0.0299 0.0020 0.0373
Signed MktAdj return 24050 0.0037 0.0466 -0.0291 0.0021 0.0361
Signed idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 24050 0.0034 0.0461 -0.0291 0.0016 0.0355
Signed idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 24050 0.0033 0.0450 -0.0286 0.0015 0.0351
Signed idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 24050 0.0033 0.0446 -0.0285 0.0015 0.0350
Absolute return 24050 0.0413 0.0310 0.0143 0.0335 0.0678
Absolute MktAdj return 24050 0.0397 0.0293 0.0138 0.0329 0.0646
Absolute idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 24050 0.0378 0.0269 0.0136 0.0324 0.0642
Absolute idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 24050 0.0369 0.0261 0.0133 0.0320 0.0631
Absolute idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 24050 0.0367 0.0258 0.0132 0.0318 0.0629
Peer firms
Signed return 199517 0.0005 0.0342 -0.0154 0.0000 0.0150
Signed MktAdj return 199517 0.0001 0.0314 -0.0145 -0.0006 0.0136
Signed idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 199517 0.0000 0.0310 -0.0142 -0.0007 0.0129
Signed idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 199517 0.0003 0.0298 -0.0134 -0.0005 0.0126
Signed idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 199517 0.0002 0.0296 -0.0134 -0.0005 0.0125
Absolute return 199517 0.0234 0.0249 0.0062 0.0152 0.0314
Absolute MktAdj return 199517 0.0219 0.0233 0.0060 0.0140 0.0288
Absolute idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 199517 0.0212 0.0226 0.0057 0.0136 0.0282
Absolute idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 199517 0.0204 0.0217 0.0055 0.0130 0.0271
Absolute idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 199517 0.0203 0.0215 0.0055 0.0130 0.0269

APPENDIX C – (Continued)
Variable N Mean SD 25th Median 75th
Panel A: Variables measured at quarterly earnings announcements by focal firms
Focal firms
EAD (1/0) 1,480,896 0.0162 0.1264 0.0000 0.0000 0.0000
Signed return 1,480,896 0.0006 0.0259 -0.0114 0.0000 0.0121
Signed MktAdj return 1,480,896 0.0003 0.0227 -0.0103 -0.0002 0.0101
Signed idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 1,480,896 0.0000 0.0223 -0.0102 -0.0004 0.0095
Signed idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 1,480,896 0.0000 0.0214 -0.0098 -0.0004 0.0091
Signed idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 1,480,896 0.0000 0.0213 -0.0097 -0.0004 0.0091
Absolute return 1,480,896 0.0178 0.0188 0.0050 0.0118 0.0236
Absolute MktAdj return 1,480,896 0.0158 0.0170 0.0045 0.0102 0.0205
Absolute idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 1,480,896 0.0153 0.0163 0.0043 0.0099 0.0199
Absolute idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 1,480,896 0.0147 0.0157 0.0042 0.0095 0.0191
Absolute idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 1,480,896 0.0146 0.0155 0.0041 0.0094 0.0190
Peer firms
Signed return 11,989,848 0.0005 0.0342 -0.0152 0.0000 0.0147
Signed MktAdj return 11,989,848 0.0001 0.0313 -0.0144 -0.0007 0.0131
Signed idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 11,989,848 0.0000 0.0309 -0.0141 -0.0008 0.0125
Signed idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 11,989,848 0.0000 0.0299 -0.0135 -0.0007 0.0121
Signed idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 11,989,848 0.0000 0.0296 -0.0135 -0.0008 0.0120
Absolute return 11,989,848 0.0232 0.0250 0.0061 0.0149 0.0309
Absolute MktAdj return 11,989,848 0.0216 0.0233 0.0059 0.0138 0.0284
Absolute idiosyncratic return (1-factor) 11,989,848 0.0210 0.0226 0.0056 0.0133 0.0278
Absolute idiosyncratic return (4-factor) 11,989,848 0.0203 0.0219 0.0054 0.0128 0.0268
Absolute idiosyncratic return (6-factor) 11,989,848 0.0202 0.0217 0.0054 0.0127 0.0266

Jeremy Brown — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jeremy Brown This is a terrible idea. I as an investor am 100% opposed. Maintain current requirements on this.

John Beaty — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Beaty I believe it is a matter of sales. They cut access to their purchase, their property the investment consumer will go elsewhere. Nowhere else to go, one brave lad or lassie will do it right and thump the competition.

Justin Smith — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Justin Smith I am writing in support of semi-annual reporting requirements. Over the past century, transparency has been fundamental to helping investors make prudent capital decisions. However, the unintended consequences of quarterly reporting have forced corporations to focus narrowly on meeting short-term earnings estimates and satisfying Wall Street analysts, rather than prioritizing core business competencies, long-range planning, and sound capital allocation. Over the past decade, publicly traded companies have increasingly become captive to the quarterly cycle, prioritizing short-term maneuvers—such as reactionary layoffs—to artificially inflate earnings and stock prices at the expense of sustainable growth. The opportunity to reduce the pressure of reporting to Wall Street every 90 days may help organizations to enhance their focus on running the business rather than simply keeping analysts happy.

Kenneth Fuller — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kenneth Fuller A significant body of academic research demonstrates that security prices adjust quickly to new information and thus the prices in the capital markets are fair (on average) to all investors. The continuous information flow by companies to investors is extremely important to ensure fair prices across capital markets for all investors - institutional and individual. If this proposal is enacted, information flow will decrease and full and fair price discovery will be negatively impacted. This will almost certainly benefit institutional investors at the expense of individual investors. The mission of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is to protect investors; maintain fair, orderly, and efficient markets; and facilitate capital formation. Enacting a proposal which decreases information flow to the capital markets seems to be in direct contrast to the mission of the Commission.

Kerri Pinkston — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kerri Pinkston With today's reporting on Donald Trump's SEC filings, the USA cannot afford to let the biggest "Grift" in American history continue. The POTUS is obligated, to follow Constitutional mandates, (the emoluments clause,) to divest himself from using his office to personally enrich himself. He is insider trading at an obscene level. Imprison him now. He is the biggest threat to our planet since Adolf Hitler. Do something and do not change the reporting frequency, citizens have a right to know and understand, who OWNS who.

Luke Galluccio — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Luke Galluccio This is an unfair proposal

---

Michael Turyn — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael Turyn Corporate fraud and malfeasance are already out-of-control under current circumstances; doubling the period for reporting can only increase them. For many running them, a corporation is a tool for evading personal responsibility. As the wisest Founder, Benjamin Franklin, observed, all property beyond some small holding is the creation of society and subject to the just needs of society, and this is especially so in the case of public corporations. Artificial personhood and limited liability are unknown in the State of Nature, they are our creations, and—taking a lesson from fictional case of Baron Frankenstein—we ought to keep a keen eye on the beings we create and to whom we have given great power.

Noah G, Registered Person, Operations — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Noah G I can only see this panning out to increase corporate greed, and limit accountability. I highly believe this should remain as is

---

Prakash Shah — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: prakash shah let public excess to company's quarterly report so cam make investment decision.

Rebecca Wieser — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Rebecca Wieser Companies should not go dark for half a year, that is very dishonest.

Rohan Sharma — May 15, 2026
Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission 100 F Street NE, Washington, DC 20549-1090
From: Rohan Sharma, Submitted in an individual expert capacity
Aspen Institute Civic AI Leader
U.S. Delegate to ISO/IEC (SC42)
OECD AI Expert- Risk & Accountability
Member, ACM Technology Policy Committee
Date: May 15, 2026
RE: Docket No. SEC-2026-2839-0001 – Technical Comments on Proposed Amendments to Regulation S-T and Form 10-K
Executive Summary
This comment provides technical implementation guidance on the proposed amendments concerning electronic filing requirements and Form 10-K disclosures. While the Commission’s objective to standardize and modernize data ingestion is structurally sound, the proposed operational mechanics introduce unnecessary friction into enterprise reporting workflows. The current draft inadvertently shifts implementation costs rather than reducing them, primarily through aggressive transition timelines and undefined technical thresholds. The recommendations below are intended to support the Commission's transparency, comparability, and market integrity objectives while reducing avoidable implementation friction. Adopting the specific structural adjustments detailed below will guarantee the Commission receives high-utility data while minimizing system disruption for registrants.

Procedural & Statutory Alignment

To ensure the final rule functions predictably and avoids interpretive challenges during implementation, the technical requirements should strictly track the explicit, unambiguous text of the Securities Exchange Act. Relying on broad, gap-filling interpretations for new data structuring mandates introduces downstream litigation risk and administrative ambiguity. By anchoring these technical mandates precisely to existing statutory definitions, the Commission can finalize a more durable administrative record aligned with prevailing judicial standards of statutory interpretation, ensuring the rule's longevity and functional authority.

Furthermore, the Regulatory Impact Analysis (RIA) must reflect a more comprehensive baseline of implementation costs to satisfy the logical outgrowth test of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA). The current cost-benefit analysis accurately models recurring variable costs but underestimates the fixed integration costs necessary for initial IT architectural overhauls. Strengthening the RIA with the ground-truth operational data provided below will insulate the rulemaking from procedural vulnerabilities while satisfying the rigorous evidentiary requirements of OMB Circular A-4.

Section-by-Section Technical Analysis: Part 232 (Regulation S-T)

Quote/Reference: Proposed amendments to electronic filing specifications under Part 232.

Issue: The transition to new structured data requirements assumes immediate enterprise IT system readiness, which conflicts with standard corporate upgrade cycles and third-party vendor software availability. Mandating simultaneous compliance for all filer tiers creates an operational bottleneck at filing agents, making systemic technical errors and late filings structurally inevitable.

Proposed Redline/Fix: Implement a tiered compliance schedule: "Large Accelerated Filers shall comply for fiscal years beginning on or after [Date + 1 Year]; Accelerated Filers on or after [Date + 2 Years]; and Non-Accelerated Filers on or after [Date + 3 Years].
"

Operational Safeguards & Why This Works: A phased rollout prevents resource exhaustion among third-party filing software vendors. This operational sequencing allows the Commission's EDGAR system to ingest a smaller, more manageable dataset initially, enabling the SEC to iteratively refine its internal validation architecture before the full registrant population comes online. As a result, the Commission materially reduces the volume of expected waiver requests and maintains continuous market operations.

Section-by-Section Technical Analysis: PRA Burden Estimates

Quote/Reference: "PRA Table 1. Estimated Paperwork Burden Effects of the Proposed Amendments"
.

Issue: The Paperwork Reduction Act (PRA) estimates rely on a baseline that mathematically under-calculates the initial mapping hours for newly tagged data fields. The estimates presume that existing workflows can simply absorb new tags; operationally, deploying a newly customized taxonomy requires cross-functional reconciliation between legal, accounting, and IT departments, multiplying the actual burden hours in year one.

Proposed Redline/Fix: Adjust the initial burden hours upward by 25% in the first year to account for cross-departmental taxonomy mapping. Simultaneously, insert a provision into the final rule preamble:

"The Commission will treat formatting errors in newly required structured data tags during the first 12 months of compliance as correctable administrative errors rather than substantive disclosure failures, provided they are made in good faith.
"
Operational Safeguards & Why This Works: Calibrating the initial burden estimates to reflect ground-truth implementation costs fundamentally strengthens the administrative record's durability against arbitrary and capricious challenges. The temporary safe harbor for formatting errors prevents the chilling effect of strict liability, ultimately accelerating the market's transition to the accurate, high-fidelity data reporting the Commission requires.
Section-by-Section Technical Analysis: Part 249 (Form 10-K General Instructions)
Quote/Reference: General Instructions for Form 10-K reporting requirements.
Issue: The proposed modifications to reporting thresholds introduce ambiguous aggregation requirements across domestic and foreign subsidiaries. Without a definitive technical boundary, the rule is operationally dissonant; registrants will inevitably over-report data out of an abundance of caution, flooding the Commission with immaterial artifacts and defeating the modernization effort's primary purpose.
Proposed Redline/Fix: Anchor the aggregation threshold directly to existing accounting standards:
"For the purposes of this specific disclosure,
'consolidated entity data' shall be calculated utilizing the identical scope of consolidation applied in the registrant's audited financial statements under U.S. GAAP or IFRS, as applicable.
"
Operational Safeguards & Why This Works: Harmonizing the aggregation threshold with existing U.S. GAAP or IFRS consolidation scopes prevents the generation of parallel, bespoke reporting structures. This regulatory alignment drastically reduces compliance overhead while guaranteeing the Commission receives data that is structurally verifiable against the registrant's audited financials.
Operational Impact Assessment
In practice, failing to adopt these technical adjustments will result in widespread operational dissonance. Registrants are fully capable of meeting the Commission's mandate, but they require technical specifications that map realistically to enterprise resource planning (ERP) system capabilities. Regulatory requirements that outpace the deployment cycles of enterprise software inevitably force manual intervention, which directly degrades the data fidelity the Commission seeks to achieve.
By implementing the specific structural redlines proposed above, the Commission can immediately mitigate these friction points. These targeted solutions do not compromise the statutory intent or the policy goals of the rulemaking; rather, they provide the exact operational mechanics necessary for successful, frictionless market adoption.
The foregoing recommendations are offered to reduce ambiguity and litigation exposure by improving administrative predictability. They are intended as implementation guidance rather than critiques of agency authority or intent. They are intended to ensure the statutory framework functions precisely as written.
Respectfully submitted,
Rohan Sharma
Aspen Institute Civic AI Leader
Member, U.S. Technical Advisory Group to ISO/IEC (AI)
Member, ACM Technology Policy Committee

Author, AI & the Boardroom (Springer)
Submitted in an individual expert capacity.
All views expressed are my own and do not represent any institution or organization.

Scott Parker — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Scott Parker Please keep public companies reporting financial performance on a quarterly basis. Quarterly reporting keeps information flowing to all investors in a timely manner to prevent big surprises. Companies still have to keep their books. They still have to brief their boards. The actual savings from skipping a public filing are modest legal and accounting fees, and those savings flow to the company and its executives. The cost of worse information falls on the investors.

Sherri — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sherri There should absolutely be oversight. A lot can happen in 6 months.

Tim Mulligan, attorney — May 15, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Tim Mulligan I am against this proposal. I am an attorney, former CPA and former hedge fund analyst. As the Wall Street Journal noted, this proposal would do nothing to advance listings or improve confidence in the U.S. markets. It could well do the exact opposite. See, “Scrapping Quarterly Reports Solves Problem No One Had,” Spencer Jacob, Wall Street Journal, May 13, 2026, B13. Keep U.S. markets the world’s leaders. Scrap this proposal.

Andreas Jensen — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Andreas Jensen The public should remain informed regarding institutions that they have invested their hard earned money into. How does it benefit the everyday man to allow mega corps. to hide from the people and allow more insider corruption than our administration currently already engages in. We are not as stupid as the SEC may assume. The nation seems to be steered in a way that will make outcomes like that related to United Healthcare more common and more embraced.

Angela Schneider, Citizen — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Angela Schneider The citizens of the United States must be allowed to participate in their own economy and not have the laws slanted against them. The United States stands for an equal chance.

Anthony C Miller, United States Citizen — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anthony C Miller Absolutely under no circumstance is it better for investors institutional or retail to have less insight or information on the companies which they are choosing to invest in. And with current political climates in mind it seems that such a ruling would allow companies to obscure or downplay risks and play into or spin positively any possible risks which may be negative for said companies to disclose. With that in mind it would seem to increase volatility around those periods of reporting rather than a drip or consistent updates periodically. Long story short more information = better for investors

---

Antolin (Tony) Saiz, CPA, InnTech Consultant — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Antolin (Tony) Saiz I would like to ask that the Commission not change the quarterly reporting requirements of public corporations. As a private citizen, investing my own funds and not paying any investment agents for their advice, I find it imperative to be able to access current information on the financial status and income/losses of the companies in which I invest. I have neither the access nor the privilege of speaking directly to the representatives of these companies; I am not able to ask questions or follow up on my doubts on presentations, and so must exclusively rely on the 10-Q for quarterly information and the 10-K for the annual results. Please do not take this accessibility away from small investors, as we have no other recourse to protect our investments.

Arthur Lyssenko — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Arthur Lyssenko Stop with the grifting, enough is enough.

Ben Brown — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ben Brown As an individual investor in US-listed clean energy equities who relies extensively on quarterly financials for my investment strategy, I strongly oppose the SEC's proposal to eliminate mandatory quarterly reporting for public companies. Quarterly disclosures are important for transparency and a critical safeguard for retail investors, who unlike institutional players lack direct access to management, private analyst calls, and proprietary data feeds. Reducing reporting frequency to semi-annual would widen the information gap between Wall Street insiders and ordinary shareholders like myself, creating longer windows in which business deterioration, accounting irregularities, or shifting fundamentals can go undetected. I understand that proponents argue that quarterly reporting fosters short-termism and imposes compliance costs, but the evidence for these claims is weak, and the costs of reduced transparency fall disproportionately on the individual investors least able to bear them like myself. Quarterly reports also serve as a discipline on management, providing regular checkpoints that deter fraud, encourage accurate forecasting, and allow markets to price shares efficiently. Eroding this discipline would undermine investor confidence, increase volatility around the less-frequent disclosures that remain, and ultimately raise the cost of capital for the very companies the proposal claims to help. I urge the Commission to preserve the current quarterly reporting framework, which has served US capital markets and retail investors well for decades.

Brian — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brian I can't believe you guys are even considering this. We need more transparency between companies and consumers not less. stop trying to prop up the companies at the expense of the individual.

Brian — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brian Keep transparency and regular reporting. Do not eliminate obligation to report quarterly. Protect investors!!

Christian Kritas, Licensed investment banking representative and Associate - Model Risk — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christian Kritas Quarterly financial statements are an invaluable resource to those who rely on public filings to make investment decisions from financial professionals such as financial advisors to amateur investors and students of finance. I am now a financial services professional but started out analyzing annual and quarterly financial statements as a student in my student managed investment fund at university. Being able to analyze and learn from quarterly financial statements was an invaluable part of my financial education in school and is still something I practice as an amateur investors today. To lose such a resource would be a huge blow to those passionate about capital markets everywhere and would put those without access to be expensive private market data at a disadvantage. Releasing quarterly statements can be tedious but there are alternatives available such as Reg D for companies where going fully public does not make sense. I hope those considering repealing the requirement of quarterly filings consider these factors and make the best decisions for all Americans.

David — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David I want reporting to stay the same as it is now

---

Edward Dennison — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Edward Dennison I strongly oppose this proposed rule. Current reporting requirements provide excellent visibility for investors into the conditions and prospects of publicly traded companies. There has been no evidence presented that the cost of biannual as opposed to quarterly reporting is materially different. The United States leads the world in the transparency, accessibility, and depth of its capital markets. This proposed rule can only erode those qualities.

Garrett Beery — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Garrett Beery Semi-Annual reporting would be terrible. I build trust in companies I invest in by reading their quarterly reports. Additionally the quarterly reporting schedule builds employee confidence in both transparency and in job stability to know how their company is doing. Changing these requirements will hurt investors, employees, and only benefit people commiting crime with insider knowledge.

James, Activist, business owner, tutor and student — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: James Please keep investing reports quarterly. It keeps things transparent and fair.

Joseph d suh, Chef — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Joseph d suh Please protect us.

Kimberly O'Brien — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kimberly O'Brien This is a TERRIBLE proposal. Corporations need to be more transparent, not less. I 100% oppose this.

Matthew Jubinsky — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Jubinsky I do not approve. Reporting should be kept to quarterly.

Mike Wong — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mike Wong Keep quarterly reporting. Keep the public informed as has been the case in the past.

Paul Bussman — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Paul Bussman Quarterly reports help build confidence in a company encouraging investment. Without these regular reports confidence will faulter and the average citizen would be inclined to avoid investment in the stock markets.

Richard Thompson — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Richard Thompson Do not hide companies financial visibility, and progress or lack there of, for 6 months. It just gives the super well informed (billionares) more advantages and the uninformed (retail) more disadvantages. The volatility will greatly increase around those six month earnings, as any thinking person would know. A poor or mixed earnings will dump a stock greatly, with six more months to wait for improvement. I could even imagine scenarios around undeserved bankruptcies or a least bailouts.

Robert Andrews — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robert Andrews Here are 4 reasons this is a very bad idea: 1) "Optional" is a joke. Once one company does it, competitors will because it is a competitive advantage to hide bad results 2) The savings are miniscule, and will be so diluted on a per chare basis as to be meaningless vs the value of increased reporting and oversight. 3) Business results can change dramatically in 3 months now. 6 Months is way to long for small investors to not know what is happening, while insiders and large investors, M like fund management, do. 4) More time for fraud to grow. How much worse would Enron, Tyco, or Worldcom could have been if data only come out half as often and slowed the raising of questions.

Ryan Foli — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ryan Foli The new SEC rule being proposed is a terrible idea. Do not do it. If this rule becomes reality, the stock market will be much worse off. If there are only 2 reports instead of 4, every report wil be that much more volatile. Every earnings report will be more volatile, and the market will be a more dangerous place to invest. I can see it now. Concerning geopolitics and business - business changes a lot, and only giving investors 2 reports a year is only going to make investing worse. What sense does it make to reduce company reporting, to reduce the visibility of operations and allow companies to hide from its owners, its investors? Reducing visibility is never a good thing in the financial world, and this proposal stinks! Please. Do not do it.

Sean Brady — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sean Brady In what way shape or form would this increase consumer and investor confidence? This seems engineered to increase corruption in a country whose corruption enforcement mechanisms are consistently under attack and being defunded as we speak.

Steve Coston — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steve Coston Fair is defined as both honest and rightful; free from selfish intent, deception, bias, or prejudice ... This proposed rule violates one or both parts of this definition.

Timothy A. Mann, self — May 14, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Timothy A. Mann I strongly urge the SEC to maintain mandatory quarterly reporting (Form 10-Q). As 62% of Americans are now invested in the stock market (Gallup 2025)[https : / / news . gallup . com / poll / 266807 / percentage-americans-owns-stock . aspx], protecting the frequency of standardized disclosure is essential for retail investor protection and retirement security. 1. US is Not Short-termist: The argument that quarterly reporting discourages long-term innovation is decoupled from reality. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP) provide ample options to support long term investment, and the U.S. technology and biotechnology sectors have seen unprecedented R&D investment under the current quarterly mandate. There is no empirical evidence that reducing transparency fosters innovation; rather, it merely reduces management accountability. 2. The Information Supply Chain: Most retail investors rely on financial advisors, analysts, and market pricing that all depend on the 10-Q as a ground truth. Moving to semi-annual reporting would leave this ecosystem reliant on stale data for more than half the year creating heightened volatility that disproportionately harms retail investors (average Americans), who lack the resources to acquire expensive "alternative data" used by institutional insiders. 3. Fraud Deterrence: Quarterly filings are a critical deterrent to corporate malfeasance. Standardized, frequent intervals make it harder for companies to sustain "earnings management". A half year reporting gap provides a dangerous window for financial deterioration to be obscured. It also increases the volatility around reporting events creating greater incentives for insider trading. Conclusion: The U.S. markets are the global gold standard because of our commitment to transparency. Reducing reporting frequency would prioritize marginal corporate cost-savings over the fundamental protection of the American public. I urge the Commission to maintain the mandatory Form 10-Q. Respectfully, Timothy Mann

---

Anonymous — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous We must keep mandatory quarterly reports. We must not move to Semiannual Reporting as this reduces investors access to data.

C. Allshouse, Attorney — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: C Allshouse Keep reports quarterly-no benefit to investors at 6 months

---

Chad L. — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Chad L. Dont give companies the ability to only file twice a year. Fortune 500 companies are already making so much money off the common man total know how is the only thing retail etf investors still have

---

David Bolling Wells, Former Public CFO, Current Board Chair of Both US (4 quarter) and UK (6 month) Companies — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Bolling Wells SEC Comment Letter on Optional 6 Month Reporting Rule As a former VP of Financial Planning & Analysis and then CFO of high growth company Netflix, I went through more than 60 quarterly reporting cycles with high stakes calls on both the creation and stress testing of content accounting that was being created for a new industry and guidance setting for a high profile company in a dynamic marketplace. Up close and personal. Our stock saw dramatic volatility, some of which we had trouble explaining. I went on to serve on the pre-public Audit and Risk Committee and then Chair of the Board of fintech company Wise (formerly Transferwise) which was the largest public listing on the LSE. Wise just switched on 5/11/26 to being a Nasdaq US primary listing after reporting every 6 months as a UK company in the first roughly 5 years of our public life. I have seen the cons and merits of the traditional 4 quarter cycle and the 6 month formal cycle with a "trading update" interim release. There are good arguments for an optional 6 month opt in so I understand why many frustrated CFO and finance teams would propose and argue for it. I am here to comment that on balance, I think the 4 quarter cycle is the best compromise and underpins the United States' superior trust (and value) position in global capital markets. The four quarter model drives discipline and rigor, and provides long investors with a reasonable 4 times-a-year check in on a company's progress on its long term strategic and financial goals. It also is a foundational element of "democratic capital markets," attempting to even the playing field for individual investors versus large institutions that can command regular check-ins with management. Yes, the 4 quarter cycle is grinding, demanding, and "can" lead to overly short term financial focus but that is up to a company's financial leadership and investor relations to shape and manage. If the 6 month reporting opt in is enacted, what will happen is that a small minority of companies in industries that do match a twice-a-year reporting will be overjoyed and adopt it. But then, another group will adopt and this will become a mixed bag of lesser financially disciplined companies and the market will be left to sift through this and apply discounted value or higher risk. Fraud, slower impairments, increased insider knowledge value, and bad strategy living longer will all be the bogies of the slower reporting cycle. I urge the SEC to make decisions that keep our US capital markets the envy of the world and stay with the current model. Don't confuse the need for securities litigation reform (loser pays legal fees) with changes, even optional, to the reporting cycle. Sincerely, David

Wells Chair WSE, Lead Independent HIMS, former CFO NFLX

David C. — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David C. I'm a retail investor and I'm concerned that this change will materially and negatively affect my ability to invest with adequate information. As a retail investor, I do not have the resources that big firms do to obtain as much data. When changing to less frequent reporting, we will end up having to rely more on "rumors" without companies clearing up rumors as frequently. It is cited that this change will motivate companies to "focus more on the long term plan for the company,"" however, that is already a choice present to every company, it is up to the company what they focus on. Additionally, it's far from guaranteed that companies will shift their mindset. I request that this be reconsidered.

Debra Frost — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Debra Frost Semiannual reporting is unacceptable and will effectively shut out small investors who do not have the methods or financial means to use a wealth advisor. This is another financial/power grab by the elite to put more wealth in the hands of those that can afford it, while tying the hands of the middle/lower class who try to manage their investments on their own, potentially costing them significant losses or potential gains they could not take advantage of due to no communication of fiscal status of companies in the stock market. Unacceptable to move quarterly reporting to semiannual...period. Shame on the SEC, who used to be a reliable watchdog FOR ALL AMERICANS, not corporations.

Katherine Winfield — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Katherine Winfield This dilutes the purpose of the reports. On the surface it sounds reasonable but a basic examination reveals it that semiannual reporting negatively affects those sought to be protected. These reports are prepared for shareholders on a regular basis. It is not a liability to the companies to provide this to the government. Essentially, neither public benefit nor actual company benefit exists with change. The change could allow a period when companies could avoid penalties for disallowed activities. That would, indeed, harm consumers.

Kyle Hedden — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kyle Hedden moving to semi annual reporting is entirely impractical with minimal benefits and more risk to investors. being able to keep a regular pulse on company performance is paramount to making educated investment decisions. making quarterly reporting optional gives a massive advantage only to institutions and insiders. bringing this topic up for discussion at all appears to only cater to those demographics with blatant disregard to the general population of investors by putting them at yet another disadvantage.

Lawrence Rand — May 13, 2026

Levi Lentz — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Levi Lentz I do not support this rule change. Transparency in what is happening in a company is the key way for all investors to make a decision on where they put their money. In the era of automation that we are in, we should be looking to companies to report more often (say monthly), not less.

Masey Moshref — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Masey Moshref I believe that the level of transparency in the market is extremely low with the doge cuts on regulators that monitored the economic data. I am losing confidence in my ability to invest safely in this market. This should be an instrument for peoples livelihoods, not a gambling tool that is gate kept by elitist

---

Matt Marino — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Matt Marino As an investor, I'm concerned about less visibility into the companies I'm investing in. The quarterly cadence of reporting has been a reliable standard for decades that serves investors of all kinds while not providing an undue burden upon corporations themselves. Moving to a half year cadence discourages investment, even if it benefits a relatively small subset of the American population. While corporations may benefit in some ways, it also ensures trust is diminished with less visibility and investors potentially looking at investment alternatives to public shares. For the sake of a healthy market and keeping the investor community more informed, the quarterly cadence of reporting should remain in place.

Monica Braman — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Monica Braman I would like to stay informed with a quarterly report.

MWM — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: MWM I am against this rule change. I'm not sure I understand how less information is a good thing for the average investor. Quarterly filings have been around forever and limiting filings hides data an investor should be able to have. Just an insane rule suggestion that only funnels more power to the powerful and takes away information from the average Joe.

Nikolay — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Nikolay Hello, I strongly oppose proposed changes in reporting. As an investor I am heavily relying on quarterly reports in order to make proper investment decisions. Reducing the frequency of mandatory reporting will cause the companies to stop producing these reports and will significantly reduce market efficiency by allowing people involved in corporate insider trading to gain significantly more unfair advantage. The hypothetical burden of providing these reports using the frequency established for over a century is really close to zero and companies are actually benefitting from keeping their investors well informed and providing quarterly reports. Thanks!

Noah Kerchner — May 13, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Noah Kerchner From: Noah Kerchner Affiliation: May 13, 2026 I strongly oppose the SEC's proposal to allow public companies the option to file semiannual reports on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q. This change would represent a significant step backward for investor protection, market efficiency, and the integrity of U.S. capital markets. If the Commission is inclined to revisit interim reporting frequency, it should move in the opposite direction: toward more timely, more frequent, and more transparent disclosures that better serve investors in today's fast-moving markets.
Core Objections to the Proposal
Reduced Transparency and Increased Information Asymmetry Quarterly reporting provides investors with timely, audited/reviewed financial statements and MD&A updates every three months. Doubling the gap to six months would leave investors - particularly retail investors - operating with stale information for extended periods. Material developments in revenue trends, cost structures, liquidity, or risks could remain hidden or only partially disclosed via 8-Ks, which are narrower and lack the comprehensive context of a full 10-Q. This asymmetry favors insiders, large institutions with private channels, and sophisticated analysts at the expense of average investors.
Heightened Risk of Misconduct and Market Surprises? Longer intervals between verified disclosures create greater opportunities for earnings management, channel stuffing, or delayed recognition of problems. History shows that less frequent reporting correlates with larger restatements or scandals when issues finally surface. Investors deserve early warning signals, not six-month black boxes. The proposal's reliance on 8-Ks and voluntary disclosures is insufficient - those tools have never fully substituted for the discipline and comparability of mandatory quarterly filings.
Damage to Market Efficiency and Liquidity U.S. markets thrive on high- quality, timely information. Quarterly reports underpin analyst models, institutional oversight, executive compensation alignment, and efficient price discovery. Allowing companies to opt into semi-annual reporting would fragment the market, create a two-tiered system (frequent vs. infrequent reporters), complicate cross-company comparisons, and potentially increase volatility when half-year results finally arrive. Smaller companies, which the proposal ostensibly helps, may suffer most: reduced transparency often raises (not lowers) their cost of capital as investors demand higher risk premiums.
Weak Justification and Insufficient Safeguards Compliance costs, while real, have not prevented record numbers of public companies or robust capital formation in recent decades. Many burdens stem from overly complex rules elsewhere - not the core quarterly cadence. The proposal's "optional" nature does not mitigate harm; companies most inclined to opt out may be those with the weakest disclosures or performance. Investor demand and competitive pressure will not reliably fill the gap, especially for mid- and small-cap firms.
Rather than loosening requirements, the SEC should modernize and strengthen interim reporting to reflect 21st-century technology, data availability, and investor expectations:
Require more frequent key disclosures: Mandate monthly or quarterly updates on critical metrics (e.g., revenue, customer metrics, liquidity, material contracts) via streamlined 8-K exhibits or a new short-form report. Technology now makes this far less burdensome than in prior decades.
Enhance 10-Q quality and timeliness: Shorten filing deadlines for large accelerated filers, require more forward-looking disclosures, segment reporting, and real-time XBRL tagging for better usability.
Strengthen MD&A and risk updates: Require quarterly discussion of emerging risks, supply chain issues, cybersecurity, ESG factors (where material), and management's outlook with greater specificity..
Improve overall transparency: Broaden auditor review requirements, enhance segment and disaggregated data, and mandate disclosure of key performance indicators (KPIs) used internally.

These steps would reduce information asymmetry, deter misconduct, improve governance, and make U.S. markets the gold standard for investor protection - driving deeper liquidity and trust. The United States has long led the world in disclosure standards precisely because of rigorous, frequent reporting. Weakening that foundation risks eroding the comparative advantage of our public markets. I urge the Commission to withdraw this proposal and instead pursue reforms that deliver more frequent, higher-quality, and more accessible information to all investors.

Varad Kandadai — May 13, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Varad Kandadai Please make companies report every quarter. This transparency is what makes our system be it the markets or the reporting or the enforcement attractive to many countries. Please don't kill that.

/r/wallstreetbets — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: /r/wallstreetbets To the Securities and Exchange Commission: We are r/wallstreetbets, a community of approximately 18 million retail investors on Reddit. We are writing to comment on File No. S7-2026-15, the proposal to move public companies from quarterly to semiannual reporting. We are against it. We understand the Commission is more accustomed to receiving comment letters from people who use words like "stakeholder ecosystem," and we will try to keep up. A word on who we are, we are self-directed retail investors. Some of us are very good at this and some of us are, in the technical securities law sense, terrible at it. Many of us learned what a 10-Q was the hard way, which is to say we bought a stock, watched it fall 40% on an earnings release, and then read the filing to find out why. That is a stupid order of operations and we acknowledge it. But it is also the entire mechanism by which a generation of retail investors taught itself to read financial statements, and the Commission is now proposing to cut that mechanism in half. The proposal rests on the theory that quarterly reporting causes short-termism among corporate managers. Whatever the merits of that argument as applied to the C-suite, it has the relationship to retail investors exactly backwards. Quarterly reports are the single most important leveling mechanism between retail and institutional investors in U.S. equity markets. Institutional investors have expert networks, channel checks, alternative data, satellite imagery of retailer parking lots, credit card panel data, and direct management access through conferences and one-on-one meetings that cost more than most of our portfolios. We have the 10-Q. We have the 10-Q, and we have a Discord server, and we have each other. Take away the 10-Q and you have not eliminated the information. You have just made sure that the only people who have it are the ones who were going to outperform us anyway. The Commission's release talks about reducing costs for issuers. We would like to know what the Commission thinks the cost is to a retail investor of holding a position for six months without a single mandatory disclosure from the company. The answer is not zero. The answer is the spread between what insiders know and what we know, multiplied by every share we own during the gap. Someone is going to capture that spread. We have a guess about who it will not be. We also want to register, respectfully, our objection to the suggestion that quarterly reporting is a burden the Commission can lift to help companies focus on the long term. The companies we trade are not being held back from greatness by the obligation to file four reports a year. Apple files a 10-Q every quarter and has nine hundred billion dollars in cash equivalents. Nvidia files a 10-Q every quarter and is worth more than the GDP of most G20 countries. The entire S&P 500 files a 10-Q every quarter, and the S&P 500 is at an all-time high. If quarterly reporting is crushing American capitalism, American capitalism is hiding it well. We have looked. One more point, and we promise it is sincere. The Commission was created in 1934 because retail investors got destroyed in a market where the people running the companies knew vastly more than the people buying the stock. The architecture of federal securities regulation is built on the premise that mandatory periodic disclosure narrows that gap. Cutting the frequency of mandatory disclosure in half is not a technical adjustment to a reporting form. It is a partial unwinding of one of the foundational compromises of the 1934 Act. We do not think the Commission should do that to fix a problem that, as far as we can tell from inside the market every day, is not actually the problem the Commission thinks it is. We are not lawyers. Several of us have been told by lawyers, in writing, that we should not be giving anyone investment advice, and we are taking care to comply with that instruction here. We are people who own stock. We would like to keep being able to find out what is happening at the companies whose stock we own, more than twice a year. The Commission has spent 90 years making it easier for people like us to participate in public markets on something approaching fair terms. We are asking the Commission not to spend this rulemaking making it harder. Thank you for considering this comment.

Andrew Parker — May 12, 2026
COMMENT LETTER
Re: File No. S7-2026-15 – Proposed Amendments Permitting Optional Semiannual Reporting
To the Securities and Exchange Commission:
I appreciate the opportunity to provide comments on the proposed rule permitting optional semiannual reporting for eligible public companies. I am attaching this amended comment because I did not see an updated comment in relation to the new comment I sent yesterday after the original one did not post correctly at the time. I made significant updates in the meantime about when the public intent of the disclosure rules towards material weaknesses as an early warning sign is not accomplished in practice due to lingering significant deficiencies and late-changing classification as a significant deficiency.This comment responds specifically to:
Request for Comment 18: “Would this practice create any new or heightened investor protection concerns?”
and
Request for Comment 26: “For semiannual filers, what impact would a shift to semiannual reporting have on: (1) companies’ disclosure controls and procedures, (2) companies’ internal control over financial reporting, and (3) independent public accountants’ strategy and approach for the annual audit of companies’ internal control over financial reporting or financial statements? With semiannual reporting, is there a potential for a material increase in the risk that material misstatements (either due to error or fraud) or control deficiencies are not timely detected or communicated to the independent public accountant thereby limiting potential remediation of these issues by the issuer? Please provide any data related to these questions.”
Introduction
There are conditions currently undisclosed to shareholders that would occur in semi-annual reporting that based on my experience when present generate serious concern for a material increase in the risk that material misstatements (either due to error or fraud) or control deficiencies are not timely detected by or communicated to the independent public accountant thereby limiting potential remediation of these issues by the issuer. Knowledge of these conditions are based on my discussions I had while I was an external auditor of public companies. There would be heightened investor protection concerns present that when coupled with semi-annual reporting indicate to me that semiannual reporting should be restricted to mostly mature companies that have consistently avoided 1) material revisions, 2) material misstatements, and 3) ICFR material failures in period-end, occurring without material revisions or misstatements, often accompanied with lingering significant deficiencies affecting other material line items/metrics.

In quarterly reporting, emerging growth companies especially with the listed conditions present benefit from additional feedback as the company continues to grow and from additional practice performing quarterly close controls. More mature companies with the listed conditions present benefit from more frequent operation of controls that brings with it increased precision.
Semiannual reporting alone will likely extend the timeline of ICFR control remediation in period-end FR for some emerging growth companies (EGCs) over a greater number of years and create lingering issues from material failures in ICFR from my limited experience. Hopefully, increasing disclosure of these conditions will result in an incentive to improve capital markets efficiency, governance, and SOX readiness.
A shift to semi-annual reporting under the current disclosure requirements for public companies with now-undisclosed material revisions in total, material misstatements, or material ICFR control failures in period-end financial reporting, without material misstatements or revisions, but accompanied with lingering significant deficiencies materially affecting other material line items/metrics used to value the company presents serious risks when there is a:
1) A compounding effect of material extraordinary risks to financial reporting from fraud or operational problems that presents itself as material control failures to period end financial reporting, occurring often alongside near-material failures in other ICFRs such as operational controls for material line items/metrics used to value the company at the entity level. Sometimes these controls are remediated in the last quarter (presenting planning/risk assessment problems) or still classified as significant deficiencies at year-end without public disclosure of steps taken to try to remediate them. Companies avoid public disclosure at all contrary to the publicly listed intent of the rules.1 The effect of current disclosure practices results in companies

1 Currently under PCAOB Auditing Standard 2201 (AS 2201), the mandate for judgment is clear:
"The auditor must evaluate the severity of each control deficiency that comes to his or her attention to determine whether the deficiencies, individually or in combination, are material weaknesses as of the date of management's assessment. In planning and performing the audit, however, the auditor is not required to search for deficiencies that, individually or in combination, are less severe than a material weakness.
The severity of a deficiency depends on -Whether there is a reasonable possibility that the company's controls will fail to prevent or detect a misstatement of an account balance or disclosure; and
The magnitude of the potential misstatement resulting from the deficiency or deficiencies."
https://pcaobus.org/oversight/standards/auditing-standards/details/AS2201. AS 2 that was adopted prior:
Required auditors to actively search for, evaluate, and report all significant deficiencies. This led to massive audit costs and forced auditors to evaluate minor, less consequential defects.”
As stated at the time of its release in 2007 “The new version should increase the likelihood that material weaknesses will serve as an early warning system, rather than merely as after-the-fact acknowledgments that something has gone wrong. “
https://pcaobus.org/news-events/speeches/speech-detail/statement-on-adoption-of-auditing-standard-no-5-and-related-proposals_212.

avoiding public reporting of significant deficiencies, including some longstanding issues, that often occur alongside recent period-end financial reporting control failures under current disclosure law through classification of these issues as a significant deficiency at year end (not explicitly required to be disclosed at all sometimes, but disclosure might occur to some institutional shareholders who know/have opportunity to ask about them). Significant deficiencies can be widespread in ICFR operational and/or period-end financial reporting controls at the segment level after an ICFR control material failure is removed from public disclosure. While the condition alone of an ICFR material failure in period end financial reporting in my view should prevent semiannual reporting, a significant deficiency that is a near-material failure in an operational ICFR can linger undisclosed after the period-end financial reporting control has been removed from public view in disclosures in the 10-K and certainly presents an additional risk that I think should prevent semi-annual reporting for these companies. This information is decision useful because conditions listed above may lead to unexpected costs to investors in material line items like those that could be directly used to value the company in the event of going concern risk that may appear in the future. Late filing slightly complicates the picture and rules should also be considered to reduce the burden for certain companies in the short rather than medium-term which semi-annual reporting might accomplish.

2) A longer lead time until corrective action will be taken in practice towards most now undisclosed revisions due to the current frequency and precision of account reconciliations, management quarterly reviews, and inquiry from auditors as compared to semiannual reporting. Semiannual reporting would give companies, particularly EGCs who might need it, much less chances over time to put into practice corrective action that sometimes may take a couple years to get correct. Quarterly reporting entails more frequent and more precise account reconciliations that often help discover errors in practice, management reviews, and important conversations quarterly about material balances that prevent surprises with unnecessary costs/overruns at year end that are common in emerging growth companies with these conditions present.
These risks are hard for retail investors to assess fully under the current disclosure requirements, especially with the disclosures made in practice. Coupled with semiannual reporting, the current disclosure requirements seem very inadequate to protect all investors' interests. Especially for investors who may buy/sell the stock after the information is released selectively if at all because as an investor it helps to find disclosure about these topics in an Based on my experience, I do not think that the disclosure requirements following a material weakness in financial reporting followed by widespread significant deficiencies in ICFR serve as an early warning signal and problems with the current disclosure requirements would be made worse with a shift to semiannual reporting due to the compounding nature of risk from recent period-end ICFR failures and ICFR significant deficiencies affecting material line items/metrics like those in operational controls. Also a longer lead time until corrective actions will be taken in practice due to less frequency and precision of controls like account reconciliations and management reviews for some companies that adopt semiannual reporting.
easy to compile XBRL format in a 10-K/Q/S to see a complete view of material information management uses in making important decisions.
I think that narrowing the scope of who will be eligible for semiannual reporting to not include public companies with these conditions present for at least three years after they are present will increase capital markets efficiency and decrease the administrative burden on companies with proper corporate reporting and governance priorities. Decreased comparability and consistency in information provided by companies and in between years would be a negative effect to information provided to investors as a result of these conditions.
Conditions That Should Prevent Semi-Annual Reporting
1. Revisions when in total material over a three year period because of the compounding effect through quarters of most minor errors seen in practice. Minor errors are often corrected before public disclosure is currently required after a few attempts at financial reporting controls, like reconciliations, or through a greater frequency and precision of review, including conversations, as the mistakes tend to continue to grow larger over time.

Materiality should be considered over at least a three year rolling period to prevent intentional one year shifts and one-off operational errors leading to an increased administrative burden that is unproductive to protect investor interests. If revisions are disclosed in total, as I think it should be, it should then be broken out to de minimis materiality, just to say you should not be able to disclose separately determined material components to certain investors in effect as is currently the case for disclosure made about revisions like some presentation errors.
Not disclosing all de minimis components when total revisions are material would defeat the principle of all investors including retail investors being provided decision useful material information to avoid unforeseen risks that will adequately protect their interests. Important to note important assumptions in de minimis materiality like a lack of detected illegality and fraud. Also these disclosure should be made considering qualitative factors like those listed in SEC Staff Accounting Bulletin No. 99 (SAB 99). Disclosures about the scope of total revisions to retail investors are often not provided in practice since some may be disclosed exclusively to institutional investors. Total quantitatively would be decision-useful information provided to retail investors about the company's progress toward improving corporate governance. Quantitative revisions should at least be disclosed for all periods when it has forced the change to quarterly from semiannual reporting in at least one of the comparative years.
2. 3. Another benefit of this increased disclosure: It will easily allow retail investors to measure progress towards remediation and achievement towards possible benefits associated with semiannual reporting like reduced SG&A, instead of allowing companies to selectively choose which presentation errors will look best together in a press release as is achieved sometime under current disclosure requirements as conveniently-framed and conveniently-timed reformation. Accordingly, all investors would be able to hold management accountable for all decisions with more material information, including shifts from quarterly to semiannual reporting as well as remediation steps, and whether they match the investor’s risk profile. Especially when in practice revisions can be used as an avenue for a convenient boost to qualitatively important short-term Non-GAAP metrics, including those metrics important to some investors whose interests may not adequately represent retail investors’.
Material Restatements: Important to mention with consideration of qualitative factors like those listed in SEC Staff Accounting Bulletin No. 99 (SAB 99).
Material ICFR control failures in period-end financial reporting, occurring without material revisions or restatements, and over the next three years near-material ICFR failures, classified as significant deficiencies. These significant deficiencies would have to materially affect material line items/metrics to be disclosed.
Undisclosed remedial action presents serious risks especially when near-material ICFR failures are remediated in the fourth quarter without proper planning and risk assessment or undisclosed remedial action leads to ongoing classification as a significant deficiency at year end. Specifically for controls with completeness/accuracy considerations like: operational controls that could materially affect material line items/metrics used to value the company now and in the future, especially in distress sales, bankruptcies, liquidations, or commodity sell-offs.
Disclosure would also need to address steps taken to improve information technology. Companies may not want to disclose control remediations affecting material line items/metrics occurring in the fourth quarter since it could affect their stock price when significant deficiencies and remediation methods could otherwise just be disclosed to management and the audit committee only. However, material ICFR control remediation in the last quarter of the year that is not subject to proper risk assessment including around completeness/accuracy, walkthroughs, and feedback throughout the year or is still classified as a significant deficiency at year end, can generally when combined with recent failures in period end financial reporting present fraud and operational risks that should be disclosed to shareholders. Both problems indicate semiannual reporting will not adequately protect investor interests due to compounding effects of material fraud and operational risk that could be prevented through more frequent and more precise control operations like reconciliations, quarterly management reviews, and important auditor inquiry with management about material balances. There is also usually a need to increase staff after control failures like period-end financial reporting so an increased administrative burden should not unduly burden companies that may require additional staff over a medium term, and the company will likely benefit from additional feedback throughout the year.

Conclusion on Conditions: These conditions contain information that is materially important to retail investors, often undisclosed, and usually is accompanied with unforeseen results seen over a length of time which should prevent semiannual reporting due to the nature of compounding risk and longer lead times in semiannual reporting that as stated above will affect (1) companies' disclosure controls and procedures, (2) companies' implementation and design of their approach to remediating internal control over financial reporting, and (3) independent public accountants' strategy and approach for the annual audit of companies' internal control over financial reporting or financial statements

I would like to see conditions on the proposed semi-annual reporting rule or changes to the disclosure requirements for public companies because it will:

- Increase risk assessment, planning, and feedback throughout the year around potential ICFR material control failures through more frequent reviews. Possibly encouraging companies to attempt to remediate their potential material failures in ICFRs early in the year. Because not doing so until the end and disclosing the steps you took at the very end that may have not been adequate, demonstrates the company's role in generating significant waste through poor governance. Poor governance that would be seen initially in ICFR material failures, next in disclosed remedial steps taken towards significant deficiencies affecting material line items/metrics, and finally later in unforeseen costs for investors that may appear.
- Increase disclosure around steps taken to remediate period-end ICFRs material failures and near-material failures turned into significant deficiencies that may still materially affect material line items/metrics such as those used to value the company, especially in distress sales, bankruptcies, liquidations, or commodity sell-offs. Investors should be given the information that would help them find answers to questions similar to institutional investors in determining their risk profile. For example steps taken at each business segment affected should be described if they are actually taken.

Practical Impact on Companies

Excluding companies that exhibit these risky characteristics from semiannual reporting is key to address concerns that semi-annual reporting will make fraud or operational problems harder to detect quickly based on my practical experience with following control failures and resulting impacts to retail investors. Narrowing the rules will also provide additional incentives for companies to avoid improperly taking advantage of these conditions that are common in emerging growth companies and promote proper governance practices as well as increased efficiency from improved incentives like that to improve SOX readiness. Robust implementation of AI across companies may change the hiring needs of companies who face issues with the conditions noted in this comment, but hiring at companies still usually does need to occur regardless, to remediate the issues when these conditions exist. A question I think may take more experience to answer is whether three years is appropriate to mandate a shift to quarterly reporting from semi-annual for mature companies given the rate of change at companies with the rate of AI adoption. Importantly, I think semi-annual reporting will probably extend the timeline of remediation for emerging growth companies with material failures in ICFR in period end in practice, along with the chance of associated errors in the meantime.

Companies will likely probably not want to disclose ICFR control failure remediation for operational controls affecting material line items/metrics occurring in the last quarter of the year or for near-material failures in ICFRs that are still classified as a significant deficiency at year end because it could affect their stock price in their view unnecessarily. However, when accompanied with period end financial reporting ICFR material failures that alone should disqualify you from semiannual reporting in my view, the listed conditions present an additional risk that should be disclosed to investors because of the nature of how information goes from business segments and into the corporate consolidated financial statements.
Quantified Impact on Public Companies
What percentage of emerging growth companies have control failures in ICFR? As of 2017
Among the 1,862 EGC filers, 1,355 provided a management report on internal control over financial reporting in their most recent annual filing. Of those 1,355 companies, approximately 46% reported material weaknesses. 2
Adverse ICFR Disclosure Rate by company size (FY2022 excerpt)3
●
●
●
Large Accelerated Filers:
5.8%
Accelerated Filers:
17.7%
Non-Accelerated Filers:
38.0%
That is all the publicly available compiled data I could find without industry datasets that could provide more precise information about the number of companies with material ICFR failures in period-end that this would affect.
2https://assets.pcaobus.org/pcaob-dev/docs/default-source/economicandriskanalysis/documents/white-pa per-characteristics-emerging-growth-companies-may-2017.pdf?
3https://www.scribd.com/document/871426339/SOX-404-Disclosures-ANineteen-YearReview?
Regards,
Andrew Parker

Anonymous — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Self The idea of moving to a six-month SEC filing timeline is absolutely ridiculous, and frankly, anyone pushing this nonsense needs a serious reality check. Doubling the time between disclosures is a gift-wrapped invitation for corporate malfeasance, fraud, and the kind of accounting shell games that wiped out shareholders at Enron and WorldCom. Have we learned NOTHING from history?! Investors deserve timely, accurate information about the companies they own, not a black box of silence for half a year while executives quietly dump shares, cook the books, or bury bad news under mountains of stale data. Six months is an eternity in modern markets. entire industries can rise and collapse in that window, and retail investors will be left holding the bag while insiders feast on information asymmetry. The current three-month quarterly cadence isn't some bureaucratic burden, it's the BARE MINIMUM of accountability, and if anything we should be SHORTENING it, not stretching it out to appease lazy executives who can't be bothered to keep honest books. Transparency is the price of accessing public capital. if a company can't handle quarterly reporting, they have absolutely no business being publicly traded in the first place. This proposal isn't reform, it's regression, and it needs to be killed before it does real, lasting damage to market integrity and the millions of ordinary people whose retirements depend on honest, frequent disclosure!

Brian Pina — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brian Pina Moving to semi annual reporting will bring negative consequences for retirement accounts and retail investors. Please keep the requirement for quarterly reporting

---

Christ Fisk — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christ Fisk I have been a retail investor for over 20 years. Reading the annual statements and quarterly statements provide the real truth of the state of a business as opposed to CEOs spinning rosy fictions about the financial state of the businesses they are in charge of it. I as a retail investor don’t stand a chance to insiders who will be able to buy and sell their shares before they report it in a filing.

David Long — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Long companies earning should stay quarterly. Should be more concerned with dark pools and synthetic shares.

Davis Sego — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Davis Sego Keep it quarterly, Washington lies and cheats too much already don't allow our stock .Market to become anymore untrustworthy

---

Ian Ross — May 12, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Ian Ross From: Ian Ross Affiliation: May 12, 2026 A lack of more frequent reporting periods prevents the market from knowing how well a company is doing. Companies cannot be 100% trusted to relay material data outside of mandatory reporting. Delaying this data is a disservice to stakeholders and the government relying on it to make decisions.

James Mellor — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: James Mellor To the Securities and Exchange Commission: (Sirs and Madames) I strongly oppose the proposed SEC Rule change. Thank you S7-2026-15

James Wiebe — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: James Wiebe If you're a public company, you should have to keep the public aware of the status of your company frequently enough so that the world of business can stay healthy and competitive. That's just common sense. I'm not saying this as a big investor but as an American, we all have a stake in the stability of our companies and the economy as a whole and if this were changed companies would be under less scrutiny and therefore less likely to behave according to the law.

Jonathin Kennedy, Kennedy ConsultX LLC — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jonathin Kennedy I am writing to formally express my opposition to the recent SEC proposal that would allow public companies to elect semi-annual reporting instead of the current quarterly requirement. In a healthy democracy, market transparency is a cornerstone of investor protection. Reducing the frequency of financial disclosures creates significant "dark periods," increasing information asymmetry and potentially favoring institutional insiders over individual retail investors. Rather than moving toward less frequent reporting, I believe the Commission should explore ways to enhance operational transparency-potentially through more frequent or real-time disclosures-to ensure all investors have access to timely, high-quality information. I urge the SEC to maintain the quarterly reporting standard to preserve the integrity and transparency of our capital markets.

Jose Sainz — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jose Sainz I am writing to voice my displeasure with the new reporting period of 6 months. While I initially supported it after more research I decided that we simply cannot trust companies to do the right thing and not to be scandalous and hide whatever they can from the public. If I've learned anything so far in my millennial life it's that companies always do the wrong thing or whatever enriches top executives first and leaves everyone else holding the bag. Although quarterly reports probably cause more events to happen like layoffs I just don't think companies will do the ethical thing most of the time and not hide problems for longer or do insider trading. So keep the system how it is.

Kimberly Carnahan — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kimberly Carnahan Absolutely NOT. Quarterly reporting has existed for decades. Creating this quarterly reporting has become easier over the decades due to technology. The only reason to reduce to reporting to every six months is to give an advantage to insiders, thus reducing transparency to contribute even more to an uneven playing field.

Lisa Copenhaver — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lisa Copenhaver There is absolutely no reasonable explanation to not keep quarterly reporting. Fraud can be hidden in 6 months. The investor needs to have TIMELY updates.

Matthew Sing — May 12, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Matthew Sing From: Matthew Sing Affiliation: BA in Economics May 12, 2026 This is an absurd idea.. Less information simply means less informed trading. Free markets can only work if there is consistent reliable data. This goes against that. Do not do this.

Munir Hakim — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Munir Hakim I am a retail investor and quarterly reporting is very important to me. I don't think semiannual reporting will have any real benefit to the public at large but could certainly benefit insiders and could lead to more fraud going undetected for longer. Imagine if we made it optional for auto manufactures to put seatbelts in their cars. We all know how that would go. If all the big players change to semiannual reporting, of course the smaller players will follow suit and become the standard for the whole industry. I hope to retire one day with the money I am putting away now. This could have a negative impact on that future. Here in Texas we have a saying, if it ain't broke don't fix it. It doesn't apply to everything but it does here.

Noel King — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Noel king I believe that this change in reporting requirements will drastically reduce the number of individual investors willing to invest.

Pat Meehan — May 12, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Pat Meehan From: Pat Meehan Affiliation: May 12, 2026 This proposal will not survive the Supreme Court's ruling in Loper-Bright (2024) because agency heads, not receiving as much deference now, are supposed to come up with quantifiable justification for new rules. This proposal has theoretical, old, speculative, and data that any court will find insufficient. You give away your own game in footnote 332, admitting that you don't know what the impacts will be.

Patrick Ryan — May 12, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Patrick Ryan From: Patrick Ryan Affiliation: May 12, 2026 This policy is meant to alleviate a small regulatory burden that all affected companies are well-equipped to shoulder.
The quarterly reporting system has been a staple of American financial trust and safety. The downside and avenues for insider trading are clear and likely, while the upsides are small and concentrated in the hands of a few thousand publicly traded corporations.
I urge you to reconsider and terminate this proposal, on behalf of the average American investor and general public.

Paul Kalenak — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Paul Kalenak I am against changing the reporting period for corporations from 3 months to 6 months. Quarterly financial reporting holds companies accountable to their shareholders allowing informed investment decisions by them. Various government statistics are reported monthly. I don't think it's difficult for companies to continue reporting quarterly.

Peter Van Flein, Financial Advisor, Geneos Wealth Management — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Peter Van Flein It ain't broke, so don't try to fix it. This lack of reporting would create a gulf between the information the institutional investor would have vis-a-vis the retail investor. Please reject this solution.

Rob Bardy, Association of Professional Accountants — May 12, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Rob Bardy From: Rob Bardy Affiliation: Association of Professional Accountants May 12, 2026 Keep it quarterly, please.
If it ain't broke, don't fix it.
Thanks.

Robert Burlando — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Robert Burlando As an individual investor, I do not support the idea of allowing public companies listed on US exchanges to switch from quarterly to semiannual reporting. Proponents of semiannual reporting point to the practice in Europe but it is my perception that semiannual reporting there has hidden corporate malfeasance that may have been caught earlier had companies been required to report quarterly. Further, I believe US capital markets are the most transparent and liquid in the world, and quarterly reporting plays an important part in maintaining our global leadership in this critical area. Thank you for your consideration.

Rodrigo Cabrera — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Rodrigo Cabrera Hi, I believe quarterly reporting is one of the most important elements of publicly traded companies, they give information and insights into each company's financials in a reliable way. As an investor I believe that diluting that information to semianually just makes insider information more valuable and it would erode confidence in the stock market. Please keep quarterly reporting mandatory. Thanks.

Scott Lundstrom, Market Analyst — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Scott Lundstrom Investors will be placed at a disadvantage. I want as much data as possible when investing.

Shane Dalton — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Shane Dalton I disagree, quarterly reports are needed. How am I supposed to check on the finances of stocks I hold if data is cut in half. Only large investment funds will benefit from twice a year reporting, they have employees researching. I would sell any business that doesn’t report quarterly.

Sonia Woldow — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sonia Woldow Please keep SEC filings quarterly. As a retail investor, they are the best windows into companies that I am investing in.

Suzanne Gallant — May 12, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Suzanne Gallant From: Suzanne Gallant Affiliation: May 12, 2026 The six month rule must not be passed. Its just another way for Wall Street to win and the average person to lose. The US is losing so many standards that once made us a great country. We can not let our financial system fall even further.

Tal Madison — May 12, 2026
Comment on File No. S7-2026-15
Re: Comment on File No. S7-2026-15, Semiannual Reporting
To Whom It May Concern,
I write to comment on the Commission's proposal to replace the quarterly reporting requirement on Form 10-Q with a semiannual regime.
The proposal raises substantial questions under the Administrative Procedure Act and recent decisions of the Supreme Court that constrain how agencies may exercise statutory authority delegated to them by Congress. I focus on four problems with the proposal as drafted. First, the rule cannot rest on Chevron deference to the Commission's interpretation of Section 13(a) after Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo.
1 Second, the question whether public companies should report quarterly or semiannually is an issue of sufficient economic and political significance that it implicates the major questions doctrine. Third, the Commission has not yet assembled an adequate record under State Farm and its progeny to justify abandoning the disclosure regime that has been in place since 1970. Fourth, the proposal's cost-benefit analysis, as previewed in the release, repeats analytical errors that the D.C. Circuit has previously held fatal to Commission rulemakings.
I. The Commission Now Bears the Full Interpretive Burden Under Section 13(a).
Until June 2024, the Commission could defend an exercise of its disclosure authority under Section 13(a) of the Exchange Act2 by pointing to the statute's general grant of power to require periodic reports "in such detail as the Commission may prescribe." Reviewing courts would ordinarily defer to a reasonable Commission interpretation of that authorizing language. That regime ended with Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, which held that courts must "exercise their independent judgment in deciding whether an agency has acted within its statutory authority" and may no longer defer to an agency's interpretation of an ambiguous statute simply because the agency has offered a 1 144 S. Ct. 2244 (2024).
2 Securities Exchange Act of 1934, § 13(a), 15 U.S.C. § 78m(a).
Comment on File No. S7-2026-15
permissible reading.3 Chief Justice Roberts wrote that the APA "specifies that courts, not agencies, will decide all relevant questions of law arising on review of agency action."4 The practical consequence for this rulemaking is straightforward. Whatever final rule the Commission adopts will be tested in court against the best reading of Section 13(a), not against a reading that a court might once have accepted as merely permissible. The Commission, of course, may still adopt a rule that reflects its expert policy judgment, and reviewing courts will continue to apply ordinary arbitrary and capricious review under 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A) to the Commission's factual findings and policy choices.5 What has changed is that the textual question, whether semiannual reporting is consistent with Congress's instruction that issuers file "such annual reports … and such quarterly reports … as the Commission may prescribe" under Section 13(a)(1) and (a)(2), will receive de novo treatment.

The release should engage that interpretive question directly rather than treating it as foreclosed by historical practice. Section 13(a)(2), as amended, refers to "quarterly reports" in the alternative, and there is a serious textual argument that the statute presupposes a quarterly cadence as the default mode of interim reporting even as it leaves implementation details to the Commission. A final rule that eliminates quarterly reporting altogether must explain why the statutory reference to "quarterly reports" does not require, at minimum, that quarterly reporting remain available to investors as the baseline disclosure regime. The Commission cannot now rely on the deference framework that supported earlier expansive readings of its Section 13(a) authority, and the release as currently drafted does not grapple with the textual problem.

II. The Proposal Implicates the Major Questions Doctrine.

In West Virginia v. EPA, the Court held that in "extraordinary cases" involving questions of "vast economic and political significance," an agency must point to "clear congressional authorization" for the power it claims to exercise.6 The doctrine was reaffirmed in Biden

3 Loper Bright, 144 S. Ct. at 2273 (overruling Chevron U.S.A. Inc. v. Nat'l Res. Def. Council, Inc., 467 U.S. 837 (1984)).

4 Id. at 2266.

5 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A).

6 West Virginia v. EPA, 597 U.S. 697, 721 (2022) (quoting FDA v. Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., 529 U.S. 120, 159 (2000)).

v. Nebraska, where the Court emphasized that the doctrine applies whenever an agency invokes a long-extant statute to assert sweeping authority over questions of "deep economic and political significance" that Congress has not clearly addressed.7

Quarterly reporting has been a foundational feature of United States public capital markets for more than half a century. Form 10-Q was adopted in 1970,8 and the four-quarter reporting cadence has shaped how analysts model earnings, how institutional investors allocate capital, how auditors plan their interim review procedures, and how issuers communicate with the market. Roughly 4,000 domestic reporting companies file Form 10-Q each quarter, and the universe of investors who rely on those filings extends to retail brokerage account holders, pension beneficiaries, mutual fund participants, and the broader research and analyst community.

A regulatory action that dismantles that regime is not a routine technical adjustment to disclosure forms. It is a structural change to the information environment of the United States equity markets. Whether one believes the change is wise or unwise, it presents the kind of question that West Virginia and Nebraska instruct courts to scrutinize for clear congressional authorization. The Commission cannot answer that question by citing only the general delegation in Section 13(a). The release should identify with specificity the statutory text that, in the Commission's view, clearly authorizes the elimination of mandatory quarterly disclosure, and it should acknowledge the major questions framework as the standard against which that authorization will be measured.

III. The Record Does Not Yet Support a Reasoned Departure from Existing Policy.

An agency changing course must "provide a reasoned explanation" for disregarding facts and circumstances that underlay its prior policy.9 Under State Farm, an agency acts arbitrarily and capriciously if it “entirely failed to consider an important aspect of the problem,” if it “offered an explanation for its decision that runs counter to the evidence before the agency,” or if its decision “is so implausible that it could not be ascribed to a 7 Biden v. Nebraska, 600 U.S. 477, 506 (2023).

8 Adoption of Form 10-Q and Amendments of Certain Other Forms and Rules, Exchange Act Release No.
34-9000, 35 Fed. Reg. 1448 (Jan. 30, 1970).

9 Encino Motorcars, LLC v. Navarro, 579 U.S. 211, 221 (2016) (quoting State Farm, 463 U.S. at 42).

difference in view or the product of agency expertise.”10 In Department of Homeland Security v. Regents of the University of California, the Court reiterated that an agency must “assess whether there were reliance interests, determine whether they were significant, and weigh any such interests against competing policy concerns.”11

The release identifies short-termism as the principal concern motivating the move to semiannual reporting. The academic literature on that question is genuinely contested. Some studies suggest that quarterly reporting pressures managers toward myopic decisions,12 while other work finds that more frequent reporting reduces information asymmetry between issuers and investors and lowers the cost of equity capital.13 The Commission has not yet identified which body of evidence it credits, why, and how it weighs the offsetting findings. A final rule that asserts a settled empirical foundation for the short-termism rationale, in the face of substantial countervailing literature, will be vulnerable on review.

Reliance interests in this rulemaking are unusually concentrated and quantifiable. Equity research analysts have built coverage models around the quarterly reporting calendar. Mutual funds and ETFs that mark to market on a daily basis depend on quarterly issuer data to validate the prices generated by their pricing services between annual filings. Credit committees at lenders, insurance underwriters, rating agencies, and counterparty risk groups all incorporate Form 10-Q data into their periodic monitoring. The Commission should catalog these reliance interests and explain how the proposed semiannual cadence accommodates them, particularly during the two financial quarters in which no public information would otherwise enter the market under the proposal.

Public statements by the executive branch in support of the proposal do not relieve the Commission of its independent obligation to develop a reasoned record.14 The Commission is an independent agency, and a rulemaking record that appears to rest on 10 Motor Vehicle Mfrs. Ass’n v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 463 U.S. 29, 43 (1983).

11 DHS v. Regents of the Univ. of Cal., 591 U.S. 1, 30 (2020).

12 Mark J. Roe et al., Quarterly Reporting and Corporate Short-Termism, 30 J. Applied Corp. Fin. 30 (2018).

13 Rodrigo S. Verdi, Discussion of ‘Financial Reporting Frequency, Information Asymmetry, and the Cost of Equity’, 54 J. Acct. & Econ. 150 (2012).

14 Pres. Donald J. Trump, Truth Social Post (Sept. 15, 2025) (calling on the Commission to revisit the quarterly reporting requirement).

extra-record political direction rather than substantive evidence will not satisfy State Farm review.

IV. The Cost-Benefit Analysis Must Meet the D.C. Circuit’s Established Standard.

Section 3(f) of the Exchange Act directs the Commission, when engaged in rulemaking that requires it to consider whether an action is necessary or appropriate in the public interest, to consider whether the action will promote efficiency, competition, and capital formation.15 The D.C. Circuit has held that the Commission acts arbitrarily and capriciously when it fails to “apprise itself, and hence the public and the Congress, of the economic consequences of a proposed regulation.”16 In Business Roundtable v. SEC, the court vacated a proxy access rule because the Commission “inconsistently and opportunistically framed the costs and benefits of the rule” and “failed adequately to quantify the certain costs or to explain why those costs could not be quantified.”17

A defensible cost-benefit analysis for this rulemaking must do at least the following. It must quantify, or explain why it cannot quantify, the savings to issuers from eliminating two interim filings per year. It must quantify, or explain why it cannot quantify, the costs to investors from receiving only two interim updates per year rather than four, including the cost of impaired price discovery and the cost of information asymmetry between insiders and outside investors during the resulting reporting gaps. It must address whether the proposed regime is likely to widen bid-ask spreads, increase the cost of equity capital, or shift trading volume toward derivative or alternative venues that do not depend on Commission-mandated disclosure. And it must consider less restrictive alternatives, including retention of Form 10-Q with streamlined content requirements, voluntary semiannual reporting at the issuer’s election, or scaled relief for emerging growth companies and smaller reporting companies that does not affect the broader market. The release should also address the interaction between the proposed change and existing Management’s Discussion and Analysis requirements under Item 303 of 15 15 U.S.C. § 78c(f).

16 Chamber of Commerce v. SEC, 412 F.3d 133, 144 (D.C. Cir. 2005).

17 See Bus. Roundtable v. SEC, 647 F.3d 1144, 1148–49 (D.C. Cir. 2011) (vacating proxy access rule for failure to assess economic effects).

Regulation S-K.18 Much of the information that flows to the market through Form 10-Q is qualitative MD&A content rather than the quarterly financial statements themselves. If the Commission intends to preserve interim MD&A while eliminating quarterly financial statements, it should say so. If it intends to eliminate both, it should explain why the elimination of qualitative interim disclosure is consistent with the materiality framework articulated in Basic Inc. v. Levinson.19

V. Recommendations.

Taken together, these defects are not merely procedural. The proposed rulemaking does not survive the post-Loper Bright framework because the Commission must now defend the rule as the best reading of Section 13(a), not merely as a permissible construction of ambiguous statutory text. Nor does the rule comfortably survive major-questions scrutiny, because a Commission rule that substantially alters the cadence of mandatory public-company disclosure implicates the structure of the national securities markets and requires clear congressional authorization. Even apart from those threshold statutory concerns, the proposal is vulnerable under State Farm because the release does not yet provide a reasoned explanation for departing from the settled quarterly-reporting regime or adequately account for investor reliance, market-efficiency costs, and less disruptive alternatives. On the current record, the Commission has not carried the interpretive, statutory, or administrative-law burden required to finalize the rule as proposed.

Respectfully submitted.

18 See Reg. S-K, Item 303, 17 C.F.R. § 229.303 (Management’s Discussion and Analysis).

19 See Basic Inc. v. Levinson, 485 U.S. 224, 231 (1988) (defining materiality as substantial likelihood that disclosure would be viewed by reasonable investor as significantly altering the total mix of information).

Theo — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Theo This is a bad idea that leaves more time for fraud and insider trading to occur while giving investors/the public less information. Semi annual reporting has proven to be ineffective across the world stage in both the UK and South Korea. This proposal would be a major step back in market transparency to ensure accountability for all companies.

Tommy Brumfield — May 12, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Tommy Brumfield I am opposed to going to semiannual reporting. This will decrease transparency for investors. This is a bad idea.

Alex Matache — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Alex Matache The foundational principle which guides the success of the American Financial System is trust. This trust is born from the transparency and rigor by which we hold our institutions accountable. If we allow this transparency to erode, we invite the kind of dishonesty and deceit that will be the eventual unraveling of this system. Market participants need to be truthful and forth-bearing in their economic activities. They need to be so in a timely manner. Quarterly earnings have been an accurate and acceptable barometer for over 50 years. There is no reason to change this. The only parties that benefit from this are insiders, manipulators, and unscrupulous groups who feel the need to hide their wrongdoings. Keep the markets fair and transparent for the public. This is in the best interest of this country and its future prospective economic growth. To those that wish to pursue less regulated business ventures, there is always private equity. Keep the markets fair and transparent for those of us who wish to invest in the future in this country with trust and honesty. Keep reports quarterly. Its in the best interests of everyone.

Anonymous — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Do not allow S7-2026-15 to proceed any further in the legislative process. Investors, customers and taxpayers deserve More transparency and frequent updates. This semi- annual reporting proposal does not serve the public good. Perhaps a future Spirit Airlines fiasco would be avoided with more frequent, required corporate updates.

Benjamin Esper — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Benjamin Esper Every stock market crash and manipulation happens because of a lack of transparency and oversight. Nothing good will come of this, even if you want to argue quarterly cycles means gross over analyzing paralyzing companies into quarterly earnings uptrend constantly. This is not a bad thing. Companies should be over analyzed and pushed to the brim until they are as big as possible. In conclusion, lowering the oversight and quarterly earnings only allows more pump and dump schemes and insider trading and bad business.

Blake Webb — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Blake Webb I am here to publicly voice my opinion AGAINST this rule change. I believe lowering the requirement for minimum finance reports/guidance between annual reporting from 3 to 1 will introduce more speculation into the stock market. It would hurt retail investors the most. As a retail investor, I would feel greatly uninspired to invest in a stock market where it has become a trend to only provide 1 report between annual reporting. I would constantly be worried about my 401k investments because I would not want to be invested in assets that refuse to be as transparent.

Brian Wang, Investor — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Brian Wang I think reporting should be increased. AI has reduced the manual effort required in filing. Twice a month shouldn't be impossible.

Christine Morton, Individual Retail Investor — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Christine Morton I am against semi-annual reporting for public companies and prefer that quarterly reporting continues. We have enough challenges with transparency as it is . I appreciate it's a reporting burden for public companies, but how are investors supposed to hold boards accountable without timely reporting? We need transparency. Semi-annual reporting is too late in many cases if companies pursue activities against their investors' best interests. I am a US citizen residing in the UK and this proposed rule is not in the interest of market transparency. It will affect the US's standing as a global market. Global investors may pull money out of US markets if they do not feel their investments are safe, and one way to determine that is via quarterly, regular reporting.

Creighton Early, CFO - Willdan Group, Inc. — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Creighton Early Relief from the burdens of periodic reporting would be welcome, but the burden is less about frequency and more about the disclosure and reporting requirements. A reduction in the quantity of reporting on footnotes, acquisitions, taxes financings, etc would make a significant difference. Reporting quarterly is good for investors and good for the company. The depth of disclosure, especially regarding arcane and misleading accounting pronouncements is what takes time and money, not quarterly filing.

Kenneth I Kornbluh, CEO Kambio Partners LLC — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kenneth I Kornbluh May 11, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission: I submit this comment in opposition to the proposed amendments under File Number S7-2026-15, which would permit public companies to file semiannual reports in lieu of quarterly reports. I manage a hedge fund operating a series of five funds with hundreds of millions of dollars in assets belonging to individual investors. Our investment process depends heavily on quarterly reports, annual reports, and all public company disclosures. This proposed rule change would directly and materially harm our ability to make informed investment decisions on behalf of our clients. Quarterly earnings figures and forward-looking guidance are central to how we evaluate companies and construct our portfolios. We rely on these numbers not only to assess a company's current financial health, but to compare actual results against prior estimates and to track management's consistency and accuracy in projecting future performance. Reducing reporting to a semiannual cadence would double the information gap between reporting periods, leaving investors to make consequential decisions with materially less data — and giving company insiders a significant and troubling informational advantage over the markets. This informational asymmetry is already a serious concern under the current quarterly regime. Company insiders — executives, board members, and others with access to internal data — know their company's financial trajectory months before the public does. They observe revenue trends, cost pressures, and operational developments in real time. Public investors, by contrast, must wait for scheduled disclosures. Moving to semiannual reporting would dramatically widen this gap, extending the period during which insiders hold material non-public information to an even greater degree. Rather than moving in this direction, the Commission should consider whether an additional lighter and more frequent reporting regime — such as mandatory monthly disclosure of key performance metrics — might serve investors and market integrity. Some of the world's best-managed companies already voluntarily provide this level of transparency, demonstrating that it is both achievable and valuable. Equally important to us is the qualitative dimension of quarterly reporting: the earnings calls and commentary delivered by senior executives in their own voices. These are irreplaceable. The way a CEO or CFO speaks about their business — their tone, their confidence, their command of the details — provides insight that no financial statement alone can convey. It allows sophisticated investors to assess management quality, detect uncertainty or overconfidence, and make more nuanced judgments about long-term prospects. Cutting the frequency of these interactions in half would be a serious loss to the investment community. The United States' dominance in global financial markets is not accidental. It is built on a foundation of robust, frequent, and reliable public disclosure requirements. Quarterly reporting is a cornerstone of that foundation. It gives investors confidence that the companies they invest in are being held to consistent standards of transparency. Reducing that frequency undermines market fairness, erodes investor trust, and weakens the competitive advantage that U.S. markets have long held globally. I strongly urge the Commission to reject this proposed rule change and instead consider moving in the opposite direction — toward more frequent and more transparent disclosure — in order to better protect investors and preserve the integrity of U.S. capital markets. Respectfully submitted, Ken Kornbluh CEO Kambio Partners LLC

Lawrence — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lawrence Do not ease existing regulations to allow for semi-annual reporting instead of quarterly. Letting public companies report only twice a year is too little, and opens up greater windows into possible fraud. Frequent and regular updates provide significantly greater transparency, which is why the US market system is currently trusted by investors worldwide. Switching to semi-annual reporting dilutes this trust and harms the general public who rely on this information.

Nathan Powers, Owner, Good Faith Co — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Nathan Powers I am writing this on behalf of a large and growing chorus of regular everyday investors who would be harmed by a recently proposed rule change to the quarterly reporting system. My reasoning for being strongly against this change is as follows. The long and storied tradition of quarterly reporting is the foundation that our current financial system relies on to keep publicly traded companies honest. To do away with this system would lead to profoundly bad outcomes as certain bad actors would be allowed to hide their misdeeds for longer and this change will result in extra unnecessary volatility in public markets. And it's not just the large multi year frauds like Enron, Worldcom, Nikola, Wirecard, and others, it is the small almost invisible statements that are the bigger problem. Companies such as Alphabet, Under Armour, and Wells Fargo have all recently settled complaints from shareholders in regards to misleading investors in their companies. If we go to a system where companies are only required to show their books only twice per year it is easily conceivable that this minor form of fraud would be grow in scale and go undetected for longer. This change would go deeper than just allowing hucksters and stock salesman to benefit it would also be disastrous for retail investors and perhaps even institutions. Many companies already experience tremendous volatility around their quarterly earnings reports, making the requirement only twice per year would be detonating a nuclear bomb. the share price of companies would likely collapse or soar on these infrequent reports. I ask that you keep the status quo as it is. Quarterly reports are foundational in making sure that those who seek to misuse and abuse the system are found out quickly. It would also be beneficial to all investors to not be forced to stomach large swings in the price of their owned securities. Thank You for your attention to this matter.

Oscar Meade — May 11, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Oscar Meade In an era of open information, having less data that allows investors to make informed decisions - whether short or long term - is a step backwards that permits public companies a brief moment of regulatory respite they agreed was worth dealing with when going public in the first place.

Michael Mosquera — May 10, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: michael mosquera I have been a private investor for more than half my life. The American stock exchanges are the most liquid, efficient and with some exceptions, the most transparent and secure. However I do see two serious issues jeopardizing the competitive strengths of American public corporations. First is short term thinking. In many cases, management is focused on exceeding quarterly expectations at the expense of long term growth. However management that focused on long term growth have built some of America's iconic corporations. Amazon, Netflix and Eli Lilly come to mind. Second, a lack of proper oversight of management by the board of directors. In many cases, boards of directors have become rubber stamps for management. This lack of oversight eventually leads to significant corporate failures. Enron, Tyco and WorldCom come to mind. I propose two corporate reporting options that the shareholders vote on every three years. The first option is status quo. Change nothing with the current corporate reporting requirements. The second option is to allow corporate reporting on an annual basis. However significant enhancements to oversight of management must be implemented. 1. Senior management such as the CEO, CFO and COO are barred from serving on the board of directors. Cannot allow the fox to watch the hen house. 2. The board of directors must be held to a higher standard of fiduciary responsibility and can be personally be held liable if they are negligent in this responsibility. 3. Significantly reduce the amount of required public reporting. 4. A section in the annual report must be required to highlight the fiduciary actions taken by the board of directors. Giving public corporations greater flexibility in reporting requirements while requiring enhanced oversight by corporate boards will encourage management to concentrate on long term growth.

Adam Sawyers, CEO, Rito Labs — May 10, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Adam Sawyers Passing a law like this will erode investor confidence in the already fragile system. Instead of making things better for the people, corporations are puppeteering politicians to work in their favor, not yours. This is unacceptable to those of us that want to see our democracy continue to flourish

---

Anonymous — May 10, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous I am very much against this proposal. In an environment where there are numerous allegations of insider trading, whether that be in equity markets, crypto, or new "prediction platforms", I believe that the last thing needed is another opportunity for such activity to happen. Given that one can speculate on various outcomes of publicly traded companies within these new and loosely regulated "prediction platforms" only compounds the potential problems such a "withdrawal of transparency requirements" might entail. Quarterly reporting is the absolute minimum standard of transparency for a publicly traded company, and companies that want the privilege to seek public investment should be obligated to at least promptly and methodically release their earnings every three months and explain their performance and future plans to investors.

Anthony Sirica — May 10, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anthony Sirica I think this option should be structured like Section 404(b) SOX compliance. It clearly should be available to SRCs as most investors in these size companies seem to focus solely on the earnings releases. It should not be available to large cap companies (however that is defined for these purposes). As a CPA and investor in many companies like AAPL, NVDA, BXSL, ARES, JPM, MOB, etc., I obtain a lot of information from the 10-Qs that is not in the earnings releases. I couldn't imagine getting that information twice a year, especially in the post-COVID capital markets. Take Apple for example. The latest earnings release has 4 small paragraphs about their quarterly results.

Anonymous — May 9, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous I respectfully oppose the proposal to permit public companies to replace quarterly reporting with semiannual reporting. Quarterly reporting plays a critical role in maintaining transparency, accountability, and market confidence. It provides investors with a regular, structured view of operating performance, liquidity, and emerging risks. Extending the reporting cadence to six months increases the likelihood that important trends or deteriorations remain formally undisclosed for longer periods, potentially amplifying their impact when information eventually surfaces. The proposal’s reliance on Form 8-K disclosures as a mitigating measure is insufficient. Event-driven filings are reactive by design and do not provide the comprehensive, comparable, and trend-based insights that periodic reports offer. Quarterly reports allow investors to assess directionality and context, not just isolated events. Optional semiannual reporting also raises concerns around comparability and information symmetry. A mixed environment—where some issuers report quarterly and others semiannually—complicates peer analysis and may disadvantage less-resourced investors who rely on standardized disclosures. Over time, reduced reporting frequency may also weaken internal reporting discipline and delay identification and remediation of accounting or control issues. If the Commission’s objective is to modernize and reduce unnecessary burden, a more balanced approach would be to streamline quarterly reporting requirements rather than reduce reporting frequency altogether. Preserving the quarterly cadence remains important to ensuring orderly markets, effective price discovery, and sustained investor trust.

Anonymous — May 9, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-26-18 From:Anonymous Quarterly reporting data is critical for all investors ranging from institutional investors to retail investors. This data allows them to make well-informed decisions about capital allocation. Maintaining quarterly reporting requirements is crucial for transparency and trust in the US financial markets. I firmly believe that altering the current quarterly disclosure rules would be detrimental to all investors. That said, if changes are deemed necessary, it is essential that companies continue to provide key financial statements on a quarterly basis. These include the cash flow statement, balance sheet, and income statement. Additionally, investors must receive up-to-date information on the number of shares outstanding, segment revenues, and detailed disclosures regarding any debt or borrowing. While some elements of the current quarterly filings, such as aspects of the 10-Q, may seem redundant, the core financial data mentioned above remain vital for investors' ability to assess a company's health and prospects. The strength and integrity of the United States economy and its stock market have been built on the reliability of this information investors receive. The argument that reducing quarterly reporting would benefit smaller companies is wrong. It's precisely these companies that need to report more frequently, as smaller companies undergo more rapid structural changes than large corporations which is why they need to keep investors adequately informed. In conclusion, I strongly advocate for preserving the existing quarterly reporting obligations. However, if modifications are made, ensuring the continued quarterly disclosure of the financial data listed above is critical to maintaining investor confidence in the United States.

Bayo Olabisi, University of Pennsylvania Wharton School Alumni — May 9, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Bayo Olabisi I think this idea of 10-S reporting is not a good policy in terms of trust in corporate financial disclosures. The US stock market is a shining example for the world, it runs on up to date information about listed companies and accurate, timely reports of business activities, forecasts are often updated during these quarterly reports. The quarterly reporting system has worked for decades and isn't broken. And the pace of new financial information in the era of AI is only getting faster, all while the burden of reporting isn't more onerous. We have seen the markets react with volatile surprise to delayed economic information release by days or weeks on the part of government, one can only imagine the double surprise from an extra quarter of delay by listed companies. Change is good, but not every change is including this one. To change a working system in order to allow a few potentially unscrupulous entities to take advantage will make it difficult for the investing public to understand essential status of their business activities, and to make an apples to apples assessment of how their businesses are doing. Even if SEC is persuaded a small group of investment fund companies and perhaps others will anticipate this semiannual report model works for them, it could do a trial run of it for this group to see how stock markets react to it. But making the option available to the entire market without a careful experimental dry run carries more risks than rewards - less transparency, less inter/intra sector comparability, more potential for fraud, and malfeasance. These are concerns for the regulatory oversight and a trusted reporting system.

Marc Steinberg — May 9, 2026
Subject: File Number S7-2026-15 From: Marc Steinberg Affiliation: May 9, 2026 As a former SEC attorney who served in the Division of Enforcement and the Office of General Counsel, I write in my personal capacity to oppose the Commission's proposed amendments to allow companies to file semiannual, rather than quarterly, reports. Our securities markets are based on disclosure of material information on a timely basis, thereby seeking to enhance market integrity and investor protection. This proposal materially impedes these objectives. It seems as if the Commission will adopt these proposals in its deregulatory mode of focus. If it elects to do so, the very least that should be effectuated is the amendment of the Form 8-K to include additional important developments that must be timely disclosed. For example, current Form 8-K does not require the prompt disclosure of the loss of a material contract. With semi-annual reporting, this important fact will not reach investors until at least six months after the loss of such contract. This is clearly unacceptable. I draw your attention please to my award-winning Oxford University Press book Rethinking Securities Law (2021) (awarded Winner best law book of 2021 by the American Book Fest Awards). In undertaking this mode of deregulation, it is incumbent upon the SEC to act as a responsible regulator. In that regard, the minimum that the Commission should undertake is to amend the Form 8-K to help ensure that material information is not embargoed for an unduly long period of time, redounding to the detriment of the U.S. securities markets, financial intermediaries, and investors.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Marc I. Steinberg
Radford Chair in Law and
Professor of Law
SMU Dedman School of Law
Dallas TX 75205

Vladimir Samarin — May 9, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Vladimir Samarin Switching to semi-annual reporting will not allow investors to react to changes in business environment and company performance until its too late.

Anonymous, CPA, Corporate Accounting, Retail Investor — May 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous - Concerned retail investor and CPA As a longtime moderately conservative retail investor who has consistently supported efforts to reduce regulatory burdens, eliminate wasteful “woke” mandates like expansive ESG disclosures, and restore free-market principles to American capital markets, I have submitted comments in the past urging the Commission to roll back overreach from prior administrations. I believe strongly that smarter, lighter-touch regulation would unleash innovation, encourage IPOs, and benefit companies, workers, and investors alike. However, I am strongly opposed to this specific proposal, which I view as a dangerous and misguided step. Having started my career in the Big 4 and spent over a decade in various accounting and financial reporting roles across Fortune 500 companies, I have witnessed firsthand how rigorous, timely disclosures promote market trust to both financial institutions and analysts, as well as regular retail investors like myself. Yet this proposal leaves me profoundly disappointed, and increasingly jaded. What should have been a principled deregulatory measure has instead devolved into something far worse: blatant political cronyism that prioritizes executive convenience and presidential directives over core investor protections. After years of fighting against ideologically driven rules that politicized corporate disclosures, I never expected to see a Republican-led Commission deliver a gift-wrapped exemption that so clearly undermines market transparency and tilts the field against everyday retail investors. I fear this blatant favoritism will similarly disillusion the next generation of young professionals entering finance and accounting, who will see regulatory integrity sacrificed for political expediency. The central problem remains unchanged: permitting companies to opt for semiannual reporting on Form 10-S in place of quarterly 10-Q filings creates dangerous information asymmetry. Sophisticated institutions and insiders will still get timely updates through calls, private briefings, and data subscriptions. Retail investors - who lack those channels - will be left waiting up to six months for standardized, certified financials and MD&A. Voluntary press releases are no substitute; they are selective, promotional, and unenforceable. This isn't deregulation that levels the playing field. It entrenches inequality and invites hidden risks, earnings management, and delayed bad news - precisely the kind of opacity that harms the very Main Street investors conservatives claim to champion. The timing and substance make the cronyism unmistakable. President Trump personally and repeatedly called for ending quarterly reporting. Mere weeks into Chairman Paul Atkins' tenure, the Commission has fast-tracked exactly that policy. The rhetoric of "flexibility" and "long-term thinking" cannot disguise what this is: regulatory sycophancy. An agency that once stood for investor protection has subordinated its statutory mandate to score political points. Having opposed the previous administration's weaponization of the SEC for climate activism and social agendas, I am no less troubled when the pendulum swings to favoritism toward corporate insiders who happen to align with the current White House. True conservatism demands consistent principles - not selective exemptions that serve connected interests. The whole world and the arc of financial history are watching. America's capital markets have earned their global preeminence through unparalleled transparency and investor safeguards, not through convenient opacity granted at the request of any one administration. Weakening those foundations now risks signaling to international investors, competitors, and future generations that U.S. rulemaking has become captive to short-term political expediency rather than enduring principles of fair markets. This is not the legacy a Republican Commission should want to author. I urge the Commission to withdraw this proposal entirely. The responsible path is rejection. Investor protection is not a partisan issue - it is a foundational American principle that should transcend administrations. This Republican has seen enough. Cronyism dressed as deregulation is still cronyism, and it deserves the same scrutiny once reserved for progressive overreach. The Commission - and this Chairman - can and must do better, before the eyes of the world and the judgment of history.

Diane Aaby — May 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Diane Aaby Submit quarterly!!

Fardeen Irani — May 8, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Fardeen Irani To the Securities and Exchange Commission: I am writing to provide my strong views on the proposal to permit optional semiannual reporting on Form 10-S. This initiative represents a critical opportunity for the Commission to fulfill its dual mandate: protecting investors while facilitating capital formation. The Economic Necessity of Reducing the Compliance Burden The current quarterly reporting regime has evolved into a "compliance tax" that disproportionately penalizes innovation. With the SEC's own estimates suggesting a single Form 10-Q requires over 1,000 burden hours and significant financial outlays, the cumulative annual drain on management is staggering. For a smaller issuer, reclaiming 2,000 to 3,000 hours of executive focus annually by moving to Form 10-S is not just a "cost saving"—it is a strategic reallocation of human capital toward R&D and long-term growth. Reducing this friction is essential if we are to reverse the decline in U.S. public listings and make our markets competitive with international standards, such as those in the UK and EU. Balancing Efficiency with Market Integrity While the reduction in burden hours is a clear victory for corporate efficiency, I recognize the valid concerns regarding "information gaps." To ensure this proposal succeeds without harming the public: Strengthen Materiality: The Commission should emphasize that the shift to Form 10-S must be paired with rigorous, real-time reporting of material events on Form 8-K. Mitigate Volatility: By allowing companies to opt-in, the market can naturally "price" transparency. Companies that provide less frequent data may face a higher cost of capital, allowing the market—rather than a rigid mandate—to determine the optimal reporting frequency. Conclusion The 90-day reporting cycle often fuels a "short-termism" culture that rewards quarterly optics over decadal value. By adopting the Form 10-S framework, the Commission provides a necessary "off-ramp" for companies that prioritize long-term strategic execution over quarterly earnings management. I urge the Commission to finalize this proposal as a vital step in modernizing the American capital markets. Respectfully submitted Fardeen Irani iranifardeen25@gmail.com

---

Anonymous — May 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Quarterly reporting drives companies to focus on earnings releases and in turn CEO job security (short term results) instead of focusing on long term results. Investors expect companies to meet or exceed quarterly earnings. This encourages bad behaviors. I witnessed it first-hand working for a large bank involved in the 2016 scandal. While transparency is important for everyone, we need corporate America to start focusing on the big picture and stop chasing quarterly earnings. I'm tired of seeing employees being laid off to help drive earnings. I'm tired of companies taking short cuts because they need to increase their profits to make shareholders happy. We need to get back to making and providing superior products and services. Products that last. Products that don't break in a year because the company chose cheap materials and better quarterly earnings. Afterall, those cheap broken products end up in our landfills.

Anonymous — May 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous This is a really bad idea

---

Arturo Zuniga — May 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Arturo Zuniga I'm gonna get less info because y'all want to be more inline with international standards. But our taxes are different and 10q seems a convenient way to kill 2 birds with one stone. If the goal burden reduction, this isn't the way. This just leaves us in the dark for half a year.

Derek White — May 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Derek White Allowing semi-annual reporting in lieu of quarterly reporting is an extremely BAD idea. If anything, reporting should be more regular and timely such as monthly or weekly. Every good company knows its financial status at any given time. Prior to my current position, I managed several billion dollars of hotel real estate and I would receive daily reports, weekly reports and comprehensive monthly reporting within days of month-end on the portfolio Any good manager of any company would. Why do you want to put us individual ("retail") investors at such a HUGE DISADVANTAGE by reducing the amount of reporting I receive from companies I am invested in. My sole income and livelyhood is derived from my investment portfolio, the majority of which comprises public stock holdings. We need MONTHLY reporting not less. I need to know what is happening at the companies in which I am invested. Please do NOT reduce the amount of reporting as we do not receive enough now as it is. Most troubling is the asymmetry of data that exists under the current reporting scheme and this will only become worse if companies are allowed to go to semi-annual reporting. The number of employees, insiders, regulators, government staff and others that would have information BEFORE regular investors will only increase under this scheme and will HURT regular investors. Please do NOT allow semi-annual reporting. We need more and more regular reporting that is timely, accurate and relevant from the public companies in which we invest. Thank you

---

Jason Couchman, ISC2 CISSP — May 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jason Couchman As a longtime IT professional working for public companies in information security, audit, and assurance, I object to any change that reduces PCAOB reporting requirements. The companies subject to quarterly reporting are generally large enough to sustain the compliance costs required for quarterly reporting. In the IT space at least, the controls being tested are not onerous by any stretch; instead, they are commonsense controls like making sure people who have left the company's systems access have been end-dated and closed, that application changes have been tested before being deployed to production environments, etc. These controls make organizations function better, and the cost to test them effectively usually amount to no more than 1-3% of company profit. Doing so on a quarterly basis allows company management to keep a finger on the pulse of activity at the staff level, and identify anomalies in corporate governance that ultimately effect financial results, with sufficient time for company management to prevent those issues from erupting into serious problems. Companies are always under pressure to cut costs in administrative areas due to natural competition. The rules coming from regulatory entities are applied across all public companies and sets the "low bar" - if two public companies compete in the market, and the SEC shifts to a semi-annual model, neither company has any incentive to do "more work" on compliance and this incur higher costs than its competitor, and so standards will degrade market-wide. It's the wrong signal for the SEC to send to public companies that it's "OK" to put off checking that pervasive IT controls for corporate governance are functioning well, which may lead to situations where company management discovers only too late in the annual reporting cycle that issues exist. The testing cycle is tightly correlated to the reporting cycle, so a likely outcome is that company management will find out its organizational controls are failing only shortly before the public finds out via an adverse message in the company's 10-K filing from the company's external auditor. Moreover, in the age of cloud computing, companies on "Main Street" have become significantly more reliant on services provided by other companies who provide so-called "cloud computing" services, which are delivered by some of the largest and most profitable companies on earth - Google, Microsoft, Oracle, etc. These companies can well afford the 1-3% hit on their profits in order to demonstrate to their other client businesses that their operations are well-controlled. If these rules are relaxed for those companies only to discover later that companies in those industries relaxed their standards in order to keep pace with competition which led to systematic issues in corporate governance, then the issue will quickly snowball throughout capital markets in ways that are difficult to predict. Tech fraud is at an all-time high, and getting worse by the day. The IT controls tested as part of quarterly reporting also represent a low bar - if anything, the SEC should be pushing for higher standards tested at least quarterly, not the same governance standards tested semi-annually.

Jeanne James, MBA Candidate - OU — May 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jeanne James I support the proposal for optional semiannual reporting because it allows companies to focus on long-term growth rather than short-term quarterly targets" is completely acceptable.

L. Abott — May 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from L. Abott From: L. Abott Affiliation: May 7, 2026 I am absolutely AGAINST changing the rules to allow semiannual reporting. It harms the investing public by taking away transparency.
Argument 1 - Quarterly reporting is too costly.
This argument is spurious. The infrastructure for reporting already exists and will become less expensive over time with the implementations of AI.
Argument 2 - Quarterly reporting impacts a company's ability to plan for the long term.
If a Company's leadership doesn't like it, then they are free to take the company private. If a Company is offering its securities to the public, e.g. the average investor, it is obligated to be transparent and provide financial performance on a frequent basis.
Allowing companies to report less frequently only provides more cover for insider trading which the SEC is already neglecting to pursue. Please stop spending your resources on pushing through unnecessary changes and spend your time investigating the rampant insider trading.

Michael Gower, CPA — May 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael Gower The change to semi-annual filing will cause companies to hide critical data from investors. Corporate management needs to provide longer term guidance to investors to move away from the cycle of focusing on short-term results. This is a management issues, not a reporting issue. There is nothing wrong with short-term fluctuations in stock prices. If management provides reasonable long-term guidance, and this is achieved, the investment community will support the company. We do not need to provide corporations with incentive to "kick the can: (i.e. bad news) down the road. Information needs to be presented timely. Corporations should not be encouraged to hide news because regulations are relaxed (so no one is looking). The proposed change will only benefit unethical companies. I am strongly opposed to this change.

REITup Advisers, Former CFO, CAO and partner at firm that leads SEC reporting — May 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: REITup Advisers SEC Staff, I'd like to start by acknowledging the fantastic job this team is doing. The tone of the Commission with establishing rules instead of rule making by enforcement is appreciated across all my clients and peers. While I understand the general sentiment of this rule I have some questions regarding the mechanics. The most important is what will the "semi-annual" form be and what disclosures will be required? A Form 10-K, which I assume will remain unchanged for the purposes of this comment, is far more burdensome to issuers than a Form 10-Q. I would have to imagine that instead of three 10-Qs, there will be something similar to the Form N-CSRS in that it's a semi annual report with more requirements than a 10-Q but fewer than a 10-K. Learning how these forms work, the required rules / new disclosure requirements and inaugural creation of the form may lead filers to conclude it's not worth the time and effort to make this voluntary transformation. In my experience, the most burdensome part of the reporting process isn't the reporting at all, it's that earnings data must be complied in a short window every quarter. Large accelerated filers (and most listed companies in general) will likely continue to report quarterly earnings data regardless of the disclosure requirements, which is the bulk of the work. The problem here is that this earnings data will not have a required disclosure to accompany it. If this rule is eventually approved, I think it would be good practice to explore how Investment Companies use form N-PORT to disclose information instead of a full annual / semi-annual report. I think there should be some requirement to fill out a quarterly form document if that issuer decides to report "earnings" data or else that data simply has no context for the investors and it is not comparable. In short I don't think companies should have the latitude to disclose earnings information on a quarterly basis but file standard GAAP numbers only semi-annually. Thank you again for reviewing these public comments and I would invite a discussion surrounding this or any topic if you'd like.

Roy Howard — May 7, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Roy Howard From: Roy Howard Affiliation: Equity trader May 7, 2026 Less transparency will lead to increases in fraud. Less frequency of updates will significantly magnify volatility.
I am utterly against allowing companies to disclose less often. It will inevitably lead to companies disclosing less period.
As a former financial analyst I can tell you that those quarterly disclosures keep companies honest and I rely on them to understand how the company is really doing. If you reduce those requirements you essentially take investor protection away.
Your mandate is protecting investors, is it not?

Skyler Mathis, Texas CPA, Financial Reporting Manager - Par Pacific Holdings — May 7, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Skyler Mathis From a leadership and cost-management standpoint, the initial concept behind this proposal appears well-intentioned and, at a high level, may seem attractive. However, when viewed through the lens of long-term operational effectiveness, reporting quality, and investor confidence, there are significant risks that warrant careful consideration. One key concern is the likely reduction in dedicated external and SEC reporting teams within organizations. While this may appear to lower fixed costs, it could ultimately lead many companies to rely more heavily on recurring contractor support. From a leadership perspective, this model introduces inefficiencies and risk. A revolving cast of contractors often lacks deep institutional knowledge, which is critical for producing high-quality, consistent, and accurate external reporting. Over time, this could negatively impact the reliability of disclosures and increase execution risk. From an investor relations standpoint, this proposal represents a substantial change from the current reporting environment and could result in less timely information for market participants. Leadership teams rely on frequent and consistent reporting not only to meet regulatory requirements, but also to reinforce transparency and trust with investors. Reducing reporting frequency may unintentionally weaken that relationship and limit investors' ability to make informed decisions. Additionally, reporting less frequently would necessitate a significant overhaul of interim reporting requirements. To compensate for reduced reporting frequency, companies would likely need to disclose more detailed information during interim periods. This could increase complexity rather than reduce burden, potentially undermining the proposal's objective. The SEC would also need to develop a much more robust interim reporting standard to ensure investors remain adequately informed about a company's financial and operational performance on a semi-annual basis. Ultimately, while the proposal reflects thoughtful intent, leadership must evaluate whether it truly aligns with the broader responsibilities that come with being a public company. Although quarterly reporting may limit flexibility, it is an understood and accepted aspect of accessing public capital. Increased reporting, monitoring, and scrutiny are fundamental to protecting investors and maintaining confidence in the capital markets. From a leadership perspective, those expectations should not only be accepted—but embraced—as part of responsible corporate governance.

Stephen Bainbridge — May 7, 2026
Stephen M. Bainbridge
Paul S. Atkins, Chairman

c/o Vanessa A. Countryman, Secretary
Securities and Exchange Commission
100 F Street, N.E.
Washington, D.C. 20549
Re: File S7-2026-15
Proposed Amendments to Exchange Act Rules 13a-13 and 15d-13—Optional Semi-annual Reporting in Lieu of Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q
Dear Chairman Atkins:
I am the William D. Warren Distinguished Professor of Law at the University of California, Los Angeles School of Law. I provide my title and employment information solely for purposes of identification. I write in my individual capacity and nothing said herein should be attributed to UCLA or the School of Law.
I submit these comments in response to the Commission's proposed amendments to Exchange Act Rules 13a-13 and 15d-13, which would permit Exchange Act reporting companies to elect to file semi-annual reports on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q. I write as a scholar who has studied corporate governance, securities regulation, and the mandatory disclosure system for several decades,1 and who has recently published an extended analysis of the quarterly reporting debate.2 I support the Commission's proposal and write to explain the theoretical and empirical bases for my support.
I. The Proposal
The proposing release sets out a number of major changes in the periodic disclosure system, including:
• Public corporations may opt to switch from quarterly to semi-annual reporting. In order to participate in this alternative reporting program, corporations will replace the 3 quarterly reports they now file (on Form 10-Q) with one Form 10-S filed in the middle of the year.
o The option would not be restricted to smaller or newly public companies, but would be available to all Exchange Act reporting companies currently subject to Form 10-Q requirements.
o Those companies that do not opt into the new system will continue to use the existing quarterly format.
1 See, e.g., Stephen M. Bainbridge, Mandatory Disclosure: A Behavioral Analysis, 68 University of Cincinnati
Law Review 1023 (2000).
2 See Stephen M. Bainbridge, Should We Eliminate Quarterly Earnings Reports (Or, At Least, Make Them Optional)? Part 1, BainbridgeOnCorporations.com (Sept. 16, 2025); Stephen M. Bainbridge, Should We Eliminate Quarterly Earnings Reports (Or, At Least, Make Them Optional)? Part 2, BainbridgeOnCorporations.com (Sept. 17, 2025); Stephen M. Bainbridge, Should We Eliminate Quarterly Earnings Reports (Or, At Least, Make Them Optional)? Part 3, BainbridgeOnCorporations.com (Sept. 18, 2025).
o Form 10-K and Form 8-K will continue to be used in substantially the same manner as today.
• The Form 10-S will contain substantially the same information and will have the same level of detail as the Form 10-Q. Because it will be filed once a year, at the mid-point of that year, instead of at the end of each quarter, there will need to be adjustments made to the reporting requirements.

o The financial statements contained in the Form 10-S will be based on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP).
o The financial statements contained within the Form 10S will be reviewed (but not audited) by the company's independent auditor; and will include XBRL tagging in-line with other XBRL filings.
• All reporting requirements pertaining to disclosure controls, internal control over financial reporting, executive certifications, and so on will remain unchanged.
• Companies would make the election by checking a box on the cover page of their Form 10-K or certain Securities Act or Exchange Act registration statements. Once made, the election would govern the company's reporting schedule for the entire fiscal year and could not be changed mid-year except to correct an inadvertent error through a timely amendment.

II. Situating the Quarterly Reporting Requirement in the Larger Mandatory Disclosure Debate

The Commission asked (question 1):

The proposed amendments would allow Exchange Act reporting companies to elect to file interim reports on a semi-annual basis in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q. Should companies have this option, or should all companies continue to be required to file Form 10-Q?3

In this section, I offer an affirmative answer by situating the quarterly reporting requirement within the larger debate over mandatory disclosure.

3 The Commission also asked (question 2): “Should we instead require all companies to file semi-annual reports? What would be the benefits and costs of such a mandatory approach?” I believe the Commission’s rule should give the company the option of switching to semi-annual reports or retaining quarterly reports. A rule requiring all companies to file only semi-annual reports would disadvantage companies whose investors genuinely demand quarterly information or that have other reasons for remaining on a quarterly disclosure schedule. In addition, I discuss below the Adyen case, in which the issuer adopted semi-annual reporting but was forced back to quarterly updates by investor pressure. That case illustrates that companies whose investors genuinely want frequent reporting will provide it voluntarily. A universal semi-annual mandate would override that market signal, forcing companies like Adyen to withhold information that their investors demonstrably value and are willing to discipline management to obtain. As such, it would result in a straightforward investor welfare loss with no offsetting benefit.

Having said that, however, I acknowledge that there is an argument to be made in favor of mandated exclusively semi-annual reporting; namely, that a universal semi-annual mandate rather than an optional system would eliminate a potential signaling problem. In an optional system, investors might come to perceive adoption of semi-annual disclosure as a negative signal. For example, investors might perceive electing semi-annual rather than quarterly reporting as suggesting management wants to conceal bad news between reporting periods. If so, companies might face market penalties for electing semi-annual reporting even when it would otherwise be efficient for them. This adverse selection concern is real but not decisive. The international evidence I discuss shows that semi-annual reporting has not carried that stigma in European markets (where it is common). In addition, the adverse selection dynamic would itself be valuable information for the Commission to observe as part of the natural experiment discussed below Accordingly, the possible signaling effect is insufficient to cause me to favor a universal mandate of semi-annual reporting over an optionality regime.

2
A. The Theoretical Foundation for Mandatory Quarterly Reporting Is Weak
The quarterly earnings reporting requirement traces its origins to the SEC's 1970 overhaul of the periodic disclosure system, itself a product of the Wheat Report's dissatisfaction with the then-existing Exchange Act disclosure regime. That regime rests on the broader mandatory disclosure system enacted in the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, premised on Congress's view that "[t]here cannot be honest markets without honest publicity."4
No one disputes that investors benefit from a steady flow of accurate information. The question is whether that flow requires a government mandate or whether market forces would produce adequate voluntary disclosure. This is the central question in the longstanding academic debate over mandatory disclosure, of course, but it is directly relevant to evaluating the quarterly reporting requirement.
The standard justification for mandatory disclosure rests on the identification of a market failure—some reason why competitive market pressures would lead firms to disclose sub-optimally in the absence of a legal mandate. Three categories of market failure have been advanced in defense of the mandatory disclosure system in general and the periodic disclosure reporting system in particular: (1) information is a public good, (ii) externalities, and (iii) the information asymmetry between issuers and investors.
Each of these alleged market failures remains highly contested in this connection. In order for it to make sense, for example, the public goods argument requires not merely that information have public goods characteristics, but also both that firms will in fact fail to disclose optimally and that government mandates will produce efficient disclosure levels. None of those propositions are self-evident. As for the whether information—especially securities data and research—is a public good, information is not subject to non-rivalrous consumption in the securities markets. Because US capital markets are efficient, at least in the weak- and semi-strong forms, information is consumed by investors trading in response to it as soon as it is disclosed, thereby impounding it into the market price, and thereby becoming less valuable—indeed worthless—to those that fail to immediately trade upon it. T
The externalities argument posits that “because the issuer does not share in the benefits of the externalities conferred on third parties and actually may suffer losses (e.g., by enlightening a competitor that is suddenly better able to compete), marginal private benefits from disclosure will fall short of its marginal social benefits and therefore issuer disclosure is likely to be sub-optimal."5 But this line of argument proves too much, as it would justify mandating disclosures far beyond what the current system requires.

Admittedly, the information asymmetry argument is intuitively powerful. Insiders obviously possess considerably greater information than outsider investors. But this line of argument fails to take into account an issuer management's strong incentives to voluntarily disclose information. Issuer management frequently holds a substantial portion of their monetary net worth in issuer stock. Insiders also have made considerable investments in non-diversifiable, firm-specific human capital. Providing levels of disclosure demanded by investors thus benefits insiders by lowering the issuer's cost of capital—making firm failure less likely—and raising the value of the issuer's stock.

Turning from theory to empirical data, there is indirect evidence that there is no persistent market failure in US capital markets. Issuers making private placements—free from the mandatory disclosure regime—routinely provide disclosures comparable to those in registered public offerings, in response to investor demand and the pressure of reputational intermediaries such as underwriters.6 Many foreign 4 H.R. Rep. No. 1383, 73d Cong., 2d Sess., 11 (1934).

5 Joseph A. Franco, Why Antifraud Prohibitions Are Not Enough: The Significance of Opportunism, Candor and Signaling in the Economic Case for Mandatory Securities Disclosure, 2002 Colum. Bus. L. Rev. 223, 345 (2002).

6 See Stephen J. Choi, Company Registration: Toward A Status-Based Antifraud Regime, 64 U. Chi. L. Rev. 567, 644 (1997) ("Companies issuing securities under a private placement need not assemble a formal registration statement, although many will voluntarily provide similar information to attract investors."); see also Stephen J. Choi, Law, Finance, and Path Dependence: Developing Strong Securities Markets, 80 Tex. L. Rev. 1657, 1722 (2002)

issuers have voluntarily adopted U.S.-style accounting standards that promote transparency, even when not legally required to do so.7 It is thus plausible that investor demand and the threat of ex post liability for fraud would generate optimal disclosure even if the mandatory regime were to be repealed in whole or in part.

If the mandatory disclosure regime as a whole rests on contestable foundations, mandatory quarterly reporting—one component of that regime—is entitled to no greater deference. The Commission is correct to consider making it optional.

B. As With the Mandatory Disclosure System in General, the Quarterly Reporting Requirement Functions Like an Ill-Calibrated Price Control

A particularly trenchant objection to the current regime is that mandatory disclosure functions in ways not unlike price controls. A regulatory mandate is unlikely to peg required disclosure at the equilibrium point at which marginal cost equals marginal benefit. As with any legal rule, the quarterly reporting mandate is likely to be both under- and over-inclusive. Under-inclusive disclosure rules harm investors by denying them needed information; over-inclusive rules harm investors by requiring firms to spend money on unnecessary disclosures—costs that ultimately come out of shareholders' pockets. Investors do not want management spending a dollar on disclosure unless that expenditure produces at least a dollar's worth of benefit.

Different firms achieve disclosure equilibrium at different levels, and a uniform quarterly cadence is by definition over-inclusive for firms whose investors would be adequately served by semi-annual reporting and under-inclusive for firms whose investors might benefit from more frequent updates. The Commission's proposed optional system would allow companies and their investors to self-select into the reporting frequency that best reflects their particular circumstances. Under a voluntary regime, management has an incentive to provide disclosure until it achieves an efficient trade-off between lowering the cost of capital and the costs of disclosure preparation. The government has no comparable incentive and, accordingly, a mandatory quarterly rule cannot be calibrated to the efficient level for each company.

III. The Arguments Against Mandatory Quarterly Disclosure Are Compelling

Having situated the reporting frequency question in the broader context of the debate over mandatory disclosure in the preceding section, in this section I turn to the question specific arguments in favor of replacing the mandatory quarterly reporting system with an optional one.

A. Encouraging IPOs and Discouraging Going Dark

In the Washington Post, George Mason law professor Todd Zywicki recently took note of the steady drop in the number of publicly traded companies in the United States.

(citing a survey in which “interviewees stated that the quality of the (voluntary) disclosures under the European private placements is generally higher than the formal disclosure requirements of EU member countries, following U.S. disclosures for private placements”).

7 See Weitseng Chen, Institutional Arbitrage: China's Economic Power Projection and International Capital Markets, 26 Colum. J. Asian L. 347, 370 (2013) (stating that “many Chinese firms voluntarily follow U.S. disclosure practices when executing private placements of their securities for commercial reasons--to approach U.S. investors easily and to keep the option for U.S. market open”). Conversely, “[t]he fact that the international unregulated private placement market does not always demand U.S. public market documentation reveals that the level of disclosure required by the United States is not optimal.” Hal S. Scott, Internationalization of Primary Public Securities Markets, 63 L. & Contemp. Probs. 71, 73 (Summer 2000).

Since the late 1990s, the number of publicly traded companies has fallen by more than half. Initial public offerings, once a reliable engine of economic dynamism that let ordinary Americans invest in tomorrow’s great companies, have plummeted.8

Zywicki went on to note that:

[T]his decline in public offerings limits Americans’ access to investment opportunities and shifts capital formation toward private markets that are largely inaccessible to ordinary investors. …

Innovative and new companies—artificial intelligence companies, in particular—have become the latest cash cow for securities lawyers. In turn, economists have found that innovation and economic growth are being impeded by this rising threat of litigation.
I concur.
The dramatic decline in publicly traded U.S. corporations has had serious consequences for the American economy's dynamism and efficiency. Public equity markets have historically served as the primary mechanism for allocating capital to its most productive uses, with competitive pricing of shares reflecting the dispersed information and judgment of millions of investors. When companies remain private or are absorbed through M&A rather than going public, this price discovery function is impaired. Capital gets channeled instead through private equity and venture capital, which are accessible only to institutional investors and the ultra-wealthy, meaning that investment decisions affecting large swaths of the economy are made by a far narrower set of actors with less informational diversity. The result is a less efficient deployment of the nation's capital stock and a greater concentration of economic decision-making power.
The consequences for ordinary Americans are equally troubling. Historically, the public equity markets were a vehicle through which middle-class households could accumulate wealth by owning stakes in growing companies. As firms stay private longer—or never go public at all—the wealth generated during the high-growth phases of corporate development accrues almost exclusively to venture capitalists, private equity funds, and their wealthy limited partners. By the time a company does reach public markets (if it ever does), much of the appreciation has already occurred. This dynamic has contributed to widening wealth inequality, since participation in private markets is largely limited to accredited investors who already meet high income or net-worth thresholds. The shrinkage of the public markets thus represents not just an economic efficiency loss but a structural barrier that prevents ordinary Americans from sharing in the gains of entrepreneurial capitalism.
Zywicki lays the blame at the feet of trial lawyers, especially securities class action plaintiff lawyers. I concur that excessive litigation is part of the problem. But there are other factors.
In my paper, Corporate Governance and U.S. Capital Market Competitiveness, 9 I observed that:
According to the Paulson Commission,10 "one important factor contributing to this trend is the growth of U.S. regulatory compliance costs and liability risks compared other developed and respected market centers."
As I documented therein, the costs imposed by statutes like the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 and the Dodd-Frank Act of 2010 and the rules thereunder—to cite but two examples—are disproportionately

8 Todd J. Zywicki, What's Behind the Staggering Drop In U.S. Public Companies, Wash. Post (April 13, 2026).

9 Stephen M. Bainbridge, Corporate Governance and U.S. Capital Market Competitiveness (October 22, 2010), published as How American Corporate and Securities Law Drives Business Offshore, in The American Illness:

Essays on the Rule of Law 381 (Yale University Press; F.H. Buckley ed. 2013).
10 Comm. on Capital Mkts. Reg., Interim Report of the Committee on Capital Markets Regulation (2006). The Committee on Capital markets regulation—or, as it is better known—the Paulson Committee subsequently issued a follow up report identifying thirteen competitive measures that the Committee tracks on a quarterly basis. Comm. on Capital Mkts. Regulation, The Competitive Position of the U.S. Public Equity Market (2007) [hereinafter the Paulson Committee Report].
5
borne by smaller companies. As such, those costs discouraged companies from going public and encouraged smaller public corporations to go dark.
Preparing a Form 10-Q is not costless. Companies incur accounting, legal, internal controls, management, board, investor-relations, and auditor-review costs. As with the costs of SOX and Dodd-Frank compliance, those costs likely are especially significant for smaller reporting companies, newly public companies, firms with thin finance teams, or firms operating in complex regulatory environments.
A semi-annual system would reduce recurring compliance burdens. Even if larger issuers continue quarterly reporting voluntarily, the reform could provide meaningful relief to companies for which the marginal benefit of quarterly reports is low.
B. Promoting the Quality of Disclosure
The Commission notes (at 114) that "[r]educed reporting frequency may also affect . . . reporting quality." In fact, the impact may be positive rather than negative. Quarterly reports can become repetitive, boilerplate, and compliance-driven. Risk factors, MD&A, legal proceedings, and controls language may change little from quarter to quarter. A semiannual cadence might allow companies to provide more thoughtful analysis of trends rather than mechanically updating marginal changes every three months.
Put another way, more frequent disclosure is not always better disclosure. Fewer mandatory reports could lead to reports that are more substantive, better integrated with management's actual view of the business, and less focused on immaterial quarter-to-quarter fluctuations.
IV. The Arguments In Favor of Retaining Quarterly Disclosures Are Weak
A. More Frequent Reporting Improves Market Efficiency and Price Accuracy
Some argue that quarterly 10-Qs help securities prices more quickly reflect issuer-specific information. In turn, or so they argue, improved pricing improves capital allocation, reduces adverse selection, and may lower issuers' cost of capital.
This argument ignores the multiple ways in which information is conveyed to the marketplace. It also ignores the risk that quarterly data can also add noise. Three-month periods may be too short to evaluate strategy, cyclicality, seasonality, investment payoffs, or one-time events. In addition, markets may overreact to small quarterly deviations, especially earnings misses, producing short-term volatility rather than better valuation.
B. Assisting Investors with Trading Decisions

According to a May 5, 2026, Bloomberg report, “[a]dvocates of quarterly reporting say transparency helps investors make crucial buy-and-sell decisions.”11 If that consideration deserved much weight, however, it would argue for increasing the frequency of corporate reporting. After all, investors routinely make intra-quarterly trading decisions. If assisting with trading decisions matters as much as the advocates of the current system claim, the SEC should mandate daily reporting. But the SEC wisely has concluded that the costs of more frequent disclosure outweigh the claimed benefits.

In addition, nothing in the SEC proposal contemplates eliminating intra-quarterly disclosures on Form 8-K. Companies will still be required to inform investors of critical news in real-time disclosures. If experience with semi-annual reporting proves that there are some categories of information investors do need more frequently for trading purposes, the SEC can simply expand the scope of Form 8-K triggering events.12

11 Nicola M. White & Lydia Beyoud, End Quarterly Earnings Reports? Here’s the Debate: Explainer, Bloomberglaw.com (May 5, 2026).

Regulation FD further ensures that selective disclosure to some investors will not prejudice other investors. Companies will still be obliged to comply with Reg FD’s requirement that they make publicly available any price-sensitive information they release—whether intentionally or inadvertently—to stock analysts or other investors.

C. Protecting Retail Investors

I expect that proxy advisory firms and self-appointed shareholder advocates will argue that quarterly reporting is especially important to protect small retail investors who lack the access to issuers that some institutional investors possess. If so, however, that argument is wholly specious. First, as noted above, Reg FD ensures that information provided to large institutions must be made publicly available.

Second, retail investors should be encouraged to invest in passively managed index funds rather than individual stocks. The evidence is clear that indexing is the superior strategy over the long-term for individual investors. Third, retail investors get their news from headlines, social media, or analyst summaries, not from the Form 10-Q

C. Preventing Insider Trading

The May 5th Bloomberg report posited that:

Less frequent reports could also increase the risk of insider trading, as it would lengthen the time insiders could hold on to confidential information and potentially make illicit stock trades.

This concern is reflected in Question 32 of the SEC proposing release:

Would there be an increased risk of insider trading at companies that elect to report on a semiannual basis?13

I do not believe that a shift from mandatory to optional quarterly reporting would significantly affect insider trading incentives. We can get at this issue by considering the argument that we need to regulate insider trading so as to prevent insiders from delaying disclosure of corporate information.

As I have observed previously:
[U]nwarranted delays in disclosing corporate information result in social costs. Despite the strong bias in the federal securities laws towards prompt disclosure of material developments, there are many circumstances in which the firm is permitted to delay disclosure, such as when it could be preempted by competitors or otherwise would be unable to take advantage of the development. This type of delay reduces market efficiency, but is justified because prompt disclosure in such circumstances would reduce the firm's incentive to produce socially valuable information. The resulting loss of market efficiency, however, requires that the delay be no longer than necessary for the firm to capture the development's value.
While insider trading poses some risk of causing this sort of delay, the risk is undoubtedly quite minimal. The available empirical evidence suggests that measurable 12 In Question 14, the SEC asks whether there are “any disclosure items, such as mine safety violations, in proposed Form 10-S that should be required instead to be disclosed in other forms, such as Form 10-K, Form 8-K, or Form SD?” Consistent with my comment in the text, my answer is that the Commission should take a wait-and-see approach. Experience will teach whether there is information that should be added to the Form 8-K triggers and, conversely, whether there is information that can be delayed to the annual report.

13 The Commission separately notes (at 66) that The Commission notes (at 66) that reducing “the frequency of interim reporting could result in delayed disclosure of material information . . ..” For the reasons discussed in this section, I do not regard that as a serious concern.

delay attributable to insider trading is rare. This *finding is not particularly surprising.
Given the rapidity with which securities transactions can be conducted in modern secondary trading markets, an insider need at most delay disclosure long enough for a five-minute telephone conversation with his stockbroker. Even if the insider wished to cover his tracks by trading through an elaborate network of offshore shell corporations, very little delay is entailed once the network is up and running. Delay also often will be readily detectible by the insider's supervisors.
In fact, insider trading seems more likely to create incentives for insiders to prematurely disclose information than to delay its disclosure.14 Preserving quarterly disclosure so as to prevent insider trading is thus an entirely specious argument.

D. Promoting Comparability

The Commission notes (at 66) that switching to semi-annual reporting “could result,” inter alia, in “reduced comparability.” But semi-annual reporting would still permit year-over-year and first-half-to-first-half comparisons. Companies that benefit from providing quarterly information could voluntarily continue doing so. Investors could punish firms that withhold useful interim data.
In any event, what really drives comparability is standardization. To be sure, standardized disclosures have their own concerns. They tend towards boilerplate and discourage innovative presentations, to cite but two.
Nevertheless, if insuring comparability across firms and across time periods is a concern what matters is the form of disclosure not its frequency. Comparability is assured by requiring financial statements to be prepared in accord with GAAP. It is ensured by requiring all firms to disclose the same basic package of information. It is ensured by providing templates within which disclosures are made.

E. Promoting Liquidity

There is no doubt that markets are more liquid when traders trust that public information is reasonably current. But liquidity benefits likely are concentrated in larger firms where analyst coverage and market data already exist. For smaller issuers, compliance costs likely outweigh any liquidity gain.
And, in any case, investors can demand a liquidity discount from companies that voluntarily choose less frequent disclosure.

V. What Companies Are Most Likely to Elect Semi-annual Reporting?

In this section, I turn to the question (number 1) posed by the Commission:

What types of companies are likely to elect the option to file semi-annual reports? Are companies in certain industries more likely than those in other industries to elect to file semi-annual reports?

A closely related question (17) asks:

Would market forces or demands on a company's business—such as contractual obligations, investor expectations, and potential for shareholder activism—encourage semiannual filers to: (1) voluntarily disclose more information than required, (2) disclose information more frequently than is required, or (3) opt not to become semiannual filers at all?

I see these question as related because I believe that some firms are more likely to face—and respond affirmatively—to such pressures than others.

14 Stephen M. Bainbridge, Incorporating State Law Fiduciary Duties into the Federal Insider Trading Prohibition, 52 Wash. & Lee L. Rev. 1189, 1236–37 (1995).

A. The Status Quo Bias Will Constrain Adoption

Before addressing the types of companies likely to elect semi-annual reporting, it is important to note a structural feature of the proposed system that is likely to significantly shape adoption patterns at least initially. Managers of U.S. public companies have lived under mandatory quarterly reporting long enough to embed it in their customs, habits, and institutional norms. The so-called status quo bias posits a systematic decision-making tendency pursuant to which actors favor maintaining the status quo rather than switching to some alternative state, even when that stickiness cannot be explained on efficiency grounds.15 The Commission therefore should not interpret low initial take up as evidence that semi-annual reporting is undesirable. Rather, if take up of semi-annual reporting is slow initially, that fact will simply reflect the well-documented tendency of institutional actors to favor familiar practice over efficient adjustment.

B. Smaller Companies with Higher Compliance Costs

The most natural candidates for electing semi-annual reporting are smaller reporting companies for whom the compliance burden of quarterly reporting is highest relative to the informational benefit investors derive from it. As noted above, the quarterly preparation of Form 10-Q—including financial statement preparation, auditor review, MD&A drafting, and officer certification—imposes fixed costs that fall disproportionately on companies with smaller finance and legal functions. For such companies, the marginal cost of quarterly disclosure likely exceeds its marginal benefit to investors, and the optional semi-annual system would permit them to reach the efficient equilibrium that the current mandatory regime prevents:

Quarterly reporting can be burdensome, especially for smaller firms. For public companies that aren't yet generating significant revenue, time-consuming 10-Qs provide limited new information to investors. As such, capital-constrained firms must divert scarce resources to preparing reports investors are likely to ignore. Directing those resources toward managing business operations or capital investments would better serve these firms and their investors.16

Put another way, mandatory quarterly reporting imposes a one-size-fits-all disclosure cadence. Optional quarterly reporting would introduce some issuer-level tailoring.

C. Companies with Longer-Horizon Investor Bases

Companies whose investor bases have longer investment horizons are also more likely to elect semi-annual reporting successfully. Companies with significant founder or family ownership, companies backed by patient institutional capital, and companies in industries where current-period earnings are poor proxies for long-run value are natural candidates.

Conversely, companies with large active institutional ownership bases—pension funds, hedge funds, and other sophisticated investors who routinely demand more information rather than less—will face the strongest market pressure to remain on a quarterly schedule regardless of what the Commission's rules permit.

Research by Andrew Call and colleagues also suggests that fear of market penalties produces what might be called "reluctant" or involuntary voluntary disclosure, driving voluntary earnings guidance

15 See Russell Korobkin, Inertia and Preference in Contract Negotiation: The Psychological Power of Default Rules and Form Terms, 51 Vand. L. Rev. 1583, 1584 (1998) ("The consequence [of the status quo bias] is that completely alienable legal entitlements will be 'sticky'—that is, tend not to be traded—even when such stickiness cannot be explained by [high] transaction costs.").

16 See Carly Burd & Robert Whited, Do We Need Mandatory Quarterly Reporting? (Sept. 25, 2025)(

even among companies that would prefer not to issue it.17 The same dynamic is likely to keep many companies on a quarterly schedule through market pressure rather than legal compulsion.

The international evidence confirms this:

Despite Europe and the U.K. doing away with quarterly reporting requirements in 2013 and 2014, respectively, many companies there still choose to report four times a year. The Amsterdam-based fintech firm Adyen for years only reported financial results twice annually. But it began releasing quarterly business updates after its half-year earnings report in 2023 disappointed investors and sent its stock tumbling.18

D. Industry Considerations

Certain industries present a natural fit for semi-annual reporting. Companies engaged in long-gestation projects—biotech and pharmaceutical firms awaiting regulatory approvals, capital-intensive infrastructure and energy companies, and early-stage technology firms where current losses are priced against multi-year growth expectations—may find that quarterly disclosures add little decision-relevant information for investors already pricing future cash flows over extended horizons. The IPO evidence discussed above supports this intuition: investors in such companies are demonstrably capable of thinking far beyond the current quarter.

Conversely, industries in which quarterly results are highly material to market valuations—financial services firms, retailers with pronounced seasonal patterns, and cyclical businesses whose financial condition can change materially within a three-month window—are least likely to elect semi-annual reporting because investor demand for frequent updates in those sectors is strongest.

VI. The Empirical Evidence Does Not Support the Claim That the Frequency of Reporting Impacts Management Decision-Making Timelines

As the SEC notes at several points, there is a debate about the extent to which the frequency of periodic disclosure reporting promotes or discourages managers to make decisions that maximize short-term performance at the expense of long-term performance. This debate seemingly drives the inquiry in Question 17:
What impact would the proposed option to file semiannual reports on Form 10-S have on Exchange Act reporting companies' ability to focus on: (1) business operations,
(2) growth, or (3) long-term business strategies?

This question and the commentary in the report appears to assume that a short-term bias on the part of managers is inherently undesirable, which is a contestable proposition.19 More importantly, it also assumes that changing the frequency of reporting would change management incentives. I am skeptical of this argument for several reasons.

First, the conventional wisdom that quarterly reporting drives short-termism is empirically contested. Economists Sanjai Bhagat and Glenn Hubbard have documented a considerable body of finance research consistent with managers and investors focusing on long-term shareholder value. Their observation that more than 80 percent of U.S. IPOs have negative earnings in the twelve months prior to going public—yet are valued at hundreds of millions or even billions of dollars—is powerful evidence that 17 Andrew Call et al., Do Firms Get "Stuck" Issuing Quarterly Earnings Guidance? (Nov. 2024).

18 Corrie Driebusch, Why Trump's Bid to End Quarterly Earnings Is No Sure Bet, Wall St. J. (Sept. 16, 2025).

19 See Stephen M. Bainbridge, Long-Term Bias and Director Primacy, 2020 Colum. Bus. L. Rev. 801, 807-08 (2020) (arguing that "a long-term focus is not always optimal" and that "managers often exhibit a bias towards the long term, rather than the short term assumed by conventional wisdom").

markets routinely price future cash flows over extended horizons.20 If quarterly myopia were as pervasive as critics claim, such valuations would be difficult to explain.

Second, and more directly, the U.K. natural experiment provides a useful reality check. The United Kingdom introduced mandatory quarterly reporting in 2008 and then eliminated it in 2015 in favor of voluntary semi-annual reporting. A careful study by Nallareddy and colleagues found that neither change had a statistically significant impact on corporate investment decisions, as proxied by capital expenditure, levels of plant, property, and equipment, research and development expenditures, and intangible assets. The authors concluded that a three-month change in reporting frequency is unlikely to cause a substantial change in the investment decisions of company executives.

21 Accordingly, the proposed SEC rule extending the reporting period from three to six months should not significantly affect executive time horizons—in either direction—absent other major changes.
Third, while there are behavioral economics arguments—most notably the endowment effect—that might support the view that shorter reporting periods exacerbate short-term biases, these arguments counsel for flexibility rather than a uniform mandate. Companies and investors differ in their susceptibility to such biases. A voluntary system would permit market participants to self-select into the reporting frequency that best serves their needs.
Finally, to the extent managerial short-termism is a genuine problem, its sources likely run deeper than quarterly disclosure requirements. Executive compensation structures, activist investor pressures, and the fundamental mismatch between managerial career horizons and corporate lifespans are more plausible causal factors.
Accordingly, the SEC should not let concerns about management time horizons drive the decision either in favor of retaining the current quarterly reporting mandate or making quarterly reporting optional.
Instead, that decision should rest on other considerations.
VII. Miscellaneous Comments
A. The Form 10-K Check-the-Box Approach
As proposed, the new rules contemplate that companies choosing semi-annual would opt into that cadence by checking a box on the cover page of their annual Form 10-K. Having done so, that election applies to the following fiscal year and cannot be changed except to correct an inadvertent error.
This approach poses several issues:
1. Companies will need to re-select the option annually. This seems unobjectionable.
2. For a non-accelerated filer Form 10-K can be filed as few as 40 days before the first quarterly report would be due. A company that previously used quarterly reporting thus could switch to semi-annual reporting to avoid disclosing poor first-quarter results.
a. A company could further game the system by claiming that its failure to check the box was an inadvertent omission when in fact the switch to semi-annual reporting is intended to delay disclosure of bad news.
3. Investors may perceive a switch from quarterly to semi-annual reporting as an attempt delay disclosure of bad news.
At a minimum, the SEC should require a company to issue a press release announcing a switch from quarterly to semi-annual reporting and explaining why it is making that switch. The press release should be filed with a Form 8-K. If the company claims that it inadvertently failed to check the box and now seeks 20 See Sanjai Bhagat & Robert Glenn Hubbard, Should the Modern Corporation Maximize Shareholder
Value? (March 3, 2020), https://ssrn.com/abstract=3548293.
21 Suresh Nallareddy et al., Consequences of Mandatory Quarterly Reporting: The U.K. Experience (March

1, 2017), https://ssrn.com/abstract=2817120.
11 to correct that and switch to semi-annual reporting, it should also be required to issue a press release explaining how the mistake was made. Again, that press release should be filed with a Form 8-K.
B. The Real Problem is Not the Cadence of Reporting But the Accompanying Requirements
At least for larger established companies, the costs of quarterly reporting likely do not consist primarily of collecting the requisite financial data. Many companies are continuously collecting financial data in real time. Automation and AI agents will continue to enhance their ability to have real time data readily available.
Instead, the bulk of the cost of periodic disclosure likely is incurred in the formal compliance process that accompanies each filing. It is the need for SOX certifications, obtaining review of draft disclosures by counsel, obtaining independent auditor reviews, holding disclosure committee meetings, and audit committee and board of director time reviewing the drafts. Going from three Form 10-Qs to one Form 10-S eliminates two full cycles of that process. Yet, the SEC should not stop there. The SEC should consider not just the frequency of disclosure, but also whether all of the compliance rigamarole that accompanies periodic disclosure is necessary.
VIII. The Optional System Presents a Valuable Natural Experiment
The proposed optional system would, if adopted, constitute a valuable natural experiment in the economics of voluntary disclosure. If companies given the option to report semi-annually nonetheless continue to report quarterly—whether in response to investor demand, institutional norms, or status quo bias—that evidence would tend to confirm that market forces are sufficient to produce optimal disclosure without a quarterly mandate, strengthening the case for reconsidering the mandatory disclosure regime more broadly.
Conversely, if companies migrate to semi-annual reporting in significant numbers, the Commission and researchers would be able to observe whether investor welfare is adversely affected and whether analyst forecast accuracy declines. The U.K. experience suggests it would not: when the U.K. shifted to voluntary semi-annual reporting, analyst coverage declined modestly but forecast accuracy did not change significantly, suggesting that information continued to reach the market through alternative channels. The Commission should monitor these outcomes carefully and use the resulting evidence to inform any future consideration of the periodic reporting system.
Conclusion
For the foregoing reasons, I support the Commission's proposed amendments permitting companies to elect semi-annual reporting in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q. The theoretical foundation for mandatory quarterly reporting is weaker than is commonly assumed. The empirical evidence that quarterly reporting prevents managerial short-termism is not compelling. Market forces are likely to produce adequate disclosure in a voluntary system.

Mandatory quarterly reporting imposes a uniform disclosure cadence on firms with different business cycles, investor bases, and information needs. That cadence may increase compliance costs, amplify short-term market pressure, encourage earnings management, and focus investors on noisy three-month results. A semiannual reporting requirement, paired with an option to continue quarterly reporting, would preserve a mandatory public disclosure floor while allowing firms and investors to determine whether quarterly reporting is valuable in particular cases. Firms that benefit from quarterly transparency could continue it. Firms for which quarterly reporting is costly, repetitive, or misleading could shift to a less burdensome semiannual model, subject to market discipline and continuing event-based disclosure obligations.
Chairman Atkins has correctly noted that the SEC has drifted away from its core mission of ensuring that issuers disclose material information. In recent years, the SEC has expanded or proposed expanding the scope of information required to include such matters as ESG factors (such as GHG emissions) that are of doubtful materiality to the typical investor. Observing what information firms supply 12 in the interval between the semi-annual reports via Form 8-K filings and so on should help the SEC assess what information investors truly need. (I note in passing that the continually growing bulk of proxy statements is a related problem the SEC should evaluate.)
Lastly, the optional system will also generate valuable empirical evidence about the merits of mandatory disclosure that the Commission could use to evaluate the periodic reporting regime more broadly. The Commission should avail itself of this opportunity to evaluate not just the optimal cadence of periodic disclosure, but also the content of the required disclosures. The current one-size-fits-all disclosure template has the advantage of promoting cross-firm and cross-time comparability. Yet, it seems likely that the burden of preparing periodic disclosure reports and the related compliance obligations falls more heavily on emerging growth companies, newly public companies, and micro- and nano-cap non-accelerated filers. Observing how those companies respond to the change may give the Commission new insight into whether those firms would benefit from further regulatory relief.
Sincerely,
Stephen M. Bainbridge
13

Aidan — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Aidan Quarterly reporting creates a public good for individual and professional investors. What would have happened if Enron only had to cook their books semiannually? What would have happened during the financial crisis? Public investors deserve timely updates on public companies. This will widen the knowledge gap between individuals and institutional investors and reduce accountability for public companies. The longer period of time these financial statements cover, the more unintelligible the information will become.

Anonymous — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Hi, thanks for the proposal. The market is made of several retail investors and common people who do not have visibility or connections that hedge funds and high net worth individuals have. Quarterly reports provide retail investors insight into the company performance. Reducing the cadence of these reports will make company performance less transparent

---

Anonymous — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous This is not in the public's interest. A lot of BAD can happen in 6 months that is caught faster in 3. For Examples: Subscribers drop 5%? that'd be caught faster in 3 months. Diners decrease 5% due to recession? That would be caught faster in 3 months. Fuel costs cause a loss on earnings? People need to know this in 3 months not 6. A lot of BAD can happen in 6 months that is better caught in 3 months. This is not in the public's interest.

Anonymous — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous Chair Atkins and Commissioners: I appreciate the opportunity to comment on the Commission's proposed amendments that would permit registrants to elect semiannual reporting on new Form 10-S in lieu of quarterly reporting on Form 10-Q. I support the Commission's objective of providing flexibility in interim reporting cadence and acknowledge that mandatory quarterly reporting may not optimally serve all issuers or investors. However, I respectfully recommend that, if adopted, the optional semiannual reporting framework be paired with an enhanced level of independent auditor assurance over the Form 10-S financial statements, beyond the level currently This is the content for Layout P Tagassociated with quarterly Form 10-Q reporting. Moving from three quarterly interim reports to a single semiannual report represents a material reduction in the frequency of standardized, periodic financial disclosure. While the proposal contemplates continued disclosure through Form 8-K and other channels, those mechanisms are episodic and event-driven and do not substitute for comprehensive interim financial statements subject to uniform presentation, comparability, and internal control discipline. From an investor perspective, less frequent mandatory reporting inherently increases estimation uncertainty, lag in visibility into operating trends, liquidity, and capital structure, and the risk that adverse developments accumulate before being reflected in filed financial statements. A corresponding increase in assurance would help preserve investor confidence while allowing issuers to realize the compliance benefits of semiannual reporting. Under the existing quarterly reporting regime, Form 10-Q financial statements are subject to a limited-assurance review by the independent auditor rather than a full audit. This framework was designed for shorter measurement periods and more frequent investor updates. Applying the same limited-assurance review standard to a six-month reporting period creates a different risk profile. A semiannual period necessarily embeds more judgmental estimates, greater cumulative accrual activity, increased exposure to the risk of undetected misstatements, and longer periods between auditor involvement in interim results. As a result, the assurance framework that is acceptable for quarterly reporting may be misaligned with investor expectations when reporting frequency is reduced. Importantly, I am not suggesting that the Commission require a full audit opinion on Form 10-S financial statements. Instead, the Commission could consider incremental and targeted enhancements that strike an appropriate balance between cost, feasibility, and investor protection. Potential approaches include, for example, requiring the filing of an auditor’s review report with Form 10-S (rather than permitting the review to be performed but not disclosed), improving transparency about the scope and outcome of auditor involvement. Mandating an expanded review standard for semiannual periods (e.g., enhanced procedures around risk assessment, significant estimates, and material changes in internal control). Requiring explicit auditor attestation as to whether they are aware of material modifications that should be made for the financial statements to conform with GAAP for a six-month period. Requiring management to disclose whether the scope of auditor review for Form 10-S differs from the scope historically applied to quarterly Form 10-Qs, enabling investors to assess assurance quality. Any of these approaches would represent a measured evolution of the current framework rather than a wholesale redesign. The proposal envisions that issuers and investors will “determine for themselves” the most appropriate reporting cadence. For that market choice to function effectively, investors must have confidence in the reliability of the information produced under each option. Requiring enhanced assurance for Form 10-S would reduce concerns that semiannual reporting is perceived as a weakening of investor protections, support comparability between quarterly and semiannual filers, and encourage issuers to make the election based on business suitability rather than perceived reductions in scrutiny. In this sense, enhanced assurance would strengthen, rather than undermine, the Commission's goal of flexibility. If the Commission adopts an optional semiannual reporting framework, I respectfully recommend that it also require an increased level of independent auditor assurance for Form 10-S financial statements relative to quarterly Form 10-Q reporting, commensurate with the longer reporting period and reduced filing frequency. This could be achieved through enhanced review requirements, increased transparency around auditor involvement, or other targeted attestation mechanisms that do not impose the cost or complexity of a full interim audit. Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this important proposal and for the Commission’s continued focus on balancing regulatory flexibility with robust investor protection.

Chris Kearns — May 6, 2026
Subject: Public Comment on File No. S7-03-26 – Opposition to Semi-Annual Reporting Transition
To the Securities and Exchange Commission:
I am writing as a self-directed retail investor and software developer who builds custom analytical tools for portfolio management. I strongly oppose the proposal to shift from quarterly (10-Q) to semi-annual (6-month) reporting requirements.
Moving to a semi-annual schedule does not "modernize" our markets. Instead, it obscures them. Specifically, I would like the Commission to consider the following points:
 Institutional Information Asymmetry: In a 2026 market defined by high-frequency trading and real-time data, a six-month reporting gap is an eternity. Large institutional firms have the resources to "proxy" a company's health through alternative data methods such as satellite imagery, credit card scrapes, and supply chain tracking, et. al. The individual investor relies on the SEC’s periodic filings as the only verified "level playing field." Removing two of these checks per year hands a permanent, unfair advantage to institutions and hedge funds.
 The "Cost Savings" Fallacy: The argument that this change saves significant capital for issuers is mathematically flawed. These companies maintain the same accounting systems, the same internal audit teams, and the same compliance staff regardless of filing frequency. The cost of "preparing the materials" is a decimal point on the balance sheet of a mid-to-large cap firm. Trading market transparency for negligible administrative savings is a poor bargain for the American retail investor.
 The Risk of "Information Shocks": When reporting is frequent, the market can digest data in smaller increments. Moving to 180-day windows will lead to massive, destabilizing "gap-downs" or "gap-ups" when the reports finally drop.

For those of us who manage risk using a 13-week performance window, a six-month vacuum makes disciplined risk management nearly impossible.
I urge the Commission to maintain the current quarterly reporting standards.
Transparency should not be sacrificed for the sake of corporate convenience.
Sincerely,
/s/Christopher G. Kearns
RigidBody Tech LLC

Chris Ridder — May 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15 From: Chris Ridder Affiliation: May 6, 2026 Our firm uses quarterly reports for investment analysis, and it is critical that no change is made to the financial reporting period of 4 times each year.

We are against any change to Semi-Annual reporting and the use of form 10-S!

Conor M. — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Conor M. This proposed change in reporting requirements, if elected, will reduce information available to investors. This is directly opposed to any financial reporting standards framework. Halving required reporting will almost certainly lead to an increase in fraudulent activity.

Dakshesh Patel — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Dakshesh Patel Hello, This rule change is fine but requires an additional change similar to what Taiwan requires of all of it's publicly listed companies. "Listed companies in Taiwan must file monthly operating revenue reports by the 10th day of each calendar month for the preceding month. These reports must include operating turnover and self-assessed income." This information is posted without any commentary. Strictly facts of the business. The market doesn't need to know the quarterly statements and cash flows but it needs to know whether the companies are collecting revenues as they projected during their last semi-annual guidance. This is not an onerous requirement in the 21st century. Thank you

---

Daniel Gopalan, CPA — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Gopalan I am against removing quarterly reporting. The financial markets move on information. Less information means less price discovery. This will reduce the efficiency of the markets and open the door for more accounting fraud to fester in the markets.

Daniel O' Donnell, Retired, Former Strategic Planning Executive — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Daniel O'Donnell As an investor and former strategic planning executive, understanding the financial position of any company is paramount to successful investing.

Reducing the frequency of reported financial details allows business to manage its data to cover potential issues. In addition, quarterly reporting allows any company to present the market with positive performance data or rational explanations for changing market conditions on an ongoing basis. In my opinion, reducing the frequency of reporting is a bad idea.

Eugene Stranch, Private Investor — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Eugene Stranch I'm against this rule! The current reporting requirement has worked well and is balanced between the Investor and reporting Company's benefits. This rule proposal will lessen transparency and favor Company's Management interests over Investor's interest.

Isaiah Owolabi, Founder and CEO, ESGine, Originator, ESG-as-Code — May 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Isaiah Owolabi From: Isaiah Owolabi Affiliation: Founder and CEO, ESGine I Originator, ESG-as-Code May 6, 2026 RE: Proposed Amendments to Permit Optional Semiannual Reporting by Public Companies
File No.. S7-2026-15
Submitted by: Isaiah Owolabi, LL.M. (FinTech Law & Regulation)
Founder and CEO, ESGine Originator, ESG-as-Code& Washington, DC. Email: io@esgine.io
I want to start by saying I think this proposal is a step in the right direction. Quarterly reporting has created a rhythm that works well for some companies and feels like unnecessary overhead for others. Giving companies the flexibility to choose makes sense.
But I want to flag something that I do not think has been addressed clearly enough in the proposal, and it matters a great deal for how companies interpret this change.
Reporting frequency and disclosure obligations are two completely different things. One is about when you file. The other is about what the law requires you to say when you do.
A company that switches from quarterly to semiannual reporting does not reduce what it has to disclose.. It simply consolidates those disclosures into fewer filing events. The legal obligations remain exactly the same. The clause does not move. Only the calendar does.
I raise this because I have spent the past several years working at the intersection of law, technology, and ESG compliance. Through ESGine and ESG-as-Code, I have built a platform that evaluates ESG and climate disclosures against specific regulatory clauses across seven major frameworks including SEC Climate, CSRD, CARB SB253, CARB SB261, ISSB, UK FCA, and SFDR. The companies using it are not struggling with how often to report. They are struggling with knowing exactly what each regulatory clause requires and whether their disclosure actually satisfies it..
That is the harder problem. And it does not get easier with semiannual reporting. If anything it gets more concentrated because everything that would have been spread across three quarterly reports now has to land correctly in one semiannual report.
My concern is that some companies will read this proposal as a signal that the regulatory burden is easing. It is not. The burden is being reorganized. That is a meaningful distinction and I think the final rule should say so explicitly.
I would respectfully ask the Commission to include clear language in any final rule stating that the election of semiannual reporting does not reduce, defer, or modify any substantive disclosure obligation under the federal securities laws. Companies need to understand that frequency is a business decision. Compliance is a legal one.
I would also encourage the Commission to use this moment to highlight the importance of systematic, auditable compliance infrastructure. A company that can trace every disclosure to the specific regulatory clause that requires it is a company that can file quarterly, semiannually, or annually with confidence. That traceability is what regulators actually need to see. It is also what ESG-as-Code& was built to provide.

I am happy to discuss any of this further if it would be helpful to the Commission staff.
Respectfully submitted,
Isaiah Owolabi, LL.M. (FinTech Law & Regulation)
Founder and CEO, ESGine
Originator, ESG-as-Code
Washington, DC
io@esgine.io
x.com/IsaiahOwolabi_
esgine.io

J R — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: J R I respectfully oppose the proposal to reduce the frequency of required reporting for public issuers from quarterly to semi-annual. While I appreciate the objective of easing compliance burdens, I believe the proposal would have several unintended consequences that could ultimately undermine the transparency, efficiency, and integrity of U.S. capital markets, which are currently the world standard. First, reducing the cadence of financial reporting would materially diminish the timeliness of information available to investors. Quarterly reporting plays a critical role in providing up-to-date insight into an issuer's financial performance, liquidity, and emerging risks. Moving to a semi-annual model would lengthen the information gap between disclosures, increasing uncertainty and potentially impairing investors' ability to make informed decisions. In volatile or rapidly evolving industries this loss of timely visibility could be particularly significant. Second, the proposal may lead to increased market volatility and information asymmetry. In the absence of regular, structured reporting, market participants may rely more heavily on informal disclosures, selective communications, or non-GAAP metrics, which may not be subject to the same level of rigor or internal control. This dynamic could disproportionately benefit well-connected or institutional investors, to the detriment of broader market fairness. Third, quarterly reporting serves as a key discipline mechanism for issuers, reinforcing the importance of robust internal controls, close processes, and ongoing financial oversight. Reducing reporting frequency could inadvertently weaken these governance practices, leading to less frequent monitoring of financial trends, delayed identification of issues, and increased risk of error or misstatement accumulating over longer reporting periods. Additionally, from an audit and assurance perspective, interim reporting supports continuous engagement between auditors and management, facilitating earlier identification and resolution of complex accounting issues. A shift to semi-annual reporting could compress review timelines and increase the complexity and risk associated with interim reviews and annual audits. Finally, the U.S. reporting framework has long been viewed as a global benchmark for transparency and investor protection. A move away from quarterly reporting could represent a step backward relative to this standard and may negatively impact investor confidence in U.S. capital markets. For these reasons, I believe the current quarterly reporting framework strikes an appropriate balance between transparency and compliance burden and should be retained. Any efforts to reduce regulatory burden would be better directed toward simplifying disclosures, modernizing reporting requirements, or providing targeted relief for smaller issuers rather than reducing the frequency of financial reporting.

Jack Pieper — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jack Pieper Hello, My name is Jack Pieper. I am a retail investor in US equity markets. I strongly urge the SEC to reconsider this proposal. As a shareholder in US companies I demand to have access to quarterly reports detailing the financial situation of my companies. If this proposal mandated biannual audits, I would be more impartial. This proposal provides no additional verification of financial statements, and basically seeks to reduce public transparency of a companies performance. Thank you, Jack Pieper

---

James Hastings — May 6, 2026
Subject: Proposed Reporting Change From: James Hastings Affiliation: May 6, 2026 I cannot begin to express how opposed I am as a small investor to the proposal of changing public company reporting from quarterly to semi-annual.

In this day of lightning speed info and adoption of AI in corporate accounting offices why propose less info being available? If anything I'd like to see MONTHLY information. A company can sink in 6 months causing catastrophic harm to investor's portfolios.

This cannot stand. Please reconsider.

Thank you for you attention to this matter.

James T Hastings
[REDACTED]

Jennifer R — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jennifer R To the Securities and Exchange Commission: I am writing to oppose the Commission's proposed rule permitting public companies to replace quarterly Form 10-Q reporting with semiannual reporting on new Form 10-S. I understand the stated goal of reducing compliance burdens and giving companies more flexibility. However, the public markets do not exist only for the convenience of reporting companies. They exist because investors, employees, retirees, pension funds, analysts, and the broader public can rely on timely, standardized, and comparable information. Reducing mandatory reporting from quarterly to semiannual would weaken that foundation. Quarterly reporting is not just an administrative exercise. It is one of the core transparency mechanisms that allows investors to evaluate company performance, monitor risk, compare companies, and detect changes before they become larger problems. Moving to semiannual reporting would create longer periods where material business trends, financial deterioration, operational risks, liquidity concerns, or governance issues may remain less visible to the public. This proposal would also increase information asymmetry. Large institutional investors, insiders, sophisticated analysts, and market participants with access to alternative data may still find ways to monitor company performance between reports. Ordinary investors will not have the same access. A system that gives public companies less frequent disclosure obligations risks widening the gap between those with privileged or expensive information channels and those relying on public filings. I am also concerned that reducing reporting frequency could increase the risk of insider trading or perceived unfairness in the market. When companies go six months between required interim reports, insiders and select market participants may have access to meaningful performance information long before the public does. Even if existing rules still require disclosure of certain material events, semiannual reporting would reduce the regular cadence of structured, comprehensive financial disclosure. The proposal also raises concerns about comparability. If some companies continue quarterly reporting while others move to semiannual reporting, investors may lose a consistent basis for comparing companies across industries. Optional reporting flexibility may sound reasonable, but in practice it could create a fragmented disclosure landscape where companies with weaker performance have an incentive to disclose less frequently. The Commission's mission includes protecting investors, maintaining fair and efficient markets, and facilitating capital formation. This proposal may reduce costs for some registrants, but those savings should not come at the expense of transparency, investor protection, market confidence, and fair access to information. For these reasons, I urge the Commission not to adopt the proposed semiannual reporting option. Public companies that access U.S. capital markets should continue to provide quarterly Form 10-Q reports as a baseline obligation of public ownership.

Jennifer Robespierre, Financial Advisor — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jennifer Robespierre I find this proposal by the SEC troubling and feel the need to express why I feel this is a bad idea and a disservice to the finance sector. Quarterly earnings are an essential part of how I'm rebalancing the portfolios of my clients. Not only is this time an opportunity for me to engage with my clients and provide an overview of sector movement, but the transparency provided by earnings confirms the reasoning behind my decisions. While the majority of my clients work within the finance sector and are actively engaged in the markets, many of my clients rely on me to explain market shifts and provide calm when things are volatile. By reducing earnings report from 4 times a year to 2, you not only make my job and the job of everyone who provides financial advisory services more difficult, you will only add to the cloud of skepticism around the financial services industry. Our industry has a lot of regulation, and rightly so. We are held accountable for the financial future of our clients, so we need to know how companies are performing so that we can make the best decisions and recommendations. How can you continue to hold financial services professionals to a high standard and not those listed on the exchange?

Joseph Adair — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Joseph Adair I am AGAINST the proposed change that would allow companies that issue stock to submit financial reports on a semi-annual basis. The quarterly reports allow individuals, with limited resources, to review the quarterly data to determine if a Company stock should be bought or sold. This would be like returning to the days before computers when you had to track the stock's price using the newspaper and when I had to go to the library archives section to see how a Company was performing.

Joshua Maddox — May 6, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Joshua Maddox From: Joshua Maddox Affiliation: CPA May 6, 2026 I am strongly in favor of reducing the frequency of extensive financial reporting for publicly traded companies. Lengthy quarterly filings create an undue burden on smaller publicly traded companies and disincentivize business participation in stock markets, leading to fewer stocks available to the public and more businesses owned by private equity.
To balance the informational needs of investors with the administrative burden placed on management, I propose the following: retaining the 10K in its current form, removing the requirements for 10Q, and formally requiring the quarterly earnings releases investors actually depend upon. These earnings releases would be required to include, at minimum, a balance sheet and income statement. This regulatory update should satisfy investor concerns without the excessive reporting required under the current rules.

Kent Slocum — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Kent Slocum Modern corporations need more oversight and accountability, not less. Reducing annual reporting requirements for companies from quarterly to biannually will only hurt investors and damage what little goodwill remains between the American public and the corporate sector. US regulators are already seen as extremely partisan and highly corrupt; taking this action will only serve to remove all doubt that the SEC serves business interests, not the interests of ordinary, hard-working, blue-collar Americans.

Lee Michael Tomko — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lee Michael Tomko The rule change would be worse for investors because there would be less available information due to delay. I use this information. Quarterly is fine, twice a year is too slow and monthly would be preferred.

Manish D — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Manish D This is not a good idea. Quarterly reporting is what keeps the managers focused on efficient utilization of resources and is the bulwark of efficient markets which Europe' s market are not. This level of transparency is what makes US capital market unique.

Matthew Truty — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Matthew Truty I write this as an individual investor and compliance professional that stands strongly against this proposal. Although we see elite investors like Warren Buffett and Jamie Dimon comment how quarterly reporting has "contributed to the decline in the number of public companies in America over the past two decades,"" of what relevance is this to the individual investor, to which the Commission is responsible for protecting? On the SEC's website, the mission statement is clear that its pillars are protecting investors, maintaining fair, orderly and efficient markets, and facilitating capital formation. I don't believe it's any coincidence that the protection of investors is the number one priority listed in the mission statement, and here's a great opportunity to assert that. Lastly, does the expansion of publicly traded companies make up for the possibility of an Enron-like disaster repeating? Is $60B in investor losses a sufficient tradeoff for more lax reporting standards? Why give publicly traded companies any more opportunity to dupe the individual investor? Let's prioritize what helps American citizens and the retail investor, not the agenda of the elite investor. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Mike Sumrow — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mike Sumrow I strongly oppose the proposed SEC rule change to reduce public company reporting requirements from quarterly to semiannually. As a private investor, I insist on transparency of companies through quarterly fiscal reporting. The burden of quarterly reporting is small today, in this age of computers and business software. I will check my investments and sell any company that adopts the semiannual reporting rule, should the SEC establish such a rule.

Morten Hansen — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Morten Hansen Public Comment on Proposed Rule S7-2026-15 - Semiannual Reporting To the Securities and Exchange Commission, I am submitting this comment in opposition to the proposed amendments under File Number S7-2026-15, which would allow public companies to file semiannual reports in lieu of quarterly reports. I am a software developer building financial transparency infrastructure that tracks institutional investment activity using public SEC filings, on-chain blockchain data, and real-time disclosure feeds. My perspective is technical and practical: the cost savings argument underpinning this proposal is obsolete, and the proposal moves in the wrong direction at precisely the wrong moment. The compliance cost burden cited in support of this rule assumes a world of manual accounting, physical filings, and costly reconciliation processes. That world no longer exists for the vast majority of public companies. Modern financial systems are digital, automated, and continuously maintained. The marginal cost of packaging already-maintained books into a quarterly filing is minimal. The heavy lifting -auditing, internal controls, financial statement preparation - happens on a rolling basis regardless of reporting frequency. Reducing filings from four to two per year does not meaningfully reduce that burden. More importantly, this proposal ignores where financial markets are heading. Blockchain-based financial infrastructure - already live and operational on networks including XRP Ledger and Stellar - enables continuous, real-time, permissionless disclosure. Institutional transactions are already being recorded on public ledgers with millisecond timestamps. The trajectory of modern capital markets is toward greater transparency and higher frequency disclosure, not less. Proposing to halve reporting frequency in 2026 is a step backward relative to where the technology already is. Reducing disclosure frequency does not harm all market participants equally. Institutional insiders, large asset managers, and company executives maintain continuous access to operational data regardless of what is filed publicly. Retail investors and independent analysts depend entirely on public filings. Extending the blind spot from 90 days to 180 days widens an already significant information asymmetry - and does so in a way that primarily benefits those who already have the least need for public disclosures. Academic research supports this concern. Studies of European markets, which moved to semiannual reporting before partially reversing course, found that reduced reporting frequency created information vacuums that caused investors to overreact to peer-firm disclosures and produced more volatile, less efficient stock prices. The U.S. should not repeat that experiment. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal and instead direct its attention toward modernizing disclosure infrastructure - leveraging existing and emerging technology to make reporting more frequent, more accessible, and more useful to all market participants, not less. Respectfully submitted, [Morten Hansen] [Tampere, Finland]

Neil P. Osnato — May 6, 2026
Subject: Comment on Release No. 2026-42 — Optional Semiannual Reporting and Market Reliance on Verified Operating Data From: Neil P. Osnato Affiliation: May 6, 2026 To the Securities and Exchange Commission:

I am submitting this comment regarding Release No. 2026-42, “SEC Proposes Amendments to Permit Optional Semiannual Reporting by Public Companies.”

The proposal raises an important question beyond the commonly discussed tradeoff between regulatory flexibility and disclosure frequency. It also raises a market-function question: what happens when the interval between verified financial reporting “reality checks” expands from three months to six months?

Quarterly reporting does not eliminate uncertainty, nor does it prevent markets from relying on estimates, guidance, sell-side models, or alternative data. But it does compress the period during which management assumptions, consensus expectations, and market narratives can drift materially from underlying operating conditions before being reset by standardized financial disclosure.

If public companies are permitted to elect semiannual reporting, investors may place greater reliance on interim guidance, unaudited narratives, alternative data, and model-driven estimates between filings. This may be especially important in capital-intensive sectors where operating risk can form before it appears cleanly in financial statements, including utilities, energy infrastructure, AI infrastructure, data centers, advanced manufacturing, transportation, and other long-lived asset sectors.

In these sectors, material developments often emerge through changes in operating assumptions: demand durability, utilization, construction timelines, project cost escalation, customer commitments, supply-chain constraints, rate recovery expectations, and capital-allocation decisions. Less frequent standardized reporting could increase the duration over which such assumptions remain unverified by formal financial disclosure.

For that reason, I respectfully encourage the Commission to evaluate not only whether optional semiannual reporting reduces compliance burden, but also whether longer reporting intervals may increase market reliance on non-standardized operating signals between filings.

The relevant issue is not simply whether quarterly or semiannual reporting is preferable. It is whether investors retain sufficient decision-grade information to distinguish durable operating performance from assumption-driven performance during longer intervals between required reports.

If the Commission proceeds with an optional semiannual reporting framework, it should consider whether additional safeguards, disclosure expectations, or sector-sensitive guidance may be appropriate where long-lived capital commitments, major infrastructure programs, large customer concentration, or material demand assumptions are central to investor valuation.

Respectfully submitted,

Neil P. Osnato

Omer Yousif, PhD — May 6, 2026
Comment Statement to the Securities and Exchange Commission
Re: Proposed Amendments to Permit Optional Semiannual Reporting by Public Companies-

Release No. 2026-42

Dear Commissioners of the SEC,

I am writing to formally express my opposition to the Commission's proposal (Release No. 2026-42) to permit public companies the option of semiannual reporting via Form 10-S. While I recognize the Commission's intent to alleviate regulatory burdens and mitigate "short-termism," this proposal represents a significant retreat from the transparency and data-frequency standards that have historically made the U.S. capital markets the most trusted and liquid in the world.

My opposition is based on the following primary concerns:

1. Erosion of Transparency and Price Discovery

The quarterly reporting cycle (Form 10-Q) provides the essential "heartbeat" of market information. Moving to a six-month reporting interval would create massive informational "dead zones," leading to increased market volatility as investors are forced to rely on speculation rather than verified financial data for half the year. This degradation of information quality will inevitably impair efficient price discovery.

2. Information Asymmetry and Insider Risk

Extended reporting gaps provide a structural advantage to insiders and institutional entities with direct access to management, to the profound detriment of retail investors. Widening the window between public disclosures increases the risk of information leakage and heightens the potential for insider trading, undermining the SEC's core mission of investor protection.

3. Technological Obsolescence of the "Regulatory Burden" Argument

The proposal's justification—that quarterly reporting is an undue administrative burden—fails to account for the current technological landscape. In 2026, the widespread adoption of Generative AI, automated XBRL integration, and real-time ledger systems has fundamentally transformed financial reporting.

• Reduced Compliance Costs: AI-driven financial reporting tools have significantly lowered the marginal cost and labor required to produce 10-Q filings.

• Modernized Oversight: If a public company possesses the digital infrastructure to compete in the modern market, it possesses the capability to provide quarterly snapshots. To suggest otherwise ignores the efficiencies gained through contemporary enterprise resource planning (ERP) systems.

4. Market Fragmentation and Comparability Issues

An "optional" reporting framework will lead to a bifurcated market. Investors will struggle to compare a quarterly-reporting company against a semiannual competitor. This lack of standardization will likely result in a "transparency discount" for semiannual filers, potentially increasing their cost of capital—the exact opposite of the proposal's intended effect.

5. Failure to Address "Short-Termism"

There is no empirical evidence that reducing the frequency of financial reporting will cause management to prioritize long-term growth. True long-termism is driven by corporate culture and executive compensation structures, not by withholding material financial information from the public for six months at a time.

Conclusion

At a time when technology allows for more transparency, not less, the SEC should be leveraging modern technologies to make disclosures more accessible and timely, rather than permitting companies to retreat into a six-month silence. I urge the Commission to withdraw this proposal and maintain the quarterly reporting standards that ensure a level playing field for all market participants.

Sincerely,

Omer Yousif, PhD

Oscar L . Perez — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Oscar L. Perez Under no circumstances should this move forward. As a retail investor, it is already difficult to access or contact corporate investor relations people at firms for various reasons. Although it is true that there is some short-term minded incentive to focus on earnings beats every quarter, which hinders the long term, this is a management issue, not an investor issue. If firms do not like the quarterly reporting system, it shows their own short-term focus and bias. Management sets the tone at the top. If they focus on the quarters and not the years, investors will focus on the quarters, not the years. This is a self-fulfilling prophecy. A firm culture issue, not a systematic issue. Sincerely, Oscar L. Perez

---

Patricia Joseph — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Patricia Joseph That quarterly reporting takes time away from managing a business is NOT TRUE. In my experience in senior management roles in ops and finance at Fortune 500 companies, quarterly reporting enhances performance. The process of preparing for quarterly reports communicates what's really going on up and down the chain of command and of promotes accountability. Like early warning system if there are problems. Twice a year? A lot of bad things can happen in 6 months.

Steven A. Collazo, BBA Student at UPR Cayey; Individual Investor — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Steven A. Collazo As far as reporting goes, it seems like this piece of legislation is made to deregulate the stock market further and loosen rules that have already worked well in favor of investors and maintain the trust that helps the stock market outpace the real economy. Most recently, the gains achieved on April occured thanks to Q1's reports being mostly positive after what seemed to be an uncertain time in March. If companies were given the option to perform semi-annual reporting, they'll go through the path of least resistance and leave investors in the dark as to their daily operations. A better option would be to provide enough incentive to perform quarterly, bimonthly or monthly reporting that the only companies that choose semi-annual reporting are the ones where they see redundancy compared to the benefits provided to them and the shareholders to performing quarterly reports. Unless the world miraculously stabilized overnight, quarterly reporting keeps all investors up to date with the constant goings of the planet, which helps maintain premiums in stock market prices as any uncertainty is quelled by financial reporting. Beyond the financial gains, I and other investors have found the quarterly reports quite useful and properly up-to-date. Usually, anything that is more than a few months old will lose its relevance and it will happen much sooner if something major happens like a war, or tariffs, or the many stints of the current administration that have affected business on more than just a quarterly basis. Institutionals and individual investors alike will not only benefit from quarterly reports, but from more frequent reporting the likes Progressive (PGR) have achieved with their monthly updates. There have also been times when I've been able to make use of quarterly reports to avoid entire bankruptcies that would have happened months later due to how quickly some financials have deteriorated. Semi-annual reports put investors at greater risk of financial loss and may erode the trust and goodwill of the US stock market at a global level, as fraud can be more easily achieved with more lax reporting requirements.

Tan Banh — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Tan Banh To the Securities and Exchange Commission,I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposal to move from quarterly (Form 10-Q) to semiannual (Form 10-S) reporting. While the stated goal is to reduce "short-termism," the actual result will be a dangerous reduction in market transparency that disproportionately harms retail investors. The current quarterly structure is the "gold standard" for a reason. Extending the reporting gap to six months creates a massive "dark period" that gives an unfair advantage to institutional firms and insiders. Large hedge funds and advanced firms already use alternative data such as satellite tracking of retail parking lots, private shipping manifests, and high-frequency credit card data to predict company performance in real time. Retail investors do not have access to these expensive tools; we rely on the 10-Q to level the playing field. By removing the quarterly requirement, the SEC is essentially ensuring that by the time a retail investor sees a semiannual report, the "news" is already six months old and has been fully traded upon by those with better technology. Furthermore, a 180 day gap between financial disclosures creates a breeding ground for insider trading. When material changes in a company's health are not disclosed for half a year, the temptation and opportunity for those with "inside" knowledge to front run the public grow exponentially. I urge the Commission to maintain the current quarterly reporting frequency to ensure the markets remain fair, transparent, and accessible to everyone, not just those with the most advanced tracking technology. Sincerely, Tan Banh

---

Thomas M. Stoops — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Thomas M. Stoops Strongly oppose this proposed rulemaking to reduce the frequeny of requirred reporting publicly traded companies. Less reporting means less transparency for the investment community while increasing risk at the same time. A corporation is meant to take on risky business enterpriseand without transparency, the investors will be asked to potentially accept unacceptable risk.

Udayan J. Parikh — May 6, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Udayan J. Parikh As a retail investor, I rely on the quarterly earnings report that are given to me on media by the executives of publicly traded companies. It gives me how the company is performing and what the future holds to my investments. By going to have them go semiannually, it poses risk to investment, as the history shows many companies have gone from top to delisting from stock market in matter of few days. I completely agree that quarterly reporting standards might be overkilled to management of the company and costly; at the same time it is crucial for investors for transperancy. Perhaps better solution is to have Quadrimester (every 4 months) rather than every 3 months. Going semianually has a huge risk as it is unchartered territory and do not know what can go wrong for investors. By going every 4 months, investor still get enough transparency and management can save cost and focus more on running a company that worry about what to report to investor, as it does take quite some management time on preparing for report every 3 months.

Adam, Technical Program Manager, AI & Clinical Technology MBA — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Adam I am submitting this comment in strong opposition to the proposed amendments that would allow public companies to file semiannual reports in lieu of quarterly reports on Form 10-Q. The SEC's mandate is investor protection. This proposal moves in the opposite direction. Reduced transparency increases investor risk. Quarterly reporting gives investors, analysts, and the market timely signals to price risk accurately. Moving to semiannual reporting creates a six-month information vacuum. Academic research has documented that reduced reporting frequency leads investors to overreact to peer-company earnings, overcorrect when reports do arrive, and experience greater price volatility — not less. Less transparency does not produce more efficient markets. It produces less efficient ones. The 2008 financial crisis is not ancient history. The systemic failures that nearly collapsed the global economy were enabled by opacity, inadequate disclosure, and insufficient oversight of corporate financial conditions. The regulatory response to that crisis was built on the premise that investors need more information, more frequently — not less. We have not resolved the structural vulnerabilities that made that crisis possible. Loosening disclosure requirements now is not reform. It is regression. “Optional” frameworks erode in practice. Framing this as voluntary flexibility understates the real-world dynamics. When large-cap companies adopt semiannual reporting, smaller firms face pressure to follow to reduce compliance costs. What begins as an option becomes the floor. Investor protections are weakened for the entire market, not just the companies that elect the new cadence. Compliance cost arguments do not justify the tradeoff. The burden-reduction case rests on the costs to companies. The SEC’s obligation runs to investors, not issuers. Shifting that cost onto investors — in the form of information asymmetry, increased risk, and reduced ability to make informed decisions — is not a net regulatory benefit. It is a transfer of risk from corporations to the public. The SEC should be strengthening oversight, not contracting it. Bad actors exist in public markets. They always have. Quarterly reporting does not prevent fraud, but it shortens the window in which fraud can go undetected. Extending that window by six months is a gift to those who exploit information gaps. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal and reaffirm its commitment to the transparency standards that have distinguished U.S. capital markets for over five decades.

Andrew Neumeier — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Andrew Neumeier Good Day, I will be very brief. I have read about the proposed rule change regarding the quarterly reporting requirement by the SEC that would allow companies to file them less often, semi-annually. My wife and I are individual investors, investing for our future, our retirement and that of our extended family. We rely on Quarterly Reports from the companies whose stock we own. It creates more transparency, and allows us to make investment decisions as we need to. We need more information, not less of it. The SEC proposal gives me less information, exactly what I do not want, the opposite of what we need to monitor our investments. About a year ago, we sold all stock in one of our companies. We did this because of information they provided in a Quarterly Report. We were months ahead of the curve, we sold it before the trouble started that we feared from the information provided in that single report. Had that company not been required to file those reports we would have been late in our sale of that company. Our investment would have been hurt. We ask you to leave things as they are. We request that Quarterly Reports as a SEC requirement be continued, for our own good and that of other investors. More information is better, much better. More transparency is better. We think the job of the SEC is to protect investors, you can help to protect us by requiring companies provide Quarterly Reports. Thank you.

Andy Black, Investor — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Andy Black I respectfully oppose any efforts to loosen or eliminate quarterly reporting requirements for public companies. As an investor, I rely on timely, standardized disclosures to make informed decisions, assess risk, and monitor company performance. Quarterly reporting promotes transparency, market efficiency, and accountability by ensuring that material information is disclosed on a consistent and predictable basis. Reducing the frequency or rigor of these reports would likely increase information asymmetry, disadvantage retail investors, and diminish confidence in public markets. While concerns about short-termism are valid, they can be addressed through improved disclosure practices and guidance rather than by reducing transparency. Maintaining robust quarterly reporting standards is essential to preserving investor trust and the integrity of U.S. capital markets.

Anonymous — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous This is not in the public's interest A lot of BAD can happen in 6 months which can be caught better in 3. Subscriber loss? find out better in 3 Fewer Diners? find out better in 3 Fuel costs going to cause a loss next Q? find out better in 3 so on A lot of BAD can happen over 6 months and it is better to find out in 3. It is in the public's interest to know material information in 3 months over six.

Anonymous, Individual Investor — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Anonymous the quarterly reporting frequency, while burdensome, is necessary for shareholders to understand how the business they have invested is doing. We need at least unaudited quarterly statements. Competition is intense in this world and businesses are hardly stagnant over 6 months. I wish the SEC would spend more time prosecuting market manipulation, insider trades which are very obvious these days.

Bill Korn, Board Member and Audit Chair of Jerash Holdings (US) Inc., and Board Member and former CFO of CareCloud, Inc. — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Bill Korn While I see the appeal for many issuers of only reporting twice a year, investors are better served with quarterly reporting, and the Board can do a more effective job of assessing performance with quarterly reports. If we allow issuers the option of choosing semi-annual reporting, it would be helpful to relax the timeframe for reporting if they choose to stay with quarterly. I would rather see a quarterly report 60 days after quarter-end then wait for a semiannual report 40 or 45 days after the end of the half. Especially for smaller reporting companies, a little extra time might encourage them to stay with quarterly reports.

CH Young — May 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from CH Young From: CH Young Affiliation: May 5, 2026 This is a very bad idea. Singapore implemented semiannual reporting years ago. The result is company's disclosure became worse, transparency suffered, trading volume dwindled and valuations suffered. Now it is trying to encourage quarterly updates. Making it easy for companies is finding a wrong shortcut and a loser mentality. Companies are well aware of all obligations as public companies. They shouldn't list if they find it onerous. Don't come into the game if they can't cope. You don't get good players by making things easier. Also, it will skew the information dissemination to institutional investors who have direct access to key executives of companies, which is to the disadvantage of retail investors.

Chris Curnan — May 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Chris Curnan From: Chris Curnan Affiliation: May 5, 2026 This rule will harm small investors and keep investors in the dark about the company finances for an extended period of time. Companies that choose to do this will not be held accountable to extended periods of time. This is a terrible idea and harms the trust of US public companies.

Daniel Plowman — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Daniel Plowman I feel like semiannual reporting is a win for regular people. When companies report twice a year, they are not running each quarter with a focus only on earnings. With fewer mandatory reporting periods, leaders can manage their businesses and do what is best for the people they serve rather than serving only shareholders. I invest and really only pay attention to Q2 and Q4 earnings anyway. Those two quarters are centered on the ideal spending seasons, spring and winter. Preparing for summer and Christmas (holiday) shopping. However, I can see this going both ways, opening up less oversight and, essentially, creating opportunities for fraud. That being said, I still fully support semiannual reporting and feel it will help people who rely on businesses for services or goods rather than having those businesses operate in a manner that does not treat each customer fairly.

David Bach, Bach Financial Literacy Consulting — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: David Bach Sir or Madam: Two reasons to avoid semi-annual reporting. (1) Less transparency leads to more uncertainly, which leads to less trading and greater volatility. This increased risk will lower stock prices. That upsets investors, leading to further less trading. The downward cycle continues. (2) Companies should not bite the hand that feeds them. Upset investors may not support the companies' future funding needs.

Erik Swanson — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Erik Swanson I am writing to express my strong opposition to the Commission's proposal to permit certain issuers to report on a semiannual basis rather than quarterly. Reducing the frequency of required disclosures would materially weaken the transparency framework that underpins U.S. capital markets. Quarterly reporting has long served as a foundational mechanism for ensuring that investors receive timely, decision-useful information about an issuer's financial condition, risk exposures, and operational performance. Moving to a semiannual cadence would create extended periods in which material developments may go unreported, increasing information asymmetry between insiders and the investing public. This would undermine market efficiency and elevate the risk of mispricing, volatility, and unequal access to critical data. The Commission has repeatedly emphasized that transparency is essential to investor protection and to maintaining confidence in U.S. markets. Allowing issuers to report only twice per year runs counter to that principle. In an environment where business conditions, macroeconomic factors, and risk profiles can shift rapidly, less frequent reporting would leave investors with outdated information for longer periods and impair their ability to make informed decisions. While the proposal suggests that reduced reporting may lessen compliance burdens, any marginal administrative benefit is outweighed by the significant costs to market integrity. The existing quarterly framework strikes an appropriate balance between issuer obligations and investor needs, and it should be preserved. For these reasons, I respectfully urge the Commission not to adopt the proposed rule permitting semiannual reporting. Maintaining robust, frequent disclosure requirements is essential to protecting investors and sustaining the transparency that has long distinguished U.S. capital markets. Thank you for considering this comment.

Henggao Cai — May 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Henggao Cai From: Henggao Cai Affiliation: May 5, 2026 I am submitting this comment as an individual investor and member of the public. I write in strong opposition to this proposal. While framed as a modernization of an outdated framework, this rule would, in practice, reduce the flow of standardized financial information that retail investors depend on to make decisions and it would do so for the primary benefit of corporate management teams, not the investors the Commission is charged with protecting.
The SEC's core mandate under the Securities Exchange Act is to protect investors, maintain fair and orderly markets, and facilitate capital formation.. This proposal inverts that priority. It privileges corporate convenience over investor access, and it does so without credible evidence that quarterly reporting is actually causing the harms its critics claim.
The short-term argument does not hold up. The central justification for this rule is that quarterly reporting forces managers into short-term decision-making. This argument has been repeated for years by executives and lobbyists, but the empirical record does not support it. Academic research examining companies that shifted to semiannual reporting in the UK and EU found no meaningful improvement in long-term investment behavior. What it did find was increased stock price volatility, investor overreaction in the absence of own-firm disclosures, and overcorrection when semiannual reports finally arrived. The Commission is proposing to restructure a 50-year disclosure regime based on a premise that peer-reviewed research has already substantially undermined.
Retail investors will bear the cost of this rule. Institutional investors, hedge funds, and company insiders do not depend on quarterly 10-Q filings the way retail investors do. They have access to earnings calls, analyst relationships, roadshows, and proprietary data services. Retail investors are the people this agency exists to protect, rely on standardized, mandatory disclosures as their primary window into how a company is actually performing. Doubling the gap between those disclosures from three months to six creates a structural information advantage for sophisticated participants and leaves ordinary investors operating on assumptions for longer periods. This is not a theoretical concern. It is a predictable and documented outcome.
The Form 8-K backstop is not an adequate substitute. The proposal appears to rely on current-event 8-K filings to bridge the information gap between semiannual reports. But 8-K filings are management-discretionary, non-standardized, and cannot substitute for the systematic financial data, such as revenue, earnings, cash flow, balance sheet changes that Form 10-Q requires. A company that elects semiannual reporting could go six months without giving investors a standardized, auditable view of its financial condition, entirely within the rules as proposed.
The "optional" framing obscures the aggregate harm. Because this is presented as a voluntary election, proponents argue that market forces will discipline companies that reduce disclosure. That argument fails for several reasons. First, retail investors often cannot easily identify which companies have switched to semiannual reporting or understand the implications when they do. Second, the companies most likely to elect semiannual reporting are smaller, less-covered firms where information is already scarce, which is precisely where retail investors are most exposed. Third, once semiannual reporting becomes normalized, investor expectations will adjust downward and the transparency premium will erode.
I urge the Commission to withdraw this proposal. If the Commission is genuinely concerned about compliance costs for smaller issuers, there are targeted ways to address that and streamlining the content requirements of Form 10-Q, extending filing deadlines for non-accelerated filers, or providing technical assistance without eliminating the quarterly disclosure cadence that has underpinned market confidence for over half a century.
Flexibility is not a regulatory virtue when the costs fall on those with the least access to alternative information. I ask the Commission to reject this rule and reaffirm its commitment to investor protection as its primary obligation.
Thank you for considering this comment.
Henggao Cai

Jeremiah Schuur — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jeremiah Schuur I strongly oppose the proposed SEC rule allowing semiannual rather than quarterly reporting by public companies. The strength and global dominance of U.S. capital markets rests in large part on the availability of timely, reliable, standardized public information. Frequent disclosure reduces information asymmetry, improves price discovery, lowers the cost of capital, and promotes confidence in the fairness and transparency of our markets. Quarterly reporting is particularly important for individual investors, who do not have access to the private channels, institutional research, or insider relationships available to large financial firms. Reducing the frequency of mandatory reporting would disproportionately benefit sophisticated market participants while increasing informational disadvantage and uncertainty for ordinary Americans whose retirement savings are invested through 401(k)s, pensions, and mutual funds. At a time when confidence in markets and institutions is critically important, the SEC should strengthen - not weaken - the flow of accurate public information. The transparency and accountability created by regular reporting requirements are a major reason global investors continue to trust and invest in U.S. markets. Moving to semiannual reporting would represent a step backward for market integrity, investor protection, and long-term public confidence.

Joe Beverly, Former Business Owner, Current Investor in Publicly Owned Securities — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Joe Beverly I would be opposed to such a change. Any company, whether public or private, should be preparing and reviewing monthly financial statements. If monthly statements are being prepared, with modern accounting systems, it is not difficult to print quarterly statements. I admit there is more work to be done than just printing the statements, but I believe investors in public companies should not have to wait for six months to get an update from a public company.

John Boyar, CPA — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Boyar I do not support this move. As someone who has experience in the financial markets, we should not be making moves to reduce transparency between companies and their investors.

John Cheppo — May 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from John Cheppo From: John Cheppo Affiliation: May 5, 2026 Dear SEC,
This is an awful idea. I have worked in companies for decades and have now retired. This would not change any long term behaviors, and simply just increase non-transparency and further harm individual investors ability to identify, assess and mitigate risks. Quarterly reporting is a bedrock of making companies try to do the right thing, it's not a problem. I cannot even believe this is up for consideration. Do not permit this please.

John Flynn Jr. — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: John Flynn Jr. I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposal that would allow U.S. public companies to report earnings on a semiannual basis instead of quarterly. Quarterly reporting is one of the few mechanisms that ensures timely transparency, market discipline, and early detection of financial stress. Reducing reporting frequency would: Increase information asymmetry between insiders and the investing public Delay the visibility of deteriorating fundamentals, allowing problems to compound before investors can react Reduce accountability for management teams who already face limited scrutiny between earnings cycles Increase volatility, as markets would be forced to digest twice as much information at once Weaken U.S. market leadership, which has historically been built on rigorous disclosure standards The argument that quarterly reporting creates "short-termism" is overstated. Companies already have tools to guide long-term expectations without reducing transparency. Investors, analysts, and regulators rely on quarterly data to monitor risk, capital allocation, and operational performance. Semiannual reporting would remove a critical safeguard. For these reasons, I urge the Commission to withdraw or substantially reconsider this proposal. The costs to market integrity and investor protection far outweigh any claimed benefits. Thank you for considering this comment. John Flynn Jr.

Jose G. Martinez, Private Investor — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Jose G. Martinez As a private investor, I strongly prefer that public companies continue reporting earnings quarterly rather than semiannually. Quarterly reports provide timely transparency, help investors make informed decisions, and maintain accountability in the markets. Reducing the frequency of reporting would limit access to current financial information and could increase uncertainty for individual investors who rely on regular updates to evaluate company performance.

Ken Stack — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ken Stack Why is this all or none and a scaled back compliance burden is not being considered for companies in say q2 and q3 with start and end year more comprehensive reporting? Or another alternative ; a reduced burden where it makes sense across the board with the existing cadence intact. As the proposal itself noted there are significant differences between public companies. If changing the reporting structure why not have qualification criteria to be met and maintained enabling only qualifying companies earning it along with investor trust the option to reduce their reporting burden? This carrot may incentivize better accounting and reporting behaviors as accounting deviations from accepted standards and outright fraud are not unheard of. Reducing the compliance burden to encourage companies to go public is attractive but to not do this thoughtfully creates more uncertainty and unknown risk for investors with less public information. It is the latter goal; investor well being that should remain the primary focus here. Existing investors need a vote on their holdings before reporting levels at their jnvestment decrease at a bare minimum. To follow one's investment through social media as a primary source of information as mentioned in the proposal is incredibly discouraging.

Lora Jones, CFO, National Bankshares, Inc. — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Lora Jones We are in favor of the proposed rule. The rule will give companies the ability to choose the option appropriate to their shareholders' preference and provide greater ability to manage reporting resources.

Mark Hyman, CPA — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Mark Hyman I do not like this option. I am an investor and require the greater frequency of quarterly reporting vs semi-annual. Quarterly reporting requires each company to "get their house in order" for the quarterly reporting cycle. That discipline is very useful to outside investors.

Mark Patterson — May 5, 2026
Subject: S7-2026-15: Webform Comments from Mark Patterson From: Mark Patterson Affiliation: May 5, 2026 As a retail trader, I oppose this amendment because I use the quarterly reports to adjust my investment strategies.

Marly Reese, Investor & CPA — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Marly Reese This is terrible for retail investors and only widens the information and access gap that institutional firms and day to day citizens have when looking at investment opportunities.

Michael Shore — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Michael Shore Under NO conditions should companies be allowed to only report every 6 months instead of quarterly. History, reaching back centuries, is full of companies acting illegally; the only way that behavior comes to light is through their quarterly reporting (and not always then, if they falsify financial records). Leaving companies to only report every 6 months would greatly increase the potential harm to investors with the corresponding damage to the stock markets and the US economy. It is best to catch such illegal behavior earlier, while it's a smaller problem, instead of giving companies more time to create a catastrophe. Protect the markets!

Peter Cwik — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Peter Cwik Keep the filing quarterly do not make it semi annual. We won't know for six months of the company is screwing us. Are you out of your mind? Do not change the rule!!!

Peter Ford — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Peter Ford 1. Information gaps create pricing inefficiencies and risk. Quarterly earnings have been the bedrock of fundamental analysis for decades. Cutting reporting to twice a year means investors go six months without an auditor-reviewed financial picture of a company. For individual investors, that's blind flying. For advisors managing client portfolios, it means extended periods where you simply don't know if the thesis on a position has changed. Professional advisors who rely on 10-Q data for position monitoring, valuation updates, and risk flagging would face a material degradation in signal quality. 2. "Optional" won't stay optional for long and the wrong companies will opt in. The framing as optional makes this sound benign. But in practice, companies with something to hide between periods. Those with deteriorating margins, rising debt, operational problems are the most motivated to elect semiannual filing. High-quality, stable businesses have little to gain. This creates adverse selection: the universe of semiannual filers will be skewed toward companies with elevated opacity risk, right at the moment investors have less visibility. 3. It undermines earnings-based risk management. Professional advisors use quarterly filings for far more than earnings: they track working capital trends, debt covenant headroom, revenue seasonality, segment-level performance, and management guidance credibility. A six-month gap makes all of this harder. Sector-sensitive portfolios where conditions shift materially quarter to quarter would be particularly exposed. 4. The market efficiency argument cuts the other way. Proponents (echoing Chairman Atkins' language about companies determining "the interim reporting frequency that best serves their business needs") frame this as reducing burden. But capital markets are efficient because information flows continuously and uniformly. Allowing a two-tier system fragments that. Stocks of semiannual filers would likely trade at a discount — a permanent information-risk premium, which ironically hurts the very companies that elect the option.

Ronney Davis — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Ronney Davis Information is of the most importance and removal of any is very very bad!!!

Sig Hardester — May 5, 2026
Subject: File No. S7-2026-15 From: Sig Hardester I am against the proposed rule change allowing semiannual financial reporting by public companies. I believe that this proposed change will substantially dis-advantage retail mom and pop investors, who rely on this information to make critical personal financial and investment decisions.